AGRICULTURE AND THE FOOD INDUSTRY

Anyone who believes that retailers are responsible for forcing up food prices would do well to read a presentation made to a House subcommittee by an organization which is intimately concerned with the matter—the American Farm Bureau Federation.

The Federation said: "A comparatively small percentage of the total cost of distribution consists of profits. Profits of food processing and marketing firms do not seem to be unreasonable or out of line." It added that a substantial portion of increased food marketing charges result from "built-in maid service"—that is, time and labor saving conveniences that people want. . . . the food industry," it then said, "like any other industry, must adapt its marketing practices to consumer preference."

The Federation went on to list a number of factors, within control of the government, which tend to inflate food marketing costs. One is restrictive, make-work practices imposed by unions. Another is excessive spending by government and the level of taxation. Still another is the transportation excise tax, which adds significantly to the cost of marketing farm products.

What is true of food, of course, is true in principal of everything else sold at retail. Profits are modest—and in some cases are so small that the consumer would hardly notice the difference if they didn't exist at all. Retailing in all its branches has rigorously cut overhead and operating costs wherever possible. And, let us not forget, retailing is among the most competitive of all industries—a fact that in itself assures the consumer of the lowest prices the conditions of the time permit.

The Postmaster General reports that more medical quackery is being promoted through the mails than ever before, at an annual money loss to the public of at least $50 million a year. Some of the common frauds are "sure cures" for cancer, arthritis, baldness and impotency.

An officer of the Sun Oil Company warns that small communities must do more long-range planning or face prospect of having state, interstate and federal authorities and commissions take over. Problems which, in his opinion, can and should be solved at the local level include transportation, housing, labor supply, water, and adequacy of investment capital.

THE TOWN'S "BIG MAN"

"The only doctor is the small town's 'big man,'" says the Patriot, of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. "His home is usually the town showplace. Sometimes, so is his life."

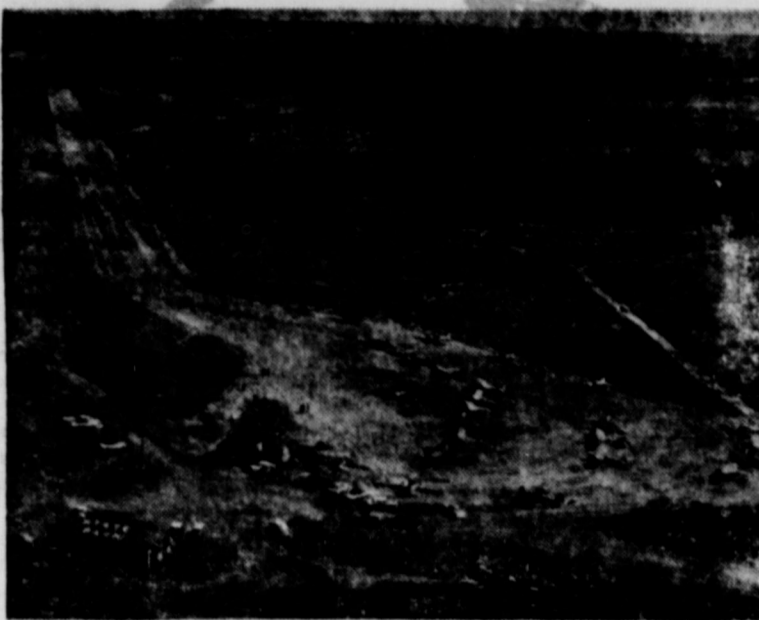

This was inspired by what happened in Cameron, Louisiana last June, when hurricane Audrey razed the community and took a ghastly toll of death and destruction. There was but one doctor there. His home was totally destroyed. He did not, for long hours, know what had happened to his family. Then he learned that his three daughters had perished in the flood. Yet, a Cameron citizen said, "He just kept working, taking care of the injured as though nothing had happened."

The Patriot quotes the Hippocratic Oath which all physicians take: "So far as power and discernment shall be mine, I will carry out regimen for the benefit of the sick, and I will keep them from harm and wrong. . . ." And that Oath goes on to say: "If I shall fulfill this Oath and break it not, may the fruits of my life and of art be mine, may I be honored of all men for all time. . . ."

This doctor in ruined Cameron lived up to that Oath under the most trying circumstances conceivable. The Patriot observes that he will rebuild his home as his community rebuilds, and that his new one may be a showplace—"But is always will be only a dull patch compared to the showplace that is his life." There is a symbolism here. All over the country, in little towns and great cities, other doctors are quietly and effectively carrying out their Oath, and placing duty above all other considerations. They do this as a matter of course, in ordinary times as well as in emergencies. Their lives are showplaces.

NEW CAMBRIA, MO., LEADER: "Reliance on government is more than an insidious disease. It is the robbing of men, first of their initiative and finally of their freedom. 'Whose bread I eat, his song I sing,' comes to us today as a warning proverb from the England of long ago when men were fighting."

LAMBERTVILLE, N. J., BEACON: ". . . We are dealing in 48 cent dollars today. That means that for every dollar we paid for life insurance during the past few years, every dollar we paid on a mortgage and every dollar we put in the bank is really worth less today than half of what we paid out."

LAKE WHITNEY STATE PARK is one of the nation's recreation areas pioneering in facilities for the air traveler. A landing strip 4,000 feet long ends in a turn-around at Fishermen's Inn, the park cafe. A cross strip of 3,000 feet ends at the park beach. The road into the park parallels the long airstrip. Markers direct traffic from Whitney west of Hillsboro, to the park. One of the richest men in America many years ago built a mansion in Port Arthur, when the future city was little more than a village, but never occupied the palatial home; his wife even declined to set foot in it.

This has always been an intriguing mystery—but to this chronicler in 1945 George M. Craig, Port Arthur bank president, explained it in one word: Mosquitoes!

In 1899, Arthur Stillwell, builder of the Kansas City Southern Railway, brought a group of millionaires to the new town, which bore his name and which he had founded as the terminus of his railroad. In the group were John W. (Bet-A-Million) Gates, Isaac Elwood, inventor and manufacturer of barbed wire, and James Hopkins, vice president of the Diamond Match Company.

Craig, then manager of the Port Arthur Land & Townsite Company, sold lots to Gates and Elwood, who built winter homes side by side, at a cost of many thousands of dollars. After Elwood mansion had been completed, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood arrived in Port Arthur aboard Gates' private railway car and they were met at the station by Craig and in his surrey they set out for the new home.

Port Arthur had no paved streets, the mud was deep and at times mosquitoes were so bad that sulphur smudges were kept burning in the stores. This was one of the times. So Craig handed his guests mosquito nets to wear over their faces on the drive but Mrs. Elwood did not fit the net down well and the insects bit her until her face bore numerous welts.

When the group reached the new home, Mrs. Elwood made no move to get out of the surrey. Her husband asked, "Do you want to go in?" She turned and, with a wan smile replied, "Ike, I think that place we have in Florida is good enough for me."

So Craig turned the carriage around and they returned to Gates' private car. Upon alighting from the surrey, Elwood asked the group, "How much am I offered for my Port Arthur home?" Someone humorously started the bidding at $100; someone else raised it to $1,000 and the price went up until Hopkins the new owner suggested that Craig and his family occupy the home, rent free, and the offer was accepted. Several times, Craig asked Hopkins to name a price for the property but he parried the requests. On one bid $10,000. "Sold!" cried Elwood, visit, Hopkins and his family were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Craig for a week. Mosquitoes again were bad and so the ladies remained indoors while Hopkins, Gates and Craig went duck-hunting. Craig tried again: "Uncle Jimmy"—(the affectionate way his younger friends

This was in the early days of the Texas Company but the stock was worth about $12,000. The match magnate showed interest but suggested they wait until he could talk the matter over with his family. Next morning, he called at Craig's desk in the bank and accepted the offer.

An interesting sidelight is that if Craig had retained the Texas Company stock and had exercised the rights a stockholder had to acquire additional stock as the company expanded, his holdings

Simple Electric Devise May Tell When To Irrigate

Farmers may someday tell when their crops need irrigating by using a simple electrical device tested recently by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. It measures moisture stress—an indicator of a plant's moisture needs.

For a rapid reading of a plant's water requirements, two small prongs of the device are stuck into the stem of the plant. The prongs are two stainless steel electrodes connected to an ohmmeter which measures the electrical resistance in the plant. The lumber industry uses a similar instrument to measure moisture in wood.

In experiments with cotton plants, the researchers found that electrical resistance went down as moisture amounts went up. Within four hours after irrigation, a sharp drop in resistance was observed on the ohmmeter.

The experimenters believe that the increase in electrical resistance with increasing moisture stress is the result of the drying out of the solid framework, or cell walls, of the plant. This creates in the woody tissues of the plant either longer conducting paths between electrodes, or increases gaps in conducting paths—readily indicated by the ohmmeter. The method has promise as a tool to help the average farmer determine when to irrigate, according to scientists of USDA's Agricultural Research Service who are making the studies. They point out that research is continuing, aimed at making the method easy to use by any farmer who irrigates.

New Fishing Law Will Benefit Many Texas Fishermen

A new Sports Fishing License Law which increases fishing license fees becomes effective September 1, 1957. The additional revenue will enable the Game and Fish Commission to increase its work program by about 25 percent and will generally benefit Texans interested in better fishing.

The new law states, in effect, that it shall be unlawful for any person to fish in any waters of this state without first obtaining a fishing license, according to Ed Cooper, wildlife conservation specialist.

The exceptions to this law, says Cooper, are persons under 17 and over 65 years of age; any person, or member of such persons immediate family when fishing upon property he owns or upon which he resides; and persons fishing with trotline, throw line, or ordinary pole or line having no reel or other winding device when fishing in the county of his residence. No other fishing license shall be required of a person who holds a commercial license issued in this state, adds the specialist.

The new law differs from the old one in ways besides fee charge, points out Cooper. Unlike the old law, the new one is not concerned with the type of bait to be used. Another difference is that the license fee is the same for Texans and out-of-state residents. The new law which requires salt water anglers to be licensed and charges a lower fee to non-residents, paves the way for a reciprocal licensing program with some of our neighboring states, concludes Cooper.

Weekly Health LETTER

Issued by Henry A. Hottel, M. D., State Health Officer of Texas

AUSTIN—Texas' new "hazardous substances" law is now in effect, aimed at restricting the sale of poisons that last year claimed at least 15 young lives in this state.

Chief target of the law is thallium sulphate, a potent insecticide and rodenticide. But all substances, with few specific exceptions, which are hazardous for humans are included.

The law was passed by the recent legislature with strong backing from the State Department of Health. The task of administering and enforcing it now falls to the state health commissioner with the help of city and county health officers.

In Houston alone last year more than 50 cases of accidental thallium sulphate poisoning were reported. Almost as many occurred in San Antonio. In most instances the deadly material was mixed with graham crackers or vanilla wafer crumbs as a base, which made it especially attractive to children.

Even before the law became effective, Galveston authorities banned the sale of products containing more than three per cent thallium salts.

The substance can kill by absorption through the skin or by inhalation, as well as by ingestion. Compounded originally for use only by professional insect and rodent exterminators, there is no known antidote for the almost tasteless product.

Even when the case of accidental poisoning doesn't end fatally, the victim's vision is often impaired and his sense of balance upset.

With the law now in effect, it will thereafter be unlawful to sell any product containing more than one per cent of any thallium salt.

It will also be unlawful to mix any poisonous substance with food or drink. Exceptions are water or a mixture which has lost its identity as food and is not likely to be mistaken as food for human consumption.

Manufacturers of hazardous substances, the new law says, must spell out on the container the nature of the hazard, first-aid treatments if any, and instructions for safe handling, storage, and disposal.

Violations are punishable by $1,000 fine or a year imprisonment or both.

Specifically exempt are products manufactured exclusively to be exported, soap or soap products, or products coming under the jurisdiction of the State Railroad Commission.

The attorney general has ruled that city and county health officers have authority to take legal action against violators in their jurisdiction if requested to do so by the state commissioner of health.

Social Security Returns Are Due From All Persons

Farm maids and plowhands, farm cooks and tractor drivers—all are the same to the Social Security Administration insofar as reporting their earnings is concerned, according to Erton F. Tate, Wichita Falls, Texas Social Security district manager.

Before January 31, 1958, farm operators in Knox County will be required to send in Social Security tax reports on their employees for the farm work they did during 1957. Mr. Tate said all farm employees, whether domestic or farmhand, are reported alike.

Tate listed these rules for farm workers—including maids, cooks, and other domestics hired for work on a farm operated for profit. Report all employees who were paid cash wages of $150 or more, or who worked for 20 or more days on a time basis.

Tax reports covering such employees must be filed during January, according to Tate. They are to be sent to the District Director of Internal Revenue in Dallas.

For more details, farm operators are advised to contact the Director of Internal Revenue, Dallas, Texas or the Wichita Falls district Social Security office where pamphlets outlining reporting requirements are available.

Gasoline Tax Refund Deadline Near

You barely have time to make a last-minute rush to the Internal Revenue office for that gasoline tax refund.

The first day of September is the deadline for Texas farmers to apply for refunds on gasoline used for farming between July 1, 1956 and June 30, 1957. The rebate amounts to three cents per gallon on gas used in farm operations during that period.

The opportunity for a small return is also available on gasoline purchased during the first six months of 1956. The Dallas office of the Internal Revenue Service says that two cents will be repaid on each gallon used during that period.

Texas farmers are reminded, however, that only one refund claim per farm operator will be permitted. Each claimant is cautioned to make certain that his refund request includes all eligible fuel used.

Form 2240, for filing the 1957 tax refund claim, has been mailed to each farm and ranch operator who applied for the tax refund in 1956.

Farmers who desire to claim their refunds and have not received Form 2240 can probably obtain them from their county agent or from the nearest Internal Revenue office.

The procedure for filing is simple, but just to make it easier, a bulletin has been published explaining the methods. Publication 308, "Farmer's Gas Tax Refund," is available for those who request it.

The pamphlet also explains how the new federal excise law relieves farmers from federal excise taxes on diesel and special motor fuels.

But time's a wasting! There are only a few days left!

IT'S THE LAW in Texas

SHOULD LAWYERS REPRESENT THE GUILTY?

One of the cardinal principles of American law is that a man is considered innocent until proven guilty by proper legal proceedings. Practically everyone pays lip service to this ideal, but many fail to realize that the right to be represented by counsel is a logical and essential corollary of that theory of justice. There is a good deal of criticism of attorneys representing defendants in criminal cases. Much of this criticism is unjust.

Should lawyers defend in court persons whom they know or have good reason to believe are guilty of the crimes charged against them? A few years ago a scientific sampling of the attitude of the public in Texas toward lawyers and law problems showed that more than half of all persons interviewed thought it was wrong for a lawyer to defend such a person.

Such an attitude is rather startling to many thinking citizens and to members of the Bar. Surely the guiltiest criminal has a right to a fair trial by the law of the land. Such a trial he cannot have without competent attorney to see that the jury is selected and that only lawful evidence is introduced against him.

With reference to this feeling on the part of sizeable portion of the public, a certain District Judge who tries many criminal cases, and who served eighteen years as a prosecuting attorney before his election to the Bench, once offered the following com-

"The result of this survey is no surprise to me, in that during my eighteen years of prosecuting, this feeling has been made known to me by hundreds of persons.

"The feeling on the part of the general public in this regard is brought about to a great extent by the sincere efforts on the part of the defense counsel to see that his client receives the benefit of every legal safeguard to which he is entitled. These legal maneuvers are often misunderstood by the layman as an unethical effort to defeat justice, by delay of the trial, and by taking advantage of certain defenses that to the layman appear to be trivial technicalities.

"Attorneys are the only ones who can correct the erroneous feeling of the general public regarding the defense of one who appears to be guilty as charged. We attorneys should emphatically state to the inquiring person that it is one of the cardinal rights of the individual in a democratic society to be considered innocent until his guilt is established beyond a reasonable doubt by legal and competent evidence.

"The public must be brought to the realization that all who are charged with crime are entitled to the expert counsel and aid of an attorney, and that the sworn duty of such attorney is to see that each protective legal right, to which the accused is entitled, is afforded him."

Now and then a lawyer will overstep the bounds of his duty in defending those charged with crime. When that happens, the legal profession is even more indignant that the public generally, and appropriate disciplinary proceedings are instituted where warranted.

(This column, based on Federal law and prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

Cattle Mostly Steady Trade Rather Uneven
 FORT WORTH—Movement of cattle and calves was slightly expanded in the opening session at Fort Worth Monday. Trade was uneven to some degree, as Northern markets came in with a lower tone, and this coupled with bearish cattle trade late last week made national packers and out-of-state order buyers cautious.
 Most classes of cattle and calves drew fully steady to strong prices at Fort Worth Monday. Some slaughter bids on fed steers were unevenly lower, but most of the supply cleared into independent packer and shipper channels at firm prices.
 Cows were very active, and most cows and bulls ruled steady, with some spots higher. Slaughter calves were steady. Stocker and feeder buyers with out-of-state connections were generally talking lower prices on the early rounds on the heels of the weakness in those parts of the country last week on replacements. However, the offering sold generally steady, with some of the higher grades fully steady to strong.
 Good and choice slaughter steers and yearlings sold from $20 to $25, the higher figure for a load of 1,055-pound steers from H. W. Strickland of Jack County, providing the day's top on beef cattle. Common and medium sorts sold from $14 to $19.
 Fat cows cashed at $12.50 to $15.50, and canners and cutters drew $8.50 to $13. Bulls sold from $11 to $15.50.
 Good and choice slaughter calves cashed at $19 to $22.50, and common and medium offerings sold from $14 to $18.50. Culls brought $10 to $13.
 Good and choice stocker steer calves cashed at $20 to $24.50, and heifer calves ranged from $22 down. Stocker steer yearlings ranged from $21 down. Stocker cows cashed at $10 to $15.

There's A Reason For Meat Type Controversy!
 Figures made available by the USDA in Fort Worth Monday revealed that for last week the cut-out value of a U. S. No. 1 butcher hog (meat type, or bacon type, as you wish) was 89 cents per hundred above the U. S. No. 3 butcher hogs in the 200 to 220-pound weight brackets. The price was figured on carlot port prices at wholesale at Chicago.
 With the "lean trim" now popular on pork in meat circles, this added value of the meat type hog over the "fat back" or "lard type" hogs, makes the controversy of present means of buying and selling hogs quite easy to understand.
 Swine breeders who have those good meat type hogs want to get the premium price to which they are entitled, and the whole thing is creating quite a stir in market circles.
 At Fort Worth a determined effort to buy these better hogs a little better by a part of the buyers is being endorsed by the trade and this effort on the part of some buyers to pay for good hogs resulted in a few selling up to $22 Monday.

ONCE IN A HUNDRED YEARS
 When Gen. Lucius Du Bignon Clay (then a major in the Army Engineers) supervised the construction of the great Denison Dam, forming Lake Texoma, he made the prediction that it wouldn't go over its spillway more than once in 100 years. Seventeen years later, on Tuesday, May 28, the Denison Dam went over its spillway for the first time.
 Lucius Clay's words, "Once in a Hundred Years," are the title of a booklet just off the Denison Herald's presses. It tells the "high-water story of Lake Texoma" in dramatic text by John Clift and in excellent pictures of the mighty rush of waters by John Crawford and Mr. Clift.

FARMS :: LAND :: RANCHES

47,426 acres—In West Texas, on paved highway, extra fences, extra well watered, two ranch houses, large barn, REA, butane and telephone. 30,000 acres valley land, good tillable land. 79 per cent minerals are intact, not leased. Oil production close by. Has small balance of an old insurance company loan at 4% of $147,857. This loan can be paid off or raised to $5 per acre. Taxes, $1,142.18 per year. Price $8.50 per acre.

24,800 acres — in West Texas, located 9 miles from town, on two railroads and paved highway. Cut into 7 pastures, 3 traps, all fences net wire on cedar posts and stays; extra well watered. Ranch house and tenant house, good barns, shop, plenty good pens, lots of big flat draws, has heavy turf mostly gramma grass, some low rolling hills that are covered with grass and browse. Can drive nearly all over it. Will run 450 cattle and 6,000 sheep, did in 1956. 18 1/2 sections, buyer gets 1/2 minerals; 20 1/2 sections, buyer gets 1/4 non-participating royalty. 15 sections leased for oil until 1961, brings 50 cents rental. Entire ranch will grass lease for 50 cents per acre if buyer don't want to operate it. Present loan is $131,500, payable $4,000 in October each year, plus 5% interest. Loan can be assumed or paid off and balance cash. This is a good ranch, priced just $10 per acre—very cheap per animal-unit ranch. Nearly solid oil field a few miles north. Think it over! You can't best this deal anywhere. Also irrigation to north and east.

12,800 Acre Ranch—Just off paved highway, all fences are net. Plenty water, improved, about 1/2 in valley, good soil to be farmed, if desired. Owner would take his equity of about $65,000 in trade. Major oil companies operating all over this part of West Texas. Price, $11.50 per acre, will loan $5 per acre.

Now the brown-banded cockroach has gone in for television. They're not interested in the viewing but in using the TV cabinet as a hiding and nesting site. Extension Entomologists recommend the use of chordane or deodorized malathion for controlling these pests. Don't apply a spray to the TV set but a small amount of powder may be sprinkled around the edge of the case. The important thing is to control them in the home so there'll be none for infesting the TV cabinet.

Knox Prairie Philosopher Finds That Farmers Alongside The Experts In Job Of Fighting Against Inflation

Editor's note: The Knox Prairie Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Miller Creek is back on the Topic of inflation, his letter this week reveals.

Dear editor:
Like a lot of other people. I have been giving considerable thought lately to the problem of inflation, which is not the most exciting topic to think about but it beats plowing.

According to the economic index and my grocery bill, the cost of living has been going up a little every month for the last 18 months, and every time it goes up, it means a general increase in prices and wages, which in turn sends the cost of living up a little more, and if it keeps it up anybody can see it'll get completely out of hand.

Consequently, I was pleased to read in an article in a newspaper yesterday afternoon which I had been using to put on my tractor seat while I went to get a drink of water to shade it from the sun, anybody knows what happens to a tractor seat when it's left in the sun fifteen or twenty minutes in August, and when a puff of wind blew this paper off and left the seat too hot to sit on, there wasn't anything else for me to do but take the paper to the shade of a tree and read, and consequently as I started to say, I was pleased to read that some of the best minds in the country are working on the problem of inflation.

According to Gardner C. Means, one of the top economists in the country, inflation is caused by "administered prices," by which he means prices aren't allowed to follow the law of supply and demand, people just set a price they figure they ought to get or can get, and by a quirk of human nature the price is always up, not down.

Therefore, he says what we ought to do is stop raising prices and wages for one year, while we study the problem of mounting inflation.

I think this is a good idea and I am pleased to know that one of the nation's top economists has finally caught up with us farmers.

As you know, me and the rest of the farmers of this nation haven't raised prices in the last 12 months. I will go even further. We haven't raised em in the past 5 years. I'll pay my subscription to the Munday Times five years in advance if anybody will point out to me any farmer or rancher in Knox County who has raised the price of anything he sells in the last five years. Personally, the last time I raised the price of anything was the time I raised the price of a steer in 1949. I priced it at what I figured I ought to get, and bowed my neck and held out. The steer died of old age.

So, if American business and American labor will follow the pattern set by us farmers and flat refuse to raise prices for one year, we'll give this new idea a complete test. It sure is lonesome testing it all by ourselves.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe F. Bowley and children of Midland visited relatives here last Sunday night and Monday. They brought his grandmother, Mrs. F. L. Bowley, home. Mrs. Bowley spent last week with them.
