Odd Bits Salvaged
At Random

Texas is bigger than we ever thought it was.

We've enjoyed some "tall tales" about Texas—its size, its hospitality, how the big state does things in a big way, and stuff like that.

Like the old story we've seen in printed form regarding the size of Texas.

It closed, if we remember correctly, with the statement that if all the steers in Texas were one steer he could stand with his front feet in the Gulf of Mexico, his hind feet away off someplace else, while his tail could brush the flies off the aurora borealis!

Like, too, the story we heard Texas' speaker of the House of Representatives tell at a press convention last summer.

It seems that a lone Texan got into an outfit with a bunch of northern soldiers during the recent war.

In all their periods of training everything they saw or came in contact with would draw the comment from the Texan: "Shuks, we've got 'em bigger'n that down in Texas!"

Finally the outfit went overseas and saw service in Italy.

Tex and his buddies had occasion to visit one of the active volcanoes in that area.

As they stood there marveling at the huge mountain belching forth its volume of fire and smoke and lava, one of the bunch asked: "Tex, have you got anything like that down in Texas?"

"Wal, no," Tex replied with his Texas drawl, "but we got a fire department down in Waco that can be blamed shore put it out!"

Which reminds us of a Chicago firm that wired its representative at Texarkana that while he was in Texas to run down to Waco and see another of the firm's customers.

He wired back, "Go see him yourself. You're closer to him than I am."

All of which sorta impresses us with the size of Texas. But, as we said in the beginning, Texas is bigger than we thought.

We didn't know that Texas extended all the way from the Gulf of Mexico to the north pole.

It must do it, though—and a little child surely must believe it.

Among our letters to Santa Claus which have been coming in to be printed in next week's issue was one addressed to Mr. Santa Claus, North Pole, Texas.

And while we're on the matter of Santa Claus' letters, you kiddoes need to get them in by next Monday in order to get them in the paper and forwarded on to Santa before Christmas.

The subject of Texas and Christmas also brings to mind the fact that we started getting Merry Christmas greetings along about December 10. Some people just try to rush the season.

Take Boyce House, for instance. His greeting was mailed at Fort Worth on December 7.

On his card was a picture of a cowpoke riding a fiercely bucking horse, and underneath was this little poem:

If a feller's been a-straddle
Since he was old enough to ride
And has had to sling his saddle
On 'most any colored hide,
Tho' it's nothin' he takes pride
In,
Still—most fellers I have known,
If they ever done much ridin'
Has at different times, got throwed!

We got throwed once, coming home from community singing

Five Big Days Of Appreciation Set Next Week

LOCAL NEEDS FOR 1949

We're pulling for these needs in 1949. What will the year bring?

1. An adequate waterworks system. This is a must for the continued growth of Munday.
2. Building of more housing projects. There continues to be a housing shortage.
3. Recreational facilities for our youth of today—our citizens of tomorrow.

PLUS TAX!

The Saturday Evening Post recently ran an amusing cartoon in which a woman, with a look of joyful anticipation, is reading an advertisement offering some article she wants at a sale price. Directly beneath it is a second picture, showing her with a look of anger and disappointment as she reads the words "Plus tax."

This is an excellent commentary on those wartime excise taxes with which the country is still plagued. They apply to cosmetics, luggage, fur coats, and a long list of their commodities. Similar taxes also apply to transportation tickets. Few opposed them in war-time when it was necessary to our production and use of everything except the air essentials, and it was also necessary to raise incredible sums of money for the government and to reduce purchasing power. But the last shade of justification for them has gone now.

Spokesmen for retailing, who know what they are talking about from experience, say these taxes are a definite deterrent to sales of the affected items, and thus they reduce employment, the tax revenue government would get from increased factory output, and are a drag on the whole economy. Many people could buy some item at the going retail price when they can't afford to buy it after the government tacks on an additional 20 per cent.

There was hope that these taxes would be repealed at the last session of Congress. That hope failed to materialize. It's up to Congress that will convene in January.

MAINTAINING FARM INCOME

One authority on certain phases of agriculture observes that, in the race between our rapid population growth and more efficient food production, "a major opportunity for maintaining farm income and at the same time reducing the cost of food to consumers lies in growing more of the foods which are in strongest demand."

Our supply of agricultural land is relatively fixed. At the same time, we have a growing population and high consumer incomes. However, great advances in technology, and increased productivity and efficiency in the use of our land, have more than offset the population gains. Consequently, the same authority says, "An appraisal of past trends, and a consideration of demand characteristics of farm products, suggest that increased emphasis on animal agriculture would be one of the ways to help stabilize farm income and land values."

The Munday Times is Democratic, yet supporting only what it believes to be right, and opposing what it believes to be wrong, regardless of party politics, publishing news fairly, impartially, and honestly.

The benefits of animal agriculture, from the point of view of both producer and consumer, are many. First of all, people want animal products, such as meat and milk. Livestock of one kind or another can be raised on either a small or large scale in almost any section of the country. Of top importance, soil building and animal agriculture go hand in hand. Improved grasses for livestock help hold the soil in place. Animal manure returns to the soil a large proportion of the nutrients that feed crops take from it. And alfalfa, clover and other legumes add nitrogen and do much to maintain soil fertility.

A substantial increase in our livestock population is forecast for the future. It is a highly desirable development.

THE FIRST STEP

Lenin once said, in effect, that socialized medicine must be one of the first steps in establishing the socialized state.

His vision has been borne out. In England, for example, state socialism began with the passage of compulsory health insurance in 1931. Today most basic British enterprise is socialized and practically all the rest is regimented to the point where it might as well be.

It's logical that government control over a nation's health services should be the starting point for eventual wholesale socialization. The government's authority is felt directly in every home, and by every individual. The people become accustomed to looking to government for assistance—and, incidentally, to paying the heavy costs through taxes of one kind or another. Insidiously, almost unnoticeably, individual independence and self-reliance are breaking down.

In this country, those who urge compulsory government health insurance are also zealous partisans of all sorts of reforms and cradle-to-the-grave social security measures. Their program, in all its essential principles, is a blueprint of England's. It is the sort of program which has destroyed the liberties of the people on a piece-meal basis in a dozen nations, and, at the same time, lowered the standard of living to a subsistence level. It is a program which must inevitably make government the master and the rest of us the servants.

The fight against socialized or political medicine in an important part of the fight to save the ideals of individualism and freedom his country has always stood for.

Holiday Travel Means Death On Texas Highways

"Don't let death take your holiday!"

This is the warning issued today by Col. Homer Garrison, Jr., Director of Texas Department of Public Safety.

"Too many people either do not, or will not, associate the Christmas holidays with anything as grim as death," Col. Garrison said. "And yet this month's death rate is consistently high. Last year, more than 3,000 motorists and pedestrians died in December alone."

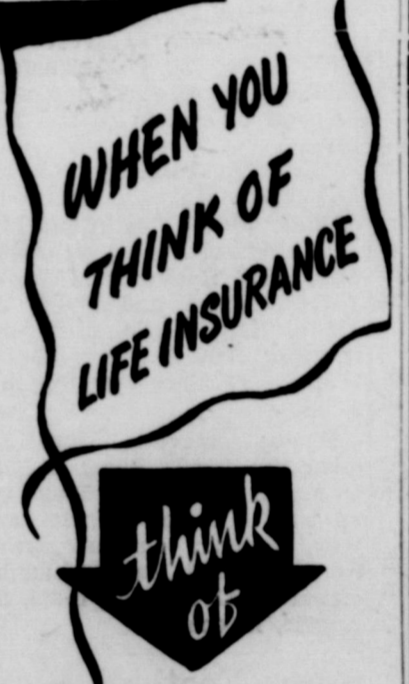

The Department of Public Safety is emphasizing the subject of holiday hazards during December in cooperation with the Texas Safety Association.

Col. Garrison pointed out that December, last year, again successfully defended its title as the deadliest month of the year from a national standpoint. Both pedestrian and motorist fatalities were higher at that time than at any other time of the year.

"A lot of things go into making a record like that," Col. Garrison said. "Low visibility, slippery road surfaces, fogged windshields, more drinking drivers, and long hours of darkness that cover the peak hours of traffic every day are the factors chiefly responsible for such a high fatality rate."

Maintenance of windshield wiper, defroster, and brakes, use of chains, lower speeds, and abstinence from alcohol before and while driving were the preventive measures urged by the Department of Public Safety and Texas Safety Association.

"Don't Let Death Take Your Holiday is more than a slogan," Col. Garrison said. "Remember that very thing happened to more than 3,000 people last year!"

Gives You Texas

While a staff correspondent traveling over the state for the Fort Worth Star-Telegram during the Allred-Hunter campaign of 1934, I had to take a lot of joshing from the driver of the car containing the newspaper men as he was a Dallas man. My friends will have difficulty believing that I sidestepped a chance to argue but I offered no rejoinder to his claims of the superiority of Dallas people to the inhabitants of Cowtown. (I didn't want to get out and walk.)

On the final day, we were going through Dallas when he made a left hand turn where he wasn't supposed to and a policeman whistled him to a stop. As the officer came up, I poked out my head from the car and said, "Can you tell me the way to McKinney?" He asked, "McKinney Avenue or McKinney, Texas?" "Oh, is there an avenue by that name, too? I want to get to the town of McKinney I replied.

As he started instructions, I broke in to ask he make them simple since I wasn't familiar with Dallas. At the conclusion of his directions, I said, "I have often heard of the courtesy of the police of Dallas and now I know it to be a fact. Many thanks officer."

The man at the wheel had the presence of mind to step on the starter and we pulled away. I looked in the rear view mirror and the policeman had shoved his cap up and was scratching his head; he had remembered

Cooking With Gas Takes The Drudgery Out Of The Kitchen

When grandma was a young cooking housewife, her culinary chores were done over a red-hot stove and she had to like it. Today her daughter-successor in the kitchen has replaced drudgery with comfort by using a modern gas range with automatic features which conserve food, fuel, time and energy in meal preparation. These automatic requirements actually accomplish the cooking of a complete meal while the housewife is "miles away."

These advantages are available on ranges being sold in the gas industry's current nationwide "Old that he had stopped the car to ball out the driver and maybe give him a ticket.

I turned to the driver and said, "We Fort Worth folks just simply think too fast for you Dallas people." He grinned and said, "I believe you're are right at that."

Mark Twain's humor sometimes had depth, irony and even bitterness as when he declared, "If the desire to kill and the opportunity to kill came together, who could escape hanging?"

And: "It takes your enemy and your friend working together to hurt you to the heart; the one to slander you and the other to get the news to you."

Stove Round-Up." The Lone Star Gas Company and many gas appliance dealers in this territory are offering special down payments and monthly terms and liberal trade-in allowances on old stoves during the "round-up" as inducements for householders to modernize their cooking.

To assure homemakers full value when purchasing gas ranges, the gas industry has established "seals of quality" which are readily recognized on standard equipment. Every approved gas range bears a visible blue seal authorized by the American Gas Association. This seal means that expert technicians have checked the range and it meets with the severest requirements for safety, performance, durability, cleanliness and economy of operation.

Further, because gas ranges are designed in a wide variety of styles to give every homemaker "just what she wants" in a cooking appliance, an additional seal is provided for deluxe gas ranges. This is the "CP" seal which represents Cooking Perfection.

An expert in the art of gas cookery describes modern gas ranges as "Economical to buy, to install on to operate." She is Miss Julia Hunter, Lone Star Gas Company home economics director, who points out that "gas ranges never lose their efficiency. There is no substitute for flame cooking—absolutely none."

"Gas ranges operate on one-fourth the cost of non-flame artificial cooking methods," Miss Hunter said. "Gas ranges are ultra modern in construction and appearance and more beautiful ranges cannot be bought. They are dependable as gas service itself; gas is your most reliable domestic servant, providing instant heat when you need it. Gas cooking begins with the twist of the wrist and can be minutely controlled to provide for cooking perfection."

Very few homes have ever been built with too much storage space but the lack of storage space contributes to over-crowded closets, hallways and cluttered rooms. The later condition creates in many accidents hazards in the home.

Breakfast cereals are a basic food, important in the daily diet for their nutritional value, versatility, economy, and varied, and varied flavors and textures.

Knox Prairie Philosopher Admires Method That Congressman Has Of Not Arguing When He's Caught Red-Handed

Editor's note: The Knox Prairie Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Miller Creek has been reading the papers again his letter this week indicates. We doubt if it does him any good.

Dear editor:

I noticed in a newspaper which was wrapped around a pair of shoes I had half-soled year before last and finally got around to pickin em up in town Saturday where another Congressman has gotten into trouble and while I don't reckon the percentage of Congressmen runnin afoul of the law is half as great as the percentage of ordinary folks, I was interested in what this Congressman had to say.

When he was confronted with the evidence of gettin the government's money mixed up with his, he pleaded "nolo contendere" and threw himself on the mercy of the court.

As I understand this, it means "I ain't sayin whether I'm guilty or not, but go ahead and sentence me." In other words, the

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Now Hospitals Are "Banks," Too!

Doc Simpson was saying, "Hospitals are building up 'bone banks' that work just like blood banks. When bone is needed, the surgeon takes one from a refrigerator, cuts it to the right shape and simply splices it in."

"You doctors are sure making progress," I says, "but tell me, are any of the patients fussy about whose bone they're getting?"

"No sir!" replies Doc. "No more than they worry about whose blood they get. No one yet asked for a bone from a man who went to the same school or church he did."

From where I sit, it would be a better world if we were half as willing to accept other people's ideas and tastes, as we seem to be willing to accept their bone and blood. There'll always be differences. Some like buttermilk, others would rather have a sparkling glass of temperate beer. But underneath we're pretty much the same—deserving each other's respect and tolerance!

MUMMY CLOTH CALLED LARGEST

Archaeologists found a 3000-year-old pre-Incan Peruvian mummy still well dressed when they examined recently at the American Museum of National History.

The mummy was covered by a sheet of cotton cloth 87 feet long, 11 feet 3 inches wide. This is the largest such wrappings ever found. Scientists compared it with the size of an ancient mummy winding 47 feet long, which is now in Harvard University's Peabody Museum.

Two-thirds of the cotton fabric was found to be in a well preserved state, despite the fact that no evidence of preparing solutions was discovered. The fabric was made of both white and brown cotton.

The mummy cloth will be ex-policy. When my cow gets over in a neighbor's pasture and he says I've got to fix my fence, I don't argue about it. I don't fix the fence neither, but it saves a lot of unpleasantness at the time.

I even tried this on a banker once, when he was contending my note was due, but he was the most un-Congressman I've ever seen and didn't take to my method at all.

Yours faithfully, amined by scientists in relation to the long lasting qualities of modern cotton fabrics.

"This wrapping sets a world record for a fabric from a non-mechanical loom," Junius Bird, associate curator of archaeology at the museum said, "But it probably never served any normal purpose. Just special for a mummy."

Name Texas Youth 4-H Sectional Winner in Soil Conservation

Carroll Fowler

BEING chosen one of 16 sectional winners in the 1949 National 4-H Soil Conservation program was the honor bestowed upon Carroll Fowler, 20, of Lakeview. His splendid record showed that the need of a farm stock water reservoir first brought soil conservation to his attention. He soon realized the need of more terraces, soil tests, contouring and strip croppings. Some of these practices are already under way. Baby beef, swine and poultry, are among his chief projects, all of which depend for maximum feed production upon good soil. Carroll declared his goal is "to have all fields terraced, planted to the proper crop, establish good crop rotation, cultivate correctly, and have adequate supply of pasture and water." His award was an all-expense trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, provided by Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.

This activity is conducted under the direction of the Extension Service of the State Agricultural College and USDA cooperating.

Nut meats and a small amount of whipped cream combined with bits of jelly and whipped until light makes a delicious sauce for puddings and ice cream.

Mildred Coffman Is Returning Home For The Holidays

Miss Mildred Drue Coffman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orb Coffman, Goree, will return home from Hockaday in Dallas Friday, December 16, to spend the Christmas holidays with her parents. Miss Coffman is a member of the Sophomore class of Hockaday Junior College, and belongs to the Glee Club, House Council and Club Council. She is also a member of Tan Gam, college scholastic honor society, with a very limited membership.

Miss Coffman took part in the Christmas vesper services in the Great Hall Sunday night, December 11, at which a cantata, The Christ Child, was presented. She also participated in the traditional Wassail pageant and party which is a part of the Christmas festivities of the college. She attended the President's formal Christmas dinner Thursday, December 15.

Miss Coffman will return to Dallas Tuesday, January 3, and regular classes will begin January 4.

American Men Too Romantic

Helen Eustis, novelist and magazine writer, who disputes the notion that American husbands are monomaniacal in fact, she claims they're too romantic. Writing in the December issue of Cosmopolitan magazine, Miss Eustis explains that husbands overwork themselves to free their wives from household drudgery. The result, she says, is that the wives become underworked and overfed and the husbands begin to appear unromantic alongside their wives' soap opera idols. As a solution, the author recommends that husbands and wives become better friends by sharing and enjoying mutual work and recreation.

J. K. Jackson was a business visitor in Fort Worth last Tuesday.

FARM NEWS

From the County PMA Committee

TEXAS COTTON ACREAGE ANNOUNCED

Texas' share of the national cotton acreage allotment for 1950 has been set at 7,637,029 acres. The announcement was made by the State Office of the Production and Marketing Administration in College Station, Texas.

Based on the State's average yield of 170 pounds per acre, this acreage will produce a 1950 cotton crop of around 2.6 million bales.

Mr. B. F. Vance, chairman of the State PMA Committee, explains that the Texas allotment is based primarily on acreage and production history. The formula for dividing the national allotment among the various cotton producing states was set up by Congress in an amendment to the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, passed last August. The chairman says that county allotments are being determined and will be announced soon.

The national cotton acreage allotment is based on the amount of cotton required to produce a "normal supply". In the case of the 1950 crop, the required production amount to around 83 3/4 million bales. Congress stipulated, however, that the national acreage allotment for 1950 should be not less than 21 million acres. At average yields, this acreage would produce a crop in 1950 of about 11 3/4 million bales.

County acreage allotments will be divided among cotton farms. Individual farm allotments will serve as a basis for determining price-support eligibility in 1950. The individual farm allotment is also the basis for the farm marketing quota.

Whether or not quotas will be used for the 1950 crop will be decided by cotton farmers in a referendum on Thursday, December 15. Mr. Vance assured growers that they would be notified of their farm acreage allotments before that date.

AGRICULTURAL PRICE SUPPORTS

What prices would agricultural crops grown on Texas farms be bringing today were it not for the Commodity Credit Corporation's Price Support Program? That question is being asked by not only farmers but people in very every walk of life. There is very little doubt but that most of the crops grown in Texas would be bringing considerably less money than they are now bringing. Below is listed the average prices Texas farmers were receiving for some of their crops on November 15 and the average

CCC support price for the crops:

	Aver. price rec'd. by farmers	Aver. support price for Texas
Nov. 15
Wheat	1.92	1.95
Corn	1.08	1.45
Oats	.76	.76
Grain
Sorghum	1.67	2.10
Cotton	26.70	29.20
Cottonseed	42.00	49.50
Peanuts	10.2	10.2

All crops are at or below the support level. The support prices do not represent what the farmer participating in the support program actually nets for his crops since there are charges for storage, grading, packing and other costs in connection with support price operations.

There are some people who believe they would profit if the entire support price program were discontinued and agricultural prices permitted to drop.

Whenever agricultural prices drop farmers of necessity cut down on their purchases. This in turn reduces profits of business firms along main street. These business firms are forced to cut expenses. This is usually done by either cutting salaries or reducing the number of employees. To be sure, the farmer would be most drastically affected. The prices he would have to pay for a tractor or other farm machinery necessary for him to keep producing would in all probability remain high since it is a simple matter to cut production of these commodities. Farmers could not afford to buy as much fertilizer and carry on as much soil conservation work as at present, therefore, production would surely drop. We would not have the abundant production to keep agricultural prices down.

Prices farmers receive have already been reduced almost one-third from the post-war peak. How much farther can we afford to let them drop Ralph Trigg, President of the Commodity Credit Corporation recently said, "when the bottom drops out of farm income there is a downhill pull which sows the seeds of a general depression."

Farmers have certain responsibilities in connection with agricultural price support programs. Efforts must be made by the farmers to keep production of farm commodities in line with needs. The people through the Government cannot be expected to support farmers prices unless the farmers are willing to do this. Cotton farmers are to decide on December 15 whether they want to reduce their cotton

Weekly Health LETTER

Issued by Dr. Geo. W. Cox
M. D., State Health Officer of Texas

Do you know that tuberculosis is preventable? Curable? Not inherited?

Tuberculosis is contracted from another active case. It is a "catching disease". It is caused by a germ which usually attacks the lungs, but may attack other parts of the body, says Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

Tuberculosis is spread from an infected person to others in several ways, some of which are: through nose and throat discharges by coughing and spitting; through using dishes, linens and other articles soiled by an in-fectured person. Tuberculosis infection usually is the result of continued close contact with an active case; therefore, it is a "family disease".

How do you know who has tuberculosis? Early TB is without symptoms. It is no respecter of persons. It occurs in all walks of life and at any age, but is least likely to be present in serious form between the ages of 4 and 14 years.

If coughing and loss of weight are present, the disease is well advanced, and a person has lost his best chance for complete recovery.

How can we protect our families? Go to a physician for an examination including a chest x-ray. When the Mobile x-ray unit comes to your town, have a free chest x-ray. X-ray surveys have been conducted in 132 counties and 18 institutions during the past year and over 514,000 persons have been x-rayed. Protect your home from tuberculosis.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Mitchell of Austin visited with Raymond's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Mitchell, the latter part of last week.

Hulls Can Help Steer Feeders To Reduce Costs

Economical Roughage Replaces Alfalfa in Texas Experiments

Added proof that cottonseed hulls are efficient, economical roughage that will give good results when replacing more expensive roughages in steer fattening rations is contained in a recent report of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. These results confirm other earlier experiments and the experience of many cattle feeders. The most recent of these official experiments was conducted by the Texas Experiment Station at the Ysletta Substation in the El Paso Valley. The results obtained there show that when cottonseed hulls replace up to 60 per cent of the alfalfa in steer fattening rations, equal or superior results are obtained at a lower feed cost.

As a result of this and three preceding experiments, the Texas Experiment Station stated that elimination of bloat and the lower cost of gains are advantages favoring the feeding of cottonseed hulls while maintaining the same rate of gain and degree of finish. When hulls were used to replace 60 per cent of the alfalfa in the ration, daily gain and dressing percentage were both slightly higher and the cost per 100 pounds of gain was lower. Thus, cottonseed hulls favorably affected three of the most important factors in successful cattle feeding.

The average daily rations consumed by these steers shows that the steers receiving hulls to replace a part of the alfalfa ate more roughage and gain than did the steers receiving alfalfa as the only roughage. This fact proves that cottonseed hulls are highly palatable and that they encourage a larger consumption of fattening grain because they have a beneficial effect on digestion. Many experiments have proved that palatable and easily digested foods encourage feeding efficiency and promote rapid gains.

The Texas Experiment Station, and other feeding authorities, recommend that some alfalfa hay or other vitamin A containing roughage be fed to avoid vitamin A deficiency. Usually, 2 to 4 pounds, daily per head, of legume or other bright hay will provide this needed quantity of vitamin A.

This report of successful cottonseed hulls to replace a portion of alfalfa in steer fattening rations confirms earlier conclusions made at the Texas and other experiment stations. In 1946 the Texas Station reported, "Steers fed cottonseed hulls to replace a portion of alfalfa hay, ate about two pounds more feed daily per head than steers receiving alfalfa as the only roughage. They also made the most gain, the highest yield, and had a slight advantage in carcass grade."

Results from the 1949 corn tests show that Texas 24, 26 and 28 may generally be expected to produce from 5 to 10 percent more corn than the hybrids now available.

If the farm tractor is warmed up or used on the inside, be sure there is plenty of ventilation for carbon monoxide cannot be detected by odor and is a deadly poison.

Fruit trees are pruned to stimulate growth for next year's fruit to grow on and it keeps the trees down to handling dimensions.

All pipes used in connection with the water system in the home should be placed where they'll have the maximum protection from cold winds.

Late Blooming Fruits Studied For This Area

An experimental orchard and vineyard have been maintained at the Big Spring Field Station since 1935 chiefly for the purpose of testing varieties of fruits that could be used for home use in the area. Particular attention has been given to the varieties which bloom late. Often, a few days difference in the date of blooming means the difference between failure and success so far as fruit production is concerned. F. E. Keating, superintendent of the Big Spring Field Station, points out in progress report 1186, released by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, that soil, moisture and spring freezes are the chief factors controlling fruit production in the area. Soil moisture is especially important in grape production because they flower late enough to escape the late freezes. Grain yields are high in years of high rainfall and low during years of low rainfall. He says that fruit plantings should be located on deep, sandy soil, which has the capacity for releasing a greater percentage of

Balanced Crops May Result From Reduced Acres

Acres reductions in 1950 of cash crops will probably result in larger plantings of soil-building legumes, small grains and forage crops. In many cases, it may mean the seeding of hay meadows and permanent pastures. The relatively favorable prices expected for livestock and livestock products should help to "cushion" this shift, provided farm operators plan wisely, says C. H. Bates, extension farm management specialist of Texas A. & M. College.

On many family-sized farms livestock can be used to help balance the production program for the farm. Bates points out that farm operators should plan to utilize all of their labor and machinery as well as the land previously planted to cash crops. The extra grain and forage production that is expected to result from the acreage reduction programs, believes Bates, should be used on the farm where it is produced.

He says even without favorable livestock prices over cash grain prices, farm profits can be increased when the extra grain and forage are sold in the form of meat, milk and eggs. Feeding this extra production to farm livestock is sound business and he says farmers should not forget the extra dividend that they can derive from the manure when it is returned to the land.

Here are his suggestions on planning for profitable farm livestock production in 1950 and in the future. Plan to grow into the business as feed and pasture production are developed; select the phase of livestock production suited to the farm family and to the farm; produce quality products and provide fences, buildings and equipment needed to save labor and feed.

He points out that electric fences can be economically used for enclosing temporary pastures but says where permanent type fences are needed, it is better to build the sturdy, long-lived ones. It is cheaper in the long run to build or purchase the best equipment and materials available, and Bates suggests that you check with your local county agent for plans and suggestions that might prove helpful in getting your livestock program underway.

Cull low producing dairy cows. It will save money on the winter's feed bill and will leave more roughage, winter grazing and shelter facilities for the good producers.

moisture than do the heavier soils. Sandy soils also allow the roots to penetrate a larger area for moisture. Spacing the trees to give more room will help in overcoming some of the effects of dry years.

The Sand cherry-plum hybrids bloom late and usually escape the late spring frosts. The recommended varieties include Sapa, Opata and Compass. The fruit is small and is used chiefly for preserving and canning. Trees are small, require less space than usual and are generally regarded as rather short-lived. They come into bearing at an early age and produce well.

Sour cherries grow and produce well, but birds usually get most of the fruit. Good varieties are Early Richmond, Montmorency and Dyehouse. Figs can be grown for home use but should be irrigated. Ramsey or Everbearing is the best variety used. Eleven varieties of peaches have been tested. None was found to be a consistent bearer because of the late spring freezes. Elberta (yellow free) and Mamie Ross (semi-cling white) have made the best record of those tried. The Douglas pear is the only one recommended for that area.

Jujubes of Chinese date is a fruit that rarely misses a good crop, although the fruit has limited use. Keating says the grafted varieties of Lang, Li and Sui-men are among the best yielders and one or two trees might be worth a trial.

Grapes top the list of all fruits tried. They are consistent producers, are adapted to dryland culture and they bloom late. Forty-one varieties have been tested and the following are recommended by Keating: Lenoir, Extra, Beacon, Armalga, Manito, Herbermont, Black Muscat and Gold-end Muscat. Grapes require some care. They should be trellised and special pruning is necessary for the best production. They should be cultivated to control the weeds and occasionally may need to be sprayed for controlling the leaf hopper.

Keating suggests that if you are interested in starting a home orchard that you visit your local county agent or home demonstration agent for more information on the subject. They'll be glad to assist you.

Motorists Are Urged To "Return Home Safely"

AUSTIN, Spl.—"Return home safely every time!"

This was the plea to motorists today by Charles A. Miller, President of the Texas Safety Association, speaking in behalf of the Texas Department of Public Safety's December program of traffic safety education.

"Last December," Mr. Miller said, "nearly 2,000 motorists did not return home safely according to National Safety Council figures. This was the number of motorists killed in that one month alone. Approximately 70,000 were injured in traffic accidents."

The Texas Department of Public Safety pointed out that probably no other month of the year has the abundance of special winter driving hazards that December has. One of the biggest factors in December's out-of-proportion traffic accident toll is the length of the nights and the shortness of the days. This means greater exposure on the part of pedestrians as well as motorists to the danger of nighttime accidents.

"In addition to this," Mr. Miller said, "December weather, with its snow, ice, sleet, and rain, not only seriously cuts down the driver's visibility but lessens the traction in topping to very dangerous degree. Such unfavorable road conditions as these showed up in one out of every five fatal accidents last year, according to national figures. Rain, fog, or snow, was also present in one out of every seven fatal traffic accidents."

The Texas Department of Public Safety warned drivers that during the holiday season everyone is too likely to relax ordinary habits of caution, when actually alertness is called for. "When the total death list for last December was tallied," Mr. Miller said, "the fatalities to both pedestrians and motorists amounted to 3,120 persons." Only extreme caution, thoughtfulness, and a deep realization of

But that don't have anything to do with Santa Claus, or Christmas greetings, or the size of Texas. It might sorta explain why we have a one-track mind that sometimes jumps the track.

We hope we get a few more Santa Claus letters, and that you get plenty of greetings, but we bet the folks over at the post office wish it was all over with.

the perils of winter driving on the part of everyone can reduce this appalling toll. It's an individual responsibility that, for the sake of your family and yourself, cannot be shirked. "Don't let death take your holiday. The minute that you might save by speeding, the quick drink that you might have before the trip, of the hope that your windshield wiper and defroster won't be needed can mean that you've enjoyed your last holiday as well as your last day."

This month's traffic safety program is conducted by the Texas Department of Public Safety in cooperation with the Texas Safety Association.
