"BUY AMERICAN" WITH WHAT?

The Texas Weekly in its current issue jumps all over the Saturday Evening Post for publication of an article by Samuel G. Blythe urging Americans to buy only goods made in America. The Texas Weekly points out that only 10 per cent of Texas cotton is consumed by America, and to boycott our foreign consumers of cotton would further demoralize the price of the commodity, and it pertinently asks repeatedly with what American might "Buy American" if we are to close our doors against foreign made goods. Unless the cotton farmers of the south can sell a large percentage of the cotton produced in the South to foreign countries, what will he have to buy American-made goods.

It's the same old fight of the protectionists. They would throw every protection around the manufacturer at the expense of the producer. It is the same old Republican theory that was so thoroughly rebuked at the polls recently, and the Saturday Evening Post and other influential publications will experience much difficulty in selling the American public on such a policy. Certainly the phrase, "Buy American," sounds good, but when it is analyzed and we discover that to sell our one and only money crop to an advantage we must reciprocate with foreign nations, then it is that we realize that such articles are propaganda for and in the interest of certain selfish interests in this country who in years gone by have waxed fat off the producers of this country, and we believe that they have awakened to the extent that they will no longer be swept off their feet by patriotic sounding phrases and a policy of isolation that will throw the producers of this country into bankruptcy, if indeed such a policy has not already done that very thing.

erably lower price, and for "Heavy Cattle," the kind we always bought. The hardware man was standing out in front, and as I knew him remarked that if it was not too far to haul he would have made a sale to me. "Far to haul?" said he. "I'll make this price anywhere in the country for cash." Well, he took my check, and the deal was closed. A few days later I drove out to the farm on my regular weekly visit, and on the way I met one of my farm neighbors driving into town. He owed the bank a little. I was not worried about that, but I thought it good policy to be friendly and we stopped long enough to say hello. He mentioned in the conversation that he was going into town to get some barbed wire, as he had to do some fencing, and I naturally told him of the bargain I got at the county seat. He went on, and I did not think any more about it until I got out to the place. The first thing my hired man mentioned to me was the fencing. He thought I got it, as usual, from the hardware man in our town, and said he must have sent us the wrong wire, as it was lighter than I usually got. I just said I thought the lighter weight would do, as it saved considerable money—though my man knew that was not my policy.

THE SMALL TOWN CAN IT SURVIVE

(This story related by a country banker tells how some fail. Reprinted by special permission, Retail Lumberman.)
By James F. Goodman of Kansas City, Mo.
I came to this little town in the early days when it was just beginning, and established my bank. It was a good farming country, my bank prospered, and I did a good deal towards the building of the town. I contributed liberally to its churches, and am responsible for our having a fine, large high school—a little bigger and better than we need, but a good advertisement for the town, even if the sinking fund and interest are a little burdensome on our citizens.

I own the two-story brick building on Main Street occupied by our leading dry goods merchant on one side, and our principal hardware man on the other, with the commercial club rooms and the Masonic Lodge upstairs, and room enough for one of our leading dentists to have an office and reception room. And I have a pretty good farm about a mile and a half from town, adjoining the Country Club—valuable as a farm, and further valuable as a potential subdivision.

I have a lot of friends whom I like because they appreciate me and I also appreciate them.

It is a nice, clean town—no slums, no graft, and only enough scandal to keep conversation going—an ideal American situation.

Incidentally, our town is a chicken, butter and egg center, and ships a lot of cattle and hogs to market, all of which I am proud of because my bank, with a liberal policy of financing based on the real value of farms in our neighborhood, has helped build up this business.

One day I had some business to attend to at the county seat, eighteen miles from our town, and my wife went over with me. While I was in the court house she did a little window shopping, and as she got into the car to come home she remarked on what a good-looking dress she had seen in one of the store windows, and how reasonably it was priced; but she remarked that as the baker's wife it was probably her duty to buy in the town. "Oh," I said, "I guess that's all right. I don't owe the town anything. I and my bank have done more for the town than it can ever do for us."

We got the dress. The style was rather snappy, but on close examination the price was about the same we would have paid at home.

When we came out I noticed a big pile of barbed wire in front of a neighboring store, with a special price on it. I knew it was low, for I had a memorandum from the renter on the farm to re-fence the two large pastures, and priced the wire at the hardware store that morning before leaving home. And here was a consid-wanted, and went to a show and brought their groceries home with er camp-back. So I had an empty store because it was so handy and they felt they had saved a little money. Quite a few of the other women got into the habit of buying their clothes at the county seat, and telling each other how much they saved, until finally the dry goods man couldn't make it off needles and thread and hooks and eyes and cheap yard goods, and had to quit. He tried to sell out, and one of the chains looked the place over and made some inquiries around town—and never returned. So I had an empty store room, and no immediate hopes of renting. That left an empty house in town, too, but that didn't worry me, as the dry goods man had rented his house from the leading grocer and not from me. The next bad news was that our leading grocer had found that the bulk of his business was going to the county seat, and he was going to move over there to take care of it. ### Work Weary "NERVES"

Do they make you Restless, Cranky, Tired, Sleepless, Dyspeptic, Head-achy? Do they spoil your pleasure and interfere with your work?

Tens of thousands have found a way to get relief from over-worked nerves—a way so simple, so pleasant, so low in cost, that we are constantly receiving letters that say, "If I had only found Effervescent Nerve Tablets sooner." Simon Brandt writes: "I was very nervous from over-work. I couldn't sleep well, appetite was poor, and I felt weak for a long time. Used Dr. Miles' Nerveine and now feel fifteen years younger and I am working the same as I did before—fourteen to fifteen hours daily. Sorry I did not learn about this wonderful medicine sooner as I had tried everything I could hear of, without results, until Dr. Miles' Nerveine put me back on my feet."

When you are nervous, try this—put a Dr. Miles' Effervescent Nerve Tablet into a glass of water. Watch it bubble up like sparkling spring water—drink it—enjoy the feeling of calm and relaxation that follows.

In Dr. Miles' Effervescent Nerve Tablets a splendid formula for soothing over-taxed nerves is combined with bicarbonate of soda and citric acid, which tend to correct hyper-acidosis—the frequent cause of nervousness.

THE SMALL TOWN.
CAN IT SURVIVE

he did; and the hardware man, whose business was falling off, moved into the grocery's old location at cheaper rent. (The grocer owned his own building, and had said to a friend over in the county seat that he saw the town was running down, and could afford to take almost any rent that would get him a good tenant.)
Well, that took another good account out of the bank, left my other store room empty, and two empty houses in town. It made the main street look kind of had to have two empty stores in such a prominent place, especially now that they did not have any nice, bright window displays in them. I thought of painting them up fresh, and cleaning the windows, but I didn't feel like putting any money in them when they were not bringing me in anything.
I was a little alarmed now at the way our bank deposits were going down, but that wasn't so very serious, as we could call in some of our loans, or sell a mortgage or two. And that reminded me—we had a mortgage on the house our grocer had owned. He wasn't on the mortgage himself, but had bought the house and we had neglected to get his name on the note, and had relied on the value of the house as security, as the original maker of the note was gone, no one knew where.

The interest was just past due on the mortgage. Investigation showed that the taxes had not been paid, and that grocer had very evidently abandoned the property to us. Before foreclosing I thought it might be better to find a buyer who would assume the mortgage; or, if we foreclosed, buy the property from us for just to pay the loan and taxes.
But no buyer was to be had. It was a new house; there was another house in town empty, where the dry goods man had lived, and two empty store buildings; and nobody wanted to buy real estate in a town that was beginning to go down. It made me question the value of all real estate, including my own, and especially those pieces of property on which I or the bank held mortgages. The bank was not supposed to lend money on real estate, but there were a few farms and a few pieces of property in town which anyone—even a bank examiner—would recognize as gilt edge.

What I found was not very encouraging, but I still had confidence in the moral risk on the paper. Just about this time I concluded that my farm was too big a luxury, and perhaps, anyway, I'd be better off with a little more cash than so much real estate. I remembered that I'd had two good offers for half of it not so long ago, and I thought now would be a good time to accept them before things got worse.
However, one of these offers had been from the hardware man, and I had to count him out. The other had been from a neighboring farmer who wanted to add more land to his own place. Next time he came into the bank I mentioned it to him. (I knew he had plenty of money to pay for the place, or could borrow the balance from the bank.)

Well, he hemmed and hawed a good deal. Then he told me he was really trying to sell his own place and move nearer a good town. That we didn't have the place we used to have in our town, and he would do better at the county seat; that the produce dealer was on his last legs. (I hadn't heard that) and was going to have to quit because so many farmers took their stuff to the county seat when they went there to trade. Apparently his farm and mine, two of the best in the neighborhood, were unmarketable.

The next blow was when the lumber yard moved out and left a hundred-foot gap on our main street. The street was certainly beginning to look ragged. One merchant after another left. Real estate was not worth even farm prices and I lost the tenant on my farm.
What I think I miss most is not the better income I had, but all my old friends, my church and lodge connections, and the people to whom I was useful or important in old days.
Well, the bank didn't bust. We paid everyone out in full except the stockholders, and we gave them real estate and mortgages on town and farm property—not worth anything in cash, but I am making it all right now, as I have a job in the county seat bank.

HOME ECONOMICS
The Department of Home Economics has been very busy the last few days. On Thursday, December 1, the state supervisor visited in this department. She visited all the classes and commented that the work was being done very highly.
On Friday afternoon, open house was held. The mothers of the girls in the clothing classes were invited to be present. They inspected the tailored dresses completed by the girls.
The third important event is the help the girls are giving the Red Cross. Each girl in the clothing classes is making a dress; utilizing the material furnished by the government to the Munday Red Cross. The girls in the food classes are preparing boxes of food as Christmas gifts for the needy families.

JUNIORS
Well folks, more new books are in the library now, and it is needless to say that we are very proud of them. We shall now have something worthwhile and interesting to do on long winter evenings.
"So live that when thy summons come to join the innumerable—"
As it would probably not be very safe, please do not repeat lines from "Thanatopsis" by Bryant, around any Junior for if you do he is very likely to throw his hands in the air and start acting as if he were not in his right mind, but really it isn't so bad after all (I mean the Juniors' mind) when you come to think what he had to memorize from that well-known poem.
When we were asked to memorize ten lines from any of Poe's poems in English class it seemed that "Annabel Lee" was very popular, as nearly every member of the class memorized lines from that poem.
Another six weeks has about rolled by and we Juniors are studying for examinations that will probably present themselves this week. We are not expecting to be disappointed with our grades when we get our report cards.

SENIOR SCRAPBOOK
Another week has sped hastily by, and with the closing of this week we find ourselves passing another milestone toward our graduation. With the beginning of the coming week we shall endeavor to become better students. Well, so much for the past, present and future. We seniors are working enthusiastically and industriously on our drama "The Mystery of the Third Grade." The date when it is to be presented, if you remember correctly, is December 22. A regular Christmas gift! Folks, you can't afford to miss this wonderful drama; it isn't often you get to see such a "keen" play acted by home products.

Have you ever wondered about the daily life of the seniors? For the benefit of those who have such an interest, we are starting a column, giving you little interesting facts about them.
Who's Who in the Senior Class
Norene Bowden tells us that she saw Mr. "Peek" in town Monday, and waved at him. We hope this doesn't prove serious.
Barbara Eiland declares that "taste makes wist."
Jesse George Kennedy uses matches for his calling cards.
Chalmer Hebert is fond of "pink" not toothbrush, but—Listerine.
Doris Dickerson complains that his corn "hurts. Just for fun he was told that tomato juice was good for it.
Katherine Milam has become absent-minded. Why? She's turned to a substitute teacher.

Katherine Jones is fond of "Rich" men.
Marvin Myers is "that way" about Chlo Owens.
Katie Beth Bowden made 95 on an English test—meaning she's a good student.
Lowry Rigbsby likes to smell chloroform because it assists him in day dreaming.
J. C. Rice believes that we breathe oxygen by day and nitrogen by night.
Pauline Edwards is striving to become sophisticated.
That's all of the "low down" on the seniors for this week, but you have a dandy surprise waiting for you next week.
Will Rogers, Jr., a freshman at Stanford, got his name in the paper recently for breaking a freshman swimming record?

The wets may come
With a bottle of rum
If I hadn't taken that I wouldn't got none.
Hi, Lo, Jick, Jack, Jane.
FRESHMEN.

This is the last week of the second six-weeks, so you can imagine how busy we are.
We have just finished our oral book reports in English, and they were very interesting. We are now reviewing for our six-weeks examinations.
Mr. Harrell is letting the ones that made below 70 on the Algebra test visit him after school. We appreciate his interest in our welfare.

RIGSBY'S ROUNDUP.
The boys, interested in high school basketball, met with Mr. Hardigree on Monday, December 5, to discuss the organization of this year's squad. It looks as if we will be well represented this year. Workout begins this week. No games have been yet determined, but I'll let you know the schedule as soon as possible. Let's make this year another like last year, only let's don't stop at district. Well, here we go for another season of basketball.

Could Your Car Pass a "Cold Test" like this?

Through deep snow drifts that blanketed Wolf Creek Pass, 10,800 feet above sea level in Colorado's Rockies, a great V-type snow plow doggedly pushed its way. A whirling rotary plow spouted clouds of snow, clearing the roadway. And soon, despite temperatures daily below zero, workers of Liberty Truck & Parts Co., of Denver, had opened the 15-mile road.

"We used Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil and Conoco Gasoline exclusively in our Cletrac Tractors with wonderful results," wrote a Liberty official. "We had no difficulty starting our motors in the mornings."

There's a "cold test" to guide you in buying motor oil!
Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil is thoroughly dewaxed and circulates freely below zero. It makes Winter-starting easier. More important still, it saves your motor from terrific punishment during the starting period, when half of all motor wear occurs! Other oils drain away overnight. A "Hidden Quart" of Conoco Germ Processed Oil stays up in your motor and lubricates before your motor starts.

Only Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil can offer you this vital protection, for it is the only oil that penetrates and combines with metal surfaces. Let it protect your motor this Winter.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

For December Place Cards HOUSEHOLD HINTS Christmas Gifts

With Christmas not many days away, I suppose most of you folks are busy listing what you're going to get for Uncle John, Aunt Kate, the youngsters and others who are near and dear to you. Save yourself some time in planning. Keep a good notebook handy and, as Gift suggestions come to mind, jot them down. Then—whether the Gift is home-made or bought—wrap it as soon as you have it ready at hand.

Make your Gifts individual—something you know the recipient has personal desire for—something you know she or he will appreciate not only for its worth, but for the true Christmas spirit in which it is given.

Take care in selecting Children's Gifts. Far better to make them constructive rather than destructive gifts. And as well nigh unbreakable as possible—so that the children may find delight in them for a long time to come.

Artificial trimmings are pretty and economical. When put away carefully they will last a good many years. Such as small Christmas trees, cherries, poinsettias, holly.

By Betty Webster
One can always buy pretty place cards, but very nice ones can be made with little trouble or expense. It is easy to make Santa Claus place cards, Stocking place cards and Star place cards. Use parts of Christmas souvenir postal cards. Cut out advertisements pertaining to Christmas—color and paste on plain cards of desired shapes.

COOKING HINTS
Cranberry Hint
When cooking cranberries add a thin slice of apple to each pint of cranberries. This will take the bitterness away without interfering with the tartness.

Grapefruit Cocktail
Line sherbert glasses with lettuce leaves. Skin and cut up grapefruit. Fill glasses with cut up grapefruit. Sprinkle grapefruit with sugar. Add 1 teaspoon of maraschino cherry juice to each cocktail. Top each glass with a cherry.

Cranberry Apple Sauce
1 cup of ground apples.
1 cup of sugar.
1 cup of chopped cranberries.
Method: Mix well. Serve uncooked, with meats.

Stuffed Dates
These are always a good addition to a Christmas candy box. Stuff them with nuts, prunes, orange marmalade or fondant.

BAKING HINTS
Delicious Mince Meat
4 pounds of lean beef.
2 pounds of beef suet.
3 pounds of sugar.
2 quarts of cider.
4 pounds of seeded raisins.

3 pounds of currants.
1/2 pound of citron.
1 quart of pickle juice.
1 tablespoon of cinnamon.
1/2 tablespoon of powdered clove.
1/2 tablespoon of allspice.
1 1/2 cups of stock the meat was cooked in.
1 lemon soaked in hot water.
Salt.

Method: Cover meat and suet with boiling water and cook until tender. Chop meat. Chop meat. Chop apples and add to meat. Then add sugar, cider, raisins, currants, citron, suet and stock. Heat gradually and cook slowly for 2 hours. Then add juices and spices. Put in large crock and cover. A small quantity can be made. A jar of mince meat prettily decorated makes a very nice Christmas present.

Ginger Cookie Men
3 cups of flour.
3 teaspoons of baking powder.
1-3 teaspoon of salt.
3-4 teaspoon of ginger.
1-3 cup of shortening.
2-3 cup of molasses.
1-3 cup of brown sugar.
1 egg.

Method: Salt flour, baking powder, salt and ginger together. Mix molasses, egg, melted shortening and sugar together. Add the dry ingredients. This makes a soft dough. Shape in form of men, animals or plain cookies. Bake in a moderate oven 10 to 15 minutes. Grease pan. Use cloves, rice or currants for eyes and buttons.

A Warning to Motorists

By Dr. William J. Scholes
All of the deaths caused by automobiles are not due to reckless driving or to "jay walking." Each year a large number of people lose their lives by poisoning from automobile exhaust gas.

Many people who know that illuminating gas and coal gas are dangerous, seem to be unaware of the dangers of inhaling automobile exhaust gas.

The story of most of these tragedies is essentially the same. The victim has gone into the garage—usually a one or two-car private garage—and started the motor of his car. He has neglected to open the doors of the garage. He has remained in the closed, unventilated garage for a few minutes tinkering with the car while the motor was running. In the meantime the concentration of carbon monoxide in the air has been increasing to dangerous proportions.

Gas Not Perceptible.
Now carbon monoxide gas cannot be seen. It has no odor or taste. One does not know that he is getting a poisonous dose until symptoms of poisoning develop. And these symptoms are perhaps not long in developing. They are headache, dizziness,

THE GREAT BROADCAST * * *

Known the world over for his "Lopez speaking," he confided recently the real origin of the phrase. It was due, he says, entirely to "mike fright!" For on the day nine years ago, when he faced his first microphone, he could not think of anything else to say or do.

Burns and Allen, the president of the radio station and the reception clerk in "The Big Broadcast," made their radio debut in London. Veterans of vaudeville, they were an instant success over the air, and followed their London engagement with radio contracts in this country.

Not for any one of them was the road to the heights particularly thorny. Stuart Erwin and the other movie favorites who appear with the radio stars in "The Big Broadcast" can each show a much harder struggle toward success.
