MR. COTTON-GROWER

The above cartoon tells its own story. It has been sent to this paper and probably thousands of other newspapers by the Department of Agriculture, and is designed as a plea to farmers to cooperate with the Department of Agriculture in reducing cotton acreage on the plan made available by the Department of Agriculture.

The rapid advance in the price of cotton during the past few weeks is declared by practically all authorities to be due to the activity of the Department of Agriculture in reducing acreage, and it is predicted that if the plan is successful there will be still further sharp advances in the price of cotton. These same authorities are equally positive that should this plan meet with failure the price of cotton will drop to the six cent level, which will represent the price range at which this crop will be sold this fall. While the plan may not be perfect, it represents the only hope for the cotton farmer of the Southland, and it is gratifying to note that farmers everywhere are giving their hearty cooperation to the movement. There is nothing compulsory, but the failure of this plan will make any future plans far more difficult to carry out, and upon the farmer rests the full responsibility of success or failure in this movement as well as future movements designed to bring relief.

To our way of thinking, with acreage reduced along the lines set by the Department of Agriculture and the restoration of a living price for the staple a buying-power will be created that will completely wipe out the 13 million bale surplus, and with this surplus wiped out the farmer will face the future with hope and confidence. If on the other hand, the farmers fail to join in the movement, the outlook promises very little hope.

For a number of years the question of acreage reduction has been one of the perplexing problems of the cotton-producing areas. Laws have been suggested curtailing acreage by legislation, and in the past it has even been agitated that a "cotton holiday" be declared prohibiting the planting of any cotton for a one-year period by legislation, Louisiana having passed such a law, effective in the event that a certain number of other cotton-producing states passed similar laws. But never have the farmers had the opportunity to realize actual cash money for acreage retired, and should the present plan fail we are wondering just what could be done to relieve the situation and to save the South from bankruptcy.

Mr. Farmer, it's up to you!

Famed Flyer Is Appointed Manager Of Aviation Sales

Captain Al J. Williams Accepts Important Post With Gulf Refining Co.

Noted aviator, winner of many world's speed records, and holder of the Distinguished Flying Cross, Captain Al J. Williams has accepted the position of Manager of Aviation Sales with the Gulf Refining Company. He takes over this responsibility to devote his wide flying experience to industrial progress. He will assume his post immediately.

This announcement has particular importance not only because Captain Williams is one of America's foremost exponents of aviation but also because his experience as businessman, writer, lecturer, and lawyer fits him for his duties.

His career has been featured by many outstanding acknowledgements of his prowess as an ace flyer. In addition to winning the Distinguished Flying Cross, Captain Williams was one of the twelve men selected in the United States in "recognition of services rendered to aeronautics" by the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. For eight consecutive years he held the American speed record for airplanes.

Captain Williams enlisted in the Navy for the duration of the war as naval aviator. He specialized in testing airplanes for the Navy Department and developing aerial aerodynamics for purposes of fighting in the air. From 1928 until 1930, when he resigned from the Navy, he specialized in high speed research.

At the time that he received the Distinguished Flying Cross, Captain Williams also received a citation from the Secretary of the Navy. This stated, in part: that he had many times undergone risk of his life for the benefit of the service—that, up to 1925, he had performed this duty with aid of parachute where a serious crash was expected—that he flew one plane to complete destruction to elicit information on the vital subject of flat spinning of service aircraft—that his constant association with test and development work had been occasioned by the desire of the chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics to continue him in a position where the Navy could get the most benefit of his experience and ability—that the standard combat type of plane reflects many of the improvements pioneered in racing by him—that from 1922 on he played a major part in keeping the Navy in the fore in heavier-than-air development—that in articles written to the public he had shown himself to be a scholar as well as a master pilot.

Today Captain Williams' busy life supplies him with a diversity of interests and makes him doubly valuable as Manager of Aviation Sales for the Gulf Refining Company. He is one of the officers of the Delaware Chemical Engineering Company, a steady contributor to the Saturday Evening Post, Collier's, Liberty, and Aeronautical Journals on aviation Taxes....

IN TEXAS the natural gas industry and ultimately the gas consumers are required to pay four special tax levies to the state as follows:

Under one article of the state statutes, the gas companies pay an annual franchise tax. Under another article, gas distribution companies are required to pay a tax of one-half of one per cent of their gross receipts in all cities and towns with a population of from 2,500 to 10,000, and one per cent of their gross receipts in towns of over 10,000 population. Under still another article, a gross production tax of two per cent is levied upon all natural gas, and under a further article gas pipeline companies are required to pay a gas utilities tax of one-fourth of one per cent of their gross receipts.

The natural gas utilities are required to pay to the state two special tax levies which no other utility is required to pay. In addition to the various special taxes collected by the state, the gas utilities are required to pay many other tax levies, such as Federal Income Tax, Revenue Stamp Tax, Ad Valorem taxes levied by Road Districts, Water Improvement Districts, Levee Districts, Independent School Districts, and the Ad Valorem tax levies made for the support of the various city, county and state governments.

This company is willing to pay, and should pay, its just share of the reasonable cost of government; however, there appears to be a constant and growing tendency on the part of some tax assessors, tax boards and tax commissions to increase the values and raise the taxes of the gas utilities entirely out of proportion to the values and the taxes levied upon other personal property. Ultimately, this must result in a higher price for gas to the consumer. Under the present burden of taxation it requires approximately 56c out of every bill rendered to the gas consumer to pay taxes. Such taxes must be charged as an operating expense to the customer, because the company cannot control this expense and is merely a collector of the tax.

Story of Mrs. Roy Jones, Winner in Class 11 in Wardrobe Contest

Entering Class 11 as a demonstrator I felt that I had quite a task before me. I was mistaken as I have found the work a pleasure as well as very profitable. I feel like I am not the only one who will benefit from it as I am better qualified to help my neighbors with their sewing problems.

I have learned to select carefully the lines and colors most becoming to me, and when buying materials to consider the quality before the price. Being a demonstrator has also caused me to be a close observer. I always notice the style and color of the dresses the women wear and try to decide whether or not it is becoming.

I am very proud of my foundation pattern. It will save me worry, time and money. What a relief to you have a pattern you can depend on! I have helped ten other women with foundation patterns, and as a demonstrator, I hope to get more women interested in the work by dressing properly and economically.

I have kept records this year for my husband and myself as that is all of my family. Keeping records helps to balance the budget. My wardrobe was planned not to exceed $100.00; my husband's wardrobe not to exceed $75.00. My expenditures up to date have been $74.75 and my husband's $54.25.

We each have a closet for storage built from the floor to the ceiling, equipped with storage space above, rods for hanging clothes and racks for shoes. There is a closet in my spare bedroom where I store the out of season clothes, therefore leaving more space in our closets for the clothing we use.

I hope to learn how to plan my entire wardrobe better and to use my foundation pattern to cut any thing I want for I know that if we learn to cut and sew well, we can dress better with less cost.

If clothes are not cared for properly it does not make much difference what kind you have, they will never look nice. You will feel and look better when you put them on if they are kept clean, pressed and on hangers in a dark, light closet.

I have studied and planned my shoes dress and lip to the color of my hair and have tried to make it neat, not too plain or yet not too flashy—suitable for a dress-up dress, yet easily laundered.

My year as a demonstrator in Class 11 has been very pleasant and profitable and each year I shall try to accomplish more than I have before.

CONGRESS—in a new role

We used to think of Congress as the Board of Directors of the United States, with the President taking orders from it. The Congress just adjourned seemed more like a stockholder's meeting, ratifying the proposals and actions of the directors.

In this time of change, perhaps we are in for a new conception of the relations between the different branches of the Government. As matters now stand, the President with his cabinet and expert advisers, have authority to do just about anything that they please. In theory, Congress can withdraw the powers granted, but in practice nothing short of another general election is likely to have that result.

Just now it seems silly to think of anyone wanting to throw a monkey-wrench into the Governmental machinery. Everybody realizes that the economic fate of all of us depends upon making the New Deal work. But let anything approaching former prosperity return, and we'll see the "outs" trying to make all the trouble they can for the "ins."

That's politics.
