Remodeling Of Baker-Campbell Store Started

The work of remodeling the whole interior of the Baker-Campbell company here so as to provide one of the most modern and attractive merchandising arrangements to be found in any establishment between Wichita Falls and Abilene was started and almost completed here this week.

Announcement also was made by W. A. Baker and J. C. Campbell, proprietors of the business, that the dry goods stock of the Baker-Campbell company store at Wichita Falls has been moved here, as has been the entire stock of the establishment at Robester. The company will continue to operate a grocery and hardware business at Weimer. The Robester store has been closed.

The starting of work here was timed with the arrival of one of the most extensive assortments of new spring merchandise ever to be ordered by the company in an advance of a new season.

The remodeling work now nearing completion is designed to increase display space, to place merchandise where it may be more readily inspected by patrons, and to improve the lighting in the display rooms by the removal of partitions and the elimination of shelving except that against walls. Built in fixtures and tables will replace partition shelving and will place merchandise where it can be more readily inspected. Additional space for the grocery department has been made available by the elimination of a storage room along the south interior of the building.

D. C. Fritz Enters As Candidate For Commission Post

D. C. Fritz, resident of Munday for the last 24 years, announced this week he will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for county commissioner from precinct No. 4.

Mr. Fritz formerly was agent here for the Wichita Valley for five years and, after a lapse of time, served the same line for six years as telegraph operator. For years he has been a successful farmer in the community.

His announcement follows: "I take this opportunity of announcing my candidacy for the office of county commissioner of precinct No. 4.

"I believe my long residence of 24 years in this county and precinct, coupled with my knowledge of what I believe the people need and should have in our precinct, as well as in the county, qualifies me for the office.

"I am in favor of cutting expenses of the county, which, I note, several counties already have done. Also, I will favor tax reductions. I notice the past year's taxes are higher than the previous year in face of the greatest depression we have ever known.

"I am aware of the fact that the commissioners of the county have a very important duty to perform. It is they who must preside over the expenditures of the county's money, etc.

"If I am elected commissioner of this precinct, I promise an efficient and economical administration. I will appreciate your vote and support."

Worms Destroy Four Acres of Oats Near Here

A warning that worms have begun to make their appearance in grain fields was given here Tuesday by Dan Weaver, residing a mile and a half north of town, who reported that four acres of oats had been eaten to the ground by the pests within the space of three or four days.

Mr. Weaver brought in some of the worms collected in his field for examination by the county farm agent.

The oats, he reported, had grown about an inch high when he noticed a few days ago that something seemed to be wrong. He attributed it to weather conditions until he made a closer examination of the field, discovered the worms and found that the oats had been cut down to ground level.

Mrs. Tom Benge returned to her home here Sunday from Paris, Texas, where she had been called two weeks before by the critical illness of her sister, Mrs. M. S. Rowan, who died the following day.

JOHN J. BASKIN TELLS OF CIVIL WAR ON 90TH ANNIVERSARY HERE

"Now is a time for men to stand up and fight."

The advice was that given Tuesday by John J. Baskin, pioneer of Munday and a bullet scarred veteran of the Confederacy, as he quietly observed the 90th anniversary of his birth.

Times today may be bad, Mr. Baskin conceded. But the South, he continued, has seen worse trials and has emerged from them in triumph. The same will be true of the present, he predicted.

Yes, times are bad, but Mr. Baskin has seen far worse. For example—

To this day he recalls as the best meal he ever ate one consisting of raw meat, without salt or bread, eaten as he sat in the forks of a tree in Georgia while awaiting the momentarily expected attack of Sherman's Union soldiers.

Too many times to remember while a soldier of the Confederacy he was glad to get anything that looked like food, without question as to what it was or where it came from.

During months on end during the period of reconstruction following the Civil War, while he was in Louisiana, his almost unbroken diet was soggy corn bread and sour molasses while he split logs at 40 cents per day.

And he doesn't remember just how many droughts, panics and similar trials he experienced during the 50 years he was a Texas farmer.

Still very much alert and keen to the goings on in the world, with hearing unimpaired and still able to walk most anywhere he wants to live, he has not permitted himself to live in the past even though he made his birthday anniversary the occasion for quite a bit of reminiscing. He is very much interested in political affairs, and it is his positive assertion that "if I live and he lives, I am going to cast a vote for John Garner in the next presidential election."

Mr. Baskin takes pride in the fact that he is a Southerner of the old school. He glories in the heroism of the Confederacy and condemns the union forces in the Civil war for having caused un-

Details of arrangements for a quilt show and a game tournament sponsored by the Munday Parent-Teachers association, to be held Friday in the Mayes building at the northwest corner of the square, have been completed, according to the announcement Thursday of Mrs. John Lane, chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements.

Play in the game tournament, including forty-two, eighty-four and dominoes will start Friday evening at 7:45 o'clock with an invitation to the public to attend. An admission of 15 cents for each person, or 25 cents per couple, will be charged to the tournament.

Those wishing to enter quilts were requested to take them to the Mayes building between 9 and 10 o'clock Friday morning. Any further information desired may be obtained from Mrs. Lane. Presbyterians 24

Funeral Services Held at Bomarton For J. R. Proffitt

Funeral services were held at Bomarton, Feb. 17 for J. R. Proffitt, resident of near Munday for several years, who died Feb. 15 at his home in Childress. He was in his 69th year. The Rev. Price of Childress was in charge and burial was in the Goree cemetery.

Eight of Mr. Proffitt's 11 surviving children were at the bedside at the time of death. They include A. J. and J. S. Proffitt of Munday. Six daughters and three other sons additional to those residing here survive. They are Mrs. Cora Saunders, Gainesville, Texas; Lola Wierington, Enola, Okla.; Texas; Mrs. Venie Smith, Knox City; Mrs. Annie Crouch, Bomarton; Mrs. Francis Donoho, Bomarton; and Mrs. Onie Lee Baxley, Childress; V. V. Proffitt, Seymour; A. Y. Proffitt, Kirkland, Texas; and G. K. Proffitt, address unknown.

Mr. Proffitt was born in Kentucky on Aug. 2, 1863, and first came to Munday about 25 years ago. He was married at the age of 24 to Frances Thomas, who died Aug. 9, 1909.

The grand jury for the present term of the 50th district court will convene at Benjamin Munday with the expectation of completing its work and taking a final adjournment, according to information given Thursday by members of the body from Munday.

John Ed Jones of Munday is foreman and D. E. Holder is a member of the jury.

A total of 24 indictments have been returned thus far, Mr. Jones reported.

The following criminal cases have been disposed of during the present court term, according to information given here Thursday by Sheriff C. R. Elliott:

Henry (Nigger Red) Harrison, Munday, prohibition violation, one year; Yldro Hernandez, Gilliland, burglary, five years suspended; Siptano Hernandez and Jose Campos, Gilliland, burglary, two years; Henry Garrett, Goree, burglary, two years; Cornell Smith, negro, Munday, burglary, three years suspended; Buck Hales, Munday, prohibition violator, two years suspended; G. Local Division of Gasco Winner of Sales Prizes

An announcement that the Sweetwater division, including Munday, has won all prizes offered by the Lone Star Gas company in sales campaigns was made at a general meeting of the Sweetwater division Gasco club held a few days ago at Stamford. The Gasco club membership is made up of employees of the Stamford and Western Gas company.

Mr. and Mrs. P. W. Bryan of Munday attended the meeting. Mr. Bryan is local manager of the gas company.

Following a dinner, guests were invited to the Stamford Country club, where bridge and dancing were the divisions.

Build Addition To Garage Here

Construction work on an addition to the Houser filling station and garage building here was started during the early part of the week and will be completed within the next few days. The addition, measuring 14 by 25 feet, extends the southern part of the building and will be used for storage. It is being built of concrete.

CHILD BURNED

Sylvia Parramore, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Parramore, former residents of Munday, was critically injured when her dress ignited from a gas stove at their home in Dallas last week, according to word received by friends here. The child was taken to a hospital where her condition was reported somewhat improved.

Mrs. P. B. Baker, superintendent of the Knox county hospital, and Miss Maude Smith, connected with the same institution, were visitors here Tuesday.

VET ELEPHANT CHOKING CONSTABLE

Tom Pickett, who believes he is the only constable who ever choked an elephant to death, spent Saturday here with his bride of three days, the former Mrs. Bessie Tankersley, a native of Knox county.

Mr. Pickett, who is now in his 73rd year, and Mrs. Tankersley were married Wednesday at Guthrie, in King county, where Mr. Pickett has charge of one of the larger pastures of the 265,000-acre 6666 (Burnett) ranch. There he spent the week-end here with her sister, Mrs. Will Phillips, and her brother, Horace Stamps. Another sister is Mrs. J. C. Fenstermaker, a pioneer resident of Knox county. Mr. and Mrs. Pickett will reside at his ranch home.

Mr. Pickett's career as a cowboy and a peace officer has marked him as one of the most colorful figures in Northwest Texas. He still is active, doesn't look within years of his age, rides regularly and still can at a pitching bronc.

During the more than 50 years he has resided in Northwest Texas, as he was right hand man most of the time to the late Burk Burnett, founder of the 6666 ranch. Mr. Burnett was constable at Wichita Falls for 14 years, was night policeman there four years formerly was an officer at Fort Worth and is a former police chief at Grandfield, Okla. At present he is a constable, a county commissioner and a district school trustee in King county. He has been with the Burnett ranch continuously since 1912.

Additional to the elephant choking episode, which occurred while he was constable in Wichita Falls, Mr. Pickett told, during his brief visit here, of an occasion when he roped a deer, of what he believes to be the champion walker of the universe, of the incident which led to the naming of the 6666 ranch, and of having been in charge of what he believes to be the only train load of cattle ever shipped from this part of the country to New York.

Mr. Pickett is uncertain as to the exact date when a circus pulled into Wichita Falls with a mad elephant which was credited with having killed seven men. The circus was in the city in 1912.

Featured speakers during the course were H. S. Mobley, L. A. Hawkins, John M. Hanson and Miss Grace Mariani Smith, widely recognized authorities on problems of the dirt farmer and of the farm home. They are members of the field team of the Interscholastic Harvester company which arranged the course and presented it under the sponsorship of the Chamber of Commerce. Munday was one of seven towns in West Texas selected for the presentation of the course.

The most largely attended of the sessions was that of Friday morning. The program had been arranged particularly for school pupils, and students of the High School and Grammar School were released from their usual classes in order that they might attend.

Mr. Mobley was the principal speaker on that occasion, lecturing on the subject, "The Educational Use of Knowledge."

Miss Smith was the principal speaker at the Friday afternoon session, lecturing on the subject, "Feeding the Family." Mr. Hanson delivered a lecture illustrated with stereoscopic slides Friday evening on the subject, "Beautifying the Home." Mr. Mobley spoke Saturday morning on "Diversified Farming"; and at the closing session Saturday afternoon, Mr. Hawkins delivered another illustrated lecture, his subject being, "House Gardens."

In his talk of Saturday morning, Mr. Mobley described the "cow, sow and hen" policy as being irresponsible to farm prosperity. Another essential farm necessity, he declared, is diversification of farming, as the means both of increasing the numbers of sources of revenue and as the means of distributing farm labor more evenly through the year.

Miss Smith discussed the subject, "Feeding the Family," from two points of view—first, feeding the family to keep it in good health, and second, doing it in a way to make less work for the women folks.

Declaring that the selection and preparation of food must not be left to ignorant, untrained help, no matter how faithful they are or how good their intentions, Miss Smith added: "The proper selection and preparation of food has to do with our health and a happy family life. Good food, rightly selected and properly prepared, helps build good spirits, good judgment, good health and good disposition. Most grouchy folks have stomach trouble. Most lazy folks have had eating habits."

"The man who eats a soggy, poorly prepared breakfast and goes out to trade mules with a neighbor who had a well-cooked, correctly selected breakfast will get the worst of the deal because the other man's brain is working better."

Continuing, she stressed the need for everyone—men, women, and children—understanding how to select their food to make a balanced ration. "We don't expect an automobile to run on water or vinegar or even good milk," she said. "It's made to run on gasoline. The human body is made to run on certain food elements. It can't run without them."

She insisted that, "Cooking three meals every day is too much of a job for mother," and as a remedy suggested, "long distance cooking, that is, cooking all at one time for a number of meals and putting it

MUNDAYITE WHO KNEW GARNER 'WHEN' CALLS SPEAKER IDEAL COMPANION ON CAMPING TRIP

To most folks, John Garner is just another great man, the speaker of the national house of representatives, and an outstanding presidential possibility.

But to at least three residents of Munday and vicinity he means more than one who has made a mark in history. To at least two Mundayites the term, John Garner, means "friend" with the deepest significance that the term implies. A third citizen, J. B. Jack of Goree, recalls Mr. Garner as being another boy in Red River county with an average boy's aversion for having his face washed.

Perhaps most intimately acquainted with Mr. Garner of Knox county's citizens is W. V. Tiner, Sr., who was reared and resided until his removal to Munday about a month ago in the district which the present speaker has represented in congress for 20 years. Mr. Tiner recently purchased the Lovelless Drug company here, taking charge last Feb. 1.

Another Mundayite who knew John Garner intimately as a boy and young man is Uncle Charlie Brown.

Of the citizens of Texas, few have had better opportunity to study John Garner, the man, than has Mr. Tiner. Mr. Tiner was a boy at Uvalde when Mr. Garner was a young attorney there. Mr. Tiner cast his first vote for Mr. Garner when Garner was running for congress. For eight years, Mr. Tiner rented the business place in which his drug store at Uvalde was housed from Mr. Garner. Tiner and Garner have been on numerous fishing and hunting trips together. The Tiner and Garner families have been intimately acquainted in a social way. Mr. Tiner has exchanged much correspondence with the present speaker of the house of representatives, and among Mr. Tiner's possessions are several letters of introduction from Mr. Garner.

Mr. Tiner's opinion of the present speaker is summarized briefly. "John Garner not only is a great

Dr. Smith Uses Times 'Ad' And Recovers Horse

A horse stolen from Dr. A. A. Smith about 10 days ago was returned as mysteriously as it disappeared during the last week end, he reported Monday. Dr. Smith gave the credit to a brief want ad which appeared in last week's issue of the Times and in which he mentioned that the name of a suspect had been referred to officers for investigation.

The animal was taken from a wheat field in which it had been turned to graze on a farm belonging to Dr. Smith a mile from town. Sunday morning it was grazing there as usual. The animal apparently had suffered no injury.

Complaint Names Young Woman on Forgery Charge

Charged with forging the name of a local farmer to a check for $10, a young woman arrested Tuesday was ordered held for the grand jury under bond of $300 after waiving hearing before W. S. Bailey, justice of the peace. She resided with her husband on a rented place near town, officers reported. The check is alleged to have been given at a grocery store here.

W. D. Beach, who farmed in the Vera community last fall, spent Tuesday here on business. Mr. Beach plans to move to a place in the Weimer section, soon he reported.

Rainfall Dampens Success Here of Big Farm Course

Despite the fact that it collide with the worst spell of weather in short course here Friday and Saturday drew a total attendance estimated by R. D. Rawls, secretary of the chamber of commerce, between 1,100 and 1,200.

The worst spell of nearly two weeks of inclement weather time its arrival with the opening of the short course Friday morning, when rain fell almost continuously during the two days of the sessions which were held in Community hall opposite the High School. Despite weather conditions, however, five of the six scheduled sessions were held, that of Saturday night being called off.

The had weather likewise was blamed for reducing the number of entries in the Munday Poultry and Pet show, held during the same two days in the Mayes building at the northwest corner of City Hall square. Approximately 200 birds were entered however, including some by Knox City and Goree farmers.

man", he remarked. "He is an all-round good citizen, good neighbor and good fellow. He will do more than his part, whether in dealing with affairs of world importance, or in hustling wood for a camp fire.

"Mr. Garner is the ideal combination of the Western and Southern gentleman. He is a man of pronounced conviction and of firm opinion, but he waits until the facts are before him and until he has given them mature deliberation before he arrives at his convictions and opinions. I don't believe that any person ever could question honestly the honesty of any stand Mr. Garner ever has taken in his public or private life."

Mr. Tiner was reared in Uvalde and for 16 years conducted in partnership a drug business there. Then, for the last few years prior to his removal to Munday, he was in the drug business at Crystal City, also in the Garner district.

Mr. Tiner was about 16 years old when Mr. Garner first ran and was elected to congress. Tiner, of course, couldn't vote, but that did not keep him from being an enthusiastic Garner adherent. Garner was elected after a hard fight and over obstacles to the office he since has held. When Mr. Tiner reached his majority, his first vote was for Garner as has been the case in each of the succeeding elections.

Garner and Tiner have been on numerous camping trips together. Tiner is authority for the statement that Garner is about as good a hand at skinning a rabbit, sending a fish, doing rough and ready camp cooking or spinning a yarn as one is likely to find.

Mr. Garner is a forceful speaker, but not an orator of the Bryan type. Mr. Tiner related. He possesses a seemingly inexhaustible energy and is gifted with a ready wit and repartee which has made him one of the most respected antagonists in congressional debate. He also is a good business man, the possessor of "common old horse sense", Mr. Tiner declared.

J. J. Baskin

necessary suffering in the South after the war. But at the same time, he is satisfied that the conflict ended as it did—with the abolishment of slavery and to pave the way for a united nation. It is something of a boast with him that two of his sons were in the thick of world war fighting and that a third son, unable by reason of age to get into the army, still saw foreign service as a driller in England.

Mr. Baskin is a native of Green County, Ala., where he was born on Feb. 23, 1842. He was 20 years and one day old when he enlisted in Company B, 36th Volunteer Infantry, Alabama, in 1862, and started service for the Confederacy which ended when a Yankee bullet ripped through the top of his skull during the fighting at Peach Tree creek around Atlanta in 1864 while doing his part toward making Sherman's march to the sea an unpleasant one. Mr. Baskin will carry the scar of that wound to his grave as an inch-long rip about an inch deep across the crown of his head.

After a brief training period following his enlistment, Mr. Baskin was shifted late in 1862 to Tennessee, where the Confederate forces were being hard pressed. He doesn't recall the first time he "smelled powder", nor the first time he fired toward the enemy's line. He took part in the major battles of Chickamauga and Mission Ridge, and in more skirmishes and minor engagements than he can recall.

"Our colonel," Mr. Baskin related, "was a West Pointer named Woodruff—and he was a good one. He used to tell us, 'Don't shoot above their knees, because a crippled Yankee is worth three dead ones'. A crippled Yankee meant three men were put out of action—the one who was shot and two men to take care of him."

Mr. Baskin, although he fired a hundred of bullets in the general direction of the Yanks, doesn't know for a certainty that any one of those bullets got a man. He suspects pretty strongly that they did, because he was a sharpshooter. He knows of one instance when he believes that his bullet brought down a man. On that occasion, he related, he discovered five Union soldiers approaching. "I fired", he related, "and one of them fell. Then I started to run backward. As I turned, my foot caught and I fell. At that instant, the four other Yanks cut loose, and their bullets crashed where I would have been had I not fallen."

Mr. Baskin's most trying time as a Confederate soldier occurred while he was one of Hood's army which harassed Sherman's Union forces as they marched to the sea, devastating a strip many miles wide as they advanced. "Hood's army numbered fewer than 42,000 men", Mr. Baskin related. "That army killed, wounded or captured more than 42,000 Union soldiers while Sherman was advancing on Atlanta."

The major engagements in which Mr. Baskin participated at that time were at Resaca, Ga., where he was wounded in the shoulder; at New Hope church, Ga., and at Peach Tree creek, where he was put out of action for the remainder of the war. Mr. Baskin recalled two instances of unusual Confederate heroism during those times.

"It was at New Hope church," he related, "when I lay within six feet of a cannon manned by three brothers. The Yanks were advancing. One of the brothers fell, killed instantly. His two brothers carried the body behind a nearby tree, wiped the blood from the dead man's face, kissed it and returned to their cannon. Soon after, a second brother was shot through the leg, badly wounded. The third brother carried the wounded man to the shelter of the tree, and then returned to the cannon and resumed fire. We stopped the Yanks that day."

"Then there was another fellow in our regiment named Newman, who always boasted that he never would surrender. And he didn't. Surrounded during the fighting at Resaca, he refused to give up even after his companions had thrown down their arms. They killed him, but he carried five Union soldiers with him. One he shot, three he bayoneted and he crushed the skull of another with the butt of his gun."

Mr. Baskin joined his father in Northern Louisiana soon after the close of the war, and tells many stirring tales of the carpetbaggers and the Ku Klux Klan. He first came to Texas in 1883, and in 1892 moved to his present home, where he has remained since.

Mr. Baskin has four sons and two daughters living. He makes his home here with one daughter, Miss Mary Baskin, who baked a large cake on the occasion of her father's anniversary. Another daughter is Mrs. Maggie DeLoach of Parker, Ariz. The sons are Fred Baskin of San Francisco; William, of Seattle, Wash.; Charner of Kansas City, Mo.; and Luman H. of Corpus Christi. William and Charner saw active service in France during the World war, William with the 36th division and Charner with the first division. Charner emerged from that conflict with a machine gun wound in his leg.

cus management wanted the animal executed, but had found difficulty in locating the man for the job. Mr. Pickett proved to be the man.

The elephant, heavily shackled and with heavy chains about its neck, was led to a pasture which since has become one of the exclusive residential sections of Wichita Falls. A number of rifle bullets were fired into the elephant's carcass without result. Strangulation then was resorted to, a team of mules being used to tighten and hold the chain about the elephant's neck.

Mr. Pickett had not been in this country long when he roped his deer. Incidentally, he was born only a few miles from the present site of Fort Worth and remembers when Dallas consisted of a single store. He first located Wichita Falls in 1881, where he entered the employ of Burk Burnett.

Mr. Pickett was riding fences toward the banks of the Red river on a stormy night a year or two later when he spotted the deer. The river and two nearby tributary streams were running bank full, and the deer made several attempts to swim them. Each time, however, the animal turned back to the bank, unable to negotiate the swift water.

Two companions were with Mr. Pickett and they suggested that the deer be shot. Pickett stopped them. Guiding his throw by lightning flashes, Pickett lassoed the deer, tied it up and carried it to his home, where it died a few days later.

Pickett believes that the walking championship of the universe belongs to a negro named Grant, who negotiated the distance on foot between the present site of Iowa Park and Fort Worth in about 36 hours.

The negro, Mr. Pickett related, was working for a ranchman who had accused another of stealing his cattle. The accused ranchman rode one morning to the corral where the negro was working. The negro's employer was in the ranch house not far away.

"I'm going to kill a white man for breakfast and a nigger for dinner", the visiting ranchman remarked to the negro. The visitor then rode to the ranch house. An instant after there was a shot.

The negro, Pickett continued, didn't wait to find out who had been shot, but started from there. He landed in Fort Worth the next afternoon, declaring he had traveled all except about three miles the distance afoot. Then he learned that the man from whom he was running had been killed.

The generally accepted story of the naming of the 6666 ranch, Mr. Pickett declared, is incorrect. That story is to the effect that Mr. Burnett won the ranch by drawing four sixes in a game of jackpot. The correct version, Pickett added, is that Burnett, after winning about $150 in a game of jackpot with four sixes, declared that if he ever owned a ranch, it would be named the four-sixes.

on the shelves—in other words, raising meats, fruits and vegetables, so that mother can open cans and serve ready cooked, balanced meals.

"During 20, 30, 40 years of her life, Mother cooks—one thousand meals a year. Then there are the dishes to wash, the cleaning and sewing to do, and the children to care for. Men dislike to milk cows twice a day—that what about Mother who cooks three times a day?"

"Milk," she reminded her hearers, "is the nearest perfect of all human foods. Every child should have at least a quart, and every grown-up a pint of milk a day. This does not mean that the child must drink a quart of milk a day, though most of them will if given a chance at good, clean, whole milk. It also means milk soups, creamed vegetables, milk gravies, puddings, custards, ice cream and butter."

"Good diet is not built around bread, meat and potatoes, it is built around milk, eggs, fruits and vegetables."

She stressed the value of vitamins. Because some vitamins are killed by cooking, scientists tell us we should eat at least one raw fruit or vegetable each day.

Fifty-eight lantern slides, many of them in natural colors, were used by Mr. Hannon in his talk on "Beautifying the Home Grounds."

These slides illustrated, among other things, the good and bad methods of landscaping. Several of them showed foundation and border planting always used by the best landscape gardeners. Foundation plantings are composed of flowers or shrubbery so placed as to screen the unsightly foundations of buildings. Border plantings, as the name indicates, are plants placed along the borders of walks or driveways.

The slides graphically brought out the beauty of placing trees and shrubbery along the edges of the grounds, walks and drives and leaving the lawns open. Open lawns, Mr. Hannon explained, appear larger than those that are covered with trees or shrubbery.

Knowledge is education only when it is put to work. Mr. Mobley said Friday morning.

"The greatest art is living a wholesome life and being able to support a wholesome standard of life."

"Knowledge is a very essential thing, but a greater thing is the use of knowledge. Knowledge, alone, is not education. Education is knowing how to use your knowledge. Education is simply a tool. Its value is the use made of it."

"No amount of school training can make a boy accomplish much unless he uses what he knows. We always admire winners, but a winner is only a man who puts what he knows into action. It is not, What you do know? It is, What are you going to do with what you know?"

"No one can give us knowledge. No one else can use my knowledge. If anyone uses it, it is his knowledge. A little knowledge used is better than a lot of knowledge not used. The one who handles big things began by using what he knew about little things."

"I do not believe that opportunity comes but once. Often we do not recognize it because we look for it as a child of ease, robed in splendor, but it is a child of hard work, clothed in coveralls."

In his interesting and helpful talk on "The Vegetable Garden," Mr. L. A. Hawkins showed about 60 lantern slides to illustrate his various points.

Before showing the pictures, he emphasized the value of a vegetable garden for the home and especially the farm home.

"Grow your own living, don't buy it." That he declared to be the best agricultural slogan he ever heard. "Yet," he said, "the people in many sections do not do so, and very few folks," he continued, "have vegetable gardens that supply the year 'round requirements."

Among other things, the slides illustrated the best method of making the garden pay; the value of fresh vegetables for health; a good location for a garden; the disadvantages of too much shade; the things that are needed for a good garden; a convenient garden layout; good soils and poor soils; the importance of a hot bed and how to make one; flats and window boxes for young plants; the importance of testing seed and how to test them; why thorough disking of the ground in spring is necessary; getting the most out of the rain; marking out the rows; sowing seed; thinning the rows; protecting young plants; farm gardens, small town gardens and school gardens; mulching and irrigating; controlling insects; marketing to best advantage; varieties to grow; storing.

During the showing of the slides, Mr. Hawkins discussed each point illustrated.

One of the features of the poultry and pet show was an exhibit arranged by boys of the agriculture vocational department of the high school. Crop pests common to this section and their control, terracing methods, hog feeding rations and tools were included in the exhibit. Awards in the poultry show, made by Mr. Rawls after efforts to procure another judge had been unsuccessful, were announced as follows, the judging taking place late in the show when it became apparent that an expected judge would not arrive.

CHILDREN CRY FOR IT

CHILDREN hate to take medicine as a rule, but every child loves the taste of Castoria. And this pure vegetable preparation is just as good as it tastes; just as bland and just as harmless as the recipe reads.

When Baby's cry warns of colic, a few drops of Castoria has him peaceful, asleep again in a jiffy. Nothing is more valuable in diarrhea. When coated tongue or bad breath tell of constipation, invoke its gentle aid to cleanse and regulate a child's bowels. In colds or children's diseases, you should use it to keep the system from clogging.

Castoria is sold in every drugstore; the genuine always bears Chas. H. Fletcher's signature.
