LOCAL NEEDS FOR 1949

We're pulling for these needs in 1949. What will the year bring?

1. A modern street sweeper. Our paving cost us money, let's protect it!
2. Paving of road through Rhineland, and definite progress on Throckmorton road.
3. Completion of our drainage system. It's gonna rain one of these days.
4. An adequate waterworks system. This is a must for the continued growth of Munday.
5. Building of more housing projects. There continues to be a housing shortage.
6. Recreational facilities for our youth of today—our citizens of tomorrow.

IN THE PUBLIC SERVICE

Seventy-four daily newspapers, weekly newspapers and radio stations have been nominated for the three gold medals awarded annually by the National Board of Fire Underwriters for outstanding public service in fire prevention. These awards were established in 1941 to honor the papers and stations which have contributed most to the betterment of their own communities through efforts on behalf of fire safety.

The entrants in this year's contest are scattered throughout the country. Some are in small towns, some in metropolises. All of them have one thing in common—a desire to build our defenses against an enemy. And all of them have given work and thought and enthusiasm to the project.

In this, as in any other contest, only a small proportion of those trying for honors can win. But those which do not receive one of the gold medals need not feel that their efforts was in vain. The deepest satisfaction any newspaper or radio station can have is to make real contribution to the welfare, the happiness and the prosperity of its community. And every fire which we prevent does just that.

This year, fire loss has been running to some $2,000,000 a day. There has been one encouraging sign—the February waste, though heavy, was nearly 13 percent under the same month last year. Every such decline means a saving of lives and property. A concerted effort by the American people could make the cut really big. No mediums of communication reach the public so thoroughly as newspapers and the local radio. They can do an immeasurably important job as leaders in the war against fire.

AT THE GRASS ROOTS

Where does the primary responsibility for fire prevention lie? Is it vested in a group of organizations which are supposed to do the job for us? Or does it belong in every town, every home, every place where business is done?

The answer is self-evident. President Truman touched on it some time ago when he said, "The impetus must come from the States and from every community and every individual in the land." Those whose primary task is to advance the cause of fire safety are doing a splendid work. They can guide us with facts and information. They can explain the main causes of fire and how to eliminate them. But, thereafter, it is up to us.

As an example, we can have safe homes from the point of view of fire. But we must make them safe for ourselves—no one else can do it. Home safety requires periodic inspection of heating plants which, when allowed to deteriorate, are a grave hazard. It requires good maintenance of electrical equipment—frayed wiring to take a single instance, has started thousands of fires. It requires, above all else a clean house—not in the sense of spic and span furnishings, but in the elimination of accumulations of old papers, discarded clothing, and other such breeding places for fire. Here is where the spring clean-up campaigns are a great help to the fire prevention cause, and every community should participate in them.

Fire prevention must start at the grass-roots if it is to make progress. That means everywhere.

Washington News Letter

By Congressman Ed Gossett

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 15, 1949—The House recessed last night to reconvene on Monday April 25. The first thing to come up on the reconvening of the House is the repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act. The repeal of the Administration's bill which is known as the Thomas-Lesinski bill. Mr. John Lesinski of Detroit, Michigan, is the Chairman of the House Committee on Education and Labor from which this bill is reported. The Senate bill is authorized by Senator Elbert Thomas of Utah.

Labor is now making their last big assault on what some erroneously term "the slave labor bill." Mr. William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, and Mr. Philip Murray, President of the C. I. O., have sent orders to all of their unions all over the United States to have meetings with their Congressman while said Congressman is at home during this Easter recess, and to put the pressure on him for the support of the Thomas-Lesinski bill. I predict that such bill will not be passed; that the Taft-Hartley Act will not be repealed or substantially weakened. There will be some changes in the closed shop provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act. Non-communist affidavits will be required of both employers and employees, and other minor changes will be made.

Speaking of Communists, those who think we have nothing to fear from communists and radicals within our own country, should read the list of organizations branded as Communist fronts by the Department of Justice and by the House Committee on Un-American Activities. These organizations always have pious, high-sounding titles. The Attorney General's list of subversive organizations includes such names as: American League Against War and Fascism; American Patriots, Inc.; American Peace Mobilization; American Youth Congress; National Federation for Constitutional Liberties; National Negro Congress; American Youth of Democracy; American Student Union; American League for Peace and Democracy; Council of Young Southerners; Institute for American Democracy; National Committee to Win the Peace; National Lawyers Guild; and hundreds of others.

Knox Prairie Philosopher Has Been Studying New Farm Program, But Gets Pretty Badly Mixed Up On It

Editor's note: The Knox Prairie Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Miller Creek is about as mixed up as a person can be on the new farm program, his letter this week will reveal to anybody who can get through it.

Dear editor:

Just as soon as President Truman comes out with his new farm program last week, I got hold of a copy of a newspaper which my neighbor had carelessly left in his mail box, at least I guess he left it there, it was there when I reached my hand in his box to see if it was, and I will return it the minute he complains, can't stand a complainin neighbor, although the way I figure it is if a man gets a newspaper regular, every day in the week, he ain't gonna miss a copy now and then, ain't we got quality of opportunity in this country and ain't I got a right to read a newspaper when one don't turn up in the natural course of events, anyway, I took the blamed paper without stoppin to reflect on the ethics of the situation, how do I know his subscription ain't expired and he ain't even entitled to the paper in the first place, and went down in a secluded spot where the bright spring sunshine wouldn't bother my eyes and sat down and analyzed the new farm program.

J. A.

As I understand it, farmin is gonna be based on production units, with each farm limited to 1800 units, and with a unit amounting to 10 bushels of corn or its equivalent in cotton or eggs.

Frankly, I don't understand it, and know you don't without even askin. But there is one small point I'd like President Truman to clear up for me.

In the first place, I ain't averaged ten bushels of corn or cotton or eggs, first and last. One year I planted and it didn't come up, the next year I thought I'd wait and see if last year's seed might not come up since they hadn't the year before, ain't no use wastin seed; another year my planter wasn't workin; another year my planter was but I wasn't; another year, but ain't no use goin on, you can see I ain't used up no 1800 units, and what I want to ask President Truman is can a farmer sell any extra units he ain't got no use for?

If I go 1800 for my farm out here, and say I use up only 300, which I can manage to do without no special effort, although them Jersey steers will have to eat more Johnson grass than I figure they can hold to do it, then I'd have 1500 units left over, and since every man ought to do his part and there ain't no use lettin em go to waste, couldn't I sell em to some of my energetic neighbors? If I could get only a dollar a piece for em, I figure I could get by and if this is what President Truman intends, I wish to say I think his program is about the best thing that has come out of Washington, so far as my farm and me is concerned.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

ly, this also is a danger signal. Have the brakes inspected.

Tires—If they are worn smooth they will skid more easily. If irregular wear spots show on some tires, it is an indication of improper wheel alignment. It is well in any case to have wheel alignment inspected in a regular service department.

Steering—If there is more than an inch or so of play in the steering wheel, or if the front wheels are slow to react to a turn of the steering wheel, this feature should be inspected and brought to standard.

Glass—Check windshield and all windows for discoloration which sometimes is found in old cars. If your vision in any direction is restricted by faulty glass it should be replaced for protection of passengers and other cars. Never drive with a dirty windshield.

Lights—Make certain that both headlights burn on both upper and lower beams, and that tail and stop lights are working. Stand in front of the car with headlights on the lower beam and be certain that they do not blind approaching motorists. Keep headlights and tail light lenses clean at all times.

Motorists Urged To Give Automobiles Safety Checkups

"In line with the traffic safety drive of the National Safety Council being conducted this spring, motorists should give their automobiles a thorough safety checkup," E. L. Harrig, director of service for the Chevrolet Motor Division, said today.

"A thorough examination of brakes, tires, wheel alignment, steering, glass and lights can easily mean the difference between life and death on the highway," said Harrig. "A preliminary examination of these potential danger points on the car can be made by the motorists himself. Chevrolet dealers are well equipped to make a more detailed inspection of those items on the car that the owner may think need attention."

Harrig listed the various points of the car that have a bearing on its safety, and told how to ascertain whether they are functioning properly:

Brakes—If you can push the brake pedal to within one inch of the floor, it should be inspected. If the brakes pull the car to either side when stopping they should be inspected and brought up to standard. If, under customary driving conditions, it takes you longer to stop than previous-

FARM NEWS

from the County Agricultural Conservation Committee

1949 Cotton Acreage Eliminated For Allotments.

Public Law No. 28 signed by the President on March 28 includes cotton planted in 1949 from use in computing cotton acreage allotments for any subsequent year.

It is not known yet what years will be used in computing cotton acreage allotments but this law prohibits the use of the 1949 acreage.

1949 Wheat Supports To Be At 90 Percent.

Government support prices for the 1949 crop of wheat will be at 90 percent of parity, as required by law, B. F. Vance, chairman of the State Production and Marketing Administration Committee, said today.

In general, the 1949 wheat support program will be similar to those of the past 2 years, Mr. Vance explained, except that the supports will be available a month longer from time of harvest through January 31, 1950. Methods of support will include (1) farms and warehouse storage loans, (2) purchase agreements, and (3) direct purchases of wheat in Georgia and South Carolina, where wheat cannot be stored safely for extended periods.

Eligible wheat will be wheat produced in the continental U. S. in 1949, grading U. S. No. 3 or better, or grading U. S. No. 4 or No. 5 solely on the factor of test weight.

Vance pointed out that the wheat support program looks out for the interests of consumers as well as of producers, since it is designed to provide adequate supplies of wheat and to establish a farm floor price. Loans will make funds immediately available to producers who place wheat in storage for marketing later; purchase agreements assure producers who are not in need of immediate cash that they may sell their wheat at the price-support level at a later date.

Wheat price-support programs have been operated by the Department of Agriculture for the past 11 years and covered, through loans and purchase agreements, a total of more than 2 billion bushels of wheat. The highest amount of wheat ever placed under loan was around 408 million bushels in 1942. In 1948, approximately 251 million bushels of wheat were placed under loan and 113 million bushels under purchase agreements, a total of 364 million bushels.

An Agricultural Program For City People.

The person who should be most concerned about soil and water conservation is the city dweller—the welder on the construction job or the clerk in the department store—because it means more to him, says Howard T. Kingsbery, Vice-chairman of the Texas Production and Marketing Administration Committee.

Cities survive on what farmers can produce beyond their own needs and the needs of their families. On the basis of the average amount of food consumer per person in this country, New York alone would require approximately 1,000 cars of food a day.

When that is multiplied by the needs for Chicago, Los Angeles, Philadelphia, Boston, New Orleans and all the other big cities to say nothing of the smaller cities and towns, the importance of conservation to the city dweller begins to stand out.

It is continued abundant production made possible by conservation that keeps these cities alive. If it were just the farmer and his family, erosion could continue its destruction of soil for a long time and production could go down to a very low point before he and his family would starve.

Since most of the people live in cities and towns, most of the food goes to feed these people. The excess food—excess over the farmers' needs—keeps the city provided.

Therefore, Mr. Kingsbery said, conservation is of even more vital concern to city dwellers than to the farmers.

Conservation assistance and price supports which make possible abundant production—and sustained abundant production—the vice-chairman points out, are among the surest means the city man has of protecting his secure of food.

Food, the ice-chairman emphasizes, isn't produced in grocery stores. It is produced on the land, from the topsoil of our farms, by people who are called farmers. And keeping these farms productive and the farmers on them on them farming is the best way to make sure there will be enough food to keep our cities going and growing.

Price Supports And The Consumer.

Farm price supports benefit consumers as well as farmers says Emmett Partridge, Chairman of the Knox County Agricultural Conservation Committee. He lists three essential points to support the contention.

Price supports generally are not over 90 percent of parity—10 percent below an "even break".

With the assurance of price supports a farmer can continue to produce abundantly. And abundance, not scarcity, tends to deep prices from going too high.

The protection of price supports make possible a soil and water conservation program that helps to guard against erosion, depletion and waste of soil and water, assuring sustained production.

The concentration of population in cities is possible only as farmers are able to produce food in excess of their own needs and the needs of their families, he explains. Conservation helps make possible the continued production of food in excess of the farmer's own needs. Extremely low prices first stimulate increased production as farmers struggle to meet fixed costs, but this continues, he points out, only until the farmer goes broke. Then the consumer in the city loses both the production of the farm and the farmer as a purchaser of goods which city people have to sell.

On the not frequent tendency to blame farmers for high consumer prices, the chairman points out that this is often an easy method of answering a complicated question. Actually, he explains, if a farmer gave away his wheat, a 16-cent loaf of bread still would cost the consumer 14 cents.

breeding places for flies. "See that your windows, doors, and porches are screened so that the stray fly from some careless neighbor cannot molest your family", Dr. Cox said, "and make sure that your grocer observes proper sanitation standards and keeps your meat, food and vegetable supplies screened from flies."

"Then direct your efforts to eliminating all fly breeding places such as open garbage pails, open privies and other filth that offers the fly proper warmth, moisture and food. Flies thrive on filth, and inasmuch as one female housefly will lay from 600 to 1000 eggs per season, it can easily be seen that one breeding place left available in a community, can be responsible for a tremendous horde of flies."

Dr. Cox recommended organized community efforts as being effective in ridding a community of flies, and emphasized that no matter how clean one family's home and premises are, they are still not safe if another home down the street leaves exposed filth where flies can breed.

Given under my hand and seal of said court, at office in Benjamin, Texas, this the 14th day of March, A. D., 1949.

Weekly Health LETTER of Texas Issued by Dr. Geo. W. Cox M. D., State Health Officer

AUSTIN—Countless thousands of lives are lost annually throughout the nation, from diseases that are transmitted by the common housefly. Dysentery, diarrhea, typhoid fever, tuberculosis and many other disabling and even fatal diseases are spread by flies, and the control of houseflies becomes of great importance when considered in the light of public health.

Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, says that in order to protect our families we should make sure our homes are fly-proof through proper screening, and then concentrate on eliminating filth, garbage, and other

Van Buren, Ark., as everyone knows, is the old home town of Bob Burns.

There is a theater named for him and arrows mark the way to his former residence. Though Bob lives in California, he still owns some land up in the Arkansas hills and recently he sent the money to Hugh Park, editor of the Press-Argus, to keep the taxes up.

Park knows Burns well and says that Bob at first was with a carnival, then was in a black-face act and he and his partner

Van Buren editor tells of being in Dallas where Bob showed him a check for one day's personal appearances. The amount of the check was $5,000.

Bob met Will Rogers who took a liking to him—"Bob is the most likeable guy you ever saw", says Park. Burns, in his after-dinner speeches, had been telling stories about folks and Rogers suggested that he "tie them down" to some locality. Then it was that Bob decided to hang the stories on his old home town and on his kinfolks, imaginary or otherwise.

But so many yarns had been told through the years about Arkansas—notably through the book, "Slow Train through Arkansas" and the song, "Arkansas Traveler"—that many of the citizens of the State were sensitive, so that where Hugh Park got busy, to do a public relations job. He saw the possibilities for great publicity for Van Buren through a nation-wide radio program provided the people of Arkansas didn't flood the sponsor with protests.

Burns, during the years of his great radio and motion picture popularity, made a fortune. The

Hugh Park thinks that Arkansas are sacrificing much of the State's unique appeal when they seek to stamp out the joking. The jesting by outsiders is not intended as any reflection on a wonderful State but is good-natured. (Joking about Texas certainly hasn't stunted the development of the Lone Star State.)

Anyway, the Van Buren editor points out that the University of Arkansas football team is known as the Razorbacks and yet the governor, a few years ago, offered a reward to anyone who could find a razorback hog in Arkansas. Park seems to feel there is a slight inconsistency in this line of thinking!

He believes the State ought to capitalize by having razorback hunts instead of deer hunts.

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Benton and children left last week on return to their home in Lometa, Calif., after spending a week here visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Idell Montgomery and children and with other relatives.
