

Kracker Krumb's Odd Bits Salvaged At Random

He loved his home. He loved his family, his town, his church and his country.

It had been scarcely two years since he had graduated from high school—the school in the community where he was born and reared.

He was the flower of youth. Life was yet young, and dear, and important to him.

He was loved by his family, his town and community, and by his church.

Almost every Sunday found him in his place at his church, the church where he had placed his membership when just 14 years of age.

Yes he loved all those things, and life with all its golden promises of the future was very dear to him.

America was a great country to him—just as his little home town, his home and all its surroundings were great.

And when his country became engaged in a terrible war he answered the call of duty.

He selected the Army Air Forces as his branch of service. He said goodbye to his family and loved ones and left for training, possibly cherishing the hope that ere long he would return to civilian life as a free American citizen, and continue his plans for the future.

He became a gunner on one of the army's big bombers. He learned his job, and he learned to do it well.

After a little over a year of training in the U. S., he went to England as a member of the Eighth Air Force.

He was making his democracy safe. He was making America a place where young men, like himself, could rear their families and follow their vocations of life in peace and security.

He distinguished himself in service. The Air Medal with three Oak Leaf Clusters was awarded him by his country.

Later came the Distinguished Flying Cross for his part in air raids on military targets of the enemy.

He returned home last Sunday.

It wasn't the return home he'd dreamed of, the one his loved one had dreamed of and prayed for since May, 1944.

They met the early morning train, but there were no joyous greetings, no loving arms entwined around the loved one who'd come home.

Sorrowfully, they watched the flag-draped casket, accompanied by military escort, taken from the train and placed into a funeral coach.

They joined the slowly moving, sorrowful procession as it moved homeward.

AN EDITORIAL Your Alley Is Your Responsibility

Have you looked at your alley lately? Other people have. Did you notice how it has become littered with trash, tree limbs, grass cuttings, pieces of wire, old discarded concrete—just plain rubbish?

Do you expect the town in which you live to hire someone to come down your alley and clean up the mess you've made or have allowed to accumulate?

A move which most people are vitally interested in is now under way. It's a move to give the town a good cleaning up as an added precaution against polio and other diseases.

Between now and July 11, every individual should have his alley as nearly spotlessly clean as possible. Begin your work now. Clean up your premises and help make Monday, July 11, a day to be remembered.

Art's Puzzled About That Baby Sister

Art Smith, A. A. Smith, III, that is, has found that life is just one disillusionment after another, and he's plumb puzzled about it.

For some reason or other, Art was led to believe the stork was coming to bring him a baby sister. Last Sunday the stork arrived, but the baby sister didn't.

Art's brother has been named Patrick Neff, and we suspect Art and Pat will become great pals as time goes on.

Patrick Neff is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Smith, Jr., who arrived at the Knox County Hospital on Sunday, June 26. He weighed 7 pounds and 10 ounces.

He's A Bowley, Yes, A Boy Bowley, Too!

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. (Sappy) Bowley are beside themselves with joy. They're the happiest grandparents you ever saw.

"What's his name?" We ask. "We don't know," they replied in unison. "How much does he weigh?" we questioned further, trying to get a story.

"Just say that we're Grandpa and Grandma Bowley now," they say. "Put in on the front page, and say we'll know all the details when we get back."

The grandparents talked to their son by telephone Monday. "Get yourselves down here," he says, excited like.

So they took the bus for Camp Hood Monday to see how pretty the young'un is. They were to be gone several days.

LOCAL NEEDS FOR 1949

We're pulling for these needs in 1949. What will the year bring?

1. A modern street sweeper. Our paving cost us money, let's protect it!
2. Paving of road through Rhineland, and definite progress on Throckmorton road.
3. Completion of our drainage system. It's gonna rain one of these days.
4. An adequate waterworks system. This is a must for the continued growth of Munday.
5. Building of more housing projects. There continues to be a housing shortage.
6. Recreational facilities for our youth of today—our citizens of tomorrow.

THE RETAILER'S COUNTER

The head of a national retailing association recently described the width of the retailer's counter as "the most important area in the country." He then said that "it's up to the retailer to bridge this last three feet by intensive selling today. The country simply can't afford another depression or major recession with the amount of public debt we're carrying." Finally, he said that retailers have done a poor public relations job by letting the public think retail profits are excessive when actually, they amount to an average of only 3.6 cents out of each dollar's worth of goods sold.

Mosh of our pendable income goes across store counters. A high percentage of all employed people work in stores of one kind or another. It is often said that mass production is an American miracle, which has given our people an amazing flood of goods at a very reasonable cost. But mass production couldn't work unless there was mass distribution to move the output of our factories into the hands and homes of users. The retailer is the key man who brings producer and consumer together.

When it comes to retailing's profits, the facts should be given the widest possible circulation. For a few cents out of each dollar you spend with him, your storekeeper provides you with a vital service. With few exceptions, he always has what you want when you want it. Your whims and desires and needs are the biggest factor in the operation of his business. He is the representative of our magnificent American economy on every business street in every community in the land.

HARASSED DOCTORS

The Christian Science Monitor recently published a dispatch from London written by one of its staff correspondents, dealing with developments under Britain's experiment with the state health service. It says, "The doctors, generally speaking, are overworked and harassed . . . Many doctors in more populous areas have 4,000 patients each

Weekly Health LETTER

of Texas
Issued by Dr. Geo. W. Cox
M. D., State Health Officer

AUSTIN—The people of Texas have been fortunate in escaping any serious outbreaks of typhus fever this year, the total number of reported cases so far being 133. This is a gratifying decrease in the incidence of this disease, but at the same time, it is well to warn that only continued stringent rodent-control measures will hold this disease in check.

This is the advise of Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, who says that "typhus is one of the most debilitating of all diseases, and the long drawn out illness results in such loss of time that this factor is usually even more expensive to the victim, than his doctor and hospital bills."

Inasmuch as typhus fever is transmitted to man by the rat flea, the control of typhus depends almost entirely upon ridding ourselves of rats. No garbage should be left exposed or where they can get to it to feed. Granaries and feed houses should be rat-proofed so that rats are staved out. All rat harborage such as trash piles, piles of old lumber, accessible quarters in the walls and foundations of buildings and other suitable living quarters in the walls and foundations of buildings should be denied them. Houses and business buildings can be effectively rat-proofed at a comparatively low cost, and the expense is always much less than the damage that can be done by rats, and the sickness they can spread. "When the rat is gone, typhus fever will go also," Dr. Cox said. "Keep building out, starving out, and killing all rats, and typhus fever will no longer menace the health of our people."

A harassed form-filing doctor snapped: "The best medical invention of the last century has been the ball point pen."

A New York Times dispatch from London, of about the same date, dwelt with demands for going still farther with socializing the practice of medicine in England. One group, it said, has called upon the Minister of Health, "to introduce the principle of full-time salaried service for all doctors working in the national health program, instead of the present system of fees." It also endorsed recommendations for the abolition of private beds in hospitals and nationalization of the drug industry.

Here are two excellent examples of how these socialist schemes work. First, there is always a decline in the standards of medical care—a doctor with 4,000 patients can hardly do full justice to each one. Second, the socialists always want to go whole hog and make everyone involved a civil servant, completely subject to political orders and policies.

Those who are urging compulsory government health insurance in this country say these dangers will be avoided here. No one who has any knowledge of history can believe that to be true. Bureaucracies, by their very nature, reach out for more and more power. And individual ambition and incentive are lost in the process.

THE ESSENTIALS OF FIRE PREVENTION

"The report brings out the fact that a complete fire protection system is more than a fire department," it said.

"It is a water supply and means for efficient distribution of the water to the scene of a blaze.

"It is a fire alarm system that will not break down . . .

"It is the auxiliaries of the fire department, the police department, the facilities of the telephone company.

"It is a system for public education in fire prevention.

"It is the general hazard of all conditions, and the total resources of a community that can be mobilized against a fire . . .

This definition of fire protection applies to a village as well as to a city. In the small community, naturally, facilities will be less extensive and elaborate. But the basic needs—a good water supply, an alarm system, safe building construction, and an educated public—are exactly the same. Together, they constitute the weapons that can defeat fire.

Decline Shown In Land Prices

Farm and ranch land prices have dropped six per cent since last year. But that's only a drop in the bucket when you compare it with land prices during the period between 1935-39.

C. H. Bates, extension farm management specialist of Texas A. & M. College, says that today's land prices in Texas are still 96 per cent above those of 10 to 14 years ago. After ten years of steady climbing, farm and ranch land prices in the entire nation appear to have passed a postwar peak.

Declines in prices of farm products in recent months was probably the major factor effecting the level of land prices. This downward drift began little less than a year ago in August, and has had quite an influence on prospective land buyers.

Since the land values have risen slower than the net farm income since 1940, there's a good chance that land price declines will lag behind commodity price drops. If farm costs remain extremely high and limits the net return to operators, the land value drop may increase in rate, Bates says.

Even though government price supports are active on many farm products and livestock, the net farm income is expected to continue downward. High fixed costs become more of a burden as the net profits are trimmed.

Therefore, buyers should attempt to keep land payments down to manageable size to prevent hardship or possible loss of equity in lands recently acquired, Bates concludes.

Knox Prairie Philosopher Says
It's Backward To Call Him Lazy
For Wanting Thistle-Eating Cow

PHILOSOPHER
 Editor's note: The Knox Prairie Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Miller Creek, seems to be a little riled up because we called him lazy for wanting a cow that could learn to live on his weedy pasture, and while we still think that's what he is, we're publishing his answer in the interest of freedom of the press.

Dear editor:
 I read what you had to say last week about me reachin the apex of laziness because I was interested in A & M College developing a cow that could thrive on my weeds and thistles and I don't mind sayin it's thinkin like yours that keeps the world from movin forward.

You can call it laziness if you want to, but most progress came about because somebody was tired and had rather sit down than stand up.

The reason the hand pump was invented was because some man was tired of drawin water with a rope and bucket, and the reason the electric pump was invented was because some other man was tired of workin a hand pump. You may think the rid-in cultivator was invented to grow more food for you town birds, but it was invented because some farmer got tired of walkin.

Huntin an easier way to do a job ain' no sign of laziness it's a sign of thinkin, and thinkin is the difference between workin for a cow and havin a cow work for you.

I could start in on my pasture in the mornin and work at it for the next ten years, buildin it up and improvin it, and in the end get it where it would support a cow to the acre, but if I could get a brand of cow that could learn to live on what food there is in that pasture now, I could save ten years of work and ain't no tellin what valuable thoughts I could have in that time, although savin ten years of work is reward enough.

It ain't laziness to want to get out of work, it's shrewd thinkin, and the reason you got hot and cold runnin water in your house right now is because some lazy cuss as you'd call him got blamed tired of walkin up and down the hill totin water from the spring, and as far as I'm concerned you town birds sittin in there with every comfort criticism me for stayin out here under a tree thinkin for you, are plain ungrateful and in the way of progress.

You'd probably take one look at Einstein and say he wouldn't hittin a lick, but me and Einstein both can apparently be dozin in the shade wastin time, but our minds are racin. You run your business and I'll run mine.

Faithfully,
 J. A.

The best time to cut hay to get the most out of it is before it is mature and has become coarse and stemmy. For instance, sudan and johnsongrass are most nutritious if cut as soon as the first seed heads begin to form.

Lettuce, like many vegetables, loses its flavor and food value if kept too long, even in the refrigerator. Add salad dressing just before serving in order not to wilt the leaves.

Government Survey Reveals Men Prefer to Wear Cotton Furnishings

Men prefer to wear cotton next to their skin, a nation-wide survey just released by the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Agricultural Economics reveals.

Government interviewers polled a cross-section of American men representative of more than 50 million consumers. They found that two-thirds of those questioned preferred cotton in men's furnishings, including shirts, year-round underwear, and pajamas.

The males consumers reported that they prefer men's furnishings made of cotton because garments are comfortable to wear, washable and durable, and have an excellent appearance.

Cotton Comfort

There was an overwhelming preference for cotton over synthetic fibers in such items as trousers, summer suits, and robes, the government survey showed. Cotton socks are preferred by more men for year-round use than socks made of wool, rayon, or mixtures of the two.

The comfort of cotton is a primary preference point, according to the Bureau report. Cotton's coolness, particularly in summer suits, extra trousers for summer use and summer suits, was listed as a chief consideration.

Washes Safely

Durability and ease of washing also make cotton popular, the men pointed out to the researchers. The consensus among those choosing cotton was that it can be washed safely, or more easily, or more satisfactorily than competing fibers.

In making the men's clothing preference survey, the interview included every type of household. There was a further breakdown between urban and rural communities. Men 19 years or older were interviewed. The total sampling comprised 2203 men.

Business shirts, summer sport shirts, extra trousers, summer suits, socks (other than work socks) underwear, pajamas,

Miss Jean Reeves Becomes Bride Of Joe Williams In Church Wedding

In a beautiful church ceremony at the First Methodist Church in Munday, Miss Constance Jean Reeves of Munday became the bride of Mr. Joe Williams of Ozona.

The double ring ceremony took place at 6:30 p. m. on Saturday, June 25th, with the brother of the bride, Rev. Willard Reeves, uniting them in marriage.

The church was decorated with a background of woodwardia fern, flanked by tall baskets of white gladiolus and palms on the pedestals.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a white organdy gown over taffeta trimmed with ruffles of the shoulders and as a peplum. Her finger-tip veil fastened to a tiara of seeded pearls. She wore arm mitts of white organdy. Her bouquet was made up of lavender orchids atop a white bible and ribbon streamers knotted at the ends with stephanotis. The bride wore a gold bracelet, which was a gift of the groom and a single strand of pearls.

Mrs. J. E. Reeves, Jr. of Lubbock, sister-in-law of the bride, attended the bride as matron of honor. She was attired in a powder blue taffeta gown with fitted bodice and full skirt. Her arm mitts were also of powder blue taffeta. She carried nosegay of shasta daisies and wore a headdress of colored daisies. Iridesmatron was Mrs. Joe Clayton of Ozona, sister of the groom. She wore a yellow taffeta gown, designed the same as the matron of honor with an identical bouquet and headress.

Miss Cheryl Clayton of Ozona, niece of the groom, served as flower girl. Her costume was of white organdy over taffeta. She carried rose petals in a satin covered basket.

The reception rooms were decorated with white gladiolus, daisies and greenery. Tall white candles completed the decoration for the bride's table. Punch was served from two crystal punch bowls on a lace covered table, with an arrangement of fern and stephanotis by Mrs. Travis Martin of Seymour and Mrs. Marjory Sweeney of Fort Worth.

After the bride and groom cut the first piece of the three-tiered wedding cake which was topped with a miniature bride and groom, Mrs. W. C. Cox of Munday served the guests.

Life History And Obituary Of E. J. Jones

Last rites for E. J. Jones, longtime resident of Goree, was held Monday, June 13th, at 2:30 p. m. at the First Baptist Church in Goree.

The Rev. S. E. Stevenson, pastor, officiating, assisted by Rev. J. L. Gray, pastor of the Friendship Baptist Church. Burial was in the Goree cemetery.

Active pallbearers were his grandsons, Lloyd M. Hendrix, Billie Hendrix, Dalton Jones, Jerry Jones, James Paul Jones and Bobby Jones.

Flower bearers were granddaughters, Mrs. Madeline Peterson, Mrs. Anita Sedgwick, Mrs. Nellie Jo Jones, Nancy Jones, Sandra Ruth Jones, Mrs. Naomi Phillips, Joline Hendrix, Mrs. Pat Jones, Bette Jean Jones and Neva Joy Jones.

J. B. Justice directed the music, accompanied by Mrs. Cliff Moorman at the piano. A quartette, "The Old Rugged Cross," was rendered by Elkin Warren, Carl Maples, Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Treat.

Mr. Jones was converted when a young man, being a member of the Friendship Baptist Church for the past thirty-seven years.

Elisha Johnson Jones was born January 20, 1871 in Newton county, Mississippi on his father's cotton plantation which had resounded to the marching feet of Yankee soldiers during the Civil War. Loyal negro slaves which served his father's family for many years continued to stay after they were freed. Before the Civil War, his father was offered four sections of land where the present site of Fort Worth is for twelve of his slaves. But his wife would not think of moving to such wild country from where she had heard so many tall tales about robbers and outlaws; so the trade was transacted.

Next to the youngest in a family of twelve children, Elisha inherited his father's love for farming cotton. He enjoyed working at his father's gin on the plantation which was one of the first gins in the county. Horses were used for power to operate the gin. Only twice did "Lish," (as he was lovingly called) leave the farm. One time was to establish the first rural mail route out of Hickory, Mississippi and to carry the mail. He carried the mail part of a year on a bicycle. The other time was to be public cotton weigher in Hickory. But soon he heard the call of the soil and went back to raising cotton.

In 1892, Mr. Jones and Miss Ida Anne McMullan were married in Newton, Mississippi. They celebrated their Golden Anniversary in 1942. In 1912, Mr. Jones moved his family to Texas. Being a good judge of fertile soil, he settled in the bend of the Brazos River, nine miles north of Goree, to raise cotton to his heart's content. He lived there twenty-eight years before

WHY NAME CALLING?

By GEORGE S. BENSON
President of Harding College
Searcy, Arkansas

THE CALLING of names is a propaganda technique based on delusion and trickery. It has been common in politics for a long time, and has done its part to give politics a bad reputation among the people in general.

Americans are accustomed to a certain amount of this in election campaigns. But surely we have not come to the place where we expect it in the halls of Congress. In legislative sessions, when serious national problems are being discussed, it is a bit disturbing to hear so much name-calling. Any American has the right to disagree with another and to speak out his mind. But it is not necessary always to discredit those who disagree with us.

Freedom THE WORST thing is fragile that has happened in America in the last twenty years has been the tendency to divide our people into class groups. Our country has long been known as the "melting pot" where immigrant lads and backwoods boys become bankers and industrialists. High born or low born, rich or poor, in America it never really has mattered. The important thing in America is that a man may plan and live out his own dream.

Some folks apparently have forgotten that these freedoms of ours are fragile and perishable. Unless we attend to the keeping of each of them, it is possible to lose them all. The building of the class consciousness is one of the very worst things we can do to our American life. It could be the entering wedge of all kinds of

Mr. Jones' hobby was raising watermelons and his fame went far and wide for his fine melons. He also loved fine horses and mules on the farm during the period before tractor farming.

Surviving him are his widow and eight children, Braxton B. Slaton; Mrs. Mabel Hampton, Goree; Marion J. Munday; Mrs. Gladys Houk, Littlefield; Mrs. Idamae Hendrix, Lubbock; Leo E. Sweetwater; Mrs. Grace Jones, San Angelo; and Phillip M. of Grand Prairie.

Species of Grasses Is Recommended To Build Up Ranges

The results of overgrazing can not be eliminated by one season of above normal rainfall, nor in two or such seasons. It is dangerous thinking to believe that the first six months of this year are going to heal the scars of range abuse that have been carried on for many years. To have the ground covered with grass is not enough if the species of grass is not deep rooted and drought resistant.

To many farmers and ranchers in this area has come a better understanding of which grasses are good and which are not good. The old timers thought that buffalo grass was enough if sufficient quantity of it was provided for a cow. We have now learned that it takes a combination of good grasses about fifteen species, for a pasture to be classified better than fair. It was given a chance for fair. If given a chance by proper range management, an evergreen pasture will produce a varied assortment of green palatable vegetation composed of 15 to 20 different grasses ranging from four inches in height to five or better in the more favored sites. During a year of favorable rainfall, and if the pressure of grazing is lessened the better grasses will seed. It is not until the following year that this seed will germinate and come up to thicken the stand of these better grasses. If a pasture is in poor condition like many pastures in this area, it will take several years of good seed crops before the desired results will take place.

The Supervisors of the Wichita-Brazos Soil Conservation Service believe that during the good years every effort should be made to lighten the load of grazing on at least one-fourth of all pasture land not in excellent condition to allow the better grasses to go to seed to build up the resistance of the range for the dry years. Resting the range in dry years will maintain the stand of existing grasses, but will do little toward improvement.

There are many other good range management practices such as constructing water facilities in all areas of the range to distribute the grazing uniformly, moving the salting locations frequently, providing high protein concentrates during the time that the grasses are cured out, etc., that will improve the condition of the range and provide for a heavier calf crop and a larger per cent of calves each year.

Erosion of the soil in pastures is always present when they are not producing as they should due to improper management.

When you hear the fire alarm, pull to the curb and stop until fire trucks have passed.

Speaking, the other week, of old schoolmates whom I met while visiting in Memphis, Tenn., there was Sims Edmonson, a successful attorney. When he was attending Central High, Sims would begin to recite and then, in the middle of a word, he would start stammering and despite the most strenuous effort, he was unable to finish. The teacher would say kindly, "You may sit down, Sims."

Personally, I had always had my doubts, so on this visit I cross-examined the middle-aged attorney, "Wasn't that just an act to conceal the fact that you didn't know the lesson?" Sims grinned and said, "Yes."

It had taken more than 30 years but at last the truth came out.

Also this columnist had a chat with an old-time newspaper man in Memphis who back about the time of World War I, started a penny daily—yes, there was a time when a daily paper could be bought for one cent.

He had quite a struggle but kept the paper afloat for a good while. It was office gossip (I was editor for a time) that when there was a payroll to meet and not enough money on hand, the publisher would go out and sell more stock. There were stockholders of all creeds, races and political views and, again according to office gossip, there never was a stockholders' meeting—the publisher didn't dare call one for fear the stockholders would kill each other off!

Like the Irishman who went up to the priest after a sermon about the Final Judgment and asked, "Did I understand you to say that everybody who has ever lived will be there?"

"Yes," was the reply.

Pat persisted, "The Republic-

Wheat Quotas May Be Ahead

Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan recently had this to say about the wheat situation:

If the present favorable conditions for a large 1949 wheat crop continue, the Department may be required by law to proclaim acreage allotments and possibly marketing quotas for the 1950 crop. A final decision cannot be made until after the June crop report is available, but the time is fast approaching when farmers and the Department of Agriculture must make plans for wheat production for the coming year.

Even if marketing quotas are not put into effect for the 1950 wheat crop, it is likely that we shall have to use wheat acreage allotments as a practical means of carrying out price support programs. Based on data presently available, our best estimates as to carryover, normal domestic consumption, exports, and a required reserve, indicate the need for national acreage allotment which would yield a 1950 wheat crop of about a billion bushels. A comparison with the 1949 crop, now indicate at more than 1.3 billion bushels, point up the almost unavoidable conclusion that it will be necessary to bring about a substantial reduction in the wheat acreage planted for harvest in 1950.

Acreage Adjustment Problems
Problems of adjusting the production of wheat, cotton, corn, potatoes, and other crops were discussed by Alvin V. McCormack, Director, Agricultural Conservation Programs Branch, PMA, at a recent Maryland State PMA Conference.

Mr. McCormack pointed out that if acreage is diverted from the production of one crop but used in the production of similar or competing crop, little has been accomplished to improve conditions. It may, and probably does, create a surplus problem for the other crop.

To illustrate, he used the example of diverting potato acreage to tomatoes. When a number of farmers make the same shift a surplus is created in the tomato crop and farmers are in distress on another commodity.

And, he pointed out, these problems do not stop at State lines. A shift in potato acreage in one State certainly affects the market for potatoes in another State.

He gave this as a primary reason why it is necessary to have a national program to meet production adjustment problems that are nationwide.

He pointed out, however, that in the case of the Agricultural Conservation Program, there is and must be enough flexibility to meet the varying problems of States and counties.

Mr. McCormack suggested that if an adjustment program is to accomplish its purpose, cropland taken out of the production of commercial crops must be put to some good conservation use. He suggested the seeding of diverted land to permanent pasture as a leading possibility in many parts of the country.

Washington News Letter

By Congressman Ed Gossett

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 24, 1949—Among those who listened to my recent speech delivered to a Conference of Rural Women of the State of Maryland was a German countess by the name of Elitz. She was one of a group of 60 Germans brought over here by our military government to study American life and habits. Recently the American Military Government has inaugurated a program of bringing groups of Germans here to learn of American ideals. If trying to Americanize Europeans is a good thing, this seems to be a better way than sending Americans over there for such purpose.

However, our point is this: Following my speech, Countess Elitz came to my office to commend my views and to tell me more of the terrible problem of the expellees. At the Yalta Conference in February, 1945, Mr. Roosevelt had had as his confidential adviser, Mr. Alger Hiss, now on trial for aiding communists while a member of our State Department. Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Stalin at that time entered into a secret agreement authorizing the expulsion of German people from areas occupied and controlled by the Russians. This agreement was later ratified and confirmed in Potsdam, in August 1945, by Mr. Truman. Had Mr. Roosevelt been in the vigor of good health, he would not have listened to such bad advice at Yalta. Had Mr. Truman not been so new in the game of international diplomacy, he probably would not have agreed to the Yalta compact at Potsdam. At any rate, as a result of our agreement, the Russians and their satellites

New Plymouth Suburban Announced

The new Plymouth Suburban, above, a completely new combination passenger and utility vehicle of all-metal construction, was announced today by R. C. Somerville, general sales manager of Plymouth Motor Corp. With 111-inch wheelbase, the Suburban has the same 97-horsepower engine as the DeLuxe and Special DeLuxe Plymouths on the 118½-inch wheelbase. Unusually large luggage space and washable trim and upholstery give car a variety of uses. Factory retail price at factory, Detroit, Michigan, is $1,740.

behind the iron curtain forcibly drove out and expelled from their home approximately 20 million people. Most of these people were farmers. In many instances, the lands from which they were driven had been in the hands of their folks for a thousand years. They were driven from Yugoslavia, Rumania, Hungary, Poland, East Prussia, Czechoslovakia, and the Baltic countries. Bear in mind this was done after the shooting was all over. Most of it occurred in the winter of 1945. Around 5 million of these people died in a few months, of starvation, disease, and from freezing to death. Trains manned by Russian and Polish troops, and by satellite mercenaries were often en route for weeks, with people crammed like sardines into every available car. Soldiers would go through the trains and throw the bodies of frozen children, and others, through the windows. There are still around 14 million of these expellees who were dumped into the American and British military zones in which 1/3 of all the housing had been destroyed. They live in caves and hovels, under indescribable conditions. In the vast majority of cases, the only crime of which these people had been guilty was that of being German-Ethnic origin. Under the IRO Constitution, people of German-Ethnic origin cannot be classified as displaced persons.

The Morgenthau plan announced about a year before the war was over, was also a colossal blunder. It too, was sold to an ailing President who was not aware of its disastrous effects. The Morgenthau plan was one to destroy all German industry and to reduce Germany completely into an agricultural state. Some think the announcement of the Morgenthau plan prolonged the war many months and cost many American lives. When you add to the Morgenthau plan the Yalta agreement you have most of the reasons for our terrible problems in Central Europe at this time. Under the Morgenthau plan, thousands of German factories have been completely torn down and moved into Russia. Now, we are trying to rebuild some of these industries as a means of providing a livelihood for people we cannot continue to feed and also as a means of combating communism.

Following my Maryland speech, I received a letter from a student in the University of Maryland who is a Lithuanian, and a veteran of World War II. He, too, agrees with my views that we are rewarding many undesirable persons while ignoring many desirable ones. He points out that many Lithuanians in our DP camps were members of the Nazi SS, and carried out mass pogroms against the Jews. Says he, "they are not anti-communists but war criminals who are not wanted back home." He is supported by abundant evidence.

We continue to listen to sob stories and to shed crocodile tears about a half million so-called DP's whom we cannot continue to feed, clothe, and house. No one tells the story of the expellees.

King Cotton Is Doing His Bit In Providing Food For Nation

Old King Cotton helps feed, as well as clothe, the nation, the National Cotton Council reports in a survey showing that 99 per cent of all the cottonseed oil produced in the United States is used in food products. Cottonseed provides oil for many nutritious foods—margarine, shortening, salad dressing, mayonnaise, cooking oil, and salad oil. Housewives might be surprised to learn that the creamy margarine they spread on their toast or into their biscuits comes from the same white cotton fields that supply their dresses and their husband's shirts. Oil from cottonseed is the choice oil for the manufacture of the nourishing tablespread. In the past few years margarine has become more and more popular on the tables of all consumer groups, and a great part of the cottonseed oil output goes into the wholesome spread. A total of 322,551,000 pounds of cottonseed oil was used to make margarine in 1947—more than half of all the oils used in the manufacture of the product!

she is using cottonseed oil shortening. More than 299,869,000 pounds of oil from cottonseed went into the cooking fat in 1947.

Thank the cotton farmer, also, for those rich smooth dressings, and mayonnaise that turn a salad into a delightful, taste-tempting treat. He produces a large part of the ingredients for salad oils. In 1947 cottonseed supplied 65.8 per cent of the oils for salad dressings, salad oils, cookin oils, and mayonnaise. Cottonseed oil, too, is used to a considerable extent in packing various food products. Take a look at the next bottle of sardines you buy. You probably will find that these delicious appetizers are packed in oil from the land of cotton.

Protein-Rich Meal
Cottonseed meal as food is not an entirely new idea, since it has helped pul T-bone steaks and roast beef on American tables or -cake, from cottonseed was early recognized by agricultural experts as one of the best foods for cattle because of its high protein content. However, it has been adapted recently to human use. Cottonseed meal is becoming a part of the human diet through a flour which contains less than two per cent starch and which has a protein content of fifty per cent. These qualities create a demand for the cottonseed flour in starch-restricted diets, particularly for use by diabetic patients.

Health Breads
One biscuit made with the flour provides a full meal's protein requirement. The cottonseed flour is used by bakeries in preparing health breads and in combination with other flours for cookies, cakes, and pastries. Because of its extremely high protein content, sale of the flour has been confined thus far almost wholly to confectioners and to bakers specializing in health breads.

During the war cottonseed came to the rescue of pepper lovers who found it impossible to buy the seasoning. A synthetic pepper was developed from cottonseed and used throughout the war years when real black pepper was not to be had in stores.

Now I'm Going Back To High School!

When I saw lights burning in the High School auditorium last night, I looked in to see what went on. About twenty people were listening to Buzz Ellis, the electrician, talk about television.

I slipped into a back seat and asked Hap Thomas what was up. Hap told me it was the new Self-Improvement Club. I stayed to listen—and learned a lot. Buzz really knows his stuff.

Turns out this club meets every Friday night. Each member gives a talk on the subject he knows most about. I joined on the spot because learning new things is one of my favorite hobbies.

From where I sit, it's willingness to learn from the other person that makes Americans tolerant towards so many different viewpoints and tastes in things. Just because Buzz Ellis goes for chocolate malteds, while I prefer a mellow glass of beer, doesn't mean I'm right and he's wrong. Incidentally, next week I'm going to talk on how to run a newspaper.
