LOCAL NEEDS FOR 1949

We're pulling for these needs in 1949. What will the year bring?

1. An adequate waterworks system. This is a must for the continued growth of Munday.
2. Building of more housing projects. There continues to be a housing shortage.
3. Recreational facilities for our youth of today—our citizens of tomorrow.

PROTECTION FROM LABOR MONOPOLIES

Late in July, the Senate Banking and Currency Committee started hearings inquiring into the existence and extent of economic power over trade and commerce, with particular reference to industry-wide labor organizations, such as dominate soft coal industry. A statement by the Senator who initiated the investigation said, in part, "The 'sabotage' strikes, the current three-day week imposed on the coal industry by the United Mine Workers of America, the threatened strike in steel and the continued tie-up of shipping in Hawaii are all recent developments which reemphasize the need for such an investigation. "If it is found that the public interest requires protection from labor monopolies in the same manner that the public is protected from industrial monopoly, such legislative proposals will be referred to the Judiciary Committee for consideration."

This development has long been due. It is difficult to see how there can be any just reason for continuing labor's freedom from any anti-trust laws, and from all the other statutes which deal with monopoly and combinations in restraint of trade. This is special privilege with a vengeance—and it is a privilege which has been abused time and time again with a callous disregard of the general welfare.

Recurrent strikes and shut-downs and "vacations" in the coal fields offer one of the most flagrant examples of what is happening. One union, which is virtually the personal property of one man, can with its whim almost completely stop production of a commodity on which the security, employment and industrial production of the whole nation depend. There is no place in a free country for dictatorships—whether they are exerted by the government, by capital, or by labor.

A real opportunity is now available for the public to express its opinion to its representatives in congress on this important question.

When a person is polite enough to ask you how you are feeling, you should be polite enough not to bore him by telling him.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC: Any erroneous reflection upon the character, standing, or reputation of any person, firm or corporation which may appear in the columns of this paper, will be gladly corrected upon due notice being given to the publisher, at the Munday Times office.

WHEN GASOLINE WAS A NUISANCE

Fifty years or so ago the oil industry had problems. One of them was a nuisance called gasoline, which was a by-product of kerosene production. It wasn't good for much of anything and the oil companies had a hard time of getting rid of it.

Even kerosene, which was the mainstay of the industry, presented difficulties. Certain types of kerosene had a heavy and unpleasant sulphur smell. Customers took to calling it "skunk oil". Finally, the industry came up with a new refining method, and the smell was eliminated.

As time went by it became apparent that the horseless carriage was here to stay, gasoline was no longer a drug on the market. Some visionaries even felt that it would eventually outsell kerosene. However, a production problem remained.

It was difficult to produce enough gas of high quality at a low price. So the oil people did some more research, and discovered a process to take care of that.

Today, a typical large oil company makes 2,000 different products, many of which have nothing to do with driving and lubricating machinery. There are 250,000 service stations throughout the country, all competing for the motorists business. And there are thousands of producers and refiners in competition with each other.

That's the way one industry has grown, in less than a lifetime. This is the type of enterprise that has given safer service to customers and built American industry.

At a Florida casino, a husband give his wife, who had never played roulette, $200 to gamble. When she asked what number she should play, a friend suggested she choose her age number. She placed $100 on 28, the pin rolled around and landed in 32.

The gal promptly fainted.—Neal O'Hara, McNaught Syndicate.

"It is too much to expect that Americans will indefinitely subsidize a British economic policy regarded by most of us as thoroughly pernicious. The American people . . . cannot be expected, to support, in Britain, a system which in every economic particular appears to be patterned on that developed by Dr. Schacht . . ."—Felix Morley, in Nation's Business.

The government has published a bulletin on "How to Treat a Black Eye." More useful would be one on how to explain it.

Cotton Bags May Provide Market On Surplus Cotton

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—A 250,000 bale market can be won for cotton if Cotton Farmers buy their fertilizer in cotton bags and demand that container alone, says the National Cotton Council.

Cotton Belt farmers during the next few months will buy millions of tons of commercial fertilizer, the Council explains, noting that consumption of fertilizer in cotton producing states has increased steadily each year and that supplies of fertilizer ingredients for 1950 are expected to be from 10 to 25 percent greater than during 1949. This huge tonnage, the Council adds, will be packed in the type bag demanded by the cotton farmer, the fertilizer industry's largest customer. These farmers by insisting that their fertilizer be packed in cotton bags can give powerful support to an important market for cotton.

The Council points out that its most immediate problem is to arouse farmers to the necessity of forcefully indicating their preference for cotton containers directly to the fertilizer industry.

In consuming 8,719,407 tons of fertilizer during the year ending June 1949, Cotton Belt farmers, it is estimated, used well over half of the total U. S. output. Approximately 2,268,156 tons, about 28 percent of the total, were applied directly to cotton, with 100 percent of the cotton acreage in Georgia and 99 percent of the cotton planted in Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Alabama receiving applications.

The re-use of cotton fertilizer bags and the savings in fertilizer due to less bag breakage, more than offset the difference in price between cotton and other type containers, the Council is reminding farmers.

Once emptied of their contents cotton fertilizer bags have scores of uses around the farm. They become containers for seed, feed, or other products, wiping cloths covers for equipment, or may even be converted into slip covers, draperies or other useful articles for the farm homes.

CATTLE DISEASE ALMOST STARTED CIVIL WAR

A deadly cattle disease almost touched off the Civil War several decades before its recorded beginning.

Texas fever was rampant in cattle herds of the southern states long before the Civil War, and northern stockmen armed themselves to stop southern owners from bringing trail herds across state lines for grazing. This was done because it had been noted that when southern cattle mingled with those in or from the north, the northern animals became infected. In 1888 and 1889 it was discovered that the disease was being caused by a tiny red blood parasite, spread to cattle by ticks, and veterinarians inaugurated a cattle-dipping program that eventually rid herds of this malady. If Texas fever had not been conquered, it would have been impossible for the South to build the thriving livestock industry it has today.

FERTILIZER FACTS
 on record for agriculture.
 The fertilizer situation for 1949-1950 is a little brighter than it has been for several years. The domestic supply, says M. K. Thornton, extension agricultural chemist for Texas A&M College, for the coming year is expected to be well above the supply for last year which was the highest

This expected increase does not mean that every farmer or area will get all the fertilizer they may need at the right time, says Thornton, because the transportation and shipping facilities can't handle so much at one time. This situation can be helped a great deal if farmers will purchase their supplies of fertilizers early.

Fertilizer can be stored safely on the farm, says Thornton. It must be stored in a dry place that is well ventilated. These early purchases will ease the demand on both manufacturing and transportation facilities and will spread the load uniformly throughout the year. This will dividends and rents may find their net incomes dropping less than those of farmers—maybe only 5 percent. The expectation that exports will hold up, that business inventories will continue in good shape, that a large volume of savings is still waiting for prices of many postwar products to drop more and the cashing-in of the insurance repayment to veterans amounting to some 2.8 billions of dollars are the dominant factors in the general outlook.

Shivers Proclaims "Operation Democracy"

Wednesday, December 7, is proclaimed "Democracy Beats Communism Day" by Governor Allan Shivers, seated above with American Legion State Commander Joe Spurlock, standing left, and John Ben Sheppard, State Legion Americanism chairman, standing right. Governor Shivers called upon the seven million citizens of Texas to join with more than 100,000 Legionnaires in 756 Texas American Legion posts in "a calm, patriotic, appraisal of Democracy."

A 3rd consideration, says Timm is that the level of farm profits in 1950 likely would be much lower were it not for the strong government assistance in providing dollars for foreign countries to buy our products. And to a lesser extent by supporting the prices of some farm products sold in this country. Timm points out that part of the profits at least for 1950 have a risky foundation and much depends upon the continuation of government assistance.

The cost of farming is likely to decrease less than total farm income, says Timm, and that means lower farm profits. Total farm production is expected to continue at or near record level and this means it will be between 35 and 40 percent above the pre-war level.

Profit opportunities for livestock look better than those for crops, generally speaking, says Timm. The supply-demand ratio for livestock is more favorable to the producer. Yet, prices of livestock could drop more than those of major crops since some current livestock prices are considerably above parity and for cattle, as an example, presently no government support prices have been established at any level. By comparison, prices of commodities such as cotton and grain sorghums are hovering near the government support prices.

Although incomes look good again for 1950, farmers and ranchmen should not lose sight of the fact that American agriculture has never come out winner from war-time inflationary periods, says Timm. It has been the same story—after the war of 1812, Civil War, World War I and so far, after World War II—the prices paid farmers have gone down faster and lower and stayed longer than the prices for things the farmers had to buy.

The lives of thousands of children could have been saved every year if parents took the same precautions to prevent fires as are taken in most of our schools.

Knox Prairie Philosopher Wants To Organize An Association Which Will Doubt The Russian Politicians

J. A.

Editor's note: The Knox Prairie Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Miller Creek comes up with a novel idea this week, which may be worth considering.

Dear editor:
 For weeks now, in fact for several years, ever since Russia stopped needin our help any more in the form of airplanes and trucks and tanks and food, I been readin about the claims of the Russians, their threats, braggin, etc. For example, last week I noticed where Vishinsky says the atomic weapon has been available to Russian since 1947.

This is about like me sayin the mechanical cotton picker has been available to me since 1900. It was if I'd only had sense enough to make one. A bale an make it possible for everyone to get the fertilizers they need.

Thornton says there should be from 15 to 20 percent more nitrogen fertilizer; 10 to 15 percent more phosphates and about 10 percent more potash available during the coming year than was available last year.

This additional fertilizer along with good farm management should enable farmers to maintain their high rate of agricultural production, says Thornton.

No Depression For Farmers Is Seen In 1950

The net income of Texas farmers and ranchmen, on the average, should be good again next year, says Tyrus R. Timm, extension economist, of Texas A. & M. College.

In the first place, he says, net farm income is expected to be good in terms of most previous years even if the decline expected in 1950 materializes. This will make the third straight year that farm prices have dropped from the postwar high of 1947. Net farm incomes for 1950 may be down as much as 10 to 20 percent under 1949 if yields are average.

Secondly, he continues, incomes of persons not living on farms and receiving their earnings from business profits, wages, acre off my farm is also available, but I ain't got around to makin it yet.

The point is, I don't know whether Russia has the atomic bomb or not, don't much care, suppose she has, and if she hasn't will before long, but Russia makes so many statements and they get such serious treatment in this country that it's gettin monotonous. Russia knows what's goin on in this country, because we ain't go any secrets but nobody outside of Russian and few inside knows what's goin on there, and what they say for publication ain't any more reliable than what I tell my wife when I want to get to town on wash day.

Therefore, I am figurin on organizing an association to question everything Russia says. If she says she has a supply of atom bombs, I'll doubt it; if she says she ain't got none, I'll doubt it; if she says she's had a good rain; I'll doubt it; she says she wants peace, I'll doubt it; if she says she wants war, I'll doubt it, but not quite so much.

I will expect you newspaper editors to cooperate by puttin quotation marks around everything Russia says, including the headlines.

As far as I'm concerned, Russia is now like the character which every town has on of, the man who has talked so much and so long and so unreliably that nobody pays any attention to him any more. If I was a big newspaper editor, I'd reserve a section of the paper for printin the news out of Russia, with a editor's not that anybody who believes it is welcome to, but I don't. What a Russian politician says may be entertaining, but it ought to be segregated.

Yours faithfully,
 J. A.

Miss Leona Havran And Wendell D. Partridge Wed In Church Rites Here

Miss Leona Marie Havran and Mr. Wendell Dean Partridge were united in marriage at 6 o'clock Saturday evening.

Scene of the wedding was the First Methodist Church in Munday with the Rev. R. L. Butler, pastor, reading the double ring services. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Havran of Knox City, was given in marriage by her father.

Yellow chrysanthemums and blue tapers decorated the church. Family pews were marked with white ribbons and flowers.

Miss Carolyn Hannah of Munday, organist, accompanied Mrs. Orb Coffman of Goree who sang "Because", "The Lord's Prayer", and other traditional wedding music.

The bride wore a fitted dress of ivory satin with long sleeves and a long train extending from garters below the waistline. Her veil of ivory illusion was held by a tiara formed of illusion and seed pearls and extended the length of the train. She carried two dozen white roses centered with two orchids. The bride wore a white gold watch set with diamonds, a gift of the groom, and a lucky pence in her shoe.

Miss Irene Havran of Knox City, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a mauve satin dress with long sleeves and a fitted jacket. A bustle bow adorned the back. She carried a colonial bouquet of orchid chrysanthemums. Her headress was of illusion and pearls.

Miss Louise Anders of Rochester and Miss Rachael Lamons of Denton served as bridesmaids. Both wore dresses and long mitts of ice blue taffeta. They carried colonial bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums. Their headresses matched that of the maid of honor.

Little Miss Donna Kay Partridge of Munday, cousin of the groom, was flower girl. She wore an ice blue taffeta gown.

Mart Hardin of Lubbock attended the bridegroom as best man. Ushers were Marvin McAfee and Gaylon Hoard of Munday, Billy Bob Burton of Lubbock and Glynn Myers of Abilene. Ring bearer was Gary Dean Bivins of Benjamin, cousin of the bridegroom.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, when Eugenia Robertson presided at the refreshment table. She was assisted by Margaret Greenwood and Juanita Smiley. All are from Munday.

Yellow chrysanthemums were used in decorations.

When the couple left for a wedding trip to Mexico City, the bride wore a red wool gabardine with winter white accessories and an orchid corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Partridge will live in Munday. He is engaged in farming in Knox and Haskell counties. The bride is a teacher in the Munday elementary school.

A graduate of Weinert High School and North Texas State College, Denton, the bride was a member of the North Texas College Players, Quintilians, House Presidents Club, Gamma Joins, and Senior CCC. Her senior year, she served as vice-president of the Future Teachers of America and the Camera Club.

Tacky Party Is Enjoyed November 18 By Benjaminites

Several Benjaminites got their imaginations to working, and on Friday evening, November 18th, they had a "Tacky Party."

Tacky is the right word for it. We wonder where some folks found their costumes, and if others had any make-up left after the occasion.

The party began with games such as "Zig-Zag", "Give", and "Spelling Game", after which the group took part in a "Scavenger Hunt". The winners being A. H. Sams, Tom Brogen, Billy Snail-um and Vera Hahn. Immediately following the hunt refreshments of barbeque, weiners, olives, potato chips, cookies, coffee and tea were served.

Then came time to decide which girl and which boy was "tackiest". This was done by ballot voting with Miss Louise Brown and Mr. Kenneth Lewis as winners.

Each one present, which included the following, reported a grand time: Nelda Jo Hindman, Eugenia Butler, Louise Brown, Katy and Tom Brogen, of Munday; A. H. Sams, Bobby Hudson, Wynelle Porter, Vera Hahn, Billy Jo Snailum, Pat Miller, T. W. Templeton, Elda Purl Laird and Kenneth Lewis.

BOYCE HOUSE

Belle Boyd, the famous woman spy of the Confederacy, once lived in Texas. About 1870, she and her husband move to Dallas and lived there a number of years.

She was living in Martinsburg, Va., at the outbreak of the Civil War and even after the Confederates had left and the Union forces had occupied the town, the Stars and Bars continued to flutter from the attic window of the Boyd home. A squad with a corporal at the head entered the house, brushing Belle aside and made their way upstairs. The young woman followed, just in time to see her mother staggering from a blow as the corporal thrust her aside. Belle had a pistol in her hand. She raised the weapon and fired, killing the corporal.

She was tried by the military authorities but her words, "He laid rough hands on my mother," won her freedom.

The Boyd home was filled with Union soldiers with whom Belle flirted and from whom she obtained military information which she wrote on thin paper and then either carried the message to the Southern camp herself or sent it by a slave in a big silver watch, from which the works had been removed.

When the home was commandeered as headquarters for Gen. Shields, she and her mother were moved to smaller cottage on the grounds. She observed, one day, a great stir around the house and sensed that something important was in the air. She slipped unseen into the mansion and hid herself in an upstairs bedroom, in a closet, over the living room and spent hours there. Sure enough, that night a conference was held and the words of Gen. Shields came up to her clearly. She made notes in the darkness and had Shields' complete plan for capturing Stonewall Jackson and his men.

Two Union soldiers entered the room, not knowing that a few steps from them in the closet was the brave girl. The soldiers went to bed and at last their breathing told her that they were asleep. She tiptoed out of her hiding place, crossed the room, crept down the stairs and soon was galloping across the mountain to the Confederate lines. She was halted by a Union sentry who placed a gun barrel across her horse's nose.

"My brother is dying and Gen. Shields has given me a pass to go to see him," she said—and produced a pass, which actually was genuine, though of course, the general had not known that it would be put to such use.

Two more times she was stopped by each time was permitted to go on and at least from the dark came the words, "Who goes there?" It was a Confederate sentry.

But even though she had delivered the information, she must get back home undiscovered and near the end of the journey, through weariness and nerve strain, she ignored the sentry's challenge, lay low on the neck of her horse, spurred the animal and heard the bullets whiz harmlessly past. Next morning, when callers came, there was Belle Boyd in the cottage door, smiling graciously.

Later she received a message: "Miss Belle Boyd, I thank you for myself and for the army for the immense service you have rendered your country today. Hastily I am your friend"—and it was signed by "Stonewall" Jackson.

Cotton Men To Map Fight Against Insects

Industry Leaders To Outline Pest Control Measures At Birmingham Meeting

The third annual Cotton Insect Control Conference will be held in Birmingham, Ala., December 19-20, the National Cotton Council has announced.

The meeting will bring together key representatives of government and state research and educational agencies, of the cotton industry, insecticide companies and farm equipment manufacturers. Entomologists and other experts in the field of cotton pest control will discuss programs during the past year designed to develop methods of combatting insects which are costing the industry more than 250 million dollars a year.

Purpose

Principal purpose of the Birmingham meeting, Cotton Council officials explain, is to bring about an integrated program of pest control, leading to a reduction in cotton production costs.

"Disastrous losses inflicted by the boll weevil on the cotton crop this year in the Southeast and Mid-South emphasize the necessity for concerted action by all agencies toward efficient control of cotton insects," Claude L. Welch, Cotton Council production and marketing director, pointed out.

Recommendations

The Council official further explained that insect control conferences in Columbia, S. C., in 1947 and in Atlanta, Ga., last year, cotton insect control recommendations were released. Publication of these recommendations at the beginning of the year is of inestimable value to the entire cotton industry, he declared. He said that this procedure gives insecticide manufacturers an opportunity to plan their production for the coming crop year. It also enables educational workers to prepare insect control information for distribution to cotton farmers so that orders for poisons may be placed early, thereby preventing a shortage of supplies.

Soil Improving Crops Planted By 38 Farmers

The planting of soil improving cover crops is continuing in the Wehita-Brazos Soil Conservation District. Thirty-eight cooperators with the district have used the new fertilizer grain drills to plant peas, vetch, rye, and alfalfa. There is continuing demand for these drills that put out phosphate fertilizer with the cover crops, and the demand will continue until around the first of December. Many cooperators have stated that it pays for many reasons to plant these crops. It holds the sand from blowing during the fall, winter, and spring; keeps the sand out of the unpulped cotton; improves the organic matter content of the soil which is getting badly depleted; improves the tilth of the soil; does away with winter plowing; and increases the yield of the crops following.

The demand for terrace lines on maize and cotton land is expected to increase as these crops are gathered. There was much evidence of erosion during this summer of above average rainfall, and now is the time to start thinking about those gullies in your cotton and maize fields. Next year may be less than average rainfall and the conservation of every drop of water would be needed. Consult the technicians of the Soil Conservation Service assisting the District about your conservation needs.

Watch Out For The Symptoms!

Laughed out loud when I heard Hoot Davis was down with Chicken Pox. A man of forty-five catching a kid's disease!

So I went to see him, armed with jokes about "second childhood" but forgot them fast when I got there. Hoot looked terrible and had quite a fever.

While we talked, I came to think of how Chicken Pox is a lot like other "diseases"—diseases of the character, such as intolerance, self-righteousness or just plain ignorance. They're excusable in children, but when they come out in adults they're ten times as bad—and can be mighty "contagious."

From where I sit, we should all watch out for the "symptoms"—little things like criticizing a person's preference for a friendly glass of temperate beer or ale. We've seen personal freedom wither away in other countries, when individual intolerance was allowed to get out of hand and become a nation-wide epidemic.
