Demonstration Clubs Hold County Exhibit

Five Women's Clubs and Twelve Girls Clubs, Representing 125 Girls Enter Contest.

The Home Demonstration Club exhibit for Knox county was held on Tuesday of this week, the show being in the A. J. Glasgow building, which was generously offered by Mr. Glasgow, and many viewed the exhibit during the day. Entering the competition were five women's clubs and twelve girls' clubs from various parts of the county, and the exhibit was the best that has ever been held in the county.

The awards were placed by Miss Myrtle Murry, district home demonstration agent, who paid a high compliment to the work that is being done by Miss Grace Nelson, county home demonstration agent for Knox county.

The $20.00 scholarship offered for the Woman's club entering the most complete exhibit was awarded to the Vera Club, while the scholarships offered for the Dallas Fair Educational Encampment for the three best exhibits in girl's club work were awarded to Naomi Smith of Hefner, Grace Polson of Hood and Sybil Swain of Hood.

Marshal Elliott Is Striving to Solve City Traffic Problem

Some weeks ago Marshal C. R. Elliott had distributed circulars warning the public against the violation of traffic ordinances, calling particular attention to those most commonly violated, such as parking in the center of the street, double parking and driving with cut-outs open. He states that these laws will be rigidly enforced during the fall season, as such action is necessary for the orderly handling of the heavy traffic.

Mr. Elliott has also made a suggestion to the business men of the city that should be followed. There are many business men who drive their cars to the stores and various places of business and park them in front of their stores, or in front of some business place. He suggests that they park their cars in some out-of-the-way place in order that the country people who come to town may have more parking room.

This suggestion is indeed a good one, and the business concerns of Munday should give him their fullest cooperation, for on week-days when there are no farmers in town to speak of the cars of the business men take up more than half the parking space along the main streets, and we believe the business men should conserve this space for the farmers who come to Munday to trade in the Munday stores. Let's give Mr. Elliott 100 per cent cooperation along this line.

Gillispie W. M. U. Will Present Play On Friday Evening

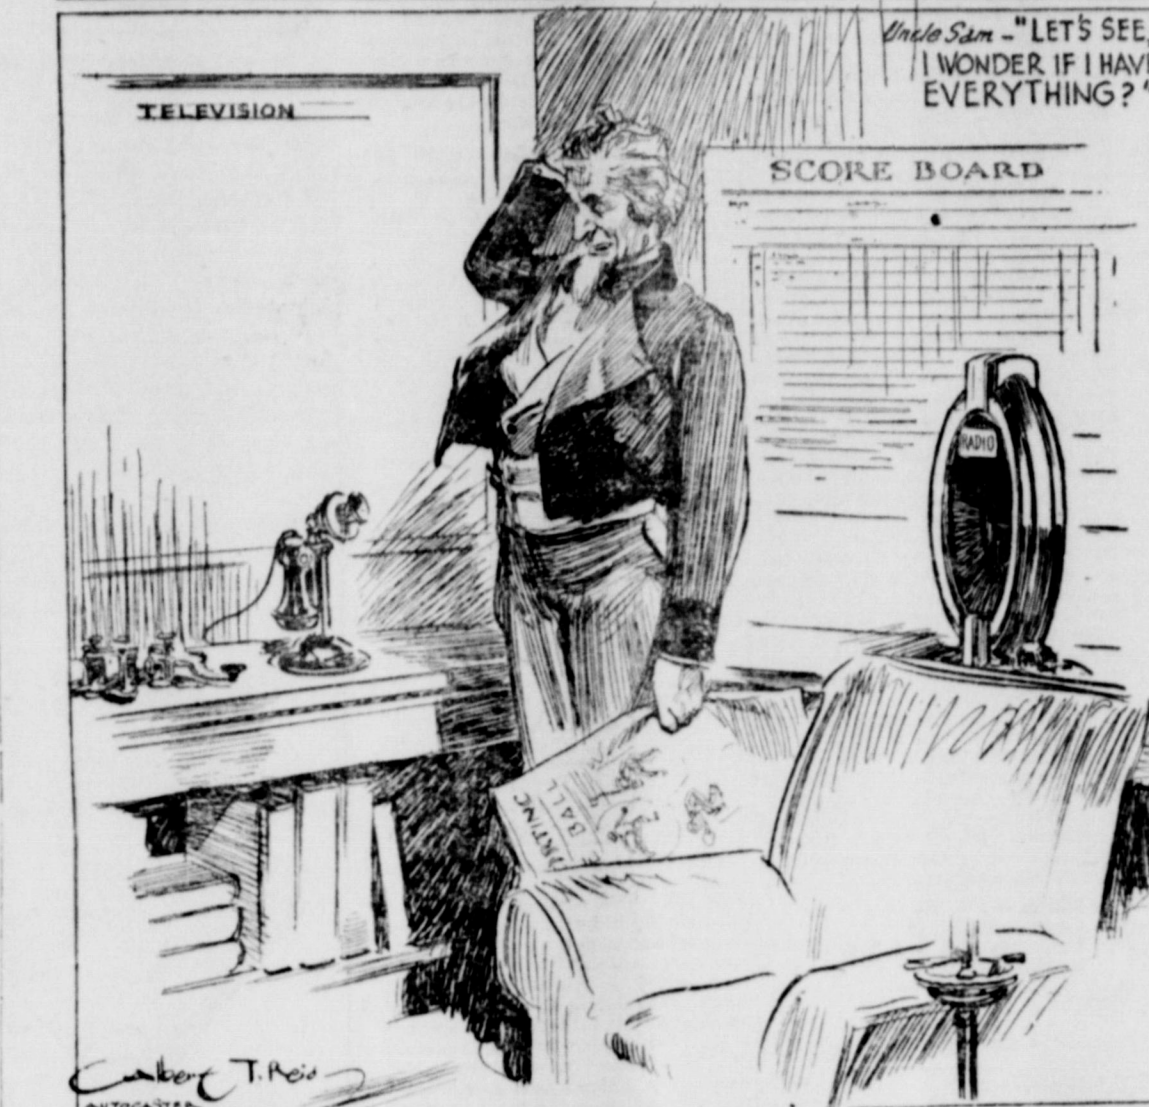

The W. M. U. of the Gillispie church will present a comedy play on Friday evening, September 21st, at the school auditorium, entitled "The Husbands of Ours," which promises to furnish about as many good laughs as can be crammed into a given length of time, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

The price of admission is 15 and 25 cents and the proceeds of the play will be used in making needed improvements at the church. Program starts at eight o'clock. Be there.

George Steinbach Gets First Bale of Cotton at Rhineland

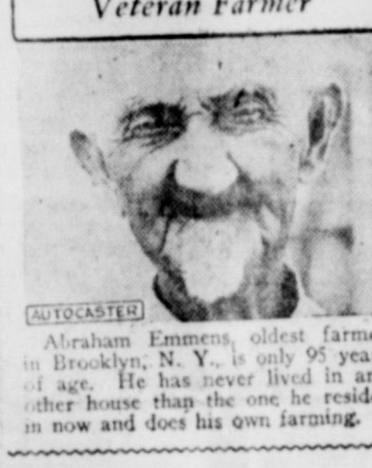

Geo. Steinbach ginned the first bale of cotton at Rhineland this season, on Wednesday of last week, and the bale was ginned complimentary by the Rhineland Union Gin, and the wide-awake business men of Rhineland saw to it that Mr. Steinbach received a liberal premium. The Rhineland Mercantile Company raised $4.75, Henry Claus contributed $2.00, while Francis Aldus and Lawrence Kuehler each contributed ten gallons of gasoline, bringing the premium up to a neat little sum for a community of that size, and Rhineland is to be congratulated for the progressive spirit it has shown.

Haskell Telephone Co. Re-Building Entire City Phone System

A large crew of workmen are here rebuilding the entire system of the Haskell Telephone system in this city, and we are informed by Mr. Williams, engineer for the company, that practically all of the lines, now on the square will be removed to the alleys and cables will be strung in many places where the lines are heavy. The Haskell Telephone Company has been striving for some months to procure right-of-way in various parts of the city in order to take their lines off the streets as nearly as is practicable, and have at last succeeded in getting matters lined up so that work can be started, and Munday will have a greatly improved telephone service when the work is completed.

Utilities Company Is Constantly Fighting To Avoid Accidents

On Thursday afternoon of last week the Times man went to Haskell to attend a safety meeting of the employees of the West Texas Utilities company, and the program that was carried out at this meeting was one of the best that has ever been held in the district, according to Mr. P. W. Campbell of Abilene, Traffic Manager for the company.

There were a number of excellent talks made by employees of the company, and Mr. Campbell gave some figures which will reveal to the public the object of the company in stressing the safety work as they do. Mr. Campbell stated that last month and the month before there were about 230 working days lost due to accidents that occurred within the ranks of the employees. This condition could and should be overcome to a large measure by following the rules that are laid down by the company for the employees. It is stated that practically all of the accidents that occur are avoidable accidents.

Another interesting feature of the program was that of lowering a man from a pole. This demonstration was staged by Jack Whitaker, construction superintendent, of this city, assisted by Jack Biberback, who volunteered to act as the victim. The task of lowering the limp and lifeless body was performed within a very few seconds and was followed by a demonstration of the prone pressure

Sherman and Granger Contractors Awarded Work on Highway 30

Contracts for grading and drainage structures were let Monday for that portion of Highway 30 traversing Knox county, from the Baylor county line to the Haskell county line, a distance of 13 miles, and the work will likely begin within the next few days, and will be rushed through to completion, as the time limit for the work set by the Highway Department is only about 100 days from the letting of the contract.

The contract for the grading and small drainage structures was awarded to R. B. Stroup of Sherman, Texas, while the contract for the large structures was awarded to Sullivan & Davis of Granger, Texas. The Stroup contract was for $35,954, while the Sullivan & Davis contract was for $16,883.

This highway is designated as both State and Federal highway and the cost of the building of the concrete road will be borne equally by the State, the Federal Government and the precinct, bonds in the sum of $135,000 having been voted for this purpose more than a year ago.

Cooksey Murder Case Goes to Crowell On a Change of Venue

The case of the State of Texas vs. Melvin Cooksey, charged with the murder of his wife at their farm home near Goree last May, was called for trial in the Fifteenth District court at Benjamin on Thursday of last week, but on account of the absence of witnesses the case was continued to the February term and will be tried in the district court at Crowell.

Successful Revival Comes to Close With New Hope Church

A ten days revival meeting came to a close at the New Hope Baptist church on Sunday night, September 16th, in which the Rev. E. N. Shapard did the preaching from the opening Monday morning until the following Sunday morning, with a series of splendid services, and the revival was brought to a close by the pastor, the Rev. Curry, on Sunday night.

The meeting resulted in thirty-five additions to the church, ten conversions and several converts, or something like fifty converts, reclamations and additions to the church. The Sunday school has been reorganized with one hundred and four members, and every Christian in the community has resolved to serve the Lord more in the future than they have in the past.

method of resuscitation, which has been found most effective in cases of electric shock and drowning.

The conclusion of the interesting program, a bounteous feast, was served by the ladies, which included fried chicken, delicious sandwiches, fruit salad and other good things such as various kinds of cold drinks, were served to the large number of employees and the few visitors that were present.

Moguls To Play Crowd-Full Here Friday

The curtain will be raised on the local football season when the Moguls take on the first Crowell eleven here Friday of this week. The Moguls succeeded in holding Throckmorton to a scoreless tie last Friday and will be out to annex their first victory this week. The game will be played on the field north of the community auditorium and will be called promptly a 4 o'clock.

Kinsley Davis left first of the week for Austin, where he will be a student in the University of Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Swann were weekend visitors to Quannah.

Boosters for Haskell Fair Coming Friday

Delegation Will Be Accompanied by Band and Number of Speakers To Tell of the Big Show.

The Times is in receipt of a letter from Henry Alexander, president of the Haskell County Fair Association, advising that a large delegation of Haskell citizens accompanied by the Haskell Band, will visit Munday on Friday evening of this week for the purpose of telling about the Haskell County Fair, which is to be held at Haskell on October 4, 5, 6. They plan to arrive in Munday about eight o'clock Friday evening, and we are sure that there will be a representative number of citizens on hand to greet them.

We are in receipt of one of the premium lists of the fair and will say that the list of premiums offered in every department is very liberal indeed, and since there are to be no fairs held in this immediate section other than the Haskell Fair, we believe a large number of our citizens will be in attendance at the fair. As has been stated previously in these columns, the Baylor county citizens have decided that there will be no Baylor county fair this year.

There will be a most excellent list of attractions at the fair this year. T. J. Tidwell's shows will be on the midway, and on the opening day a parade will be staged in which the various business firms of Haskell will compete and other towns will have attractive floats. One of the feature attractions of the fair will be the auto races on October 4th and 5th.

Remember that the Fair boosters are coming to Munday on Friday evening, and let's give them a hearty welcome to Munday.

Lions Club Will Confer With City Dads on Sanitation

At a regular semi-monthly luncheon of the Lions Club, which was held at the Burton Cafe at noon on Thursday of last week, a committee of three members was appointed by President E. Duval to confer with the city council in working out some solution to the problems which confront the city in the matter of sewage disposal. At this meeting a resolution was adopted endorsing the action of the council in the work that has been done and the committee was appointed for the purpose of helping work out some of the objectionable features of the present system. The committee appointed is composed of Leland Hamann, Austin Coughran and J. D. Kethley.

In discussions of the sanitary problem in this meeting it was suggested that the Chamber of Commerce also select a committee to work with the council with a view of working out some solution to the problem. The club had as guests at this meeting two members from the Haskell club, Lion J. F. Kennedy and Lion J. Horace Bass. Both made brief talks and extended the good wishes of their organization to the Munday club.

The absence of Lion Tom Haney was explained by President Duval, who stated that he was in a Wichita hospital ill, and a resolution was offered and unanimously adopted that the secretary be instructed to send a bouquet of flowers to him with the compliments and best wishes of the club.

We are informed that Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Ford have moved from Childress to Quannah, where Mr. Ford will be employed for some time in erecting a number of houses for the West Texas Utilities Company at Lake Pauline, near Quannah, where the company is erecting a big generating plant.

Herbert Arbuckle and family are this week moving back to Munday from Lubbock, where they have resided for several months. Mr. Arbuckle has recently been transferred to this district by the machinery house for which he travels, and Munday is about in the center of his territory. We are glad to welcome the Arbuckles back to Munday.

Bob Alexander is in Wichita Falls this week participating in the invitation tournament being staged under the auspices of the Wichita Falls Country Club. Some of the best golfers of the state have entered into the competition, but if Bob is going good he will give them some keen competition for honors.

Miss Alice Rogers, who is teaching in the Bonarton schools, spent the week end here visiting in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. U. S. Rogers.

Terracing Farm Lands

Maintaining soil fertility is one of the greatest problems at the present time. This means more livestock and marketing the feeds at home resulting in about eighty-five per cent of the fertilizer value going back to the soil.

Terracing is one of the important factors in conserving soil fertility in the greater part of the South. Terracing has been practiced since early times, and used extensively in the older countries at present. It is not difficult to terrace land. After a preliminary survey of the farm is made studying the natural drainage, slope of the land, fall between terraces, etc. The higher terraces should be built first, so as to prevent any destruction should there be a rain before it is completed.

When Stewart was five, my wife decided that he was not eating as much as he ought. I think she had seen some other woman's child eating more than ours did and was jealous. Women are funny that way. At any rate she decided that Stewart was to be put on a definite, balanced diet; so many eggs a week, so many glasses of milk, so many pounds of spinach and so forth. The meal was to be set before Stewart and he was to eat it, every last bit of it. Otherwise, he was to have no dessert. My wife got the best of me, forestalling any possible objection, by putting the diet into effect while I was away. When I came back she reminded me of our compact to stand together.

Stewart didn't like the new dietary system. He fought against forced feeding and made breakfast, lunching and dining thoroughly disagreeable performances. He declared that soft boiled eggs nauseated him. The milk tasted bad. The spinach had sand in it. He pretended to be too full to eat another bite, or said he had just enough room left for dessert. And when the full, definite, balanced meal had all been loaded into him he declared his stomach hurt.

I fought with my wife in private over this regime—tried to point out to her that she was turning Stewart against certain foods to which hitherto he had never objected, tried to show her that she was putting a premium on desserts and making them tremendously important to Stewart, suggesting to her that a child could be over-fed. But disciplining a wife is a great deal more difficult than disciplining a child. Then Stewart came down with pneumonia.

The doctor cut off all food and put him on orange juice and gingerale. At the end of ten days Stewart was ready to eat anything; gruel, broth and so on. And Stewart despised the doctor for starving him. Then the doctor took my wife and me aside.

"Don't try forcing this child any more," he said. "If there is one normal instinct in this world it is the instinct of hunger. Nobody will starve if he has food before him—not unless he has food before him—not unless he has food before him—not unless he has food before him."

ENFORCED FEEDING
Russell M. Coryell

One of the first conflicts between my wife and me was that we would oppose a solid front against the enemy. The enemy was our son, Stewart. We had to make this agreement because, separately, we stood no chance against him. Our opinions were so at variance regarding the raising of children, what they should do and what they should not, that Stewart could almost always find one of us ready to consent to something the other had forbidden; so, in order to maintain discipline it was agreed between us that whichever of us first took a stand the other would back him up, at least in Stewart's presence. Afterwards, we could fight it out. I say "fight" it out rather than "argue" it out because every man knows how impossible it is to argue with his wife.

The maintaining of one's parental dignity—the enforcement of discipline—is a terrible task anyway. It causes more tears in the family than any other one factor in home training.

When Stewart was five, my wife decided that he was not eating as much as he ought. I think she had seen some other woman's child eating more than ours did and was jealous. Women are funny that way. How to Play BRIDGE

Series 1927-28 by Wynne Ferguson
Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

ARTICLE No. 27

Many people who haven't yet taken up auction bridge, wonder at its popularity. The following quotation, from a recent book by Ellis O. Jones, gives some of the reasons for this great popularity in a very apt and pleasing way: "No game has so many elements of attractiveness. It is a highly complex combination of luck, skill and intelligence, bringing into play every known mental faculty, and is thus positively valuable in mind-training as well as a mere escape from ennui. Suitable for four (or even three) or a party of four hundred or four thousand, it is suitable to the highest degree. Being a game of partners and requiring cooperation and teamwork, it is social in its culture, and as well as a social, while, at the same time, the pivoting and keeping of individual scores leave plenty of room for each player's individuality. It may be played for a stake of any size and thus provide continuous thrills for the most temperate gambler, but, unlike poker, it is interesting when played for no stake and thus may contribute year in and year out to the pleasure of the most laudable intellectual. So true is this, that, in spite of the immense popularity of the game, no man or woman yet stands out as having thoroughly and unquestionably mastered it. There is none who has mastered something yet to learn about both the bidding and the play of the hands."

In the preceding article, attention was called to the take-outs of a partner's no-trump bid that are based on distribution. Here is another fine example of the benefits that accrue when a player follows this system:

Score, Y-Z game in, and A-B 18 on the second game. Z dealt, bid one no-trump, A doubled, Y passed, B bid two clubs and Z bid two no-trump. What should A bid? A should pass. All that B indicates by his bid of two clubs is that he has at least four clubs, but whether the holding is strong or weak is an unknown quantity. This lack of information is the weak point of the declaratory double. The doubler should, therefore, not double such a bid without a very strong holding in the suit bid. In this case, A should pass and await further action by B, if any. It is up to B to show more strength by further bidding and until he does A should keep quiet.

No score, rubber game. If Z dealt and passed, and A also passed, has Y a justifiable third hand bid and, if so, what should it be? Y should bid one diamond and then if overcalled, show the spades. A third hand bid should not be made unless you hold at least three sure tricks. You always should be wary of making third hand bids unless you are at least a trick or more than you would need for a dealer's bid or one by second hand. If you don't bid, fourth hand probably will use the hand, so don't open the bidding unless you are pretty sure that your hand is strong enough to save game if overbid. It is almost the same position as fourth hand, although third hand doesn't require quite so much strength to justify a bid as does fourth hand.

DOCTORS TRAIN FOR COOKING DEGREE
Baltimore, Md.—Dr. George A. Harrop, Jr., has introduced a cooking course in the medical college of Johns Hopkins University.

A good doctor should be a good cook, is the belief of Dr. Harrop. He believes medical students should know how food should be prepared to make it digestible and palatable, while being cooked, and what combinations of dishes should be served for a meal.

SIXTH INSTALLMENT
WHAT HAPPENED BEFORE

Simon Judd, amateur detective, and William Dart, an undertaker, are visiting John Drane, eccentric man of wealth, at the Drane place. Suddenly the household is shocked to find that John Drane has been murdered. The dead man is first seen by Jessie, the maid, then by Amy Drane and Simon Judd. The latter faints.

Police officers call and investigations begin. Dr. Blessington is called, and after seeing the murdered John Drane, makes the astounding revelation to Amy Drane that her "uncle" is not a man but a woman.

Dr. Blessington discounts the theory of suicide, saying that Drane was definitely murdered. Dr. Blessington comments on the fact that all the servants in the household are sick, and that Drane has never discharged a servant for ill health. Dick Brennan, the detective, arrives to investigate the case.

Brennan questions the persons in the house, asking Amy if anyone had any reason to kill her "uncle."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"No; not a person; not the slightest reason," Amy declared with absolute positiveness. "I can't even imagine why anyone should want to kill my—uncle."

"As far as you know, there was no one in the house last night but your uncle, Mr. Judd here, Mr. Dart and the servants?" Brennan asked her. "I know," he added, "that you can't say whether others may not have come in unknown to you."

Amy's eyes turned to Bob Carter. "Yes, I was in the house last night," Carter said.

"Late," Carter said. "After eleven and before twelve. Mr. Drane said he wanted to see me; he sent Norbert to tell me so yesterday afternoon—just before we went for the drive, you remember, Amy? There was no hurry, Norbert said; either last night or today would do. I rather knew what he had on his mind. I had asked him if I could marry Amy, and he had put off answering me. So last night I happened to pass here and I saw the lights in the library and I—"

"Ring or knock or anything?"

"I went to the library door at that side of the house and knocked on the door, and Mr. Drane let me in," Bob said. "Mr. Dart was with him; no one else. I said good evening to Mr. Dart and Mr. Drane said we could go across the hall to the dining room for a few minutes, and we did. There's one thing I ought to tell you, Mr. Dart said, 'Now remember what I told you, John; I don't approve.' It was something like that; he may have said 'I'm against it' or 'I won't have it.' I was rather excited, you see; what Mr. Drane was going to say meant such a lot to me."

"Naturally," agreed Brennan. "Well?"

"That's about all," Carter said. "We went into the dining room and Mr. Drane talked to me awhile. It was mostly about my prospects and what I was planning to do with my life and whether I would be willing to come to this house to live after we were married—Amy and I. He said we had best travel for a year, or stay elsewhere a year. After that he wanted us here. I told him that was what Amy wanted—it was the only reason she hesitated about marrying; she did not want to leave him. So he said it would be all right."

"I'm so glad, Bob!" Amy cried. "I'm so glad to think he was willing!"

"And then what?" Brennan asked, seeing that Carter was hesitating.

"Well," it was rather queer," Carter said, blushing. "I thought it was rather queer then, but it doesn't seem so queer now—not when we know what we know now. He asked if he could kiss me."

"He did?" Brennan exclaimed.

"Not quite so brashly as all that," Carter said. "He laughed and laughed and said that if we were French he supposed we would kiss each other on both cheeks. I said I had been kissed when I was given my cross. Then you don't mind if I do kiss you," he said, and he kissed me. I felt—well, I felt sorry for him, that's how I felt. I thought 'Poor old fellow! I knew nobody around here cared much for him, and he was getting pretty old. That sort of feeling. And now, when I know he was a woman!'"

"It's bound to come out now and again," said Brennan tersely. "A woman can only stand so much without affection. The very worst I've ever known came to it now and again. And then what did you do?"

"We talked a few minutes about when the wedding might be, and I said I would have to leave that to Amy. Then he said—"

Carter hesitated a moment but Brennan said nothing.

"He spoke about money," Carter went on. "He said he had made his will in Amy's favor and that he was leaving her everything he had. Then he said she was a good girl; he said very nice things about her and said he meant to give her outright a hundred thousand dollars the day she was married, if I did not object. I have nothing of my own, you know. He said that he thought, living in his house and having to be mistress of it, Amy should not be compelled to ask him for money. He meant for the extra expenses, the things I could not pay for. I didn't see that it had anything wrong in that. I didn't see that it had anything to do with my loving Amy. Amy knows it's not anybody's money I care for. So then we shook hands and I came away."

"Through the library again?" Brennan asked.

"No, Mr. Drane let me out by this door."

"So you didn't see Mr. Dart again?"

"No, I went down the driveway there and walked home."

"You haven't any idea what it was Mr. Dart wanted Mr. Drane not to do?"

"Not really," Carter said. "It may be they had been talking over Amy and me and Mr. Dart didn't care for me enough to have me marry Amy. Mr. Drane and Mr. Dart were old friends—what they call 'cronies' almost. Or it may have been giving Amy so much money in a lump that Dart objected. I don't know."

"But your impression was that Mr. Dart referred to the talk you were about to have with Mr. Drane?" Brennan asked.

"That's what I thought," Carter admitted. "I hadn't any doubt of it. I thought to myself 'What business is it of his, anyway? I don't like him much, some way.'"

"And now, Miss Drane," Brennan asked without a pause, "have you ever seen anything that made you think even in the slightest degree, that your uncle was a woman?"

"No," said Amy without hesitation, and immediately changed her answer to yes! "Never while he was alive," she said. "It never entered my head, not in the very slightest. But now I can see things. He was so kind to me."

"Might not an uncle be kind?" Brennan asked.

"Yes, but not in that way. Affectionate is what I should say, probably. I didn't know, you see—I didn't think—how a man would be, but I can see now, Mr. Brennan, that he was more like—more like a mother in the way he—in the way he kissed me and smoothed my hair. More like a woman, more like a mother."

"Have you any reason for thinking he was your mother?" Brennan asked and Amy stared at him with wide eyes.

"Uncle John my mother?" she gasped and put her fingers to her lips as if in fear. "Oh, he couldn't be my mother—be—"

"You knew your mother?" Brennan asked. "You see, Miss Drane, I don't know any of the facts; I have to ask for them. Did you know your mother?"

Bob Carter frowned with annoyance that Amy should be annoyed. He looked at her and turned to Brennan.

"I can answer that," he said. "Amy told me all that."

"Let her tell me," said Brennan but his tone was kindly.

"I never knew my mother," Amy said.

Brennan leaned forward in his chair.

"I'm not digging into this from curiosity," he said. "I have plenty to do without wasting time that way; my job is to find who murdered this woman who posed as John Drane. There may never have been a John Drane."

"You bet your boots there was!" declared Simon Judd. "John Drane and me was chums, I tell you, when we was boys back there in Riverbank. Regular boys and no mistake, and don't you forget it, mister! You can prove that by me any time you want to."

"There was a John Drane then," said Brennan. "You knew him?"

"And I knew him a blame long time, black my cats!" Simon Judd exclaimed. "Why look here—John Drane was born along about when I was, along towards 1853, and we chummed together, thick as thieves, for a long time. Yes, until '83—that was when he went out West. He was thirty then. All that time we hung together, me and John. Thirty years—we was born together as you might say. Sure there was a John Drane!"

"I was going to ask you a few questions later," Brennan suggested.

"Scuse us for button' in!" Simon

Judd said with hearty good nature. "Go right ahead and I'll shut up till you want me."

"I was saying Miss Drane," Brennan said, "that I'm only trying to gather some details of the life of John Drane as he was known here, and matters that might have some bearing on this murder. I know nothing, you understand, and I have to ask questions. You say you did not know your mother—that means she died while you were too young to know her?"

"Yes," Amy said.

"You're about how old?"

"I'm seventeen."

"Do you know when your uncle— to call him that—came to Westcott?"

"Yes, I remember hearing that. It was in 1892. He bought this house then. He said not long ago he had owned it thirty-two years."

"And you were not born here?"

"Oh, no!" said Amy. "I was born in California. You see, I'm uncle John's brother's son's child."

"What did you say?" asked Brennan, turning to Simon Judd.

"I'm not saying a word," Judd said. "Excuse me! I forgot myself."

"But you said something," Brennan insisted. "What did you say?"

"All I said," Simon Judd said, "was which brother?"

"Well, which brother was it?" Brennan asked Amy, showing the first impatience he had shown.

"It was Daniel," Amy said. "Daniel went to California and married Mary O'Ryan there, and they had one son—Thomas Drane, who was my father. He married Mary Gartner, but just after I was born they were drowned in a flood. Some river overflowed and they were drowned. Grandfather was dead then, too, and grandmother had died before that. So I was put in an orphanage and that was where uncle John found me."

"He went to California? When was that?"

"I wasn't a year old," Amy said. "It must have been in 1905. Uncle John said he had always corresponded with father and when the letters stopped he was worried. He wasn't well that year and he thought California might do him good—it was in the winter—and he went west for the two reasons. He wanted the warmth and he wanted to find father if he was alive. He found only me."

"And he brought you East?"

"No; not right away. He found a home for me there, lovely people who were always so good to me! They raised me; uncle John used to send them money for my expenses and he wrote me letters—"

"You have some of the letters? They're in the same hand that this uncle John writes, or did write?"

"Yes, exactly the same—a big round hand," Amy said. "So then, when I was old enough, I was sent to a school near Pasadena. I stayed there until I finished last year. Then uncle John had me come East. He wanted me to live with him, he said."

"She told me all that," Bob Carter said.

"Yes; it was not a secret," Amy said. She waited for Brennan to ask his next question.

"Can you tell me anything that would throw any light on this murder?" he asked.

"I don't think so," Amy answered. "I may think of something, but it's all so horrible still."

"You don't know anything out of the way about this William Dart?" (Continued next week)

UNITED WE STAND—DIVIDED WE FALL.

The united action of Munday citizens in all matters pertaining to community development has for a number of years been the envy of residents of other neighboring towns. Not so long ago a citizen residing in one of our neighboring towns made the statement that if his town could work with the unity of purpose that Munday does it could accomplish many things that it cannot accomplish in the divided condition that has prevailed there for a number of years. Every citizen knows that during the past few years there have been times when it seemed impossible to keep this spirit of harmony intact, but Munday has succeeded in doing that thing, and, as a result, Munday has made more real progress during these years than many of its neighbors.

Not many years ago when the problem of a water system came before the citizenship for action there were less than half a dozen dissenting votes. This united action on the part of the citizenship of Munday has been pointed out with pride upon a number of occasions. Later the paving bond issue was presented, and this, too, went over by an overwhelming majority, which fact has caused our hearts to swell with pride. And in all matters that have come up for the advancement of the town and community Munday has stood always as a united citizenship.

Today there are problems that confront this city that will require the best thought of the community in solving. These problems cannot be solved by any other method than the application of reason and thoughtful consideration. They cannot be settled by court action. They never will be solved by one group of citizens arraying its forces against another group of citizens, but they can be solved if the citizenship will face the situation as it is and set about with a determination that they will be solved. And when they are solved every barrier to Munday's continued growth and development will have been removed.

United, as we have been in years gone by, there need be felt no uneasiness as to our future, but divided, there is every likelihood that our future development will be materially impaired.

INTERDEPENDENCE DAY

Another holiday is suggested by an international association which would have all English-speaking nations of the world celebrate June 15 as Interdependence Day.

This date is chosen on account of its being the anniversary of the granting of Magna Charta, or the Great Charter, to the English barons by King John on the field of Runnymede in the year 1215. Upon this charter of rights, wrung from the king by a display of force, rests many of the fundamental liberties of the British Commonwealth and America.

Magna Charta defined certain relations between sovereign and people, established law courts at fixed places, prohibited punishment or banishment except by judgment of peers in accordance with law, prohibited denial or delay of justice, established one standard of weights and measures, and guaranteed other measures of reform in the interest of the people. This charter has been called "the keystone of English liberty," and the laws which proceed from it were naturally transplanted to America, where they still exert a paramount influence.

Proponents of Interdependence Day believe that its celebration by all the English-speaking nations will tend to further strengthen the bonds of peace and friendship which now exist among them, and thus have a stabilizing effect on all international relations.

The Graham Leader is possibly the oldest newspaper in West Texas. Last week that excellent publication issued a thirty-six page edition commemorating the fifty-third anniversary of its existence. The pages were well filled with historical events that have played an important part in the development of West Texas. The first issue of the Leader came off the press August 16, 1876, and was edited by Major J. W. Graves. During all the fifty-three years the Leader has been owned by only three different publishers, and today it is one of the best weekly newspapers in West Texas, and its pages, which are well patronized by the Graham merchants, reveal at a glance that Graham is a progressive town and the Graham Leader is a progressive newspaper.

The Merkel Mail, which for the past nine years has been under the management and ownership of Thos. Durham, has been sold by him to a party of Waco newspaper men composed of C. J. Glover, Jr., J. J. Hutchins and George E. Caple, all of whom were formerly associated with the Waco Times-Herald. Tom Durham is one of the pioneer newspaper men of West Texas, and has edited and owned a number of weekly papers. The Munday Times was established by him in 1906, and he was instrumental in the early development of Munday. No town ever had a better booster than Thos. Durham. He always has given his best efforts and his entire energies toward the betterment of the towns and communities in which he has resided, and the several West Texas towns in which he has labored are better today by reason of his efforts. Mr. Durham has no plans for the immediate future, but it is safe to say that ere many days his name will be found at the masthead of some West Texas newspaper—and that town may consider itself fortunate.

WILL ROGERS SAYS:

I was kinder disappointed in Al's speech of acceptance. I thought he was smarter than he is, I thought he would refuse.

Just think how much bigger man Al would have been if he had refused. If he gets elected he will be only one out of thirty that's held presidency. But if he had refused he'd be the first in history to do that—and probably the last.

A democrat is naturally windier than a Republican. He is out of office more and he has more time to think up things to say. All a Republican has to say is "well I am in, try and get me out." While with a Democrat he has to say something that will get the Republican out and also that will get him in.

Al said he would take the nomination because "this is the country that had raised him from obscurity to the standard bearer of his party." Now Al didn't have any monopoly on obscurity at birth. There is awful few babies very well known at weaning time.

The part of his speech that kinder hit me was where he said that if he was elected he would have our government quit messing around down in Latin America. In other words if a Marine went sight-seeing he would have to pay his own way.

Al is honest about farm relief. He says he don't know a corn stalk from a jimson weed and that a tractor might be a mouth wash so far as he is concerned. All in all, Al did a mighty fine job of promising. Now I think my platform is more constructive. I will make mine up after I get in. Nobody knows what they might want by next March anyhow.

The A. D. Claes of the Baptist church will sell pies, cakes and dressed chicken Saturday, September 22, at the E. B. Cash Grocery.

County Commissioners M. G. Nix, D. C. Osborne and A. F. Sams together with County Judge Oliver W. Lee returned on Tuesday morning from Austin, where they went on county business. Their mission in Austin was for the purpose of conferring with the Highway Commission on the highway situation in Knox county.

TO OUR MUNDAY FRIENDS

P. D. O'Brien.

No language would be capable of describing the mixed emotions that surged in our hearts since we became convinced that it was right for us to leave Munday. And the great losses we sustained in leaving have not lessened this conviction. All who know us at all intimately know that only under the strongest constraint would we have thought one minute of breaking relations with a church and community which we had learned to love as we loved our own lives. We believe that the Divine hand led us here and that He led the church there in the selection of the man who now occupies the enviable position which for practically three years was ours. At this point we would like to recommend W. H. Albertson, both to the church and community as a man of true worth and ability. Approachable, lovable, true and great preacher of the word. A man who knows how to organize and perpetuate a great organization. Had the task of selecting the man who was to lead you after we went away been assigned to my hands, you would have the man whom you have selected. We feel the same way about his family. This gives us no little consolation.

As have been mentioned in several letters to us, and in the paper, it has been thought that we left rather unceremoniously. We did, which I can explain, I hope to the satisfaction of all. In the first place the man who moved our household goods lives here. He had a lead from here to Haskell on Monday and insisted that he bring one load of our things on the return trip Tuesday. This of course was reasonable. But he left enough for us to live on there, and we expected to be in Munday several days. But when he got here rain was threatening and he at once returned for the other things and we had no choice. We did go around somewhat to say good bye, but frankly, it got to be too much of a task, and when we stood all we could we left, with the promise that we will be back from time to time on our way to Conventions, to visit our folk, etc., at which time we expect to see you all.

We wish for all of our friends there health, reasonable wealth, and an abundance of happiness. Our prayers are with the church, Sunday school, B. Y. P. U.'s, the W. M. S., and other church organizations. No one was ever more loyal to a pastor than you were to us. God bless all and each of you. We maintain our interest in the Boy Scouts. We hope the organization will grow in numbers and spirit. That you boys will rally to the leadership of your new Scout Master, and that each one of you will make an honorable and useful man. My best wishes are for the Lions Club; may every worthy program you undertake be successful. I hope to meet with you again some day. I can never forget the staunch friends I found on the golf course. I miss you fellows very keenly. I hope that you will always play the

TOLSTOI FORESAW REVOLUTION. SAYS EDMUND GOULDING

Did Count Lyof Tolstoi, years before the World War and the resulting cataclysm that plunged Russia into the throes of rebellion, foresee the revolt that plunged his country into Bolshevism? This interesting speculation is vividly brought to light in the motion picture production of "Love," based on Tolstoi's "Anna Karenina," and in which the Russian aristocracy, at the height of its power, is shown in a vivid spectacle in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, coming Wed. and Thurs., 26 and 27, in the Roxy Theatre. Incidents, situations and striking details taken from the remarkable book, and viewed on the screen in the light of modern happenings, all hint of prophetic vision on the part of the author—a prophecy that at the time he would not dare have voiced in direct words.

"Through the book," says Edmund Goulding, who directed the picture, "there seems to run a note of doom; the restlessness of the peasantry and a foreshadowing of downfall in his descriptions of the pride of the aristocracy."

Film's Greatest Lovers.
 John Gilbert and Greta Garbo, who scored such a sensational success in "Flesh and the Devil," appear again for the first time since in the lavish spectacle which was given a gorgeous production. The story is laid in the gayest period of the Russian court, with Gilbert as the beautifully-featured Count Vronsky, and Miss Garbo in the role of the tragic Anna. The cast includes George Fawcett as the Grand Duke, Emily Fitzroy, Brandon Hurst, Phillip Delacy and others of note.

An interesting detail is that two Russian Generals, General Michael Riesskoff and General Therosev Lodi, and one prince, Prince Youca Troubeskoy, are among the former aristocrats playing roles of their former glory in the new picture. The two generals fled from Russia during the revolt.

The central theme in the tragic sacrifice of Anna, who deserts husband and child for love, to be pursued by a relentless fate that eventually conquers her. Gorgeous reproductions of Russian palaces and haunts of the might are settings for the spectacular film.

In view of the fact that we as a people are in a financial crisis, and from the way I see the circumstances now prevailing throughout our trade territory, I would consider it a very improper attitude to exact an excess profit off of all our customers in order to accumulate a sinking fund sufficient to call all the people together and arouse their emotions and impose an idea upon them that I was giving them something when it has been derived from an excess profit that you have been paying.

In fact practically everybody knows that we have always conducted our business on the small profit system, and sell from about 10 to 25 per cent under the usual retail market, and now, under prevailing circumstances, it would be absurd for us to undertake to put over on the reasonable thinking people a proposition whereby a few dozen people would profit.

But, in our mind, we are justly due the people in our trade territory one and all, not just a few, a liberal concession on profits, and in view of this fact it is no time to be grafting.

With the above for your consideration, and in view of the fact that there are quite a few people talking around that we are getting in more merchandise than any house in town, we are made to realize that in the Spring when we were placing orders for Fall merchandise with the mills, factories and jobbers that we bought too heavily, and after seeing the shortness of our crops, we have come to the conclusion that now is the time and that it is our duty to make still more liberal concessions of profit—and ever customer will share therein. We can't make prices, but will give as many as space will permit, and can show you when you come to our store.

Society

W. M. S. Holds Calendar Social.

On Friday evening of last week the Baptist W. M. S. met for a calendar social, with all members of the church as guests. The president, representing the year, had appointed twelve women for her months, the month each appointed four weeks, and each week ask seven people to be their days. Each one taking a part was to bring a certain sum of money, which added quite an amount to the building fund of the W. M. S. for the new church.

A program was rendered including the calendar plan, in the auditorium of the church, after which all retired to the lawn where punch was served and where a generous pounding of groceries and other articles had been arranged to surprise our new pastor, Brother Albertson, and his family. All greatly enjoyed this social hour and general get-together meeting.

On Sunday the pastor made the announcement that, although the pounding was generous and heavy, they did not at all feel sore over it.

A. D. Class Meeting.

Mrs. Madeline C. J. Reese and W. E. Reynolds entertained the A. D. Class on Wednesday afternoon of last week at the home of Mrs. Reynolds. After a brief business meeting all went into the study of our lesson on the book of Exodus, which was led by Mrs. Albertson, and was very interesting.

Delicious ice cream and cake was served to sixteen members.

Mrs. S. A. Bowden and Daughters Entertain.

The beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Bowden was the scene of a lovely party on Thursday afternoon of last week when Mrs. Bowden and her daughters, Mesdames Mike McGraw and Chester Bowden entertained at "84." Cut flowers were attractively arranged around the rooms where eight tables were placed for the play. At the conclusion the hostesses served a delightful salad course consisting of chicken salad, butter sandwiches, potato chips, olives and iced tea, with petunias as favors, to the following guests: Mesdames R. E. Alexander, R. D. Atkinson, H. F. Barnes, M. F. Billingsley, J. O. Bowen, K. B. Freeman, F. O. Campbell, J. C. Campbell, W. A. Campbell, Alf Campbell, Ernest Chamberlain, V. H. Chapman, Henry Craig, R. B. Davy, E. Duval, C. A. Eiland, R. P. Hill, D. E. Holder, L. E. Lovelace, S. E. McCord, Aaron Blanton, Leland Hannah, Roy Aycock, Carroll Honkins, C. J. Reese, E. M. McGlothlin, Oscar Spann and Mrs. Ray Willis of Knox City.

Wednesday Bridge Club.

The Wednesday Bridge Club met at the home of Mrs. U. R. Houser on Saturday evening, where four tables of bridge had a most pleasant evening.

Six rubbers were played off before refreshments of banana salad, cake, sherbet and punch was served after the close competition. Favors of mint flowers were found with the refreshments.

High score went to Mr. E. H. Bauman and Mrs. Fred Broach.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Bengt, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Broach, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Bauman, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Davy, Dr. and Mrs. Joe Davis, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Mayes, and Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Moore. Miss Thelma Atkinson was a guest.

Mrs. Barnes and Lovelace Hostesses to Diversity Club.

The Diversity Club was delightfully entertained on Wednesday evening of last week at the home of Mrs. H. F. Barnes, with Mrs. Barnes and Mrs. L. E. Lovelace as hostesses. Eighty-four provided the diversion for the evening. The color scheme of pink and white was carried out in the decoration of the rooms, score cards and refreshment plate, and the hostesses, assisted by Miss Myrl Love, served a refreshment plate of chicken salad, bread-butter sandwiches, potato chips, olives and fruit punch and cake, with favors of petunies, to the following members: Dr. and Mrs. W. P. Farrington, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Atholson, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Keethley, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Mauldin, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Craig, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Chapman, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Edwards, Mr. and Mrs. John Lane, Mr. and Mrs. E. Duval, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Lovelace, and the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Bengt, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. McStay, Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Broach, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Rice and Mrs. H. T. Maples.

Mrs. Mayes Is Wednesday Bridge Club Hostess.

Mrs. S. L. Mayes entertained the Wednesday Bridge Club and a few guests on Wednesday afternoon from three to six. A salad course and delicious punch was served to Mesdames T. G. Bengt, Fred Broach, E. H. Bauman, R. B. Davy, Joe Davis, U. R. Houser, H. H. Langford, W. R. Moore, Jack Mayes, Miss Thelma Atkinson and Mesdames Pitzer Baker and Ernest Griffith of Weimert.

You are always welcome with us. R. B. Freeman, Pastor.

First Baptist Church.

Sunday School begins promptly at 9:45.

All B. Y. P. U.'s meet at 7 p. m.

Preaching by the pastor at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m.

We are planning to have all departments supplied with superintendents and all classes with teachers by Promotion Day, which is the last Sunday in this month. Let us make that a Red Letter day in our Sunday school work.

It was gratifying last Sunday to see the good attendance in all of the services. The pastor desires to express his appreciation for the good response and the hearty cooperation that is being shown in every line of the work. The outlook for the work is as bright as the promise of God. The Church With a Welcome!

NEELY-FRANKLIN

Martin Franklin of Munday Texas, and Miss Ethel Neely of Moorwood, Oklahoma, motored to Arapaho, Oklahoma, and were united in the holy bonds of matrimony on September 18.

The bride is one of the most highly respected young ladies in the community in which she resides, and is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Neely of Moorwood, while the groom is one of the popular young men of Munday, being a son of Mr. and Mrs. Clint Franklin.

Immediately after the ceremony they returned to the home of the bride's parents where a delicious wedding dinner was served. After visiting Elk City and other points they will make their home with the bride's parents at Moorwood. Their many friends extend congratulations and best wishes for a long and happy married life.

"Break Down Resistance Through Advertising"—Vardaman

Ben R. Vardaman, author, editor, lecturer, left Eastland on Wednesday for Frederick, Oklahoma, after conducting a three-day Greater Business and Community Institute here that has already developed a keener interest in business and community problems and is expected to raise the standard of business efficiency and increase the spirit of co-operation and community service. He will conduct a similar institute in Frederick. His work everywhere appears to have been fruitful.

"Break down resistance through advertising," said Mr. Vardaman in a conversation with some business men here.

"Every business and every business man is confronted by resistance in building and extending business. There are indeed, many kinds of resistance. There is, for instance, the resistance of 'self-satisfaction.' Too often the merchant, or the merchants as a whole of a town, become self-satisfied and slacken their efforts to extend their business.

"Invariably when this happens things stop. The world is going so fast, there is so much keen competition that when a town stops advertising, or a merchant stops telling people about his business, that town or that merchant is actually going back.

Sometimes we meet business men who seem to have the feeling that business is something that simply settles down on a place without any effort or responsibility upon the part of the business man. But it is not so—business today is going where it is invited. Generally speaking the business invitation is nothing more or less than advertising.

"But occasionally a merchant or other business man is met who throws up his hands and exclaims, 'but advertising is too expensive, I can't afford it.' But my answer to such a statement is that advertising is not expensive—real productive advertising does not cost anybody anything.

A radical statement I know—but it is absolutely true. There is a great deal of money wasted in so-called advertising, it is true. But real productive advertising is not an expense.

"For instance, step up to the soda fountain and ask for a glass of Coca-Cola, and you will be served and charged 5c, mark you, millions upon millions of dollars have been spent in telling you about that glass of Coca-Cola—still it is sold for five cents, the same price it has always been sold for. Who, then, has paid for all that advertising?

"Again, note what has happened with cameras. In 1890, Mr. Eastman made and sold a very fine little camera—the price was $25. But he went to pouring millions of dollars into telling the world about it. Now he will sell you a better camera for $10. Again, who has paid for all that advertising?

"When they first began taking carborundum from under Niagara Falls it was called 'Artificial Diamonds' and sold for $850 per pound. Now after millions of dollars have been spent in telling the world about this wonderful product (which you buy in any hardware store in the form of sawblades, etc.), you can buy a ton of the new material for about 80c. Advertising has reduced the price from about $1,750,000 to 80c per ton. Then surely it cannot be figured that advertising has been an expense.

"The same principle holds good in anything that is properly advertised. Advertising attracts people; people purchasing increases volume in production which reduces prices.

"The merchant who advertises judiciously increases his volume, reduces his overhead and is able to sell lower than the merchant who does not advertise.

"Think what it might be worth to Eastland if through advertising an extra family out on the border line between this and some other town should be induced to come to Eastland to trade. Suppose that little family should spend all told an average of $10 per week. A small amount, but it would mean the same thing in a year as bringing some new business to the city with an invested capital of $520. That $520 would be distributed throughout the entire town—it would profit everyone to a certain extent.

"Then suppose through the influence of that family others came, suppose there should be a hundred new families turned toward Eastland. Advertising in the same amount their business would mean an addition of $52,000 per year to our total—if a thousand families were induced to come it would mean adding $520,000 per year.

"In one town in the North the leaders are now in a campaign to turn 10,000 new families toward their town.

"This can be done only through advertising in some way—then when it is done it surely cannot be charged as an expense. It is an investment, for anything that produces profit for a business must be considered an investment and not an expense.—Eastland Telegram.

WEST TEXAS BOY WILL ENTERTAIN DURING FAIR

ABILENE, Texas.—All West Texas is to be entertained by a West Texas boy during the West Texas Fair in this city. Henry Sadler, a Jones county farm boy, not so long ago, who since has come to be one of the outstanding theatrical producers of the southwest, is the man who has caused a break-up of tradition in making fair programs.

Heretofore, in practically all fairs and expositions, it has been the custom to go to New York, Chicago or St. Louis to get the feature entertainment attraction. In planning the program for the fair to be given here this year, the officials of the local exposition concluded that Sadler, who with his company of dramatic artists, has attained wide attention in the theatrical world, would please a larger number of people than any other attraction that could be secured.

Sadler will bring with him to the fair here, the largest and most capable company he has ever carried, he declares. He will have an aggregation of "big-time" vaudeville and an efficient band and orchestra and will give, twice daily, during the fair, a varied program, consisting of full length plays, musical concerts, dancing and other features.

SOME HORSE RACE!

New York.—Vincent Scana, 18, and Peter Cangelia, 19, decided suddenly to celebrate with an old-fashioned horse race.

The lads rented horses from a livery stable and soon the residents of a staid Brooklyn street were astonished to see two horses galloping at full tilt, "jockeys" riding them. Never had such a thing been seen before on a crowded city street.

The boys were fined $5 each, on the strength of an old ordinance forbidding horse racing on city streets. They were caught by a policeman who dashed after the horses and men in a modern taxicab.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS STATE ROAD AND BRIDGE CONSTRUCTION

Sealed proposals addressed to State Highway Engineer of Texas, for the improvement of that part of State Highway No. 30 covered by P.A.P. 482-B in Knox County, will be received at the office of the State Highway Engineer, at Austin, Texas, until 10 o'clock, A. M., Sept. 17th, 1928, and then publicly opened and read.

Work consists of construction of grading and drainage structures from Baylor County line to Haskell County line, a distance of 13.181 miles.

Time for completion to be 100 working days for bridges and 125 working days for grading and small drainage structures.

Certified, or cashier's checks for $1,700.00 for bridges and $1,500.00 for grading and small drainage structures are required.

Detailed plans and specifications of the work may be seen for examination, and information may be obtained at the office of H. S. Kerr, Res. Engineer, at Seymour, Texas, and at the office of the State Highway Department, State Office Building, Austin, Texas.

Mr. Baldwin could never be sure, when he came home at night, that he wouldn't find himself going to bed in the top drawer of his dresser, or locating—with his bare hands—the piano in a place far removed from its morning location. This habit Mrs. Baldwin has of moving the furniture may have been one reason for his opposing so violently any changing or remodeling of their home. Manlike, he saw it as it had looked some years before, when they had first built it. And, though it grew shabbier, dingier and more out-of-date every day, Mr. Baldwin could see nothing wrong with it. "You're always wanting to change something," he would say. "This house is good enough for anybody!"

It was distinctly unwise, therefore, for Mr. Baldwin to give his wife money for a birthday present, just before he went away on a two-weeks' trip. For, upon his return, he was ushered into a kitchen so bright, so cheery, so exceedingly pretty, that it put the rest of the house to shame. And Mrs. Baldwin knew, before he told her, that the other rooms soon would follow the example of her lovely kitchen.

"You girls will think I've tried to be intensely patriotic," she phoned the members of the Kitchen Club. "But I want you to come and see my red, white and blue kitchen, just the same. I wasn't flag-waving, but just trying to get as far from my old brown walls and black stove and golden oak furniture as possible!"

LEAVES FROM NANCY'S KITCHEN CLUB

NOTEBOOK
Mrs. Baldwin's kitchen is bright, and so pretty! Linoleum floor in dark red effect; walls, light gray; tables, chairs, cabinets, refrigerator, etc., white with a striped design of dark blue and red; white oil range; some pots and pans red, some blue, some white. Bright blue gingham curtains streaked in red. Shelves white lined with blue.

A Rainy Day Play Room

Mrs. Smith, who has a house full of children, adapted several of our Kitchen Club ideas to make a rainy-day play room in her kitchen. She put the blackboard, the washable oil cloth walls (not on the way up the walls, but as high as the children can reach), the breakfast table on which they can sit and read, the plain brown linoleum floor which they can walk on with chalk for their marble games, and the yellow curtains for "sunshine." The green hat men use the oil stove, she says, for it is perfectly safe. It has automatic which stops that keep the flame from going too high or too low; it is solidly built, and it is finished in porcelain enamel, so that if they get it dirty, it can be easily cleaned.

Mrs. Smith keeps some of the children's games and books put away for rainy day use. Old magazines are kept for the "paper dolls" and brought out only on rainy days.

New Table Finish

Jane brought us a good idea from a tea shop she patronizes in town. She had noticed that the tables were richer and much more interesting in color than ordinary ones. And upon investigation she saw that bright-colored linoleum in a beautiful pattern had been fastened down on them. (This can be done either with tacks or cement.) Plain white or solid-colored dolies were used.

A New Way To Make French Dressing

Use tomato juice instead of lemon or vinegar in your French dressing, for a new, delightful flavor. Measurements as follows:
1/4 cup of olive oil
1/4 cup of strained tomato juice
1/2 teaspoon of salt
Pepper and paprika to taste
1/4 teaspoon of sugar added is pleasing to most tastes.
Mix dry ingredients. Put into bowl with tomato juice and oil. Beat vigorously. If allowed to stand, beat again before serving.

Snowballs

Bake shallow cup cakes. (Almost any cake recipe can be used for this, putting in a little less flour than is called for.) Scoop out the tops and fill with custard. Put two together, top to top. Cover with soft icing and fresh coconut.

YOUNG ROOSTER LAYS EGGS

Atlantic City, N. J.—The prize exhibit at the Atlantic County Fair is a young cockerel who crows, has a rooster's comb and is reported to lay eggs. L. J. Wood, of Elwood, who found the peculiar bird in a hatch this year, says he will preserve the eggs and incubate them.

International Sunday School Lesson for September 23.

THE CHRISTIAN BASIS FOR TOTAL ABSTINENCE
I Corinthians 8:1-13

By Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

The quarterly temperance lesson has been a feature of the International Uniform series for many years. Its introduction in the Sunday School was followed by the scientific temperance instruction in public schools in the various states of the Union. The general purpose is to teach the basic fact that alcohol is a poison and the effect that such a poison has on the individual and society. The whole subject is a live one today, not only in America but throughout the world. In the United States the study is especially pertinent as the wet and dry issue has such a prominent place in the coming presidential election.

The moral issue is much more than an individual matter. Every one exerts a far-reaching influence, both conscious and unconscious. Paul had a case in hand when he wrote to the Corinthians from Ephesus, during his third missionary journey. Idol worship prevailed and any religion involves a sacrifice of one kind or another. Animals were slain to propitiate the various gods, and there were many of these so-called deities. The priests of the various cults could eat only a very small portion of the meat resulting from such slaughter. Both the economic and natural thing to do was to offer the meat for sale, for there was nothing the matter with it from the standpoint of food.

At once a serious and conscientious question was raised in the minds of both Jews and Christians. They must not in any way partake of food which had first been offered to idols. Such food might be on table where they were guests. This whole matter was face the effect of their actions on others. Doing as they pleased would become a "stumbling block to the weak." Many will not think through but will permit the action of another to determine their course. Every life is an open book, which is read by others and their lives are influenced accordingly.

Without raising in any way the question of individual rights Paul reveals how eager he is to always render the utmost help to others. It is easy to imagine the short man standing as upright as possible and declaring as a working principle "Wherefore, if meat cause my brother to stumble, I will eat no flesh forevermore."

In Paul's case the meat which had been offered to an idol was as nutritious as any other, but alcohol is always a poison. This is the decision of science and not the statement of a mere opinion.

Although several American presidents were inventors, Lincoln is the only one who took out a patent.

PLAN LARGER AGRICULTURAL SHOW AT WEST TEXAS FAIR

ABILENE, Texas.—For the past several years the agricultural department of the West Texas Fair has been one of the largest and best, from the standpoint of quality of the products and quantity of the exhibits, in all the southwest. J. R. Masterson, superintendent of that division for this year's exposition, to be staged during the week of September 24, is expecting to have even a better show than at any time in the past for the 1926 offering.

Premiums for county and community exhibits have been increased and this is likely to bring on stronger competition than any other inducement that could have been offered.

The agricultural shows at the West Texas Fair have had much to do with stimulating an interest in diversification. Officials of the exposition have always been anxious to get specimens of all the products of the soil of this area shown, so the general public could see what could be produced and it is largely due to that fact that fruit and vegetable culture is every year growing in importance over West Texas—for people have seen what other folks have done and have then gone home and done it themselves.

Stage Career Most Satisfactory for Girls

MARGARET MERLE

Tell me why you're jangling like a bell? — Making fun of the ones who love you!

So Says Opera Singer, Who Has Found It So

New York City.—The stage is the most moral career the modern girl can follow. In fact, it is the most all-around satisfactory job a girl having to earn her way in the world can take.

This is the opinion of Margaret Merle, operetta star who has been through all the departments of show business.

"It has always amused me greatly to hear people in small communities who are unfamiliar with the ways of the stage, belittle it," says Miss Merle. "They only do it because the theatre comes to them from afar and they shroud it in a certain mystery."

Wages Good
"The stage is really a satisfying profession. It is one of the few where girls are paid wages sufficient for them to have all the luxury they desire. And travel and meeting interesting people are theirs for the asking.

"The theatrical business is hard work, but one has more leisure hours than in any other profession. I have known instances of college girls preparing Ph.D. theses between shows. I studied voice daily while I played in vaudeville.

"The modern stage is attracting and demanding women of greater intelligence each year. It is not just a case of coming out and doing one's dance or one's song. One has actually to act.

"Coquette"
"I am very fond of one of my new foxtrot songs called 'Coquette,' written by a Harvard man. It tells in simple lyric the time old story. To interpret this properly I studied it as I would an operatic role and rehearsed it daily for three weeks before I sang it in public."

Miss Merle is famous for her creation of the role of Mitt, the leading character in "Evasion Time." She is from Kansas City and will shortly appear in opera in Europe.

Jury in Injunction Suits Against City Fails of Agreement

The injunction suit tried at Benjamin last week wherein A. J. Glasgow sought to enjoin the City of Munday from operating the municipal sewage disposal plant resulted in a hung jury, and after deliberating for several hours the jury was dismissed by Judge I. O. Newton.

The case was given to the jury on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock and the jury was dismissed on Thursday morning after reporting to Judge Newton that there was no hope of reaching a verdict, the jury being divided five to seven.

Many Munday citizens were called as witnesses in the case, both for the city and for the plaintiff, and the case was one of the most stubbornly fought legal battles that has ever been started in Knox county. The city was represented in the case by City Attorney J. S. Kendall and Judge Joe A. P. Dickson of Seymour, while the plaintiff was represented by M. F. Billingsley of Munday and D. J. Brookreson of Benjamin.

BUGS END MEETING

Now the meetings have been disbanded until winter because at the last meeting myriads of strange bugs gathered on the spreading shade trees, loosed their holds and fell upon the gathering.

LOUIE HOP DOESN'T HOP

San Francisco.—Louie Hop has croaked his last. He came from Orange County to participate in the jumping frog contest at the State Fair. He was all hopped up to win, and now his backers claim someone strangled him with a dry, tough Sacramento Valley fly.

Calvario's frog breeders scoff at the murder theory and declare Louie died from mortification after watching a Calvario's entry jump eight feet in practice!

A well known minister, famous for absent-mindedness, once met an old friend in the street and stopped to talk with him. When about to separate, the minister's face suddenly assumed a puzzled expression.

"Tom," he said, "when we met was I going up or down the street?"

"Down," replied Tom.
The ministers' face cleared. "It's all right, then. I had been home to lunch."

 Freshman Reporter Mavourne Reeves
 Joke Editor Earl Newsom

Once Again

Once again the Roundhouse reopens. This is the third year of the Roundhouse, and we want to make it the best year. However, this week's issue will not be organized, due to the fact that some of our writers are new at this game. Just wait until we're better organized and we will put out a real section of a paper.

We are all glad to get back to school, and we know that we are going to have another successful year. Watch our progress line for 1928-29. With the best of school boards, a real No. 1 faculty, and a bunch of youngsters and youths that have the eagerness to give and take, we should attain heights that we have never reached before.

Magnus Battle Throckmorton To a Scoreless Tie

Last Friday the local high school Magnus journeyed to Throckmorton for their first gridiron tilt of the season. Considering the fact that the boys had only been practicing a few days local fans were glad to see them emerge with a scoreless tie. However those who saw the game say that Munday played a better game than did their opponents. The Magnus goal line was never seriously threatened, while most of the game was played with the ball in Throckmorton territory. Munday not only made more first downs and gained more yards from scrimmage than their opponents but they also completed more passes. The usual poor playing form and fumbles that characterize early season games seem to be reduced or eliminated, but, on the whole, both teams played much better football than might have been expected.

For the Magnus: E. Pruitt, Aycock, Green, Hughes, and Holder played unusually well while the entire team was up to par for the first game.

Seniors
 The Senior Class was organized Monday, Sept. 18, when the following officers were elected: Joe Aycock, president; Everett Pruitt, vice-president; and Francis Atkinson, secretary.

Well, vacation's over, and it has served its purpose, but we'll all agree that it's pleasant to go to school once more. We, the Seniors of 1928-29, have resolved to get down to work and make things "bam." As Juniors we made people notice, and as Seniors we intend to do still more (you may consider that as a threat or warning) watch our make!

We are glad to see the same old "gang" again this year and are also ready to welcome the new students who have enrolled as Seniors. These new members of the class are: Jewed Heathcoat, who comes to us from Chaucer, Texas; Ishmael Walling, who hails from Gillispie; Clois Stevens from Weinert; Frank Green and Arlene Kiniall. We welcome all of them, and we sincerely hope that they will enjoy our class.

We ordered our invitations and diplomas last week. It may seem that we are talking too much for granted, for we may not get to use them. They may, however, prove an incentive to strive to make the grade even though the road be rugged. We sincerely hope that every one of the nineteen in our Senior class will march in cap and gown down that old church aisle in May, 1929.

Junior Platform

These are the things we, the Juniors of 1929 are going to strive for:

1. True sportsmanship. We are not going in for class antagonism as has been the custom in former years. We want to work together with the other classes to create a true High School Spirit.
2. Athletic support: The Juniors will lend their every effort to make this athletic season the best in the history of the school. We will be behind the "Pep Squad" and try to come out 100 per cent.
3. Co-operation: Any program the school attempts will have our unanimous support. Everything that we can do to help make it a success will be done.
4. Scholastic Average: Not only will we be true sportsmen, but we will make our class have the best scholastic average of any class in school.

Our enrollment of 25 is very pleasing. We are glad to welcome all new students and hope that they will help us carry out our platform.

And these things being said—Let's go!

Sophomores

School has started, and when school starts no one can stop it. We still hear the effects of last year, so perhaps after the first two weeks we shall start playing again. We have a number of new teachers and we want to welcome them to our school.

The Sophomores are boosting the Magnis, and though a very few saw the game at Throckmorton, we are encouraged with the prospects of a much better team than last season's. Our class is well represented in the team. Paul Pruitt, captain; Gilbert Myers, Hubert Isbell, Rex Holder, John B. Rayburn, Tommy West and Arletel Thompson. Wait until the class tournament comes! We are going to have 100 per cent Sophomores at the game Friday to see the Magnus win from Crowell H.

The girls in the Soph squad are overjoyed. They are going to make a dress for themselves! They are all sure that they will have very little trouble (with their mother's help). Home Ec. and Typing are interesting subjects; we are proud of our increase in courses.

The Sophs did not drop their social activities during the summer. We had one party and two picnics. The party was given for Dorothy Lamm, a departing classmate, at the home of Opal Russell. Dorothy was with us a short time but she possessed a host of friends.

We have a few new members in our class that we are glad to welcome. E. L. Bales, an old classmate, has returned to us from O'Donnell, Texas. Marie Collins, Guthrie, Oklahoma; Willie Stubbfield, Elva Clark and Lucile Yates from Prairie View. Another thing we are proud of is the picture of J. Horace Bass, framed and placed in the study hall by our class last year. Some of the upper classes indicated that we were "too close to even be customary" but we know all the time they did not know everything.

Freshmen
 The students of yesterday's seventh grade feel High School very different and very "chuck" and sometimes feel from Christian School. Although they are new, we are supposed to go to, we believe that some day we will be as good as Freshmen ever get to be.

We had a class meeting last Wednesday and elected Dark Rayburn, "President of the Fish."

There are 27 Freshmen in High School this year. That is more than there has ever been before.

N We Laughed
 Mrs. Rhodes (at the stove): "Are those eggs fresh?"
 Clerk: "They haven't said anything to me."

Mr. Palmer: "Did you take a bath?"
 Chan: "No, why? Is there one missing?"

Vivian: "I surely was sorry to hear that you got hurt in Friday's game."
 Joe: "Where did you get that stuff? I wasn't hurt a bit."

Vivian: "Well, the newspaper write-up kept referring to your still-arm."
 Mr. Kiniall: "Do you serve lobsters in here?"
 Walter: "Yes, what will you have?"

Miss Newton: "If any of you don't think you can stand to look at your neighbors face, you may move."
 Chan (vacating his front seat): "Thank you, man."

Miss Paxton: "Whom was George Washington born?"
 Senior: "Feb. 22, 1732, A. D."
 Miss Paxton: "Now, what does A. D. mean?"
 Senior: "After Dark, I suppose."

Chan's Chatter
 Football practice started a week before school opened and for the first week we had sixteen men out every afternoon. Last week however, we had eighteen men. Our team keeps growing every week, which will strengthen us in size and weight. They are: Clois Stevens, from Lone Star and Ray Worthington.

Most all of us like to go to Throckmorton, for two reasons, the boys are all good sports and the girls are all good looking.

Our mothers will not have to worry about us taking a bath now, because there has been a good "shower bath" installed in the dressing room. This improvement meets a long felt need in our high school athletic activities.

We are glad to have Joe Barton, Homer Parker, William Fritz and a few other boys to serenade with us some last week.

Every one of us are looking forward, and working hard for the game
