Odd Bits Salvaged By The Editor

We've hit upon another "shure fire" method of breaking a drought.

k-k

Our old reliable method of securing a rain has failed us in times past. Used to be all we had to do to secure a rain was to have our car washed. Maybe it wouldn't rain much, but we could almost depend on it raining enough to mess the car up. Having failed us some, we've decided we can't depend on this very strongly, any more.

k-k

Our method has worked for several years, now, so it appears that we adopt it.

k-k

Last week, Mayor V. E. Moore gave us a news item to the effect that Munday was bordering on a water shortage, and he asked the people to begin conserving this valuable stuff. When he told us about the situation, we said: "Now, watch us get a rain!"

k-k

He agreed with us and allowed as how he'd been observing this for the past few years. Every time we get faced with a water shortage and the mayor announces we are likely to have rationing of water in a short while—then we get a rain. It generally comes within a week or ten days.

k-k

The mayor made his announcement on Tuesday of last week. We got our rain Saturday night. In the future, if enough of you feel that we must have a crop-saving rain—just have the mayor proclaim a water shortage!

k-k

We believe the best tasting cantaloupes anywhere are those grown right here in Knox County, and we say that with no apologies to people of the Pecos area whose melons are highly advertised and said to be the best. We've never had a melon from each area right side by side so we could compare the flavor, but we have eaten each one. We'll take our own Knox County cantaloupes for flavor any time.

k-k

We not only grow 'em good, but we grow 'em big. Buck Tidwell brought us one a few days ago which he said was the biggest he had ever seen. It weighed six pounds and three ounces, according to the grower, and we didn't doubt him enough to have it re-weighed.

k-k

Anyway, we decided on a mid-afternoon cantaloupe feast last Friday. Three of us ate our fill, and still had cantaloupe left, so we solicited the aid of Mrs. John Peysen in order to get rid of the big one.

k-k

With quite a demand for cantaloupes this season, those who have planted some acreage may come out pretty good, and some are bemoaning the fact that the area has only around 110 acres.

k-k

This ZIP Code business is really working! Our local postmaster, H. C. Hughes, was telling of a local instance one day last week. A patron of the local post office got a letter out of his box at 4:30 p.m. which was postmarked at 5 p.m. on the same day. You know, they'd been telling us the ZIP code would really speed up matters!

k-k

You may be seeing more of those ZIP code numbers. Again, ours is 76371, and we've printed it on some envelopes, as well as sending orders for rubber stamps with the code number on them. Some say those things will be coded by machinery sometime—just like the bank check codes—but we doubt it. If they ever get a machine that will code some of the handwriting we've seen, then it's time to quit even thinking.

k-k

This seems to be "vacation week" in Munday, and a number of local business and professional people have taken off to what we used to call the "cooler climes" of New Mexico and Colorado. Recent visitors to Colorado, however, claim that state has been just about as hot and dry as this'unt. Anyway, we reckon the vacationers are getting a change in scenery, if not climate.

k-k

Sometimes when we hit hot and humid weather, we wonder if it would not be best for entire towns to close up and go on vacation. And this could have well been such a week.

Mrs. Charles Kotulek and daughter, Paula Kay, of Odessa are spending this week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Albus.

FARM and RANCH Notes
JOE W. DOBY
 COUNTY AGRICULTURAL AGENT

A large crowd stood under a hot sun and watched Knox County 4-H members show their best in the second annual 4H horse show, Saturday, July 13. Farmers can now apply for a refund of the tax on gasoline used on the farm. The period covered is July 1, 1962 to June 30, 1963. I have the forms in my office. This is the federal tax on gasoline that has been used for farming purposes and includes gas used by custom operator on your farm. You have until September 30 to file for this refund.

The bleeding crews are now in the county working on the Brucellosis testing program. There are five technicians working in different parts of the county. Each technician has a headgate so if the farmer or rancher has a squeeze chute of some kind, the job can be done easily. All cattle herds must be tested unless they have had a negative test in the past thirty days. Please cooperate with the tester and schedule your cattle when he is working your neighborhood. If you have heifer calves to be calfhood vaccinated for Bangs, then tell the technician the day before he comes to your place. He will then bring out the vaccine and vaccinate them free of charge.

BLOWING UP THE WORLD TWICE

Dr. Samuel P. Hayes, president of the Foreign Policy Association, recently discussed the immensely difficult problems presented by arms control and disarmament. He made this important observation: "Today, the ideas of arms control and of national defense no longer contradict each other. As technology races ahead to ever more powerful and faster means of mass destruction, the security these weapons provide becomes less dependable."

We are told that both we and the Soviets now possess sufficient weapons to destroy the world. But both sides go ahead in further building up their arsenals, at unimaginable cost in money, energy, resources of every kind—which led one grim minded wit to observe that before long, no doubt, it will be possible to blow it up twice.

The problems associated with acceptable arms control and disarmament are formidable. But did the world ever face problems to which workable solutions were so sorely needed?

Railroad efforts in the Cuban Crisis have been lauded by Major General I. Sewell Morris, commander of the Defense Traffic Management Service. He said that railroad performance in the movement of personnel and supplies "demonstrated again, and most forcibly, that the railroads are a vital part of the transport support of military preparedness."

President William F. Foss of Minneapolis-Moline, Inc. says: "There is no difference between the necessity for earning a profit and the need for savings in our own private personal lives. We cannot grow and progress in business without profits; we cannot keep up to date and provide for the accelerating changes taking place in the world today without them."

"Government by decree took another step forward . . . with the announcement that the secretaries of agriculture and interior have approved regulations giving them powerful new authority over granting permission to the crossing of public lands by the transmission lines of utility companies."—Wyoming State Tribune.

The Administration's recent tax proposals would tend to raise the oil industry's total domestic tax burden perceptibly above the average for all industries, according to a study by the Petroleum Industry Research Foundation, Inc.

Columnist Jay Hayden make a forecast: "With President Kennedy entering the last half of his four-year term and approximately 19 months to go before choice of presidential nominees, it is as certain as could be at this stage that the 1964 race will be between Kennedy and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York."

KNOW YOUR INSECT ENEMY

THE PINK BOLLWORM

Trademark of this pink pest is a rosetted cotton bloom (lower photo). In more than 60 countries around the world, cotton growers have been battling the pink bollworm for many years.

The first attack in the United States was on Texas cotton in 1917.

Pink bollworms hurt cotton yields in several ways. In severe infestations, damaged squares and small bolls are shed. Larvae penetrate bolls and tunnel into the cotton seed, their preferred food. Thus, cotton seed is ruined and the oil is lost. Grade and staple of lint also are lowered by the tunneling worms.

Adult moths are brown and almost an inch across from tip to tip of the wings. Because they are inactive by day, moths are seldom seen. Female moths lay about 200 small white eggs, generally well concealed on smaller bolls under the calyx. The pupal stage is distinctive; white when first formed, turning to dark brown before emergence. The hind end is short, stout and hooklike.

Careful quarantine efforts have succeeded in limiting the range of this pest to seven cotton states; Texas, Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Louisiana, Arkansas and Florida. Spot infestations in Florida and Georgia have been successfully eradicated. Regulated planting and stalk destruction dates have been important factors in preventing more serious pink bollworm problems.

A new carbamate pesticide is being widely applied both as a dust and in spray formulations. According to growers, Sevin insecticide controls pink bollworms and knocks out other major cotton pests as well.

Pest control experts emphasize that the combination of sound culture practices and planned insecticide applications can minimize the pink bollworm threat.

KNOW YOUR INSECT ENEMY

THE BOLL WEEVIL

These long-snouted pests are a multi-million-dollar menace to our nation's cotton crop. Each year, billions of boll weevils chew through an estimated $800 million worth of cotton.

To maintain their profits, farmers must conduct constant war against the weevils. First step in the battle is to deny this enemy refuge. Boll weevils spend the winter in weedy trash or other protected areas near cotton fields. Fall destruction of stalks and early spring cleanup of fields deprives weevils of a food supply.

An effective control effort requires sound crop management. Entomologists recommend several basic cultural practices. Prepare the soil well. Select early-ripening varieties. Make soil tests to determine plant food needs, then fertilize accordingly. Control weeds by frequent shallow cultivation to speed cotton harvest.

In addition to good management, regular insecticide applications are important to beat the weevils. A potent broad-range new weapon, Sevin insecticide, is being used extensively by farmers against weevils and other cotton pests. This new material is a carbamate, chemically different and safer than most chlorinated hydrocarbon and phosphate pesticides previously used.

Growers reported excellent control, even on weevils that had become resistant to older insecticides. Sevin is available both as a dust and in a spray formulation. For profitable cotton production, many pest control experts recommend early applications as a supplement to the regular insecticide program. Controlling small infestations of weevils early in the season is more economical than fighting mass attacks in late season. FNS

LEARN THE FACTS ABOUT

The Secret of Buying Hospital Insurance that PAYS

DOCTOR BILLS often are a big part of the expense connected with a sickness or accident. An American Republic Plan can help pay these bills for you in time of need.

SURGEONS' BILLS, TOO, can wreck a family budget. An American Republic Plan can help pay the costs of operations. Look for the man who can explain these plans to you.

HOSPITAL EXPENSES have been going up at the rate of nearly 1% a month since 1950. An American Republic Plan can help pay these bills when you need money most.

On its record of paying claims—the most important way to judge any insurance company—American Republic ranks Number One among the "Top 40" firms in its field. The few minutes it takes you to learn about American Republic "Tailored" Protection may be worth hundreds of dollars to you—at a time when you may need every cent you can lay your hands on!

Today, eight out of ten families have some kind of hospital, surgical or medical insurance. But the need for this type of protection is greater than ever. Hospital and medical care costs have been going up nearly 1% each month since 1950. If your present policy is two years old or older, and was adequate when you bought it, the chances are good that you need more coverage right now.

With over 900 companies writing individual accident and health insurance, how can you choose the company that's best for you? Experts say the best way is to ask: What is the company's record for paying claims?

According to the latest available issue of the Statistical Edition and Argus Chart of the National Underwriter Company, publishers of official insurance statistics since 1897:

Of the top 40 companies writing individual accident and health insurance, American Republic Insurance Company of Des Moines, Iowa, ranks FIRST in percent of premium dollars paid to policyholders in claim benefits.

American Republic policyholders also enjoy the important benefits of TAILORED Protection. This feature makes it possible for qualified people OF ALL AGES to have up-to-date health insurance protection—and, at the same time, avoid buying coverage they may not want or need.

Even if you already have hospitalization insurance, American Republic TAILORED Protection can start where your present coverage leaves off. And it pays fully stated benefits in addition to any amounts you may collect from any other health insurance policy you may now have.

American Republic Representatives are now contacting residents of this community to explain American Republic TAILORED Protection. One of these representatives will call on you soon. Watch for him.

FREE FILM SHOWING IN YOUR OWN HOME

Fully-qualified, specially-trained American Republic Representatives are pledged to show an educational and informative color film to all residents of this county. The American Republic TAILORED Protection Plans will be fully explained and will be available to all who qualify.

LONE STAR AGRICULTURE

Caution Urged In Use Of Herbicides

The use of hormone-type herbicides—sometimes called weed-killers—has proved to be of considerable value to many Texas farmers and ranchers. The application of such herbicides as 2, 4-Dichlorophenoxy Acetic Acid and 2, 4, 5-Trichlorophenoxy Acetic Acid, usually referred to as 2, 4-D and 2, 4, 5-T, respectively, can be of special benefit in weed control on pastures and ranges because they act selectively on broadleafed plants.

Along with these benefits, however, there can be an appreciable amount of risk in applying these useful chemicals. This is because many cultivated plants within proximity of the area being treated can be accidentally damaged or killed by herbicides when proper precautions are not used. Cotton, Texas' largest crop, is particularly vulnerable to herbicide damage.

It is for this reason that farmers in many Texas counties are required by law to secure a permit from the Texas Department of Agriculture before using 2, 4-D or 2, 4, 5-T for weed and brush control. Even when granted such a permit, the applicator must follow prescribed regulations when using the chemicals with reference to such matters as wind velocity (which would determine the amount of drift from the application area to surrounding acreage) and closeness to susceptible planted crops such as cotton and flax.

In 1963, a marked increase has been noted of people who are using 2, 4-D (the more commonly-used hormone-type herbicide) for the first time. There has also been noted a significant rise in complaints from people who have cause to believe that the application of herbicides by others has had some effect on their crops. Such complaints are serious and call for prompt attention by the Department of Agriculture when regulations apply.

It is therefore a matter of great importance that any person not having had previous experience in the use of these important chemicals first of all check with the nearest Texas Department of Agriculture or write to John C. White, Commissioner, Texas Department of Agriculture, Austin, for information concerning regulation and use of herbicides in their home counties.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Albert of Houston spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Edgar.

Knox Prairie Philosopher Put Out By Washington's Official Who Finds Handshakes Of Farmers Are Flabby

Editor's note: The Knox Prairie Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Miller Creek seems a little miffed this week, but he'll get over it.

J. A.

Dear editor:

While it never has bothered me, some farmers I've been reading about are worried over the public image they present to the rest of the country.

As I understand it, some city people think farmers are getting rich because the price of food at the grocery store is so high, and some farmers think they ought to hire a public relations outfit to correct this and tell the true story.

Well, I've never had much trouble along this line myself, don't ever recall having a city man come out here to this Johnson grass farm asking for a loan not even a newspaper man, but there is one image of the farmer some people have that ought to be corrected.

According to an article I ran across in a newspaper last night, Interior Secretary Udall toured a farm area a while back and reported later he was shocked by the flabby handshakes of farmers.

This is what I'm talking about. Us farmers are still considered by some to be horny-handed sons of toil who're getting soft if we don't shake hands like a grizzly bear, whereas actually of course we're scientists producing food so fast that if the space scientists were up on our level the missile gap between Russia and the U. S. would be reversed. In fact, if our space scientists were as far advanced ahead of Russia as us agricultural scientists, we'd have already been to the moon twice and raised our debt ceiling four times to pay for it.

How a farmer shakes hands ain't no index to the complicated farm planning going on inside his head, and a farmer sitting on his front porch in deep thought can be as constructive as an Einstein doing the same thing.

This is the image the public ought to have of us farmers—dedicated, underpaid scientists, and I have pioneered in trying to bring it about. I've done my part.

Weekly Health LETTER

Issued by the State Health Department

AUSTIN—If you suffer from "midmorning hunger," better revise your breakfast habits, State Health Department nutritionists advise.

More and more people are falling into the habit of skimping breakfast. Surveys have shown that two out of every nine children leave for school without breakfast, and four out of ten workers leave for work with nothing to eat.

"Midmorning hunger" is the expression nutritionists use to describe the feeling which comes after an inadequate breakfast. Victims usually feel weak and giddy by midmorning. They may be hungry, yet have no taste for lunch. Or, if they are able to eat a big lunch, they may feel sleepy by early afternoon.

Midmorning hunger therapy, nutritionists say, calls for the "patient" to eat a solid breakfast. The extent of breakfast consumption varies from person to person. Individuals with special problems or modified diets can be guided by their physician.

school nurses place special emphasis on breakfast. One school nurse had a breakfast contest in the elementary grades. Near the end of the school year a mother telephoned to report on the improved breakfast habits and general well being of the whole family. Before the contest, the mother said, none of the family ate breakfast. Her child, involved in the school breakfast contest, insisted on having a good breakfast. Eventually it caught on and the whole family began eating breakfast and feeling better.

It is a false idea that skipping breakfast is a good way to reduce. If anything, this highly injurious practice adds pounds. It works like this:

Skip breakfast and by noon you have lost your appetite or else are afraid to eat for fear of being groggy all afternoon. Then for supper you eat the food your body has been demanding all day. Now you go to bed and your supper is converted into fat rather than energy as would have been the case had you eaten properly during hours of greatest activity.

An adequate breakfast pattern can be adapted to any age, budget or cultural pattern: fruit or fruit juice, protein-rich food—such as eggs, cheese, meat or beans—bread or cereal and milk.

If time is a prohibitive factor, some preparations can be made the night before — setting the table fixing the coffee pot, etc. Breakfast eating is a part of a pattern of daily life that will pay dividends in a higher level of health and well being.

IT'S THE LAW
in Texas

The Mayflower Compact
From the dawn of Western thought, men like Socrates have wondered what claims the law have on us—aside from pure force.

Some thought men had contracted to set up and obey the laws to keep the peace: "You don't hurt me and I won't hurt you." But until 1620 at least, nobody had ever seen men enter such a social contract.

True, Socrates in return for the good Athens had done for him, said that he had entered an implied, unwritten contract to obey her laws, even the unjust judgment against him to take the hemlock and die.

Still, not until the Mayflower Band twenty centuries later, sailed over to settle in the new world did we get a social contract actually signed and sealed.

It comes down to us in 198 vital words, the granddaddy of all written constitutions, as well as a document in the history of liberty under the law. Its gist:

"We . . . do by these presents solemnly and mutually in the presence of God, and one another, covenant and combine ourselves together into a civil body politic, for our better ordering and preservation . . . and by virtue hereof to enact, constitute, and frame such just and equal laws, ordinances, acts, constitutions, and offices from time to time as shall be thought most meet and convenient for the general good of the colony, unto which we promise all due submission and obedience. In witness whereof we have subscribed our names at Cape Cod on the 11 of November . . ."

Much took place in the next 168 years. But in 1788 the new states wrote and ratified the world's first and now oldest and most successful constitution. Why do men obey the laws? It says:

"We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution of the United States of America."

(This newsfeature, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

Insect Control Guides Released

Revised guides for controlling insects on cotton and fruits and nuts have been released by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"Texas Guide for Controlling Cotton Insects," L-218 and "Texas Guide for Controlling Insects and Diseases on Fruits and Nuts," L-245, both emphasize the correct timing of insecticide applications for proper control.

The cotton guide explains that poisons must cover the entire plant to kill insects and that growth which occurs after spraying is not usually protected from insects. It outlines the control program for 1963 as early season control, late season control, and early stalk destruction and farm cleanup.

The leaflet also discusses treating seed or the soil with systemic insecticides at planting time, when to apply insecticides, and three-way insecticidal mixtures. Recommendations for the control of the many cotton insects are given in chart form.

The fruit and nut guide, L-245, says that the health and vigor of the trees, as well as the quality of the fruit they produce, depend on a well-planned and well-executed control program. It states that losses due to insect and disease can be reduced by carrying out a spray program and by diligently following an orchard sanitation program. It also contains information on when and how to spray, spraying equipment, and some precautions on the use of insecticides and fungicides.

For more information on the control of insects and diseases on cotton and fruits and nuts, obtain these two leaflets from your local county agricultural agent or write the Agricultural Information Office, College Station, Texas.
