Odd Bits Salvaged
By The Editor

There's been lots of activity out at the city lake during the past week. The fishing season opened there on Tuesday, April 15, but lots of people didn't know about it until anglers began bringing in their catches. Some pretty nice ones have been landed there, mostly bass and crappie.

k-k
Some who go out that way late afternoons report the shores of this little lake literally lined with fishermen, young and old, and of both sexes. One afternoon we got the report the only way one could cast out there was directly overhead — then he'd better watch or he would snag a fisherman instead of a fish.

k-k
Some, too, are not satisfied with the way fishermen are stringing the smaller fish. Of course, a 7-inch bass is a "keeper" we hear, but the true fisherman who loves to battle with the larger ones gets his pride hurt when one brings home the ones that are barely keepers — and maybe stretching the imagination some at that.

k-k
Others are expressing dissatisfaction about the way water is being taken from the little lake for the golf course, expressing the belief that the lake will soon be depleted of water again. With a few hard rains during the season, there would be little danger. Anyway, several have wished the lake was twice as large — then there would likely be year-around recreation for the anglers.

k-k
We went out at about eleven o'clock morning to see just what was going on, and counted 50 people along the shores at that time. We conversed a while with a farmer-fisherman, who would say, "Well, I've got to go. Just one more cast," and he would continue casting. "It's a darn good way to lose a crop," he finally lamented as he reeled in and prepared to leave.

k-k
That little quick thundershower and hard wind about midnight Saturday night kinda served as a reminder that the tornado season is here. The high wind did some damage to TV antennas over the area, and repairmen were busy the first of this week getting them back into condition.

k-k
It was a reminder, too, that out on Lake Kemp in a motorboat is a dangerous place to be when the wind gets stormy. Some local people who misjudged the rapidity of the cloud's approach were caught on the lake and had a pretty rough time getting to shore and shelter. Luckily, no injuries or disasters were reported. The folks just got the daylight's scared out of them at midnight!

k-k
Some concern has been expressed about the showers here at cotton planting time, with the fear being voiced that it may be a repetition of last year when the crop was so hard to get started. Heard that one farmer had just as well quit trying to plant. As soon as he puts in a half-day with several tractors, it rains that night and the process is to be repeated.

Reservoir Site On Miller Creek Given Approval

A preliminary report on the proposed Miller Creek reservoir project of the North Central Texas Municipal Water Authority was given at a meeting Wednesday night, April 16, of representatives from six of the towns interested in the proposal. The meeting was held at Munday.

The report was made by Freese & Nichols, Fort Worth consulting engineers, and included several tentative sites on which surveys and cost estimates had been made.

After discussion, a reservoir site was approved which would impound approximately 52,000 acre feet of water, at a total estimated cost of $6,550,000 for the completed project covering all phases of construction to serve the seven originally contemplated in the Authority, or water district.

Engineers were instructed to prepare a final report for submission at a meeting to be held early in May. This report will consist of firm estimates of cost, together with a schedule for financing the project, including any ad valorem tax required to supplement revenue from the sale of water.

Detailed information can then be placed before the people in each town in the proposed district for study prior to a confirmation election which will likely be held on or about the first Tuesday in June. This election will determine the towns to be included in the district.

HOW TO DISCOURAGE EMPLOYMENT

The current state of business should give pause to those who have been advocating extension of the federal wage-hour law to retailing and other service businesses which have been exempt ever since that law came into being back in the '30's.

Cogent reasons account for this long-established retail exemption. One is that all retailing is local—an outlet of the biggest national chain must still compete at the local level in its community, and adapt itself to extremely varied local needs, desires, and living and working standards.

Another is that retailing offers job opportunities for the young, the inexperienced, the marginal worker, and the part-time worker. The value of these people, measured by productivity, is small. But, by working in a retail store, they can obtain experience that will qualify them for responsible, better-paid positions both in and out of retail trade.

Another is that arbitrary wage-hour rules, applying with equal force to the biggest cities and small towns, must inevitably be inequitable and disruptive.

To come back to the present, extension of the law to retailers would force them to pare their employment, and especially their marginal employment, to the limit. Then we would have more unemployment—and a further downward dip in the economy.

STIMULANT TO RECOVERY

In the view of former President Herbert Hoover, we can recover from the current business recession—and do so without bringing on more inflation. And here, to quote him, is how we can accomplish that fact:

"We must have no wave of wage and fringe rises"

"There should be no lifting of prices by industry"

"We should cut Government expenditures, not only to provide for additional weapons and balance the budget, but also to the point where we can have a tax reduction. This would be the greatest possible stimulant to recovery."

The great danger now is that panic will result in measures which will make uncontrollable inflation all but inevitable. Mr. Hoover's formula stems from hard experience, and it is the soundest yet proposed.

WHAT KIND OF TAX REDUCTION?

More and more people are coming to believe that federal tax reduction is almost inevitable within the near future.

If that view proves correct, the problem before Congress and the Administration will be to blueprint a tax reduction program that will produce maximum results.

So far, most of the discussion has been concerned with cuts in the individual income tax, and there is no doubt that this will be a major item in any program that has a hope of acceptance. However, it will be a woeful mistake if the government stops there.

In the long run, spending and capital investment by business will decide how many jobs will be available in this country and how good those jobs are. The present 52 per cent corporation tax is a big and obvious barrier to investment. A cut in that rate would provide a real and lasting shot in the arm to the whole economy.

Then, it's high time we got rid of special taxes, which, though they are small revenue producers, divert business from basic enterprises and add to inflationary pressures. Prime examples here are the World War II excise taxes on freight and passenger transportation service. They're still on the books, all these years after that emergency ended.

CROWN POINT, IND., LAKE COUNTY STAR: "Any lingering doubt that the need for income tax rate reductions had reached the full-blown status of critical urgency was dispelled at the 24-day House Ways and Means Committee public hearings.

"A parade of witnesses — representative of all facets of the nation's economic life — offered strong evidence that the current business recession results largely from oppressive personal and corporate tax rates and that reform of these rates is vital to recovery."

History is full of examples of evils of softness, in nations and in men. That is one thing history repeats — and needs to. — Sherman County Journal, Moro, Oregon

DOLLARS LOST AS FARMS CONSOLIDATE

A North Dakota economist figures that for every farm which consolidates with a neighbor, industry and labor will lose some 2½ million dollars over a 100-year period.

Mr. E. N. Dornacker of Mayville, N. D., has this theory: The present trend of combining two or more farms into one large one means more land farmed with less equipment, fewer materials and fewer farm hands. "Each time a farmer is forced to leave the farm, industry loses a customer and labor gains a competitor for a job," says Dornacker. "And the neighbors who buy the land will destroy the buildings and operate it from their own farm," he adds.

Here is a partial list of the business which industry will lose in the next 100 years from each farm, he says: The sale of 10 tractors, 10 drills, 15 harrows, 10 combines, 10 discs, 5 plows, 10 cultivators, 5 corn planters, 12 fertilizer attachments, 10 trucks or pickups, 5 weed sprayers, 200 batteries, 40 tractor and 60 truck tires, 5 manure spreaders, 15 hog feeders, 20 water tanks, $50,000 in parts, $5,000 in tools, 1,000 gallons of paint, 1,000 pounds nails, $15,000 in lumber, 600,000 gallons fuel oil, etc.

The total of these and other items would amount to $2½ million over the 100-year period, Dornacker claims.

Of course, his argument has a few holes in it. Actually, two small farms combined into one large one would eventually call for additional machinery over what the buyer owned at the time of consolidation. And the more hours a machine is run to handle a larger acreage, the quicker it will wear out. In addition, larger farms call for more farm buildings — but not as many as two separate farms.

Even so, underneath all the smoke of Dornacker's theory smolders some fire of truth. It can be more economical to maintain one large farm as opposed to two smaller ones from the farmer's standpoint — resulting in a corresponding loss to industry.

Mrs. Lloyd Speaks To Guild Members On Monday Night

Members of the Wesleyan Service Guild and invited guests met in the parlor of the Methodist Church on Monday evening, at which time Mrs. Bob Lloyd, guest speaker, presented a very interesting and educational program on Costa Rica and other countries of Central America. Following a song, "Bless be the Tie that Binds," by those assembled and a prayer by Mrs. Oscar Spann, Mrs. C. P. Baker, program director, welcomed Mrs. Lloyd and presented her to members and guests.

Mrs. Lloyd, with her husband, Rev. Bob Lloyd, and their two children spent the past year in San Jose, Costa Rica, where Rev. and Mrs. Lloyd attended a language school as a part of their training for special service in the field of Missions. Mrs. Lloyd gave a most interesting description of Central America, using colored slides which they had made of their surroundings. Highlights of her talk included stories with pictures about the people, their customs, manners and dress and a brief account of their economic, social and religious activities. Mrs. Lloyd's presentation was both entertaining and educational and the slides were excellent and well chosen, giving her listeners an interesting picture of life in that portion of Latin America.

Following the program, punch and cake were served to approximately fifty members and guests.

Weekly Health LETTER

Issued by Henry A. H. M. D., State Health Officer

Only by constant fighting has mankind been able to hold his precarious own against the insect hordes that bite and sting him, destroy his food and clothing and home, and sometimes inflict horrible death.

Well over a million different insect species have been described from throughout the world, and the list continues to grow at the rate of 67,000 new species discovered every year. This country is inhabited by approximately 600 injurious species. Some of these are proven vectors of human diseases.

The vast majority of insects are neutral or indifferent where man is concerned, apparently content to let humanity go its way and demanding the same privilege. Others are highly beneficial, feeding on noxious weeds or troublesome insects, or pollinating crops. At least 50 different seed and fruit crops would be barren without insect pollinizers.

On the other hand, to fix a price tag on depredations of harmful insect varieties, you have to re-gear your thinking or risk getting lost in a maze of zeros. Just counting field crops and stored grains, they wreck an estimated $4 billion worth of havoc every year in the United States alone.

Flies, fleas, and mosquitoes were, and still are, behind some of the most calamitous scourges the human race has ever faced, including plague, malaria, yellow fever, encephalitis, typhus, dengue fever, and filariasis.

Against this constant threat to human health and welfare, mankind has developed powerful insecticidal sprays and powders. Using them with sensible safety precautions, literally thousands upon thousands of acres of previously untenable land have been opened for human habitation. Their use has also resulted in a marked decrease in the incidence of insect-borne diseases of man and his domestic animals.

The fact that most insecticides are toxic for humans as well as for insects has caused some apprehension. It is true that people who are in close contact with poisonous agents or use them carelessly do run real risks. But there is no concrete evidence to suggest the general population is being insidiously poisoned.

New insecticides are introduced only after extensive experimentation has shown they can meet exacting federal and state requirements. Each label carries detailed instructions for using the product safely. The burden of following those instructions rests with the user.

Insecticides, despite their great value as weapons against insects, are not sufficient by themselves. They should be used to supple-

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Feed costs normally represent about one-half the cost of producing milk, says J. W. Davis, extension dairy husbandman. If this cost can be reduced, profits can be increased. Replacing some of the grain and concentrates with high-quality roughage offers possibilities for many of the state's dairymen, he believes.

Knox Prairie Philosopher Says Scientists Are Fine, But They Don't Have Quite All The Answers Yet

Editor's note: The Knox Prairie Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Miller Creek gives an unscientific discussion of science this week, his letter reveals.

Dear editor:
Last night I was reading in a copy of a magazine which a friend handed me, I've heard you're not supposed to look a gift horse in the mouth or a used car under the hood, but still I figure a magazine is put out to be read and what attracted me in this one was an article on the school system.

According to it, the American school system is far behind the Russian system, and the main trouble with ours is that we're not turning out enough scientists.

Now I know that everybody is talking about science today, about how we've got to develop more, pay them more, pay teachers better to turn out more, etc., and how the future of mankind rests in the scientist's hand.

In fact, some people are saying that what this country needs is more scientists in positions of leadership. Maybe a scientist for President.

Well, now, I'll tell you, I'm in favor of scientists, and I'm especially in favor of scientific results, like a flat-proof tractor tire, but science isn't everything, and the scientific attitude doesn't answer all the problems. I'm not acquainted with any live scientists, at least there aren't any living out here, probably not the right kind of soil, but I have a notion that even the purest scientist must have his common troubles.

Don't scientists have unpaid bills, don't they get bad colds, don't they occasionally turn up with a delinquent child the same as other human beings? How would a scientist go about fighting a recession? Is there a scientific formula for arranging for the nations of the world to get along with each other? Can a scientist figure out a scientific system for getting elected to Congress? How's he stand on taxes?

Some day scientists may even grow all the world's food in test tubes, providing us unscientific people will keep them in laboratories, but until they do somebody's got to go up one row and down another if the world is going to keep on eating. For every man launched into space, somebody's got to launch a good many tractors up and down the rows of America.

Maybe the Russians can order a thousand new scientists to be turned out every two weeks in their school system, but over here we sort of let things turn out as they will. I don't mean we shouldn't offer more science courses, but what a boy turns into in this country is mostly the boy's choice. It may not be very scientific, but freedom, like a session of Congress, is no exact science anyway. I don't know know whether our school system

Hints Offered On Cotton Planting

Cotton planting will become widespread in Texas as conditions become more favorable for good germination and stands. And as Fred Elliott, extension cotton specialist, studies the situation, he emphasizes the importance of getting the desired stand with the first planting since high quality planting seed may not be available for excessive replantings. Elliott offers the following suggestions for increasing the chances of getting a good stand with the first planting. Whenever possible use certified seed of a variety recommended for the area and make sure the seed has been treated with the proper fungicide. For seed treatment, he adds, will help control seed and soil borne diseases. Planting should be done in a well-prepared and firm seedbed when soil moisture and temperature are favorable. Germination will be reduced, he says, if the seed are planted in soil which has not reached the proper temperature of 70 degrees F. at a 3-inch depth for 3 successive mornings at 7 a. m.

The seed should be planted at the depth and rate considered best for the area, says the specialist and fertilizer, if used, should be at the proper depth and distance from the seed. Elliott suggests that care be exercised in early cultivations in order not to damage the stand. He points out that properly operated rotary hoes do a good job of breaking up heavy soil crusts, thus permitting soil airing and drying and aiding in the control of seedling weeds and grasses and cotton seedling diseases.

A high yield of quality fiber, the major objective of every cotton grower, can be expected if recommended production practices, including insect control, are carried out during the growing season. Elliott suggests a visit with the local county agent for more detailed information on all phases of cotton production.

Rev. and Mrs. Robert Lloyd and children, who have been visiting in Fort Worth and Megargel since their return from missionary duty in Costa Rica, are spending this week with her sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Levi Bowden and Jerry.

Mr. and Mrs. Rusty Doran of Odessa were week end guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Bevers.

CARD OF THANKS

May we take this means of expressing our sincere thanks for the lovely flowers, the words of comfort and the expressions of sympathy given us after the loss of our dear husband and father. Especially do we wish to thank our friends for all the food and every one who helped us in our hours of sorrow. May God's richest blessings be showered on each of you in our prayer.

Mrs. Elmer Horne, her children and grandchildren 11c

I am always meeting interesting people. For example—

A good many years ago, I was in a hotel lobby in Austin to meet J. Frank Dobie for lunch. At that time, I had met the famous author only once so I accosted a man who resembled him. He said the mistake had been made by others, too. He turned out to be a former Texas Ranger.

Later, I heard bits of adventurous stories about him. One was that he had made friends with the Yaqui Indians in Mexico; that they had virtually adopted him as a "brother" and had bestowed on him the nickname "the Blond Apache".

Supporting this was a statement that a matter-of-fact business man of Austin made to me. He said:

"I don't know whether that is so or not, — but I do know that he came to me and asked me for $200 for the purpose of going to Mexico and getting silver from the Yaquis; and I let him have the money and, some weeks later, he returned and paid me back, three-for-one."

Speaking of Mr. Dobie:

A few years back when I stepped of a bus in Austin, he and his charming wife were waiting. I raised my hat, greeted them and said:

"I really did not expect this honor; you should not have gone to the trouble of meeting me."

Mr. Dobie, who does not like to hurt anyone's feelings but who has a passion for truth, reddened a little and said:

"Boyce, we didn't come down to greet you; we are looking for our niece."

I pretended to be greatly disappointed. (The fact was Mr. Dobie couldn't have known I was coming as I had made up my mind only a few minutes before I boarded the bus.)

Mrs. Dobie, not fooled at all, only smiled.

One day from the train, the young traveler saw this little scene: A woman standing in a clearing which had a shanty in the middle; two small children in the yard, a big kettle with a fire under it. She was young and, as she looked at the train, it seemed that there was a longing in her eyes although this was only imagined for actually she was too far away. The whole scene lasted a matter of seconds — but half a century later, it is still remembered.

"Cotton plays an important role in the economy of Texas, accounting for 33.2 per cent of the farm marketings, and bringing an income of over $630 million annually at the farm level," Governor Daniel said.

He also pointed out that the success of efforts to increase the use of cotton and cottonseed products will benefit millions of people who share in the prosperity of cotton.
