Odd Bits Salvaged By The Editor

If the vegetable festival did nothing else, it gave more people an idea of "where is Munday" than ever before and made them Munday and Knox County con-

But it did more than that! It brought people to Munday from many and varied points in Texas, parts of Oklahoma, New Mexico, and possibly some other states. Then, too, we saw more people working together in a united and concerted effort than have ever done so in the past 25 years, to our knowledge.

They came, they saw, they marvelled at the colorful exhibits that went into making Knox County's first vegetable festival a big success.

Activities of the one-day event started at 7 a.m., when entries in the vegetable, fruit, canned goods, baking and flower, and arts and hobbies division were placed. It was estimated that 125 displays were shown, and that better than 2,000 people came to view them.

Judging of the vegetables was by Dr. John Larson and Dr. H. L. Blackhurst, both Texas A&M scientists, and Virgil Woodfin, horticulturalist with the Iowa Park experiment station. Herbert Partridge, local farmer, received the grand champion prize on his Irish potatoes and reserve champion ribbon with his seedless watermelons. The canning and baking divisions were judged by Mrs. Martha Harmon, Mrs. Erline Horton of Stamford and Miss Fern Hodge of Vernon.

Mrs. J. A. Caughran won first place with her Irish potato cake, and ten year old Pennye McMillian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Weldon McMillian of Munday, was exhibitor of the top canned display.

The prized assortment of fruit, a group of wild plums, was shown by Mrs. Olen Coffman of Vera. Sweepstakes winner in the ornamental section of the show was Mrs. Willis Apple with a number of entries that placed in

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Ortho has two sprays - a fog spray and an all-purpose spray that kill flies fast and sure. Without harmful residues.

You know what a hassle fly killing can be. You want a spray that's effective. But you don't want to have to hide your animals in the next county. And you don't want a spray that's so gentle every other fly gets away.

The two fly killers made by ORTHO take care of both problems. Their main ingredient is DIBROM, a remarkable insecticide that kills flies outright-without harmful residues. DIBROM doesn't just knock flies down-it knocks them stone cold dead. Even if they're resistant to other sprays.

And because they contain DIBROM, both these fly killers are registered to spray over and around cattle. You can spray in a barn without taking the the cows out, or a poultry house without removing the birds.

So if you use a fog sprayer, try new ORTHO DIBROM Fly Spray. It comes already mixed-you just pour it from the can. And it kills the flies that a lot of fog sprays miss.

If you want an allpurpose concentrate, for use through a pressure sprayer, or as a dry bait or a wet bait, use ORTHO Fly Killer D. (The D is for DIBROM.) Diluted with water, a quart of Fly Killer D makes up to 40 gallons of ready spray. And costs less than 22 cents a gallon.
