What street do you live on, Mister?

Chances are you don't know, even if you've lived here long enough to know the town by heart, and know exactly how many steps from your home to town.

The beginning of "legal work" toward our paving project here has brought to many minds forcibly that we don't know which streets are which, or who lives where.

How do you direct strangers to where somebody lives? Well, we're pretty like the old country boy who was trying to tell someone to get to a certain fellow's place.

"Well," he says, "you go this way two miles, then turn left. No, you don't go that way, you go this way two miles, then turn right—no, left—heck, Mister, you just can't get there from here."

We had company a while back. They were strangers in our town, too. They'd inquired about where we lived, but missed the directions because "the big white house" they were directed to was hidden by trees and darkness.

They retraced their tracks back to town, found another fellow who was near the Piggly Wiggly store. "You go two streets north from this fire plug," he says, "then turn left, and they're the first house on your right."

That was easy, and our company found us; but dad burn, what if that fire plug hadn't been there? What other landmark would the man have cited? And what landmarks that are familiar to us would be recognized by strangers?

Generally we try to find out if they know where Mr. So-and-so lives, then direct them from there. If they don't know where anybody lives, then it's a different proposition. Sometimes an accommodating citizen goes with strangers and shows them the place.

Some street markers, some street names, some house numbers, etc., would eliminate a lot of that sort of stuff, and with our paving getting ready to commence to start, it would be a good time to get something done about it.

Some work, or thought, or talking, or something has been done about it, we understand, but now is the time to get all the eggs in the same basket and bring the matter to a successful conclusion.

The Jaycees have talked about it, we heard, and the Jaycees are just about the type of organization with persons who will get something done. Provided, of course, the deal doesn't "flake out" like the town's census a few summers ago.

The senior Chamber of Commerce has talked about it, too, we heard, and a committee is "out" on the matter, and has been out for better than a year.

It was talked at the Rotary Club last Monday, but that's as far as the matter went. There, it was pointed out that these other two organizations are talking about it.

Some favor the renaming of streets, making them first, second, third street, and so on for certain directions from the town square, and letting the others keep their names after old time families, such as Jones, Smith, Reeves and Campbell streets.

Some will allow that the present names are OK, just so something is done so people will know the names.

The name of the street we live on suits us fine. We don't know what it is, though! We've been told, but we've forgotten, already!

A marker would help us to remember, and would help others to find us.

Before the locker plant was erected, we could step to the corner north of the Times office and point out our house to folks wanting to find it. But the town's progress has forgotten, already!

W. F. Snody Asks For Re-election As Treasurer

W. F. (Walter) Snody, county treasurer of Knox county, has authorized the Munday Times to announce his candidacy for re-election to this office, subject to the action of the Democratic primary in July.

Mr. Snody, who is a pioneer resident of this county, is well known to practically every voter in the county, having served in various capacities before being elected county treasurer.

In making his announcement, Mr. Snody stated that he had tried to give the people honest and courteous service as their county treasurer, and he promises another term of efficient service if re-elected.

"Because of the duties of office," he said, "it may be impossible for me to make an intensive campaign, and I want the voters to take this announcement as a personal solicitation of their votes. I assure you your vote and influence will be appreciated, and if returned to the office, I will do my best to make you a good public official."

"If elected to this office," he said, "I will do my best to make you a good commissioner, performing the duties in an honest and creditable manner. I feel that my knowledge of conditions in this area fully qualifies me to fill this office, and I promise you a business administration and my full cooperation with the Commissioners Court in all moves for the betterment of our county."

"I will try to see all of you personally, but in the meantime I ask that you give my candidacy full consideration, assuring you that your vote and influence will be deeply appreciated."

Warren Announces For Commissioner Of Prec. Two

Politics in Knox County Precinct No. 2 were given a shot in the arm Tuesday when J. O. Warren, well known farmer of the Brook Community for the past 37 years, announced his candidacy for the office of county commissioner of the precinct, subject to the action of the Democratic primary in July.

While being active in community affairs for many years, this is Mr. Warren's first announcement for a county elective office.

In making his announcement, Mr. Warren said he did so only after careful consideration of the responsibilities connected with the office he seeks.

"I firmly believe I can make the people of the precinct a good commissioner, with the best interest of the precinct and county always at heart. Having lived here most of my life and reared my family here, I am well acquainted with the duties of the office and believe I have the ability to perform those duties," Mr. Warren said.

Two pioneer residents of Rhine-land, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Lorans, will observe their golden wedding anniversary on Saturday, February 21.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorans are real pioneers of Knox county, coming here in the early days and enduring many hardships of the pioneer life. Mr. Lorans was an early-day ginner here, and he loves to relate stories of his ginning experience, and other experiences of the early days.

A prominent farmer, Mr. Lorans was active in the Texas Farmers Union for many years, serving as president of that organization for several years.

"We are planning no celebration at this time," Mr. Lorans stated, "but just a quiet observance of our golden wedding date. Mrs. Lorans has been in ill health for some time, and our celebration has been postponed indefinitely, until such a time as her health will permit her to enjoy the celebration to the fullest."

Mrs. Harrison Asks Re-Election As Dist. Clerk

Mrs. Opal Harrison-Logan, who is serving her first term as district clerk of Knox county, Texas, on Wednesday announced her candidacy for re-election to this office, subject to the action of the Democratic primary in July.

"My desires and my efforts have been toward gaining this knowledge as rapidly as possible," she said, "and I have tried to make you an efficient district clerk. If re-elected to the office, I promise you another term of honest and sincere service. To this end I ask your vote and influence during my campaign."

MUNDAY'S NEEDS FOR 1948

1. A modern and up-to-date high school building, to care for the present and future educational needs of our children.
2. A waterworks system that meets all requirements of health, sanitation and supply.
3. A street sweeper that will keep our pavement clean enough to be recognized as pavement.
4. A clean-up campaign of lasting effect; yes, one that extends even across the tracks.
5. Completion of our drainage and paving program, which will probably be accomplished this year.
6. More activity among our civic organizations, looking forward to, and planning for, a better Munday in the future.

WHAT IS $693,000,000?

Last year, the United States suffered a fire loss of nearly $693,000,000. A figure like that, even in these days of billion-dollar calculations, is too large for anyone but an advanced mathematician to visualize. So the National Board of Fire Underwriters has released a few comparisons that show clearly the incredible magnitude of fire waste in 1947.

It was fifteen per cent greater than the whole farm income of New England in 1946. It was 40 per cent greater than the total education budgets of all American cities of more than 25,000 population in 1945. It was greater than all the tax revenues received by New York State in 1947. And finally, it was about equal in dollar value to the total payroll of the transit industry in 1946, the wages of the whole light and power industry in the same year, and the net income of all American railroads in 1914.

Even that is only part of the story—and the smallest part. The $693,000,000 was direct, calculable loss. The indirect loss, which cannot be precisely measured, is estimated to be two to three times as great. It is totaled in lost jobs, wages and taxes; in diminished production, and in all the other wastes that go with fire.

Last year's loss was about $131,000,000 above the previous high established in 1926. It was a monument to American folly. Will we build another such terrifying monument in 1948?

WHERE ELSE WOULD YOU WANT TO LIVE?

Should anyone feel ashamed at boasting about this country? William Henry Chamberlin, one of our most distinguished historians and foreign correspondents, doesn't think so.

In a recent newspaper column, Mr. Chamberlin wrote: "It is easy to sneer at the slogan, 'against every ism except Americanism' as unsophisticated, uncouth, lacking in proper cosmopolitan spirit and whatnot. But, when due allowance has been made for wisecracks . . . the fact remains that Americanism is something pretty distinctive, and is a pretty good ism to live by . . ."

"Perhaps the most decisive proof that Americanism, with all its faults, is a pretty good ism, lies in the question: Where else would anyone familiar with American and world conditions wish to live, or see his children live? Thirty-five years ago, even fifteen years ago many European countries might have offered attractive alternatives. That this is not the case today is in considerable part the result of the new isms to which Europeans have surrendered, part or all, of their freedom."

The new isms of which Mr. Chamberlin speaks are not milestones in the march of mankind. They mark a desperate and tragic turning back of the clock, and the hands are moving steadily toward another dark age. For two thousand years, peoples fought for freedom, and millions of lives were sacrificed to the ideal. Now freedom is being thrown away as if it were a cheap and useless thing.

Where else but here would you want to live, or want your children to live? That question bears repeating, and every American should answer it.

According to the United States News, Russia's present economic potential is equal to about the U. S. level of 1902. By 1960, it is expected she will be about equal the U. S. level obtaining in 1915. Her major weaknesses are in transport, agriculture and skilled labor. Her main strength lies in population and undeveloped natural resources.

Free Ride For You—on the Freedom Train!
We had a real thrill in Our Town just the other day—when the Freedom Train stopped by!
You've heard about it, of course—an actual train that's touring the country to remind us again what true Democracy means. It carries such Americana as the Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights, and other immortal documents that guarantee every citizen his liberty.
A great idea! And from where I sit, we're all riding along with that Freedom Train—right now—by living in a country that protects our individual liberties—whether they apply to our right to vote, to choose our church, to speak our minds, or enjoy a glass of beer with friends.
Only thing is—we've got to prove ourselves worthy of the ride . . . by guarding zealously against whatever forces of intolerance encroach upon our American concepts of live-and-let-live, in a free and strong Democracy!

Knox Prairie Philosopher Wants Inflation To End For Everybody Except Knox Prairie Philosopher

Editor's note: The Knox Prairie Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Miller Creek, who has been complaining about high prices, is now afraid prices will come down, his letter this week reveals.

Dear editor:

The weather for the last few weeks has interfered with my reading, but I have managed to sneak down to the creek or to my neighbor's mail box enough to keep posted, in a vice-presidential sort of way at least, and in a copy of a paper I picked up yesterday I discovered that according to some financial wizards the back of inflation has been broken and prices is comin down, but all I hope is that they don't come down on my back and break it too.

That is, while I realize things is tough with prices high, how can I tell what prices is gonna get low at the wrong time? That is, I ain't got a particle of objection to the price of groceries comin down, they can come down to the free hand-out stage without no objection from me, with a sack of flour thrown in ever time you buy a can of snuff, but I wouldn't be interested right now in seein the price of Jersey steers come down. If they're gonna bring the price of everything down, we wouldn't be no better off than we are now. Somebody in Washington has the wrong idea. It ain't the price you get that's worryin people, it's the price you pay. Inflation is terrible and me and Mr. Truman is against it, don't make no difference if we don't understand it but I privately was hopin things would hold up a little while longer, I was calculatin on gettin in good financial shape this fall, and then I wouldn't object to havin things get back to normal, although I don't suppose I ought to be askin the whole nation's economy to hold up its normal rise and fall on my account as I been expectin to get in better shape ever fall since I can remember, but when fall gets here things come up and one thing and another happens and I let the reins go and decide I'll do it next fall for sure.

On the other hand, my neighbor from across the creek says there ain't no use gettin excited, Wall Street is just flushin out the little fellows, the price of wheat fell from $3 a bushel to $2.75 and he can remember when 50 cents a bushel was a big price and he ain't throwin his hat in the air just because the price of bread dropped one cent a loaf or 3 cents a bite or bacon fell from 75 cents a pound to 65 cents as he can't afford none at neither price.

Can't you get Senator O'Daniel or Congressman Gossett to introduce a bill immediately for the Uneven Accomplishment of Deflation? Let prices come down on the things I have to buy let em stay up for a while on the things I have to sell.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

County Council Of H. D. Clubs In Meeting Friday

The Knox County Home Demonstration Council met in an all day session with a covered dish luncheon Friday, February 6, in the assembly room at Benjamin.

The meeting was opened with Mrs. R. M. Almanrode, acting as council chairman in the absence of Mrs. O. L. Miller.

Opening songs, Perfect Posture and God Bless America, were sung by the group and led by Mrs. J. C. McGee, recreation chairman.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Roll call was answered by six of the eight clubs in the county. Under old business, chairman called for each committee to report. Recommendations for next year's work was given. All recommendations were accepted with the understanding they could be added to or taken from since weather conditions made it impossible for some committee members to be present.

During the new business, council discussed possibility of District 3 convention being held in Knox County.

Leather for making hand made gloves and metal for making trays were ordered by the council marketing chairman, Mrs. H. P. Gillespie. It has been approved by THD A that being a club member for a year, members were eligible for a club pin.

Each club member is urged to bring a tested recipe to the next council meeting which will be held March 5th. All recipes are being collected for a club cook book.

There will be a grand prize of gifts given for the club having the largest percentage in attendance at council throughout the year. Munday had the largest attendance last council.

Mrs. C. S. Woolward.

Canned Goods Help Provide Family Diet

At this season, Knox County Homemakers are going into their stores of canned goods rather heavily in order to provide the family with a well balanced diet.

Often home-canned fruits or vegetables which have become discolored on the shelf are a problem to many housewives who wonder whether they are safe to eat.

Eugenia Butler, County Home Demonstration Agent, names several causes for discoloration of home canned goods besides spoilage. Some of the reasons found by canning specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture are:

Fruits and vegetables may darken at the top of jars from air in the jars. They also may darken from too little or too much heating during canning. Canned pears, apples, and peaches sometimes take on pink or blue tints from chemical changes in their coloring or from too slow cooling after canning. Iron or cooper in cooking utensils or in water may cause brown, black or grey colors in canned foods. Highly colored foods, like beets or raspberries, may fade when canned in plain tin. Such color changes are not harmful although the food may be less appealing.

If foods show any sign of spoilage along with the discoloration, however, Miss Butler advises destroying the foods without tasting. Signs of spoilage are: leakage, swelling of jar tops or tins, a spurt of gas when the can is opened, mold at the top of jars. Mold in acid products is usually not harmful although it affects the flavor of food, but it may cut the acidity so that dangerous spoilage organisms can grow.

Any canned food that shows signs of spoilage should be disposed of where it cannot be eaten by humans or animals. Unfortunately as it is to have to waste canned food, it does not pay to take health chances on food that may be harmful. Canned vegetables especially should be suspect if they show the slightest sign of spoilage.

And remember: Don't taste your low-acid content canned foods before cooking, because danger of contracting food poisoning is very high until the food has been thoroughly heated.

The moisture removed from foods in dehydrofreezing is restored by the water used in cooking.

Presenting the new 1948 PONTIAC

A FINE CAR MADE EVEN FINER!

GM Hydra-Matic Drive optional on all models!

Today, Pontiac announces a series of notable advancements in the car that has already won the wholehearted endorsement of more than a million owners and friends.

Foremost among these advancements is the new General Motors Hydra-Matic Drive—now offered as optional equipment on all Pontiac cars. Pontiac is the lowest-priced car in the world to provide this great mechanical masterpiece—which shifts gears automatically, and completely eliminates the clutch pedal.

Coupled with this great engineering triumph is a striking improvement in beauty and luxury. New exterior smartness extends from the new radiator grille to the streamlined rear bumper.

Interiors, too, are remarkably improved. Upholsteries are more beautiful and are expertly blended to achieve new attractiveness and charm. Instrument panels are finished in a smart design adapted from quarter-sawn mahogany—and an adroit use of chrome moulding adds a deft touch of modernity.

Engine and chassis have been refined wherever possible—but they remain, basically, the same engineering masterpieces which have become synonymous in the automotive industry with goodness and dependability.

There are many more things we could tell you about the new Pontiac, for there are countless improvements which add to its traditional quality and value. But we feel that, for those who know Pontiac, we need only say—

—here is, by far, the most beautiful Pontiac ever built

—here is the most luxurious Pontiac ever built

—here is the most dependable Pontiac ever built —and it is now available with GM Hydra-Matic Drive—optional at additional cost.

We wish only to add that it is here—on display in our showroom—and that you are most cordially invited to see and inspect it.

"High-steppers" to take you sprightly and comfortably through the rest of winter and into spring. Sized right for you and your budget.

others are mentally and physically alert at eighty. The number of years one has lived may not be a true index to one's physical condition. Actually, the length of a person's life span is influenced by the condition of his arteries. Premature hardening of the arteries, often due to avoidable infections, improper diet, and possibly worry and strain is to a certain extent, preventable, said Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

Many of the problems connected with the hygiene of old age are due to lowered mental power. Therefore, a cheerful and optimistic attitude toward the aged, especially during sickness, is essential to their well-being. Old people regard their condition as far less serious when they can be fully dressed and out of bed. When they can be up, the excretory organs function more satisfactorily, too. However, when an elderly person complains of being overtired, or otherwise not physically fit, a day of rest in bed is advisable. By providing light and easily digested food and applying warmth to the body of an aged patient, he is often tided over a mild or threatened illness. Special attention should be paid also to proper clothing, diet, and exercise of the elderly. With reasonable attention to certain well-defined and easily followed principles of personal hygiene, it is possible to grow old gracefully. Furthermore it is also possible, in

John H. McClaran Writes Second Place Essay In Study Club Contest

The essay of John H. McClaran, second best in the essay contest sponsored by the Munday Study Club, appears below:

AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP—OUR HERITAGE
Those of us who are born within the boundary of the United States have our citizenship bestowed upon us by birth. Our forefathers who fought for us in the American Revolution perhaps did not know fully how they were helping us by winning freedom, thereby laying the foundation for our American citizenship. Through the succeeding years of our country's history, other soldiers have often fought long and hard to retain and uphold these rights and privileges which were guaranteed by these early patriots.

in the home where the first solid foundation for citizenship is laid. Here we should learn in the first years of our lives to obey our family laws. We come to understand the reasons for them, and in this way we learn that there is such a quality, a justice to others and that someone must necessarily make laws and see that these laws are obeyed.

The second period of development for citizenship comes in the public school where we learn one of the most valuable lessons in co-operation, that of living and working together in harmony and unity. Through school government we learn how our higher government is run and how citizens work for the welfare of the nation as a whole; thus our schools are fitting boys and girls who will govern themselves in the nation and will be able to use the greatest liberties in citizenship.

One of the greatest agencies in training people to be citizens is the church, for through this institution has come relief from some of the degrading influences upon moral standards, Christianity and clean living have, no doubt, helped America to be a fit place in which to live. In fact one of the main reasons our country has survived is that wholesome living and proper order in conduct have been so important to the American people. Our country has always wanted for citizens men and women who value thoroughness, honor, truth, self-control, and pure living.

Citizens have some definite duties as well as rights. Observing these duties helps to make America a free and democratic country. Some of the most important obligations of a citizen to his government are obedience to the laws, care of public property, bearing arms in the time of war, paying taxes, and voting. By voting a person helps to keep able men in office. Through his vote in an indirect way the citizen is responsible for the government under which he lives. Many government officers, though they have small pay and often heavy responsibilities, would fail if it were not for the true spirited Americans who fill them. This public service of the patriotic Americans should not only be given in the time of war or danger, but also many forms of peacetime work should be rendered by the citizens.

For hundreds of years the proudest boast that a man could make in Rome was "Civis Romanus sum," meaning, "I am a Roman citizen"; likewise every real American should be bodily proud to say, "I am an American citizen," which means being a citizen of the greatest nation in the world.

Word was received this week that Mrs. A. A. Baskin past away at her home in Harmony, Ark., last Tuesday, February 10. Mrs. Baskin is a sister of Shorty Powell of Munday.

Corrugated Asbestos Sheets
ONE of the modern developments in farm building construction is the growing use of corrugated asbestos cement sheets as siding and roofing for dairy barns, grain storages, hog houses and the like.

Employed for many years as exterior and interior building material for various types of industrial structures, the sheets have many advantages which make them adaptable to farm use. One is the fact that they may be applied to widely spaced framing members. This is possible because the tough mineral composition of the sheets, together with the corrugations, gives them a high degree of strength.

A dairy barn like that illustrated below, constructed with corrugated asbestos cement sheets, is exceptionally economical in the long run. The sheets require no painting or other preservative treatment, and they last indefinitely with little or no maintenance. The natural light grey color and the mellow shadows cast by the corrugations present an unusually pleasing appearance.

Corrugated asbestos cement sheets also provide the farmer with several important "bonus" features. Made of two indestructible minerals, asbestos fibers and portland cement, the sheets are weather-proof and fireproof, as well as being immune to decay, rust, rats and termites.

Veterans News

More veterans reinstated lapsed National Service Life Insurance during December than in any month since last August, Veterans Administration announced today.

VA said 103,668 veterans in December reinstated lapsed insurance with a total value of $671,518,000. During the last eleven months of 1947, a total of 1,106,919 veterans renewed lapsed policies worth nearly $6,790,000,000. VA last month extended to July 31, 1948, the period during which veterans with lapsed insurance may apply for reinstatement of their term policies by nearly filling out a simple form and paying two monthly premiums. Ordinarily, no physical examination is required if the veteran certifies that his health is as good as it was when the policy lapsed.

No penalty or fee of any sort is paid by a veteran who reinstates his term insurance, VA emphasized. Of the two monthly premiums submitted with the reinstatement application, one covers the 31-day grace period for which his insurance was continued in force without payment of premium; the other is payment for the current month of reinstatement.

After July 31, 1948, veterans whose policies have been lapsed for three months or more will be required to take a physical examination and qualify as insurable risks in order to re-instate VA said.

Applications for total disability income riders on National Service Life insurance policies increased steadily throughout the year, reaching 18,000 by the end of September, Veterans Administration said.

About 369,000 veterans requested changes in their National Service Life Insurance contracts during the third quarter of 1947 ending September 30, Veterans Administration said.

Veterans' applications for converting term National Service Life Insurance to any of the half-dozen available permanent forms numbered 162,000 for the third quarter of 1947 ending September 30, compared with an all-time high of 240,000 applications for the quarter ending June 30, Veterans Administration said.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS
Q. I was told that my disability which I claim was due to service, cannot be service-connected because I had it before I entered service. Am I eligible for compensation?

A. If VA decides that your ailment was incurred in or aggravated by your service in the armed forces you will be entitled to receive compensation, if it exists to a compensable degree.

Q. I am a veteran of World War I and would like to know if there is any limit for filing a claim for compensation for disability caused by my war service?

A. There is no time limit set for filing claim for compensation under existing legislation.

Q. I was practically compelled to sign a statement before my discharge that my disability existed prior to my enlistment. Will this prevent my receiving compensation?

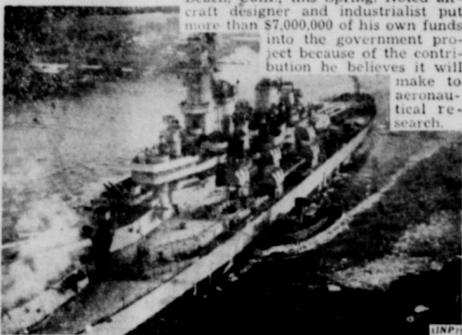

A. Any statement of this nature, according to the Servicemen's Readjustment Act (G. I. Bill), which you made at discharge is considered null and void. Decision as to service connection of

American Heart Assn. Announces Campaign To Combat Heart Disease; Dubbed America's No. 1 Killer

One person dies every minute from heart disease. Heart disease causes three and one-half times as many deaths as cancer which is runner-up and takes a greater toll than the next five leading causes combined. One out of every three people in the United States will die from heart disease, and one out of every two after the age of 45. One out of twenty is afflicted and more or less of an invalid from heart disease. During World War II over six times as many died from heart diseases on the home front as were killed in battle.

Organizations have long existed to fight tuberculosis and cancer. The war against infantile paralysis was dramatized by Franklin D. Roosevelt. This is universally recognized as a terrifying disease, but rheumatic heart disease causes 500 times as many deaths in infancy and childhood and cripples at least twice as many children as does infantile paralysis.

Most astonishing is the apparent inevitability with which these facts have been accepted by so many people.

Why, we ask, and are asked, has relatively so little been done to attack the problem of cardiovascular disease? How can we account for the fact that funds for medical research in this field have been so pitifully meager—so insignificant that vitally needed investigations have been delayed or abandoned for lack of support?

We can no longer explain away the neglect of heart disease by saying "nothing can be done about it." Something can be done about it! In this belief, the American Heart Association has acted.

What are the most common diseases of the heart and blood vessels? The term "heart disease" covers a broad variety of different diseases. Most of these diseases are unrelated. But all involve the heart or blood vessels.

The most common types of heart diseases are those due to rheumatic fever, high blood pressure (hypertension), or to hardening of the arteries (arteriosclerosis), especially hardening of the coronary arteries, the arteries which supply the heart.

Rheumatic heart disease usually starts in early childhood between the ages of 6 and 12 after one or more attacks of rheumatic fever. Rheumatic heart disease is the scar of acute rheumatic fever. Scars develop on one or more of the heart valves and in the heart muscle. Pronounced scarring may eventually result in disability and death.

The exact cause of rheumatic fever is still unknown. Unfortunately the disease works quietly and undramatically, generally seeking out its victims among those who are on the lower economic groups. A large percentage of those who survive rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease must struggle through life as family or community dependents.

Research — and Community Rheumatic Fever programs—are the vital weapons needed to fight the killer of American Children.

In adult life, the problems of heart disease become even more important. High blood pressure, or hypertension, is the most common cause of heart disease in middle age. Although the actual causes of hypertension are still unknown, its effects on the heart are understood.

Hypertension does harm to the body when it throws a tremendous load on the heart, causing it to dilate and enlarge, leading at times to heart failure and death.

The heart and the arteries wear out sooner than they would if the blood pressure were normal. High blood pressure may also cause disability or death by impairing the work of the kidneys or by precipitating a "stroke".

Many people are unnecessarily terrified by the statement that they have "high blood pressure." Hypertension is not always a serious disease. Many of those who have it do not grow progressively worse but live to a normal old age.

Hardening of the arteries (arteriosclerosis) is most common in late middle age and old age. The walls of the arteries become hardened and thickened, often with narrowing of the channel, and a decrease in the size of the blood stream which flows through it. This results in poor circulation.

When a clot (thrombus) forms in the thickened blood vessel, blocking the channel, the circulation is cut off completely, or the damage may weaken the wall of the artery leading to a rupture of the vessel. Such injuries result in inadequate supply of blood to the tissues fed by the damaged blood vessel.

In the case of coronary arteries (the vessels which supply blood to the heart muscle), damage due to arteriosclerosis may reduce the blood supply to the heart muscle, resulting in coronary heart disease. This reduction in the blood supply to the heart muscle frequently results in the symptom commonly known as "angina pectoris"—pain in the center of the chest brought on by effort and relieved by rest. A "heart attack" (or coronary thrombosis) is usually caused by sudden closing of a coronary artery by a blood clot. Coronary thrombosis may result in immediate death, severe heart damage, or less serious heart injury which may heal.

Coronary heart disease is therefore not necessarily fatal. By taking proper precautions, many people who have it are able to live happy and productive lives.

These facts are not presented with the aim of "scaring" anyone into an appreciation of nearsightedness. Fear is no substitute for knowledge. By presenting the truth, the American Heart Association hopes to enlist the willing and intelligent cooperation of every serious-minded citizen in the fight against heart disease. In order to combat this disease, the public must be informed about the causes of heart disease and the significance of such factors as high pressure, infections, overweight and rheumatic fever.

Science has made important advances against heart disease. To cite just a few, we can mention the prevention of recurrences of attacks of acute rheumatic fever by the use of sulfa drugs—the surgical treatment of certain congenital heart defects the lowering of blood pressure and the relief of symptoms of medicine and surgical treatment.

Among the most striking recent developments are the use of sulfa drugs and penicillin in the prevention and treatment of a type of heart disease known as subacute bacterial endocarditis. Prior to the use of such drugs, this disease caused death in almost every case. The American Heart Association realizes that the task to be done is crucial and vast in scope. Much can be accomplished through the support and encouragement of research and the development of the public health programs.

The American Heart Association was organized in 1924 for study of and the dissemination and application of knowledge concerning the causes, treatment and prevention of heart disease; the gathering of information about heart disease; the development and application of measures that would prevent heart disease; seeking and provision of occupations suitable for heart disease patients; the promotion of the establishment of special dispensary classes for heart disease patients; the extension of facilities for adequate care of cardiac convalescents; the promotion of permanent institutional care for such cardiac patients as are hopelessly incapacitated from self-support; and the encouragement and establishment of local associations with similar objects throughout the United States.

Membership in the American Heart Association is open to anyone interested in its aims and objectives.

Affiliated with the American Heart Association are local Heart Associations in communities throughout the United States. These associations are engaged in research and in furthering community programs for the case, treatment and prevention of heart disease; and in the education of physicians, other professional groups, local agencies and the lay public.

Members of all local affiliated Heart Associations automatically become members of the American Heart Association. Where no affiliated local Heart Association exists, individuals may become members of the American Heart Association directly.

A tremendous task remains to be done at the local level. Thousands of communities in the U. S. have no local Heart Associations. These must be organized as rapidly as possible so that the benefits of scientific research in diseases of the heart and circulation may be brought to every citizen in every community. The local Heart Association is the task force in the struggle against the heart diseases.

The program of the American Heart Association calls for complete cooperation with all local Heart Associations in the United States, and for further development of local associations in areas where they do not now exist. As the national agency, the American Heart Association guides and integrates the functions of the local associations, and serves as a clearing house for their activities.

The Texas State Heart Association was organized in 1934 and immediately became affiliated with American Heart Association. The Wichita Falls district of the State Heart Association comprises 15 counties. Texas can be proud of the fact that it was one of the first states to have an organized heart association. Many of the largest centers at present have no heart association. There is a Chicago Heart Association, but no state association in Illinois. The same holds true of New York City and New York State. There is a New England Heart Association, but the individual states of New England have no association.

At the annual meeting of the American Heart Association held last June, Texans would have been proud to hear their state mentioned so favorably in comparison with other states both in the degree of organization of its Heart Association and in the financial aid which through meagre the state association has been able to send in to the American Heart Association still hard pressed financially in its effort to establish an effective organization.

To accomplish its task the heart association must have nationwide cooperation and publicity and financial assistance. So, this week of February 8th has been set aside as National Heart Week, because it includes Valentine's Day. This was thought most appropriate, because of the customary association of the Valentine with the heart and also because of the implied tribute to the children who have fallen victim to rheumatic fever and rheumatic heart disease.

Methods of raising funds have been carefully studied. Sale of stamps or valentines was first considered, but there is considerable expense to printing these and the heart association desires every cent which can be contributed to be of the utmost value in attaining its objective. For this reason it was decided to depend on individual contributors and membership dues. Over the nation in various strategic places will be placed cheap plastic hearts into which coins and the smaller donations can be dropped. Membership dues range all the way from a $1.00 annual membership in the Texas State Heart Association to a combined $50.00 patron membership in both The American Heart Association and Texas State Heart Association. Of course, larger donations would gratefully be received. Those who feel inclined to make the larger gifts should be informed that contributions can be classified as charity for federal income tax purposes. Of the money which is contributed, a generous proportion will be spent in Texas. (Continued on last page)

NEW ENGINEERING LABORATORY

carries on work vital to Lone Star Natural Gas Customers

Scenes in the new Engineering Development Laboratory where field samples and data are analyzed.

LONE STAR FOLKS ARE Busy . . . Another Example

Lone Star's production, research and transmission engineers together with chemists, laboratory technicians and geologists are making a long range study of natural gas production, transmission and distribution facilities serving you.

Five specialized "labs" and a large technical library aid them in their work. Laboratory technicians in five smaller field laboratories also work with the Engineering Development Laboratory staff.

A major portion of the staff's time is spent in natural gas processing plants, compressor stations, gas fields and along cross-country pipelines obtaining data which is later analyzed at the laboratory.

Valuable information necessary for exacting decisions on projects in Lone Star's current five-year, $40,000,000 expansion program is being obtained from reports made by the Engineering Development Laboratory staff.

Thus, this Laboratory and Staff are playing a vital, behind-the-scenes role in a $40,000,000 expansion program designed to keep Lone Star Natural Gas Service ahead of increasing needs of 333 communities we serve.

A while back, your columnist visited Fort Worth and met Barry Scobee, author of hundreds of Western magazine stories and newspaper feature articles. He was a newspaper reporter in Pittsburg, Kansas, and in San Antonio, went to Fort Davis 25 yrs. ago because of his health and has been there almost continuously ever since, except for serving on a freighter plying between the United States and South America during the submarine-menace of World War II.

Scobee has written a book, "Fort Davis", giving the history of the fort, the ruins of which are being restored to their original state by Judge D. A. Simmons of Houston. Scobee was in his office in the courthouse—(he is justice of the peace)—when I called and he insisted on being my guide and hereby added much to the pleasure of the drive in the November sunshine in air so pure that it almost sparkled—Fort Davis is almost a mile high.

Coming over from Alpine, I had passed peaks in the distance, then had passed others that frowned down upon the highway like the ramparts of a giant castle. The cottonwoods were glowing in the gold of autumn and my host pointed out different kinds of trees, among them the juniper, which is mentioned in the Old Testament but which I had never seen—to know, at any rate. Scobee is something of an authority on trees. In fact, he brought in 22 different kinds and planted them in the courthouse yard. He indicated the spot where a party of Spandards had camped in 1500-and-something; we inspected beautiful Indian Lodge (a tourist hotel), and drove to the top of Mt. Locke, where the McDonald observatory stands. On the spot where scientists

WILLIAM J. (BILL) MURRAY

William J. (Bill) Murray will be a candidate for the Railroad Commission in the Democratic primaries this summer, seeking election by the people to the post to which he was appointed by Gov. Beauford H. Jester as his successor when Jester became the state's chief executive last year. Murray seeks the final two years of a term to which Gov. Jester was elected for six years in 1944. "Texas' petroleum reserves must not be wasted. They can be protected only by a commission experienced in such things. As a graduate petroleum engineer, with more than 10 years of study and research in oil and gas conservation, I offer my services to the people of Texas, who seem increasingly anxious to elect men qualified by experience to do specific jobs. I want to be judged on my record as a member of the commission during the past year," Murray said.

study the heavens, I thought of Elbert Hubbard's opening line about the sinking of the Titanic, "It was a night of a thousand stars." One obtains a noble view from the mountain-top, including a range, an estimated 80 miles away, in Old Mexico. On the way back to Fort Davis, we talked of the Magee expedition when American adventurers drove every Spanish soldier out of Texas and, for brief weeks, ruled a republic of their own. All in all, a most pleasant afternoon, the one spent in the company of Barry Scobee.

Fewer Animals, Less Meat Are '48 Prediction

There will be fewer animals and less meat in '48 which is hard on the consumer but money in the pocket for the producer. The situation holds true for Texas as well as the whole nation.

Extension farm management specialists for Texas A. and M. College say there are several favorable factors affecting the livestock market. Cattle prices will be affected by the heavy marketing of cattle and calves in 1947, as it brought breeding cattle numbers down and means a short calf crop in '48 for certain. Fewer calves and strong demand mean good prices for beef. The recent cold wave may cause still more breeding cattle to be marketed because of the high cost of winter feeds.

An early spring and good pasture conditions in the Feed Belt would make a good market for Texas cattle, as many farmers in that area plan to buy younger and medium to good grade cattle for use on their pastures this spring and summer and will feed them only a little corn until the new crop comes on in the fall.

Not only will there be fewer cattle to market this year, but fewer lambs. Many ewes in Texas are in poor condition and won't be able to stand continued severe weather without heavy feeding. Winter wheat pastures in Texas as a whole are in relatively poor condition. Last year small grain pastures carried a million lambs, but very few moved to that area in late '47 because of the drought. Many ranchmen have culled their flocks closely. All in all, it looks like the demand will be good and the prices right for the livestock producer in Texas in 1948.

Heart Disease—

(Continued from preceding page) and of Texas share 25 per cent will be returned to this district. The important thing is for everyone to contribute something and feel that he has a part in such a worthwhile endeavor.

The work of the heart association is just beginning, the task is tremendous. It is impossible and undesirable for physicians to carry on the campaign alone. If progress is to be made, it will take the wholehearted co-operation of the entire American people.
