Odd Bits Salvaged

"The decision of the Court is the law of the land," reportedly stated Gov. Orval E. Faubus of Arkansas after his talk with President Eisenhower during the week end. Monday's action by the governor in keeping the National Guard on duty at a Little Rock school did not indicate just when the "law of the land" would be complied with.

We are somewhat in sympathy with the governor's views—that calling out the National Guard was not actually a move to prevent integration, but to keep down violence. We expect he knew the people of his state were not ready for integration and violence was inevitable if that course was continued.

Whether Faubus was right or wrong in his action, the fight in Arkansas, Tennessee, Virginia and other states is proving one thing, in our opinion. Integration is coming, sooner or later, and people will get ready for it.

Political leaders have expressed fear that Faubus' action has "dipped open the Democratic party unity," and integration will be a fighting issue instead of a talking issue during next year's elections. We expect the fight had to come some time or other.

We're glad that right now there is no integration problem in our local schools—that neither the white or colored people are ready for it. Supt. Cox stated recently in a conversation that our colored people had rather be in their own schools than to go to the white schools.

But there is some integration in Texas, according to radio reports we heard Sunday. This is in San Antonio, and Dallas has received a court order to integrate by mid-term.

Integration in parts of the South may come gradually and slowly, as the people get ready for it, but the flare-ups of the past two weeks won't likely be the end to opposition to it.

Which reminds us of the story of a house hunter in a town out on the plains. This man secured a copy of the local paper to look for houses for rent in the classified ads. He found one, to call Mrs. So-and-so, giving the telephone number. He rang the number, and when Mrs. So-and-so answered he asked about a house for rent. "Yassuh," the voice said, "I has three of 'em."

I'd like to be in the windshield business! That statement was made last Tuesday as a group watched the hard topping job that is being done to Munday's streets and portions of the highways in Knox County. Those "pebbles" will be a hazard to windshields for a while, but it's nice to have this needed repair work to the streets and highways.

A group of local people got ducked good and proper last Saturday afternoon while fishing at Paint Creek lake. They had tied their boat to a bridge pier and were busy teasing the crappie when a little thunderstorm came along, accompanied by wind. The waves began filling their boat with water, and soon the craft was overturned. Those who got soaked are: E. R. Ponder, N. E. Hosea, Mr. Ponder's brother-in-law and Scotty Ponder. They returned to the scene next day and fished out some of their equipment.

From our chief of police comes this warning: The fire alarm sounded at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and firemen went to the Ben Tuggle home. The fire was quickly extinguished with only minor damage to the west side of the home, to the outside wall where heater pipes were wrapped with cotton, paper and rags. Cause of fire was undetermined.

Should it have been necessary for an ambulance to come and go, several vehicles would have caused delay by rushing to the scene of fire. License numbers were taken of all vehicles arriving at the scene. If any one of these are caught at the next fire or disaster scene, the owner will be issued a ticket by the chief of police or fire marshal.

Speed doesn't shorten the road . . . it shortens your life!

Notes From Knox Farms, Ranches

By Roy England, Knox County Agent

Farmers and ranchers are reminded that September 30 is the deadline for submitting applications for a refund of Federal tax on gasoline used for farming since July 1, 1956. Forms may be obtained at the county agents office.

Cotton root rot has severely damaged many fields of cotton in Knox County this season, and will continue to be a serious problem unless certain management practices are adopted to control it.

One of the most effective means of control is the practice of starving the fungus that causes the disease by a crop rotation plan that includes wheat, oats, barley or sorghums on land infested with root rot. As long as a susceptible crop, such as cotton or careless weeds, is allowed to grow on the land year after year, the disease will remain there. Good weed control practices such as summer fallowing and deep tillage also aid greatly in the control of root rot. Another method of control consists of plowing into the soil large amounts of organic matter that in turn stimulates the development of beneficial microorganisms that help keep down the root rot causing fungus.

Huge Rattler Killed At Rhineland Home

Old Shep kept barking and raising Cain near the bedroom window at the Joe Wilde home last Friday night. Although it was around midnight, members of the family got up to investigate, and found that Shep had bayed a huge rattlesnake near the home.

The reptile was quickly shot, and his life ended.

Raymond Wilde brought the snake into town Saturday morning to show it off. He discovered the snake had dual fangs, whether that's common to diamond back rattlers or not, and that he could have injected four doses of poison. He measured 55 inches in length and had 10 rattlers and a button.

He was a good snake when the editor saw him—a dead one.

COMMON-SENSE TAX REFORM

A federal law is proposed which, in the words of the Bremerton, Wash., Sun, ". . . would force government spending programs to compete with a tax reduction program for each year's newly-created income. Federal free spenders would have to justify their programs in the face of taxpayers' expectations of promised tax relief."

This law has been given a tremendous amount of support by groups and organizations of almost every kind. It is known as H.R. 6452, and has been introduced by Representative Sadiak of Connecticut. Over a five-year period, it would reduce the top individual income tax rate from its present peak of 91 per cent to 42 per cent, and the corporation rate from 52 per cent to 42 per cent. The rates in all brackets, including the very lowest, would be equitably cut. For instance, the existing base rate of 20 per cent would be lowered to 15 per cent.

The government would not be deprived of needed revenue. Mr. Sadiak has presented extremely well documented studies and tables which show that expected increase in federal income resulting from stimulated economic activity would more than offset losses due to the reduced tax rates.

Finally, the Sadiak bill is definitely not a "rich man's" tax measure. The greatest total of tax relief—60 per cent—would accrue to people with taxable incomes of $6,000 a year or less. Only 17 per cent of total tax relief would fall in brackets of $20,000 or more. To quote the Bremerton Sun again, "Small wonder that Sadiak's bill is called the first common sense plan for tax reform in nearly 30 years."

MOUNT PLEASANT, PA., JOURNAL: "There is no politics in heaven," says an evangelist. Of course there isn't. There can't be any politics where there aren't any politicians."

ORANGE GROVE, TEXAS, OBSERVER: "Expecting our country to move ahead without the chance for a fair profit is like expecting an automobile to run without fuel."

A Labor Department analysis says that industry's labor costs increased 61 per cent in the past 10 years as against only a 26 per cent increase in labor's average productivity. National Review points out that the difference "could be bridged only by price inflation."

THE MEDICAL CARE DOLLAR

Dr. Leonard W. Larson, a member of the board of trustees of the American Medical Association, has challenged the idea that medical costs have increased more sharply than any other item in the price index.

He dealt specifically with a news story which said that medical costs had increased 32 per cent over the 1947-49 period, while the general cost of living had risen only 16 per cent. This is a case, he went on to show, where figures can be accurate—but misleading—at one and the same time. Medical costs he said, should be compared with the 1935-39 period, rather than 1947-49, for the reason that the charges made for services lagged behind in the inflationary spiral. And a comparison of a late year with 1935-39 shows that the general cost of living increased 91.4 per cent, all commodities rose by an average of almost 105 per cent; all services increased an average of just under 80 per cent, while the cost of medical care and drugs rose less than 78 per cent.

Dr. Larson also pointed out that since 1930 the percentage of consumer expenditures devoted to medical care has remained comparatively constant, at about 4 per cent. This stability, in his view, "could not exist if supply and demand were seriously out of balance in the field of medical services or if the people had been subjected to excessive price rises."

The quality and scope of medical care are far superior to what they were 20 or 30 years ago. This, in itself, means that we get a greater return for each medical care dollar.

OLYMPIA, WASH., DAILY OLYMPIAN: "News of an influenza epidemic sweeping the Far East formerly would have caused grave apprehension on this side of the Pacific, for infectious diseases are no respecters of geographical boundaries. Health authorities, however, believe there is no cause for alarm in the U. S."

"One reason is to be found in the magnificent advances of medical science and research."

A FORECAST

If government continues to undertake more and more non-governmental activities in competition with its own citizens and taxpayers, bureaucracy will increase, public debt will grow, the dollar will continue to depreciate and there will be no tax relief for anyone.

MODERN HOMEMAKING

Recipes . . . Household Helps

By Julia Hunter

HOME ECONOMICS DIRECTOR, LONE STAR GAS CO.

Beautiful bell-shaped Bartlett pears in all their lovely golden yellow splendor are in the markets in quantity. Their flavor is just as good as their looks.

This sun-flavored juicy fruit is a versatile one and one low in calories and high in vitamins. No really better way to serve them than just scrubbed and polished for out-of-hand eating, but it is easy to make them a little fancier fare.

Ever try them unpeeled and sliced thin served with a springling of brown sugar and a topping of milk or cream. Delicious for a breakfast starter or a supper closing. Nice for breakfast too, are sliced pears over cereal or pear halves filled with orange slices and grapes.

Think of pears and salad follows close behind. Not to be overlooked is the tried and true pear and grated cheese or cottage cheese salad, but other combinations are equally good. Nestle an unpeeled pear half in a lettuce cup and top it with chunk style peanut butter blended with mayonnaise. Place a slice of canned jellied cranberry sauce on salad greens and a peeled pear half on the cranberry sauce. Blend cream cheese with a tablespoon or two of cranberry sauce and a little cream and spoon the dressing over the pear.

Select slightly underripe pears for use in cooked desserts. Cooking will quickly ripen the pears to firmness. Bake pears just as baked apples or substitute them for apples in a favorite apple recipe.

Recipe Of The Week

Pear Crumble: Place in lightly greased 10x6x2-inch baking dish, 4 cups peeled sliced pears. Sprinkle with 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/4 cup water and 1/2 cup slivered toasted almonds. Combine until well mixed 3/4 cup sifted flour, 1 cup sugar and 1/3 cup butter or margarine. Spread mixture over pears. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 30 minutes. Serve warm with cream. Makes 3 servings.

CONSTITUTION CURBS GOVERNMENTAL BRANCHES

September 17 is "Constitution Day." Each year a day is set aside in recognition of the importance of the federal constitution, which forms the basis of our national government. It insures a stable balance of powers between the legislative, executive and judicial branches of government by providing curbs upon the authority of each.

For instance, mighty as our Congress is, the Constitution does not give it certain powers.

1. Neither Congress nor anybody else can suspend the writ of habeas corpus (unless the public safety demands it during rebellion or invasion). All officers or others must obey a court and bring in anyone in their custody to see whether he is held lawfully.

2. Congress cannot pass "bills of attainder," special acts to punish someone. Congress cannot by-pass the courts.

3. Congress cannot pass an ex post facto law—a law which makes an act a crime which was not one when done, or which punishes the offender more than called for when done.

4. Congress cannot tax exports from any state nor by regulation favor one state's ports over another's, nor make one state's vessels clear or pay duties to another state in order to enter.

Besides these denials from within, the constitution curbs Congress and the executive and judiciary in the amendments, especially the first ten.

Among other things, Congress cannot make a law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting its free exercise, or abridging the freedom of speech, of the press or the right of the people peaceably to assemble and to petition the government for a redress of grievances.

The constitution also curbs the courts (for example, they cannot deny a person a fair hearing duly represented by counsel). It curbs the executive (he cannot, for example, take private property for public use without just compensation).

The constitution, which divides the work of the three branches of government, winds up by telling where the rest of the power rests—just in case anybody gets any fancy ideas of dictatorship. There are things no state can do, for instance, "make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States."

If there are any powers not given to the United States government or reserved to the states, they belong to the people. The constitution does not seem to limit the people.

(This column, based on Federal law and prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

Moguls Drop Season Opener To Panthers

Clearly outclassed by the opposing Class AA Seymour Panthers, the Munday Moguls "fell by the wayside," as did most teams of their class, last Friday night as the Panthers scored almost at will to win the game 53 to 0.

The Moguls experienced much trouble in penetrating the heavy Panther line, while the Panthers showed superior blocking to make way for long scoring runs.

It was the season's opener for the Moguls, who will be showing improvement as they become more experienced further in the season.

The Panthers scored two touchdowns in the first quarter, the first coming in the opening minutes of play. They added three more TD's in the second, two more in the third, and two in the fourth. The final score came when Seymour recovered a Mogul fumble inside the goal line.

A big crowd filled the stands and sidelines for this opening game.

The Moguls will entertain the strong Albany Lions on the local field next Friday night. The Lions showed their ability last Friday night by downing DeLeon to the tune of 34 to 7.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Phillips visited his mother, Mrs. Will Phillips and with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hampton, in Goree over the week end.

Cotton Root Rot Control Hints Offered

Losses from cotton root rot can be reduced if a planned program involving a combination of practices is carried out on infected soils, says Harlan Smith, extension plant pathologist. Currently, Smith says, the plant diagnostic lab is receiving specimens of cotton plants infected with root rot from every section of the state except Northwest producing areas. Losses in some fields is said to approximate 90 per cent.

The fungus causing the disease is a tough customer to control but Smith offers three suggested practices which have proved effective in holding losses from the disease to a minimum. The fungus may be killed by drying out the infected soil. The land should be plowed to a depth of 6 to 8 or more inches in the summer or early fall. Smith points out that the fungus has been found as deep in the soil as cotton roots go and that plowing to this depth is recommended for some areas. The important thing is to turn the soil and expose the fungus to the hot sun and drying. Replowing at regular intervals during the summer and early fall is recommended.

A second practice, starving the fungus by reducing its host plants or food supply, has also proved effective. Smith suggests planting sorghum, corn, oats, wheat, barley or grasses for 1 to 4 years before cotton. The severity of the infestation should determine the number of years the non-susceptible crops should be grown. Too, summer fallow and deep tillage should be practiced on idle land to control weeds susceptible to the fungus.

Thirdly, Smith says plowing into the soil large amounts of organic matter will aid the growth of beneficial micro-organisms in the root zone and apparently these organisms prevent the fungus from spreading. The growing of a cool-season adapted legume as a green-manure crop or the addition to the soil of cotton burs prior to planting cotton has proved successful in many areas of the state.

Finally, Smith says local control measures vary with areas of the state and he urges farmers to contact their local county agent for the best practices for the area.

LAST CALL FOR SUBMITTING APPLICATION FOR REFUND ON FEDERAL GAS TAX

Farmers and ranchmen are reminded by C. H. Bates, extension farm management specialist, that September 30 is the deadline for submitting applications for a refund on the Federal tax on gasoline used for farming purposes since July 1, 1956.

Farm operators who have not filed a claim may obtain Form 2240—the reporting form—from local county agricultural agents or Internal Revenue Service offices.

Bates points out that claims will be checked for accuracy and claimants, therefore, should be certain that figures are correct. Sufficient records should also be kept to verify the claim, he adds. Claims should be submitted to the same district Internal Revenue office to which income tax returns are sent.

The legislation which makes possible the refund was passed by Congress in the spring of 1956.

A CLOSER LOOK AT FARM POISONS

The past two decades of agricultural progress have greatly eased the farmer's burden through any number of inventions, developments and general improvements. One such area of agricultural improvement has been the development of effective insecticides and pesticides which lessen the farmer's fear of crop destruction.

The insect may be asking for a pack of trouble when he invades the farmer's field today; but, so may the farmer be asking for trouble if he fails to use the highest possible caution in selecting and applying these farm poisons. While highly valuable in holding down infestation when properly used, certain insecticides and pesticides can be harmful if mishandled.

Such a group of insecticides which mix blessing in effectiveness with caution in application are those classified as esters of phosphoric acid or certain of its derivatives. Much of the original work on these compounds was done by the Germans during World War II when they were seeking chemical warfare agents. This is not to say, however, that the insecticides developed in this connection are to be avoided. They are of great agricultural value when used with the proper amount of care.

Phosphate ester insecticides on the market today are those which contain malathion and parathion, known under various trade names. They are most effective as farm poisons, but, being dangerous to humans and small animals when absorbed through the skin, inhaled or swallowed, they should never be put to domestic or home garden use.

By far the greatest number of cases of parathion or malathion poisoning occur among unsupervised individuals engaged in some phase of insecticide application. And most of all these could have been avoided had the warnings on the label been taken seriously.

A rancher most of his life, Ira G. Yates decided it would be a fine thing to become a merchant, so he traded 216 cows for a store in the West Texas village of Rankin, in Upton County. But after 18 months of keeping books and selling flour and kerosene, he had a hankering for life in the open again, so he swapped the store, in 1915, for a ranch "across the Pecos."

And that might be considered the starting point in the chain of events that were to lead to the discovery of the Yates field, in some respects the most remarkable in history—a field that was to witness probably the most gigantic gusher ever drilled and brought under control in the world, a field moreover that was to contribute many millions of dollars to the public schools of Texas and that, before its course is run, will (experts predict) produce several hundred million dollars worth of oil.

When Yates acquired the ranch, a friend who had formerly been its owner, advised him, "Get rid of it at once," adding that he had lost money on the ranch himself. An acquaintance glibly, "Even the buffalo knew better than to cross the Pecos." Another joined in, "Why, a crow wouldn't fly over that land," and a third said, "It ain't wuth the taxes."

But Yates ignored alike the well-meant counsel and the rough but friendly "joshing." A severe drought came and he found 1916 and the two years that followed "tough going." But he stuck it out and even improved the place. Then in 1923 the Reagan County field was discovered "and we got the oil fever," Yates related afterward.

The Pecos, however, was regarded as the deadline for the production of oil. It is true that, some years before this, small production had been found by shallow wells near Toyah in Pecos County. And in January, 1921, Fort Stockton, the county seat, was thrilled by a well (some 60 miles from the Yates ranch) that, from the amazing depth of only 96 feet, flowed several thousand barrels in less than 24 hours—then stopped. Other wells around the "Mystery Well" proved dry holes. For all practical purposes, therefore, the Pecos River had come to be considered the deadline for oil.

Much of the romantic and the historical was associated with that stream—frontier memories of cavalry, of ox wagons and of Indian arrows whizzing a song of death. The very games of the crossings kept alive the thoughts of pioneer days.

Emigrant Crossing was used by westbound travelers and is said to have been on the route of wagons going to California gold fields soon after '49. Horsehead Crossing was used by cattlemen and settlers. Pontoon Crossing apparently derived its name from military use; perhaps the soldiers used pontoons to get wagons across. S Crossing was said to have been named for a horse ranch nearby with the brand "SSS." Lancaster Crossing was near the fort of that name, a post in Indian days.

Old Spanish Crossing was below a dam that was built by Mexicans to provide water for irrigation to produce grain and vegetables for the troops at old Fort Stockton. A layer of brush was placed on the bottom of the stream and weighted down with rocks. Layer after layer was built and the chinks were soon filled with sand and silt. The dam was faced with rocks and it turned the water into the ditches.

Hickox Crossing was used by soldiers and emigrants. On the west side were two graves of Indian fighters—a Texas Ranger and an army officer.

S/Sgt. and Mrs. Glen Ray Morrow of Abilene were week end guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Stubblefield and Mr. and Mrs. Elmo Morrow. Mr. and Mrs. Morrow were transferred from Altus Air Force Base to Dyess Air Base in Abilene on September 5th.

Weekly Health LETTER

Issued by Henry A. Hollis, M. D., State Health Officer of Texas

AUSTIN—An apparent worsening of the venereal disease picture is selected areas and for the country as a whole is the forecast of national venereal disease officials.

For the first time since 1948, the total number of reported cases of syphilis in the United States shows an increase.

Although the apparent increase is not large, it includes nearly all stages of syphilis. Increase in early infections and in congenital syphilis appear to be disturbing indications of an increased attack rate.

It was only five years ago that the forces of venereal disease control were on the offensive. The panacea was spelled p-e-n-i-c-i-l-l-i-n! In state after state, aggressive control programs were gaining the advantage.

Under the integrated system of information, case-finding, referral and rapid treatment, the venereal diseases were melting away—or seemed so on the surface.

The optimism resulting from the rapidly decreasing venereal disease rates almost proved disastrous. In many areas, the high intensity of venereal disease control was lessened.

Today, however, hope of eventual eradication of venereal disease is again on the rise. The increased use of contact investigation, now employed with every reported case of syphilis, has developed into the leading case-finding procedure.

This technique has rapidly been improved to the point that cooperation between interviewer-investigators and persons contacted is at an all time high and on the rise.

This cooperation enables the highly trained interviewer-investigators and public health nurses to discover the chain-of-infection of the contacts. Armed with the identities of these contacts, the venereal disease control team is able to eliminate a whole chain of contacts rather than a single reported case.

It is these increased case-finding techniques that give the illusion of an increased venereal disease rate, when actually the venereal disease has been with us all the while.

Heating Equipment Should Be Checked Before Cold Weather

Now is the time for home-makers to have their gas heating equipment inspected and adjusted for winter use, it was pointed out today by O. F. Gates, Lone Star Gas Company manager. He urged people not to depend on the first cold day to remind them to call for such service.

"Heating service companies and Lone Star," he said, "receive hundreds of calls for service within a period of a few hours on the day cold weather makes its first appearance. This means a considerable delay in filling many individual service orders."

He suggested that users of gas floor furnaces, wall heaters, unit heaters, central heating plants and other gas heating equipment arrange now to have them inspected and adjusted by calling their heating equipment company or Lone Star Gas Company.

"In this way," he added, "the comfort of the entire family will be assured during the cold weather that is sure to come. And the homemaker will have this important service completed and out of the way."

Most Cattle And Calves Open Steady, Steers Weak

FORT WORTH — Trade was moderately active on most classes of cattle and calves at Fort Worth Monday. Slaughter steers were slow and steady to weaker, and there was some weakness reflected in the fleshy feeder cattle in sympathy with recent bearish trade on finished beefs.

Comparative prices include: Good and choice slaughter steers and yearlings $20.00-23.00; medium and lower grades $13.00-19.00. Fat cows $12.50-14.50; canners and cutters $8.00-12.50. Bulls $11.00 - 15.50; good and choice slaughter calves $18.50-22.00; cull, common and medium $11.00-18.00. Stocker steer calves $24.50 down; stocker steer yearlings $21.00 down.

Hogs Sharply Lower; Fall Movement Heavier

Choice butcher hogs topped at $20 and $20.25 at Fort Worth Monday, or 50 cents to $1 under levels late last week. Most corn belt terminals were reported top hogs around $19.50 and $19.75 Monday, and the break in swine prices was credited to heavier movement to market in the Midwest.

Offerings of new crop butcher hogs at the 12 major markets was 14,000 larger than a week earlier. Medium to good butchers drew $16.50 to $19.50. Packing sows sold from $18.50 downward.

Sheep And Lambs Poorly Tested, Feeders Active

A very small offering of sheep and lambs arrived at Fort Worth Monday, and prices were steady, quality considered. Good to low choice lambs topped at $20 to $21, and cull to medium lambs were sold from $13 to $19. Stocker and feeder lambs cashed at $15 to $20. Slaughter ewes drew $6.50 to $8. Old wethers sold from $13.50 down. Medium grade yearlings with No. 2 pelts sold at $16.

Stocker Calves Average $107.51, Top $50.00

A total of 770 Hereford stocker and feeder calves and yearlings sold in the special show and sale at Fort Worth September 13 for a gross of $82,780.43, and an average of $107.51 per head.

Most of the good and choice steer calves ranged from $22 to $26, and the grand champion pen of ten calves topped at $30. These calves weighed 489 pounds and were consigned by O. P. Leonard of Fort Worth Good and choice heifers and heifer calves drew $18 to $22.

Second highest price was $26 paid for the carlot load of steer calves entered by E. Windham of Baird. These steers placed second in the judging to the carlot shown by Soy Bros., of Montague County, which cashed at $24.75.

Knox Prairie Philosopher Amazed To Find Out From His Town Friend Inflation Is Bothering Him, Too

Editor's note: The Knox Prairie Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Miller Creek has had a visitor from town, his letter this week indicates.

Dear editor:
I've got a situation this week I don't know how to handle, so I'll just report on it and let somebody else decide on it.

A friend of mine from Munday was out here visiting me on my farm yesterday afternoon after he got off from work in town and he said he was getting tired of hearing how inflation has hit the farmers.

"You farmers think inflation is limited to the farm, but I'd like to tell you it's in town, too," he said.

"I sympathize with you country folks, I know what it must be to fight low prices and high costs, but I'd like to point out to you folks in town have got some problems, too.

"One tractor blows out, I know, and you're on the rim, but did you ever stop to think if one motor burns out on one of my appliances, I'm sunk? Have you ever stopped to think what a strain it is on a man's constitution to hear the washing machine motor stop suddenly when the machine ain't paid for yet? Do you know what it is to have the television set go blank thirty days after the guarantee runs out and a year before the last payment is made? You ever stepped on the starter of your car and found the battery dead on the day you're overdrawn at the bank? You ever stop to think a man in town has problems, too? You know how hard it is to feed and clothe and educate and doctor and entertain a family in town? It doesn't make any difference how much a man makes, it never is quite enough, even when salaries are high."

Well, I said, I guess you've got a point. What I want to know, is, what're you going to do about it?

"Well," he said, "I've been thinking about it a lot and I've come to the conclusion that the only way for a man in town to make ends meet is to take on a second job in the country."

"Wait a minute, I said. You've got this thing backwards. The agricultural experts are recommending that us farmers take on a job in town to supplement our income.

"That's where I got the idea," he said. "I'm not making quite enough in town to suit me, you're not making quite enough in the country to suit you, so the only way out is for you to work part-time in town, me to work part-time in the country. This way we'll both get ahead."

Frankly, I don't know whether this idea will work, but it's sure something to think about. I've got plenty of work all right he could do out here on my farm, but I'd sure have to work a lot extra in town to get the money to pay him for it. Until further notice, though, I believe I'll just stick to the country.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.
