TWO DIFFERENT THINGS

Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, who has more real power over Federal fiscal legislation than any other individual, has ruled out general tax reduction for next year. This position is not surprising, in view of the huge deficit now being rolled up, and the prospect of still more deficits in the future.

However, tax reduction on a general scale is one thing—while tax revision can be a very different thing. The purpose of any sound tax system, aside from the amount of money it is to raise, must be to raise that money with the least possible damage to the instruments of production and distribution on which everyone in this country depends on for a livelihood.

Take one example, due to price and wage inflation, the depreciation allowances which are supposed to enable industry to accumulate funds to replace machinery and plants are now grossly inadequate. The result is to seriously hamper industrial expansion and improvement.

To take another, punitively high taxes on business earnings also stand in the way of economic growth—and particularly the growth of the smaller business.

Everyone is talking about a continually expanding economy, capable both of taking care of our swift population growth and further improving living and working standards. The kind of tax system we have will determine whether or not that goal is achieved.

CAMBRIA, CALIFORNIA, THE CAMBRIAN:
 "... Despite the Hoover Report and the warnings of so-called 'reactionaries', the public has blithely continued on its merry way, trading its freedoms for inflated bucks and ignoring the primrose path they are taking toward bureaucratic domination . . ."

ABILENE, KANSAS, REFLECTOR-CHRONICLE: "It may be unhappy news for taxpayers that of 18 state legislatures that met to approve budgets this year, two-thirds of them increased taxes or changed collection procedures to bring in more money . . ."

A recent survey finds that newspaper readers would like more scientific news, including medical news. Two-thirds of those polled said they would willingly give up some other kinds of news to make this expanded coverage possible.

"THE TYPICAL COUNTRY EDITOR"

The American Press, which is a magazine of home town newspapers, recently sought an answer to this question: "What manner of man is the typical country editor?"

Naturally, there are tremendous differences of belief and attitude among the thousands of men and women who edit the grass-roots press. But, American Press finds, certain things can be said. In its words: "In general, their roots are firmly imbedded in the America of a past era—an America which thrived on such words as self-reliance and independence, and they stubbornly resist all movements wherein social groups might be benefited but at the expense of the individual's freedom."

"Mollycoddling" by government is one of the pet hates of the country editor. His heroes are founding fathers of our nation who believed in a minimum amount of government and a maximum amount of individual freedom

"He is a champion of free enterprise, and the freer the better."

In other words, the typical country editor believes in the ideals that not only made this country great—but maintained individual freedom and dignity along with national greatness.

HOW SAD! HOW TRUE!

"Charles H. Brower, president of one of the large advertising firms spoke recently of a trend that is causing many people to wonder whether we have lost the great driving force that gave us all the benefits we enjoy today."

"Brower said, 'This is the era of the goof-off; the age of the half-done job. The land from coast-to-coast has been enjoying a stampede away from responsibility. It is populated by waiters who won't serve, carpenters who come around, some day . . . maybe, executives whose minds are on the golf course, students who take cinch courses, and salesmen who won't sell.'

"These are pretty strong words, but in too many cases they are true."

"Too many people look upon their work as a means to an end . . . a pay check. How much they lose in not learning how to work, how to develop pride in a job well done. Mr. Brower calls it . . . 'the thrill of achievement'."

"Perhaps our schools might develop a course on 'how to work'."

Weekly Health LETTER

Issued by Henry A. Holle, M. D., State Health Officer

It used to be in the old school house, that the health of the students was the problem of parents. The school "marm" would pay little attention unless a pupil actually became sick, especially with some contagious disease.

Even in those schools which had a nurse, the duties were generally relegated to a perfunctory examination and occasional vaccinations of one kind or another.

Today parents expect and demand much more from a school nurse program.

One aim of the Maternal and Child Health Division of the Texas State Department of Health has been to foster a greater relationship between school nursing and the other educational processes of a modern school.

Since nursing consultation is limited, an attempt has been made to reach as many nurses as possible through district workshops. This is done annually and primarily with the cooperation of the nursing sections of the Texas State Teacher's Association and in some instances with local leagues of nursing.

In planning the program all school and local health department nurses in a given district are sent questionnaires to check for choice of subject matter, the first choice of the majority is given priority.

As soon as there is sufficient leadership and "know how" in the group they are left to organize and conduct their own programs.

A nursing consultant in school health acts as workshop leader, and is usually responsible for obtaining specialists who are not always available locally.

In all sessions a variety of methods are used—lectures for background, films, panels, demonstrations, observation and discussion.

Summaries and evaluations are given the last evening at a dinner meeting to which school administrators in the district are invited.

A local school administrator or supervisor acts as the summarizer and evaluator. In one area this has become a joint undertaking with a nurse which adds interest as the viewpoints of both nursing and education are given.

During one typical session held last summer, 97 nurses attended some from as far away as 300 or 100 miles.

In addition to the workshops, nursing consultation is given on a continuing basis to a few schools for a two to five year period.

A major aim is to bring about insight on the part of administrators and nurses themselves into the need for educational preparation for the job of school nurse.

Yule Program Enjoyed By Study Club's Members

The Munday Study Club met last Thursday at the club house for the annual Christmas program. Mrs. Oscar Spann was director and hostess and she introduced Mrs. J. O. Bowden, who read the Christmas story from the second chapter of St. Luke.

The Junior High School Chorus, under the direction of Mrs. J. H. Bardwell, presented a program in story and song. Jan Pendleton was narrator for the group. Their performance each year for the club is a highlight of the year's activities.

Mrs. W. O. Ratliff presented a reading "The Chimes of Medina," by Lawrence R. Simpson.

The president, Mrs. R. M. Almarode, announced the resignation of Mrs. Grady Beck. The president called attention to the fact that the next meeting would be a business session, at which time a new slate of officers would be elected for the ensuing year.

Mrs. J. O. Bowden dismissed the group with the benediction.

HOME FROM HOSPITAL

Little Jerry Lowe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sargent Lowe, who has been a patient in the Knox County Hospital several days, was able to be brought home Wednesday morning. He is reported to be doing fine.

Dr. and Mrs. Leonard Lamb, Debbie, Lennie, and Michael, returned to their home in Derby, Colo., last week after a week's visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Albus, and other relatives and friends.

Wayne Rodgers of Austin was a week end guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Rodgers.

CARD OF THANKS

I want to thank everyone for being so nice to me while I was in the hospital. Your nice cards, letters, flowers, gifts and especially your visits, and the prayers of Brother Paden helped so much. I really appreciate them all.

Goree Pastor Speaks At Goree Study Club Meet

Rev. C. R. Mathis, pastor of the Goree Baptist Church, was principal speaker at the regular meeting of the Goree Woman's Study Club last Thursday afternoon. The meeting was in the home of Mrs. S. G. Hampton.

Speaking on the topic of "The Giver of All Gifts," Rev. Mathis emphasized the importance of celebrating the birth of Christ in the proper manner.

Mrs. Orb Coffman led the group in singing Christmas carols.

Christmas candles and poinsettias were used to decorate the party rooms and refreshment table. Co-hostesses with Mrs. Hampton were Mrs. C. R. Mathis and Mrs. W. M. Taylor.

The meeting was closed by Rev. H. C. Adair, pastor of the Goree Methodist Church.

Working Girls Of Town Feted In C. P. Baker Home

The "working girls" around town were feted with a coffee on Wednesday morning, December 17, in the home of Mrs. C. P. Baker.

At the time for their "coffee break," groups of girls gathered at different times during the morning for a very delightful time in the Baker home.

Hot cheese balls, coffee cake and candy were placed handy for those who wanted something with their coffee. Christmas decorations throughout the house and fires burning in the fireplaces made one realize how nice a "coffee break" can be.

As each girl left, she was presented her "Christmas card" which was a handmade cake, ester which Mrs. Baker had made.

ATTEND BANQUET

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Beaty and Mr. and Mrs. Levi Bowden attended the Chamber of Commerce banquet at Throckmorton last Monday. Guest speaker for the occasion was Chester Lauck, who is "Lum" of the "Lum and Abner" show.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Pack plan to leave Friday for South Texas and will be gone for two weeks. Their plans include seeing the Wichita Falls and Pasadena football game in Austin on Saturday afternoon. They will open their Dairy Treat on January 29d.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Searcey, Mrs. A. M. Searcey and Richard visited relatives in Dallas over the week end. Twenty nine members of the Searcey families held their Christmas dinner in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Duncan.

CARD OF THANKS

Our heartfelt thanks to all who extended comforting sympathy and help in our recent sorrow. For the beautiful service, floral offerings, and other kindnesses, we are deeply grateful.

CONVERTING FROM COTTON TO CATTLE

The constant search for more farming profits has led to an experiment aimed at making a drastic switch from exclusive cotton production on a medium sized farm to a small beef production center.

Agricultural research experts began with a 132-acre South Carolina cotton farm, studied all possibilities, and launched a five-year program to convert it to a 161-acre beef and small grain project. This basic change is predicted to increase annual cash receipts from $3,400 annually to $9,022 by the fifth year. The figures were projected on the basis of assumed prices and improved production practices.

The appraised value of the farm property, including land, buildings, livestock equipment and seed, was predicted to rise from about $16,000 to nearly $35,000 by the end of the fourth year, and would then decline with normal depreciation to about $27,000 at the end of the tenth year.

To accomplish such a beneficial transformation, not only would the farmer have to engage in a new type of farming, but also would need to find new sources of credit to finance the change. The first and biggest problem is to acquire a beef herd. The study showed the value of cattle would have to rise from $330 on the original farm to $10,000 by new purchases and breeding during the first three years. The large initial investment would result from buying brood cows as soon as grazing could be assured by other changes in farm practice.

The plan calls for establishing a herd of 46 brood cows. Eight cows and three bred heifers would be bought the first year, five cows the second year and 27 the third. These, together with replacement heifers raised would prove the herd needed in four years.

The major transition in farm activity should be made the first three years, with minor adjustments for seven more years. The first year would include bringing the cropland into production, substituting grain sorghum and clover for corn, increasing the acreage of wheat and oats, double-cropping the oats with lespedeza and top-seeding the pasture with crimson clover.

During the second year, 20 acres of cropland would be added to provide the full use of the operator's labor. Forty acres of coastal Bermuda grass would be planned for permanent pasture. During the third year, the changes in land use would be completed by discontinuing the cotton enterprise entirely and adding its acreage to the oat-grain-sorghum area.

As for equipment, a grain drill and combine would have to be bought. A side-delivery rake and pick-up hay baler by the third year would permit a saving of 40 percent or more over the usual custom rate of baling hay.

Crop sales would provide the chief source of cash during the transition, the study shows, but by the fourth year cash receipts from the beef herd would nearly equal those from sale of grain.

Also the "abominable snowman" of the Himalayas leaves me cold.

In reading Homer Croy's book recently on Will Rogers, I came across the story of an unfavorable review of a Will Rogers performance. The occasion was a lecture but, because Will appeared in the Symphony Hall (Boston, I believe), the music critic was sent to write it up and he did not approve of Will's grammar. The humorist, in his "column," retorted, "Can you imagine yourself bringing up your baby boy to be a male music critic?"

When I was a young reporter on the Memphis paper, I was often in the county jail — in connection with my work. But I never knew, until a day in September, 1958, that the spot where the jail stood was where Gayoso, the Spanish governor, built a fort in the 1700's when Louisiana, Texas and Mexico belonged to Spain. Jailor and prisoners and visitors were treading on history without realizing it. (The fort was abandoned after a short time since it was on the eastern side of the Mississippi, in American territory.)

And, in my beginning days as a newspaperman, there was a judge who had a thick gray mustache, Judge J. P. Young, but I did not learn, until long afterward, that he had been the boy courier of the immortal Nathan Bedford Forrest, "the wizard of the saddle."

IT'S THE LAW
in Texas
A public service feature of the State Bar of Texas

OUR "BILL OF RIGHTS"
December 15 is observed each year as "Bill of Rights Day" throughout the United States. What does this important "document" mean to us?

The American "Bill of Rights," consisting of the first ten amendments to our federal constitution, all adopted at one time in 1791, specifies in some detail a number of basic civil rights of the individual citizen. Unaltered by subsequent amendments and jealously guarded by our courts, these privileges must still be respected by our governing bodies today. Among the most familiar of our constitutional guarantees are those relating to freedom of religion, speech, and of the press. The same article protects the rights of peaceable assembly and the privilege of petitioning the government for redress of grievances.

Another amendment secures our persons, houses, papers and effects against unreasonable searches and seizures, and specifies that no warrants shall issue but upon probable cause, and unless supported by oath or affirmation.

The due process of law amendment encompasses not one but several guarantees. Every American is secured against being placed twice in legal jeopardy for the same offense; against being compelled to be witness against himself in a criminal case; and against having his private property taken for public use without just compensation.

He is also secured against being held for trial for a capital (death penalty) or other infamous crime, unless upon a presentment or indictment of a grand jury. And, of course, no person may be deprived of life, liberty or property without orderly court procedures, or due process of law.

The right to a speedy and public trial, by an impartial jury, in the locality where the crime was committed, the right to be informed of the nature and cause of the accusation, and the rights to compel attendance of defense witnesses and to have the assistance of defense counsel in all criminal prosecutions are secured by another section of the "Bill of Rights."

Excessive bail and fines, and cruel and unusual punishments, are prohibited in Amendment VIII. Other articles insure the right to bear arms and ban quartering of soldiers in private homes during peace time.

Then, to make quite clear to our governing bodies the underlying intent of the preceding provisions, the Ninth Amendment states: "The enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people."

The Tenth Amendment further emphasizes this basic theory by providing: "The powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the States, are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people."

Thus, that fundamental philosophy expressed in the Declaration of Independence, that men are endowed with certain unalienable rights, and that "to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed," has been carried forward into the highest law of our land.

(This column, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform — not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

Gas Company To Seek Higher Rate

Lone Star Gas Company has filed with the Railroad Commission of Texas an application for an upward adjustment of the Company's authorized intra-company city gate charge.

The present charge of 30 cents per thousand cubic feet for gas delivered at the city gates in Texas cities served by Lone Star for domestic and commercial usage and unaccounted for gas would be adjusted upward of 40 cents.

Approval of the requested upward adjustment would serve to re-establish the charge that existed for a long period of years prior to the year 1942 when the charge was reduced from 40 to 30 cents.

The application states that the proposed increase is based primarily upon the drastic increase in the cost of gas at the wellhead. This cost has risen approximately eight cents per thousand cubic feet since January 1, 1951. Additionally, there have been substantial increases in taxes, material costs, labor and other operating expenses.

Residential and commercial consumer rates would not be immediately affected by Railroad Commission authorization of an upward adjustment in the city gate charge. But a Company spokesman stated that the Company may be required at a later date to file applications for increases in residential and commercial rates.

Mrs. Joe Canafax and Mrs. Ray Snyder were visitors in Vernon last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wylie B. Johnson and his sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sheadick of Wabeno, Wisc., left Wednesday for E. Cajon, Calif., for a visit with relatives.

OUR CHANGING AGRICULTURE

By Wayne Clift,
Vocational Agriculture Teacher,
Goree High School

Vocational Agriculture And The Adult Farmer

Present-day scientific farming is a very complicated business. It is often said that a farmer must be a business man, entomologist, agronomist, mechanic, electrician, rural leader, veterinarian, etc. Abilities in these areas are essential in farming.

The high school teacher is expected to be an "expert" in these various areas. But even with his college technical background of training, it is difficult for him to stay abreast of technological changes that are occurring in these various fields. Consequently teachers are compelled to seek the cooperation of other professional agricultural workers to assist him with his local community educational program in agriculture.

The Texas Education Agency, realizing the importance of providing assistance to high school teachers of vocational agriculture and to adult farmers, recently initiated a program whereby specialists in certain agricultural areas would be available to assist teachers and farmers. The specialists that are presently available are working in entomology, farm shop, and farm welding. These men are stationed at Texas A&M College. According to E. V. Walton, head of the Department of Agricultural Education at Texas A&M College, these specialists will be joined by others as they are employed.

The teacher of vocational agriculture, then, in addition to furnishing technical assistance to farmers, provides for them the leadership required to obtain assistance from specialists in agriculture. This leadership function makes it possible for farmers to obtain, through the cooperation of the teachers, assistance with farm problems.

In the near future farmers of the Goree area can take advantage of two different programs.

The F.F.A. Chapters of this area are planning a cooperative cotton insect program this spring. An entomologist from the Texas Experiment Station is going to hold classes at Goree and other schools of this area. I believe that every cotton farmer in this area should attend. The class will be held one night a week and is to run for four weeks.

The Goree chapter unfortunately has only one arc welder and only one acetylene welder, but these are available for the farmers use. If anyone needs instruction on their use, I am always available to instruct anyone. I also have publications useful for the beginning welder. If enough are interested I will form a welding class. Please feel free to contact me if you are interested in these courses.

Next week, Mr. Clift will discuss "Vocational Agriculture and College Preparation."

Dear Lucy and Bob,
You will never get that clean, quick and easy wash (no getting wet, no lifting or bending) like the Westinghouse Laundromat gives clothes by staying at home to wash. Now if somebody has told you differently you have to learn the truth by coming to this easy-to-wash place and finding out. Just think, ten dimes will wash and dry 30 pounds of clothes at the 30 minute self-service Laundromat and in rain soft water. If you need instructions about pre-treating the badly soiled ones just ask questions. Don't go away dissatisfied, learn the right way. Come in and see if this isn't the nicest thing since Eve got her first dress. Damp dry your starched pieces and eliminate sprinkling. Completely dry all others, fold while hot and there's no big ironing. Washing is made so easy now-a-days you feel lazy doing it — but don't you love it that way. We'll be seen' you at
The Laundromat in Munday 20-22tc

Knox Prairie Philosopher Amazed To Find The Government Winding Up The Year In The Same Shape He's In

Editor's note: The Knox Prairie Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Miller Creek is reviewing his and the government's financial condition as the year draws to an end, his letter this week reveals.

Dear editor:
As the year winds to an end, I am amazed but still finding a great deal of comfort in learning that me and the Federal government handled our finances in about the same way the last twelve months.

At the start of this year, Washington announced that the national budget could be balanced this year, due to the fact 1958 was going to be unusually good and in addition to getting more income tax money, expenses could be cut too.

Well, I started the year in about the same frame of mind. Like the Federal government, I knew I was living beyond my means, but I figured my income would pick up and my expenses would drop off, and I'd wind up in good shape.

Unfortunately, me and the government miscalculated. According to an article I read last night, the government went in the hole by about 12 billion dollars this year, and it was easy to explain. The short recession knocked 7 billion dollars off of anticipated income tax revenues, and expenses went up 5 billion instead of coming down.

I'm winding up the year in about the same shape, although you can knock off a good many zeroes from Washington's figures to get a picture of mine.

Now the trouble with this is that I would have figured Washington would have known better. It's all right for me to operate on an optimistic future, it's the only way to keep going out here on this farm, but you'd think Washington would take a little more realistic view of things. I've known for years that there rarely is a crop worth as much as harvesting time as I figured it would be at planting time, but that's the basic principle we farmers use to maintain a surplus year after year, but my advice to the government is that they'd better let us farmers use this principle and the government figure out a different one. Any time the government tries to balance its budget ahead of time on the strength of what I might earn in the next twelve months, well, all I've got to say is that the government's not taking any practical view of the matter. I hope the government does better next year. Personally, I intend to do about the same as this year.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.
