Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor,

I always enjoy the Courier but I especially enjoyed "Look to the East" last week when Mr. Edgar spoke of talking with Tug Nesbitt. I knew Tug when he first started to school. We called him Ernest then and he was a wee bit smaller than he is now. Tug's dad was a good man, honest and hard working. He taught me to place the bundles of wheat in the grain separator when I was fifteen. That was back in the days when grain was threshed by the old steam tractor (we called it the thresher machine) with a long crossed belt from the tractor to the separator. It had a steam whistle and one long blast was a signal for the noon meal and the same at quitting time and a whistle for when they were running low on grain and for several other things. When I was a boy the Munday area was quite a wheat producing country and it was not unusual, during harvest, to see five or six of the steam tractors "smoking it up" across the country.

I agree that C. R. Elliott was a natural born lawman and big and powerful. But he did carry a forty one sixshooter and he had his problems. Once at a baseball game, C. R. got into a fight with three men. He was probably trying to arrest them and one, a big raw boned man, broke C.R.'s shoulder. I remember seeing C. R. with his shoulder in a sling and I saw the man who broke it a couple of days after, but he left Munday and never returned.

Once three brothers (all grown men) ganged C. R. when he arrested one for public drunkenness. One started to throw a brick at C. R. and he levelled down on him with his forty one and told him he would kill him if he threw the brick. He didn't throw the brick.

Once he stuck a shotgun under the high floor of the old frame post office and told an escaped prisoner if he didn't come out he would blow him out. The man came out. Like a boy will do I was all eyes, at a safe distance, of course.

Once I knew a man who grew up with C. R. in Eddy, Texas. He called him Custer and he told me that people around Eddy didn't fool with Custer. Then he told me why.

C. R. was firm but he wasn't mean. He enjoyed a good laugh and he loved people. He gave me some sound advice when I was a boy.

A number of years ago, living in Wichita Falls, I fought for the rights of the Indians for about fifteen years, especially the Oklahoma Indians and I assisted in advertising the American Indian Exposition which was held each August at Anadarko, Okla. They made me an official so I could move around better. One year I gave C. R. some posters to place and a year or two later I obtained him some passes and he took his two grandsons and rented some rooms and attended each performance, day and night for the duration, which was five days. He wrote me a nice letter about how they enjoyed the Exposition and that it was very different from anything they had ever seen. And he wrote the president of the Exposition, a personal friend of mine, that he had known me all my life and that I was a good man. I am glad that Custer Elliott passed my way.

Sincerely,

DON'T OVERFILL GAS TANK

Never fill your gasoline tank to the brim. Overfilling causes spillage, and leaves no room for expansion when the car warms up. So stop pumping gasoline when the automatic nozzle valve closes.

IN BALANCE WITH NATURE
By JOHN CAREW

In the beginning there was Earth, beautiful and wild; And then man came to dwell.
At first, he lived like other animals Feeding himself on creatures and plants around him. And this was called IN BALANCE WITH NATURE. Soon man multiplied.
He grew tired of ceaseless hunting for food; He built homes and villages. Wild plants and animals were domesticated. Some men became Farmers so that others might become Industrialists, Artists, or Doctors. And this was called Society. Man and Society progressed.
With his God-given ingenuity, man learned to feed, clothe, protect, and transport himself more efficiently so he might enjoy life.
He built cars, houses on top of each other, and nylon. And life was more enjoyable. The men called Farmers became efficient. A single farmer grew food for over 40 Industrialists, Artists, and Doctors. And Writers, Engineers, and Teachers as well. To protect his crops and animals, the Farmer used substances to repel or destroy insects, diseases, and weeds. These were called Pesticides. Similar substances were made by Doctors to protect humans. These were called Medicine. The Age of Science had arrived and with it came better diet and longer, happier lives for more members of Society.

Soon it came to pass That certain well-fed members of Society Disapproved of the Farmer using Science. They spoke harshly of his techniques for feeding, protecting, and preserving plants and animals. They deplored his upsetting the Balance of Nature; They longed for the Good Old Days. And this had emotional appeal to the rest of Society. By this time Farmers had become so efficient, Society gave them a new title; Unimportant Minority. Because Society could not ever imagine a shortage of food Laws were passed abolishing Pesticides, Fertilizers, and Food Preservatives. Insects, Diseases, and Weeds flourished. Crops and animals died. Food became scarce. To survive, Industrialists, Artists and Doctors were forced to grow their own food. they were not very efficient. People and governments fought wars to gain more agricultural land. Millions of people were exterminated. The remaining few lived like animals. Feeding themselves on creatures and plants around them.

And this was called IN BALANCE WITH NATURE. (EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. John Carew is chairman of the Michigan State University Horticulture Department. In Balance With Nature is reprinted through the courtesy of Dr. Carew and the American Vegetable Grower.)

Masons Of District To Meet Here

Bill Longan, secretary of Knox Lodge No. 851, AF&AM, has announced that the local lodge will host the 91st District Masonic Association at the local lodge hall next Tuesday night.

Activities will get under way with a feed at 7 p.m., with the regular business meeting to follow. An invitation is extended to all Master Masons of this area to attend.

STOCKER GAIN CONTRACT

Can farmers make money by growing small grains this winter and grazing stocker cattle owned by someone else? They've got to know their production costs to judge the profitability of entering into a stocker gain contract.

How much compensation a forage producer should receive under a stocker gain contract will depend on his cost of producing the forage.

For Central Texas, crop and livestock budgets indicate the necessary compensation to cover only the variable cost of grazing calves on a stocker gain contract decreases from $71 to $36 per hundredweight (cwt) of gain. This results as the respective net beef gain increases from 150 to 300 pounds per head (with a stocking rate of one head per 1.25 acres). These estimates do not include owner labor, net land rent, or interest and depreciation on tractors and machinery.

Over the long pull, though, the forage producer must cover all his costs. Combined estimated from Blackland budgets suggest that the total cost of gain decreases from $92 to $46 per cwt, as the net gain per head increases from 150 to 300 pounds (with the same stocking rate).

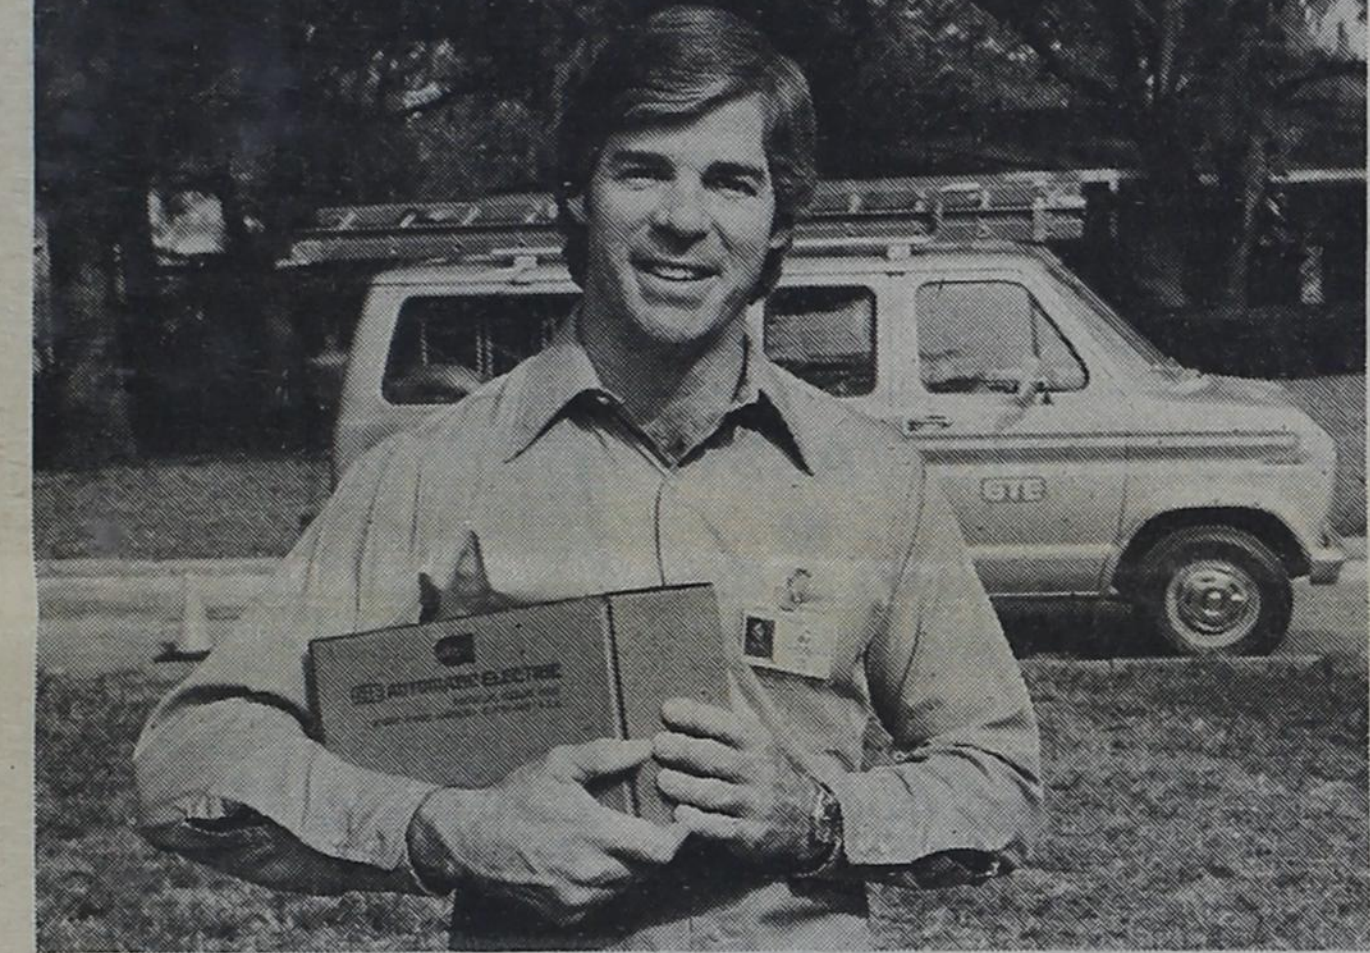

In some areas, with minor adjustments, a stocking rate of two head per acre is feasible. As a result, total cost of gain is lowered, ranging from $83 to $42 per cwt., as the per-head gain approaches 300 pounds.

Deciding whether or not to grow small grain pastures strictly for stocker gain contracts in 1980-81 may be difficult. Points in question might include bad experiences from grazing stocker cattle last year, sizeable rollback in prices, and at present, the continuation of hot, dry conditions over parts of Texas.

Producers also need to consider their individual situations and preferences to own their cattle, kinds of gain contracts available, and whether or not a grain or hay crop is to be harvested instead of "grazing out" small grain. Do not overlook the importance of deriving cost estimates for each unique situation.

Dealing with all variables involved and coming up with accurate cost estimates of producing small grain pasture and grazing calves are essential to making correct decisions on alternatives for marketing small grain forage production, including stocker gain contracts.

LIKE YOU, THEY'LL HAVE ALL OF THE NATURAL GAS THEY'LL NEED.

Just as you do today, your children will have a dependable supply of natural gas for their homes — if they're served by Lone Star Gas Company.

In other words, we aren't about to run out of natural gas. The facts are strong and very reassuring.

Our supply is based on purchase contracts for the gas from more than 19,000 wells in Texas and Oklahoma. And because no well lasts forever, we prepare for your future needs by steadily buying new long-term reserves.

The fact that we're well established in Texas and Oklahoma also works in your favor. Nine basins in these two states are estimated to contain 50% of the nation's remaining onshore gas reserves.

And Lone Star's pipeline system gives us excellent buying opportunities in eight of them.

Producers drilled thousands of wells in these major basins last year. They're drilling more this year. And we'll be shopping hard, just as we always have, for the best energy values for your future.
