PUBLIC SCHOOLS WEEK PROCLAMATION

GREETINGS:

Today, more than ever before, the importance of our schools is being realized by an awakened Nation. A new perspective has been taken on by education, both in scientific and liberal arts fields.

As we rush to train scientists and place satellites in outer space, however, it is important to remember that our public schools will furnish our leaders of tomorrow with the basic human, moral and spiritual foundations necessary for more advanced training and knowledge.

In an effort to make Texas public schools the finest in the Nation, the citizens of our communities are urged to take an active interest in the school systems and to cooperate with the respective school boards, superintendents, principals and teachers.

For the past nine years Public Schools Week in Texas has been set aside as a special time each year to place increased emphasis on our educational system. Parent visitation is encouraged and each citizen is urged to recognize the tremendous importance of our public schools.

THEREFORE, I, as Governor of Texas, do hereby designate the week of March 2-6, 1959, as

PUBLIC SCHOOLS WEEK

in Texas.

In official recognition whereof, I hereby affix my signature this 7th day of Jan. 1959.

PRICE DANIEL
Governor of Texas

k-k

Next week is Public Schools Week, so we're printing the governor's proclamation so you may become more conscious of the value of our schools during this week. Schools in some areas have special observance during this week, while others go about their regular duties and issue a special invitation to the public to visit the schools and see them in action.

k-k

This has been the case of the Munday schools for several years. Not only during Public Schools Week, when our minds are turned toward the schools more than ever, but every school day of the year Supt. W. C. Cox has always extended a welcome to any parent or anyone interested to visit the school.

k-k

Parent visitation is especially encouraged, though, during next week as Public Schools Week is being observed. You are invited to visit any class, especially the ones in which you have children, and see how our teachers are training the children for citizenship of tomorrow.

k-k

Vera has announced some special days during the week, and all patrons of the Vera School, and the general public is invited. In most all special events, emphasis is placed on seeing classroom work and exhibits of students' work.

k-k

Some organizations have assisted in promoting Public Schools Week. The Masonic fraternity in Texas has been a leader in the movement since it was started nine years ago, and is willing to cooperate in its observance.

k-k

We reckon the word duel between Ralph Yarborough and Gov. Daniel regarding the schools of Texas during the past few days may stimulate more interest among some of us. Anyway, let's be a booster of the schools, and encourage those who are training our youth in every way possible during next week.

Potato and Onion Planting Nearing Completion In Area

Vegetable growers in Knox County were nearing completion of Irish potato and onion planting season this week.

Irish potato growers will have completed planting operations by the weekend and onions should be in the ground within the next two weeks or so, according to Gene Thompson, president of the Knox County Vegetable Growers Co-op.

The county as a whole will have about 600 acres of Irish potatoes and about 50 acres of onions, all of which are irrigated.

Another 230 acres will be planted in cucumbers if enough interest is shown, Thompson said. Watermelons will cover about 100 acres and sweet potatoes will take up about 75. Thompson indicated there will be some sweet peppers and cantaloupes, also.

Although the onion market is an uncertain one at times, several of the county's foremost farmers will plant again this year.

B. E. Smith says he will have 10 acres of onions this year. His son, James, will have another 10 on his own farm.

Onion Costs High

Soil and water conditions are favorable for growing onions, but the cost of producing them has caused many to back down. Ordinarily, it will take at least $354 to plant, care and harvest an acre of onions.

The older Smith says the onion market is always uncertain. "Sometimes," he says, "we can get $5 a sack for our onions; sometimes we give them away."

In accounting for the $354, Smith said it takes $35 an acre to have them set out, $54 an acre for the plants, $20 and acre for fertilizer, $25 self labor during the growing season, $70 an acre for having the onions clipped, bagged and hauled to the produce shed, and $150 on a 300 sack yield for processing.

"Then the price we get depends on the demand," Smith said. "You never can be sure of what the market will bring."

H. H. Partridge, a seed farm operator west of Munday and an ardent vegetable grower, said the county may be able to get a good market for the onions this year because the 7,000 acres usually set with onions around Farris in East Texas will not be planted at all this year.

The agencies that usually contract the dryland East Texas crop have come to West Central Texas to get most of their crop. Farris is about the only growing area in Texas that markets the onion crop at about the same time as the Knox County crop is harvested, Partridge said.

Contract Potato Crop

Irish potatoes are a different story though. The spuds cost only about $100 an acre to produce and usually average about 160 to 250 sacks to the acre.

Most of the growers, Smith said, contract enough of their crop to pay the expenses of growing the entire acreage and sell the rest on the open market. Smith said he has contracted 3,000 sacks of his 1959 crop to meet the cost of producing 50 acres of potatoes.

The 11 members of the vegetable growers co-op represent about 320 acres of irrigated potatoes. B. E. Smith and Thompson have the largest Irish potato operations. Thompson has 40 acres and Smith has 50.

The others, John Earl Nelson, Alvin Reid, James Smith, Vernal and Keith Burnison, Kenneth Whittemore, Doris Dickerson, Lonnie Offutt, Chalmers Hobart and Clyde Yost are growing between 20 and 30 acres each this year.

Thompson said the co-op has sold about 4,000 sacks of seed potatoes this year. The average yield, he said, is about 200 sacks to the acre on the sandy loam soil.

June-July Harvest

All of the potatoes that are brought to the produce shed during harvest, June 5-July 1, have to be shipped out of the area for a market.

Many, Thompson judged, go to Oklahoma, Arkansas, New Mexico and Louisiana. "The nearest markets are at Abilene and Wichita Falls."

One or two in the co-op, Thompson said, are going to try planting sweet corn, tomatoes and beans to see how it works out in this area but the majority will stick with the Irish and sweet potatoes, onions, watermelons and cantaloupes.

The cucumbers might be a big thing in the county, Partridge said, if enough farmers will agree to plant a decent amount of acreage.

Thompson has been contacted by a pickle company in Fort Worth that wanted to contract 230 acres of cucumbers in Knox County. So far, 130 acres will be planted and another 100 acres are needed to fulfill the contract.

Last year, the co-op handled about $300,000 in gross earnings for members and other shippers in the county.

"We handle everyone's produce," Thompson said. "We help everyone to get the best price possible and anyone who raises vegetables may ship out through the co-op," he explained.

The co-op, formed three years ago with 12 original members, William Browning, former secretary and included in the initial 12, moved to Lyford (in the Rio Grande Valley) last week. Reid is vice president of the co-op—Abilene Reporter-News

Insect Control Short Course To Be Taught In Several Towns Of Area

What is the most effective and economical way to control insect pests of livestock and crops? This is one of the questions to be answered for farmers and ranchers during insect control short courses scheduled to be offered by five area schools during the month of March. Schools to conduct short courses are Munday, Goree, Knox City, Throckmorton and Crowell and the courses are being organized by the vocational agriculture teachers in the sponsoring schools and will be taught by H. A. Turney, Entomologist with the Vocational Agriculture Service with headquarters at Texas A&M College. Turney has both a B. S. and M. S. Degree in Entomology and has had three years of field experience in insect control work.

H. A. TURNEY

Four training sessions are to be held for each short course group. The schedule calls for meetings to be held in the high school vocational agriculture buildings as follows:

Knox City — Mondays, March 2, 9, 16, and 23.

Munday — Tuesdays, March 3, 10, 17, and 24.

Goree — Wednesdays, March 4, 11, 18, and 25.

Crowell — Thursdays, March 5, 12, 19, and 26.

Throckmorton — Fridays, March 6, 13, 20, and 27.

The first meeting at each school is set to begin at 7:00 p. m. The hour of subsequent meetings will be arranged according to wishes of participating farmers. Turney states that at Munday, Knox City, and Goree, he expects that main emphasis will be placed on control of cotton

AWARD FOR OUTSTANDING SERVICE

In 1939, a hundred years after the invention of the self-rake reaper by Cyrus Hall McCormick, three of his children made possible the annual award of a gold medal in the name of their father. Selection was entrusted to the American Society of Agricultural Engineers. The award is given, not for a single item of engineering, but for the aggregate accomplishment of a career of service to agriculture.

The latest Cyrus McCormick medal has been awarded to Tom Carroll, a distinguished engineer connected with the Massey-Ferguson company, one of the leading producers of farm equipment. Mr. Carroll pioneered in the development of combines, working to improve and to perfect them over a long period of years. And the reason for the award is found in what the combine has meant to the farmer. According to Department of Agriculture figures which were issued a few years ago, only 20 to 22 per cent as many hours are required to harvest a crop with a combine as with the old method of cutting, shocking, and threshing. The impact of this particular form of mechanization has been enormous. In the 1910-14 period, for instance, 15.2 man-hours were needed to harvest an acre of wheat—in the 1950-54 period this had dropped to 4.4.

This particular situation has a symbolic significance. What is true of the combine is true in essence of all the other mechanized aids to agriculture. They have made huge holes in the effort, labor and cost of farming. And they are the bulwark of the family farm.

"THE TOTAL SELLING MEDIUM"

How valuable is newspaper advertising to the retail merchant?

Here's what the president of a Montana department store has to say: "If I were suddenly restricted to one and only one advertising medium, I would board up the display windows, discontinue all interior and departmental selling displays, eliminate all informative show cards, discontinue all sales meetings and sales incentives, stop all telephone selling — and continue an aggressive business-building advertising investment in the newspapers."

This merchant also terms newspapers "the total selling medium". What advertiser could ask for more?

WE BELIEVE . . .

On the occasion of its 35th anniversary, the American Farm Bureau Federation adopted resolutions explaining its credo. These included the following:

"We believe: . . . in the American competitive enterprise system. . . that a man's search for progress should be encouraged by maintenance of opportunity, not hindered by illusions of security. . . that a person should be rewarded in accordance with his productive contribution to society. . . that every man is entitled to own property, earn money honestly, save, invest and spend as he chooses. . . that government's regulatory functions should be based on law. . . that government should provide only minimum controls and aids. . . that government should stimulate, not discourage individual initiative."

FRUSTRATING THE PLANNERS

A good many people think that the Federal government should do more and more of the planning of the national future—in all manner of fields, such as education, health, living standards and so on. "Those who think this . . . miss just about the whole point about America," says The Wall Street Journal.

The paper goes on: "It is not government, at least the Federal government, which has given us the highest standard of living in the world, which has enriched our spiritual and intellectual life, which has provided the enormous opportunities unmatched anywhere else at any time. It was the people themselves, in their infinite complexity and variety and individuality, that did it, and they did it best when they were most free of government control and government guidance."

One trouble is that the believers in Federal planning take a mechanistic view of the world. But this nation isn't an electronic brain, where you press certain buttons and get a desired result each and every time. This nation is an accumulation of human beings, with every imaginable kind of hope, ambition, thought, belief. That, in the long run, is what is going to frustrate the planners and their plans.

TEXAS CATTLE BARRED BY CALIFORNIA AND ARIZONA UNLESS DIPPED IN BHC

Fort Worth, Feb. 23 — Two of the states which currently provide the largest outlets for Texas stocker cattle forbade shipments to them last week unless the cattle were first dipped in a benzene hexachloride solution. Cause of the embargoes by California and Arizona was an outbreak of scabies in some of the Plain States, including two known cases in the Texas Panhandle.

In order for Texas cattle to move to the states, they must be dipped under supervision of federal officials. Spraying of cattle is not acceptable.

Dr. L. R. Noyes, head of Texas Livestock Sanitary Commission, said information pointed to the fact that only at Fort Worth and El Paso were dipping facilities available through which cattle could be cleared to these states.

At Fort Worth dipping vats have stood idle for 15 years until the present crisis developed. Most dipping vats in the state have been destroyed or filled up since dipping has been largely supplanted by spraying livestock for insect pests or disease. The vats were a hazard into which livestock or people could be injured, unless kept tightly covered.

ed. It was considered possible that other states might embargo cattle from the infested states before the situation was cleaned up.

The Fort Worth Stockyards recharged their dipping vats immediately when word of California's action was received by Dr. Bruce A. Taylor, head of the inspection division here.

The dipping service was hailed by livestock shippers who have been sending thousands of cattle to feedlots in Arizona and California as a thing which could prevent a disastrous break in stocker cattle prices in the state.

Many buyers, who will be receiving cattle around March 1, reported they intend to ship cattle to Fort Worth for trans-shipment to western points.

Cattle arriving for the special stocker sale at the Fort Worth market on March 5 will be able to move without delay to any state.

California ranges received good rains last week and Los Angeles sources say they will need cattle quickly and many western buyers will attend the special sale in Fort Worth because of the dipping facilities here.

CATTLE MOSTLY FULLY STEADY, SUPPLY LIGHT

Most classes of cattle and calves cleared at steady prices at Fort Worth Monday. Trade on fed steers and yearlings was somewhat slow at the start, but clearance was made before the noon hour as the light supplies reported around the major marketing circle strengthened the salesman's arguments. Late sales of cows were inclined to be weak compared with the earlier rounds when shipper activity was at its peak.

Good and choice slaughter steers and yearlings sold for $25.50 to $27.50, some 630-pound heifers sold at $27.50 and some around 800-pound steers drew $27.50. Mixed $10-pound steers and heifers sold at $26.50. Plain and medium sorts sold from $18 to $25.

Fat cows sold from $18.50 to $21 and canners and cutters cashed at $13 to $18.50. Bulls drew $18 to $23.75. Good and choice slaughter calves ranged from $25.50 to $29.50 and plain and medium sorts sold from $21 to $25, and culls sold at $17 to $20.

Medium to good stocker steer calves drew $28 to $33 and a few around 200-pound choice calves sold to $40. Heifer calves sold mostly from $30 downward. Stocker steer yearlings of medium grades sold from $22 to $25 and some better quality kinds sold up to $27.50.

SHEEP AND LAMBS OPEN MOSTLY STEADY

Slaughter lambs and woolled feeder lambs were steady, but shorn feeder lambs were weak. Sheep and goats were scarce and steady. Good and choice shorn fat lambs cashed at $16.50 to $17.50, some 108 and 109-pound lambs up to $17.50. Cull to medium lambs drew $13 to $16.

Stocker and feeder shorn lambs drew $15.50 to $16.50 and shearing type lambs ranged up to $17.50. A few slaughter ewes drew $8.50 and slaughter goats sold at $9.

Weekly Health LETTER

Issued by Henry A. Holle, M. D., State Health Officer

It began six months ago when rats and mice got into the home of a rural family in Central Texas. The father began fighting them with poison.

Then suddenly, a couple of weeks ago, four members of the family had to be hospitalized for acute poisoning. Investigation revealed the poison had been set out at random about the house and yard.

The poison involved was thallium sulfate. The case is a perfect example of how a man can fall victim to his own weapon—especially when the weapon appears to be a harmless-looking powder or paste.

Thallium sulfate is a metallic salt, the action of which is similar to that of arsenic. It was originally compounded for use by professional exterminators but now is available in practically any retail store.

Thallium was the object of the hazardous substances law passed by the State Legislature two years ago. The law makes it illegal to offer for public sale any product containing more than one percent thallium salt.

But even a one percent concentration is very hazardous when humans are exposed to a lot of it or to smaller quantities over long periods of time. The poison used by the Central Texas man was in a one percent solution, which accentuates the fact that thallium can affect humans when it is absorbed through the skin, when inhaled, or when accidentally eaten. Too, thallium concentrations increase when the mixture evaporates.

It isn't that rat and insect poisons are not labeled as being hazardous. They are. The labels on original packages spell out in big black bold or red type the fact that the compounds are poisonous for man, and list precautions to be followed in using the materials.

But warning labels do not always have the desired effect—either because people don't bother to read them, or ignore the message of caution.

Therein lies the answer to the problem: If users would read the label and believe what it says, the danger of accidental poisonings would be minimized.

Used carelessly, thallium sulfate as well as many other rodenticides and insecticides can be as lethal as a stiletto through the heart. Used properly they can be tremendous agents for good. A prominent industrial hygienist with the Public Health Service put it like this:

"... any poison, however toxic, may be used with complete safety, if proper precautions are taken." (A weekly feature from the Health Education Division, State Health Department.)

IT'S THE LAW
in Texas

UNORDERED MERCHANDISE

Suppose the mailman delivers to you a package containing a necktie, a book, keyring tags or a phonograph record that you didn't order. Either with it, or by later mail, is a bill or request to remit the price.

Do you know your obligations, assuming you don't want the merchandise? Must you return it? Can you use it and not pay for it? Must you keep it, or can you throw it away?

Generally speaking, recipients of unordered merchandise are under no obligation (a) to return it; (b) to acknowledge its receipt; (c) to pay for it unless used; (d) to give it particular care; or (e) to keep it beyond a reasonable time.

You are obligated to surrender the merchandise if called for in person by the shipper or his agent within a reasonable time. But you can demand storage charges before surrendering the item. If you mail it back at your own expense, you very likely will stay on the sender's mailing list and will receive other shipments in the future.

There are no postal regulations governing unordered merchandise, except where fraud is involved.

Congress is working on legislation that will cover the situation. However, if you know what is in the envelope or package, you can write "Refused" across the face of the piece of mail and hand it back unopened to the mailman. No further explanation is required. You don't have to accept any class of mail. Further, your refusal probably will result in the sender having to pay return postage.

A ruling by the Federal Trade Commission holds its a violation of the Federal Trade Act for a sender of unordered merchandise to claim that "The receiver is under obligation . . . to pay for or return the merchandise." Hence, if you don't use the merchandise, you are within your rights in refusing to pay for it.

If another person's mail is improperly delivered to you, do not open it, as such action might make you liable to severe legal penalties. Such mail should promptly be re-deposited in a postal box with an appropriate notation thereon, such as the proper address or "not 14 South Brown Street," showing the address to which the mail had been delivered.

(This column, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform — not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

Mr. Cotton Grower

The Seed You Plant In 1959 Will Be A Most Important Factor In Your Cotton Future! Why!

YOUR 1959 INCOME

Industry is demanding better quality cotton.

Dr. E. N. Jones, speaking for Texas Cotton Research Committee reports, "Texas cotton generally is not as good as that produced in the southern delta area, California or imported cotton."

Under the Agricultural Act of 1958, quality cotton will be supported at a higher rate than less desirable cotton grown under Plan A or B.

LOWER PRICE SUPPORTS AND HIGHER PRODUCTION COSTS CALL FOR SHREWD SEED SELECTION FOR 1959 PLANTING.

GROW TEXAS CERTIFIED ACALA 1517-C FOR QUALITY AND QUANTITY

ACALA 1517 C

W. B. Andrews, in his book, Cotton Production, Marketing and Utilization, describes Acala 1517.

"Under western conditions Acala 1517 is considered early. The vigorous, upright plants usually have three vegetative branches and short internodes; bolls large, slightly tapering, forty-five to fifty bolls per lb. of seed cotton; staple 1-3/32 to 1-1/8 usually spinning equivalent to 3/32 to 7/32 longer; tensile strength quite strong, lint percentage about 38."

February 19 issue of The Dallas Morning News:

DENISON, Texas (Sp.) — A Perrin Air Force Base pilot, Lt. Roy D. Bouldin, 28, of Munday, admitted at the base hospital Wednesday that "I am very lucky to be alive."

Bouldin rode a flaming F86D Sabrejet into a crash landing near the Denison Dam late Tuesday. First reports from the base said he had parachuted to safety. The lieutenant discounted that story Wednesday.

"I saw I was going to hit," he said, "and I closed my eyes and prayed. The next thing I knew I was on the ground beside the plane."

The plane canopy still was in position, but with a hole through it where the flier was ejected by the impact of hitting the ground at several hundred miles per hour.

Lieutenant Bouldin had alerted Perrin that he was going to try an emergency landing and gave his position. A rescue helicopter reached the scene about the time the plane went in.

The lieutenant said that when he hit the ground, he stumbled to his feet and had gotten several yards from the plane when it exploded into flames. Miraculously, he suffered only multiple cuts and bruises.

"I thought I might make a crash landing and save the plane," he pilot ruefully told investigating officers. "I guess I am lucky to be here."

Starving Quail In North Texas Trapped And Moved

Limited trapping of starving quail in North Texas, so that they can be transplanted into other areas, has been attempted in several places, according to the executive secretary of the Game and Fish Commission.

"We don't think this is a solution of the problem, but we are interested in seeing what can be done for the birds," he said. "We had a very unusual situation during the past season. There was an abundance of quail and an abundance of rats in the area. The food supply was insufficient and as a result many quail have died of starvation."

The secretary said that where quail are moved it has been done with the understanding that the birds would be provided with food in their new range.

"What this will mean we are not in a position to say," he pointed out. "There is some danger that the unhealthy birds may infect other birds. For that reason we hesitate to trap and move many of the starving birds. We are doing so, however, on a very limited experimental basis."

In some counties in North Texas the birds were so poor by mid-December hunters refused to shoot them. As a result, thousands of birds have died of starvation. At the same time rats also are dying off.

News From The U. S. Congress

By Congressman Frank Ikard

A substantial part of the revenue of our State is derived from taxes levied in one way or another on the oil and gas industry. They are by far the largest tax payers in the State. Revenues received and prorated in the omnibus tax fund by the State for the year ending August 1957 totaled 339 Million Dollars. A little more than 190 Million of this was paid by the oil and gas industry. The impact of imported oil into this country has materially affected these revenues and has contributed materially to the deficit situation that presently exists. In addition to affecting State revenues, excessive imports have reduced drilling activities and have held production down, all of which have reduced employment in the oil and gas industry. For several years strong efforts have been made by representatives of the producing states to bring about an effective control of oil imports so that our domestic industry would not be completely destroyed. So far, real meaningful controls have not been forthcoming; however, it is now expected that the Administration will, by not later than March 2nd, issue their new imports control plan. All indications are that this plan will be a mandatory one and will control the importation of not only crude oil but products. It is hoped that this new program will bring about a substantial reduction in the present level of crude and product imports, and the announcement of this new plan is anxiously awaited.

Everyone here is hoping that the treatment of Secretary Dulles' cancer will be successful. Regardless of what might be the opinion of the Secretary's policies, there can be no dispute that few men have served with the energy and the dedication that he has demonstrated. It is hoped that he will recover sufficiently to continue in his responsible position as Secretary of State.

Knox Prairie Philosopher Wanders Into The Field Of Education, And Leaves It About As Confused As Ever

Editor's note: The Knox Prairie Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Miller Creek discusses education this week, which is sort of a novelty.

Dear editor:
A lot of people are worried these days about the public education system, that is, as I understand it, the adults are pretty well satisfied with the amount of education they have, but are worried about the amount the kids are getting.

What us grownups really want is enough bright kids with enough scientific education to perfect enough weapons to protect us from the mess we've gotten the world into, and as a result a lot of people are giving a closer look at the schools of this country.

As I understand it, the parents say their kids aren't furnished enough smart teachers, and the teachers say they aren't furnished enough smart kids, and the solutions range all the way from eliminating small schools to raising salaries to putting up more buildings to calling on Congress, provided it doesn't raise taxes.

One solution that I read about in a newspaper last night said since it is impossible to find enough really excellent teachers to go around so every pupil could have the top-notch authority in every subject, from finger painting to tire changing to mathematics to physics to all the other sciences, arts, literature, etc., the thing to do is to use television. All you'd need is about 25 teachers for the whole country, sitting in a studio in Washington and telecasting to all the school houses in the nation. All the local teachers would have to do is stay in the class rooms to see the picture was in focus, a tube hadn't blown, keep them from throwing things through the windows when they're shut, etc. You have to have class rooms, it wouldn't do to let the kids stay at home to watch, or otherwise you couldn't have a PTA or even a pep rally.

As for examinations, the old fashioned grading system would be thrown out, only the 25 teachers at the top would be qualified to grade, and they'd never get around to grading 15 million papers or whatever the number is, and in its place they'd use a punch-card system. The pupils punch a hole in a card to indicate what answer they think is right, the cards are mailed to Washington, run through a machine just like subscriptions to a mass-circulation are handled, and when you've managed to punch the right number of holes, you're educated and ready to go to work explaining why that last missile never got off the launching pad.

I ain't smart enough to know if this system would work, but if you and me are the products of an older system, we'll have to admit it had some flaws too.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

TEXAS SOILS AND CORN PRODUCTION

Although Texas is not commonly considered a major corn-producing state, soils and climate conditions over much of the state lend themselves favorably to corn raising.

This is particularly true of certain corn hybrids which have been developed in recent years to perform under specific soil and climate conditions. Last year, Texas Agricultural Experiment Stations in each potential corn-producing region of the state conducted crop tests with such corn hybrids to determine which were best suited for each region. Designated as "corn performance tests," these planting experiments were conducted at 21 locations under dryland conditions and at two locations under irrigation. Weather conditions during the growing season were highly favorable for corn production in most areas of the state with the estimated 1958 average yield of 26 bushels per acre the highest on record.

For crop-testing and other purposes, Texas land resource areas — areas having related soils and similar climate — are divided into 14 sections, including the East Texas Timberlands, Coast Prairie, Blackland Prairies, East Cross Timbers, Grand Prairie, West Cross Timbers, North Central Prairies, Central Basin, Rio Grande Plain, Edwards Plateau, Rolling Plains, High Plains, and Trans-Pecos.

Corn performance tests were conducted in the Coast Prairie region at Angleton, Prairie View and Cleveland; the East Texas Timberlands at College Station, Kirbyville, Nacogdoches, Tyler, Mount Pleasant and New Boston; the Blackland and Grand Prairies at San Antonio, Martindale, Holland, Temple, McGregor, Waxahachie and Greenville; the East Cross Timbers at Denton, the Rio Grande Plain at Beeville (dryland) and Weslaco (irrigated), the North Central Prairies at Stephenville and the Rolling Plains at Chillicothe.

In the Coastal Prairie tests, yields at Angleton and Prairie View were curtailed somewhat because of lack of moisture during May and June and the test at Cleveland was seriously damaged by insects. However, corn hybrids named Texas 34, Asgrow 102 and Texas 30 produced the highest average yields in this section. Texas 34 and 30 are especially adapted to this area because of their superior resistance to insects and diseases.

In the Blackland and Grand Prairies — which produce about one-fourth of all Texas corn — Funk G710AA, Asgrow 102, Texas 28 and 30 produced highest average yields.

In the Blackland and Grand Prairies, where corn production is often limited by shortage of summer moisture, tests were irrigated once at San Antonio and Martindale to insure production. Asgrow 104, Texas 28 and 30 produced highest yields in this area. In the northern area of this section, the test at Greenville was lost by lack of moisture and yields at McGregor and Waxahachie were curtailed by insufficient moisture and at Denton by insect infestations. Asgrow 104 and Texas 28 were top-yielding hybrids in the area.

In the Rio Grande Plain section, corn is a relatively unimportant crop except for a small area. In the irrigated test at Weslaco, Dixie S2, Texas 28 and Texas 32 gave highest yields. The Beeville dryland test showed Texas 28, Conrad 7 and Texas 36 to be highest yielding hybrids. Although some corn is grown on the eastern edges of the West Cross Timbers and Rolling Plains, corn is of minor importance in these areas. Yields at Stephenville and Chillicothe were curtailed by insufficient moisture during May and June. Texas 28 and 32 produced highest yields in this region.

Scholarship To A&M College To Go To Area Student

COLLEGE STATION — A $3,000 four-year scholarship will be awarded to a student entering Texas A. and M. College next September to study agronomy, it was announced here today by R. G. Perryman, secretary of the Faculty Scholarships Committee of the college.

Candidate for the scholarships must reside in a ten-county area comprised of Taylor, Nolan, Mitchell, Runnels, Callahan, Scurry, Fisher, Jones, Haskell and Knox counties.

Application forms may be obtained from high school principals, county agricultural agents, vocational agricultural teachers or from Mr. Perryman and must be filed not later than March 20.

The scholarship has been made available by the Western Compress and Storage Company, with main offices at Abilene, and compresses and cotton warehouses at Abilene, Hamlin, Rule and Sweetwater.

Previous winners of similar awards are David T. Richburg, Roscoe; Harold Don Barton, Star Route, Sweetwater, and Herman Ray Adams, Rt. 4, Winters.

Ratliff's Jokes Didn't Get Laughs As Airliner Circled Over Airport

A Dallas salesman's jokes fell flat on the ears of 49 other Texans Thursday while their airliner circled a Detroit, Mich., airport with a stuck nose wheel.

"Nobody laughed," said Don L. Ratliff of 4316 Shenandoah, Dallas manager for Massey-Harris-Ferguson, Inc.

The Texans, all dealers or salesmen for the company, were aboard a Braniff International Airways 4-engine plane en route to Detroit for a showing of new farm implements, the Associated Press reported.

"Right after we reached the airport, the pilot, Capt. Barnes Harvey, told us we were in a bit of trouble," Ratliff said. "He told us there was no immediate danger. We guessed that meant there was no danger until the gas ran out."

"I'm a salesman by trade," Ratliff said. "I keep a store of jokes to entertain customers. But during those nervous minutes up there my best stories got nothing but grimaces."

The crew cranked the wheel of the aircraft down manually but they couldn't tell whether it had locked in position. Harvey decided to continue circling the airport while the crew tried to correct the trouble.

"When we finally came in," one passenger said, "Everybody held his breath. You could have heard a pin drop. But the main wheels touched, then the nose wheel, and the plane stopped. I heard 49 sighs plus my own."

Asked if the 50 will fly back home, Ratliff replied: "Sir, that is an insult. Maybe there was a bit of nervousness but we're all from Texas." — Dallas News
