Munday Welcomes Confederate Veterans

Munday Extends Welcome to Confederate Veterans At Third Annual Reunion Here

Good Program and Basket Picnic Dinner In Honor Of Veterans Who Fought For Lost Cause. Munday and Rhineland Bands Will Render Music.

Munday is today receiving the grizzly veterans of the Confederacy with open arms. Munday proposes that this shall be the most enjoyable occasion that the veterans of this county have ever enjoyed, and everything possible to make it just that kind of an occasion will be done.

Various committees appointed by the Munday Chamber of Commerce, which organization extended the invitation to the veterans to hold their reunion here this year, and which organization is sponsoring the reunion, have been working diligently on plans for some days and they will find that every care has been taken that will contribute to their enjoyment while in our city.

The program as outlined for the first day is not very full of entertainment, as will be observed by a glance at the printed program, but those in charge felt that the veterans could get no more pleasure out of any kind of entertainment than that which they derive from mixing and mingling with each other and talking over some of the experiences through which they passed during the perilous days of 1860-65—and even later—during the trying reconstruction period.

We believe that the program that has been arranged for the two days is one that will be pleasing to the veterans, and it should be borne in mind that these are the ones whose enjoyment the program has been arranged, and while the reunion will have none of the usual carnival features, we are sure that the lack of the same will not detract from the occasion insofar as the veterans are concerned.

The program for the two days are published on this page.

Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Branch had as their guests during the past week Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Chamberlain of Ennis, Texas. Mr. Chamberlain is a brother to Mrs. Branch.

Club Members Visit Utilities Show Room And See Demonstration

Members of the Home Demonstration Clubs of Knox, Haskell and Baylor counties, who are holding their annual encampment at Broach Lake on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, visited the local show-rooms of the West Texas Utilities Company on Tuesday morning, where they were given a demonstration of the workings of the Frigidaire and other electrical appliances by Jake Morris, the efficient commercial agent of the company.

The demonstration was one of the instructive features of the encampment and the ladies were accompanied by Miss Myrtle Murray, State Home Demonstration Agent, Miss Grace Nelson, Knox county home demonstration agent, and other directors as well as almost one hundred club members.

Chamber of Commerce Serves Breakfast To Club Ladies at Camp

Early Wednesday morning a committee from the Munday Chamber of Commerce served breakfast to the ladies of the Home Demonstration Clubs of Knox, Haskell and Baylor counties at Broach Lake, where they are holding their annual encampment. The committee was composed of E. W. McGlothlin, C. R. Elliott and J. A. Kennedy.

Bacon, eggs, hot rolls and coffee were served to the seventy-five ladies, and from the manner in which the ladies partook of the morning meal they thoroughly enjoyed the novelty of having breakfast served to them by a party of mere men, and we are sure that the gentlemen involved received as much pleasure out of the experience as did the ladies.

West Texas Utilities Will Rebuild Lines With Heavier Material

Work will begin within a few days in rebuilding the lines of the West Texas Utilities Company in the northwest portion of the city, according to an announcement made by Carl Mahan, district superintendent. The new construction order covers six blocks on Smith avenue, running north from the corner of Earnest street to the north extremity of the street, and the lines will be constructed by 35-foot cross-cut pine poles with lines of No. 8, 6 and 4 wire, which is much heavier construction than that with which that portion of the city is now served, and enable the company to give improved service in that section of the city as well as to raise the lines above the trees among the street.

The Utilities Company has practically rebuilt the entire system here during the past two years and with the completion of this heavy line most all parts of the city will be enabled to receive the maximum of service.

Little Miss Bernardine Karr of Oklahoma City is a guest this week in the home of her aunt, Mrs. M. Carrol.

Flowers Revival To Begin Sunday Morn.

Evangelistic Party Will Receive Hearty Welcome in Munday; Committees Have Been Working Hard

The various committees appointed to work along the various lines in connection with the coming of the Flowers Revival Party who will begin a revival under the auspices of the Methodist church on Sunday morning, have been hard at work for several days, and everything is in readiness to receive the evangelistic workers.

The Flowers Party are not strangers in West Texas, having held revivals in various towns over this section of the state, and they come recommended as just the character of workers that Munday will like. They are not of the sensational nature, but confine their efforts to lines that have proven effective and lasting, and we believe that the people of this section will appreciate not the kind of revival that they will conduct and that men of all result from their visit to Munday.

In this paper there will be found an entire section devoted to the revival. Our business concerns have joined heartily into the movement for a revival in Munday, and we are sure that the citizenship will join in with no less enthusiasm in this movement and that Munday will have a revival that will long be remembered and that will be far-reaching and lasting in its effects upon the entire community.

The Flowers Party will find in Munday the heartiest cooperation in every phase of their work, and we are glad to add our most hearty welcome to those of the many other business concerns represented on these about seventeen from Baylor there are a number of business concerns that were not called on for the reason that we were crowded for time in getting out the section.

Masonic Educational Service Attended By Many Members Order

The Masonic Educational service held at the local Masonic hall on Thursday evening of last week was well attended by Masons from this section there being large delegations from Haskell, Rochester, Goree, Knox City, Seymour and one delegate came from Woodson.

The message of the evening was delivered by Wilbur Keith of Dallas, secretary of the Masonic Educational Service association of the Grand Lodge of Texas, and was accompanied by Munday by Dennis Ratliff of Haskell, district deputy grand master, who presided over the meeting.

Mr. Keith dwelt at length upon the obligations taken by members of the order, and urged that the members live more in accordance to these obligations. He also gave an outline of the accomplishments of the order in Texas during recent years, in which he pointed out that the order had expanded more than $7,000,000 in taking care of its dependent members, their children and in rendering a service to humanity. Mr. Keith also presented stereoscopic views showing the various Masonic institutions of Texas, including the orphan's home and home for aged Masons and their wives at Arlington, the hospital for crippled children at Dallas, the home for tubercular service men at Kerrville and other institutions maintained by Masonic and Eastern Star Orders in Texas. A goodly portion of Mr. Keith's address was given to the part played by Masons in American history, which was also illustrated by picture slides, and vividly revealed the important part that members of the great fraternity had played in the making of history.

Mr. Keith was accompanied by Mr. Joe Gunn, worshipful

W. H. D. Clubs In Camp Broach Lake

Eighty Members From Baylor, Knox and Haskell Counties Enjoying Annual Outing

About eighty members of the Home Demonstration Clubs of Knox, Baylor and Haskell counties are in camp at Broach Lake on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, and the encampment is declared by those in attendance to be one of the most enjoyable that has ever been held. There are about twenty-seven members from Haskell county under the leadership of Miss Matilda Gunn, home demonstration agent, and above seventeen from Baylor county under the leadership of Miss Eula Bradley and thirty-five from Knox county under the direction of Miss Grace Nelson, home demonstration agent for Knox county.

One of the most enjoyable features of the program on Tuesday was the address by Miss Myrtle Murray, district home demonstration agent, who gave a most interesting and instructive discourse on "Leisure Well Used."

The ladies are thoroughly enjoying the event," said Miss Matilda Gunn, Haskell county's home demonstration agent, "as it takes them away from the dishes, mops and brooms for a brief vacation, which is about the only one that is enjoyed by many of the ladies in attendance."

They are spending the time swimming, playing games, talking over problems, and a most interesting and instructive program has been outlined for each day.

Farmers Union Holds State Meeting Here

Resolution Favoring Wrapping of All Cotton With Cotton and Reduction of Acreage

The Farmers Educational and Co-operative Union of Texas held their 27th annual convention here on Tuesday and a goodly representation was present from various parts of the state.

Among the resolutions passed by the body was one urging the members of the Farmers Union to demand that all cotton raised by them be wrapped in cotton bagging, and one urging that more feed and less cotton be raised by its members.

Officers elected for the ensuing year are as follows: J. D. Penderson, Munday, president; Joe Koenig, Rhineland, vice-president; J. E. Edwards, Munday, secretary-treasurer. Executive committee: C. S. Steves, Runge, chairman; A. L. Baker, Stockdale; Robert Myers, Munday; S. J. Warren, Munday and Peter Loran, Rhineland.

The meeting came to a close on Tuesday night with a big ice cream supper at the local Farmers Union Hall, which was attended by members of the organization and their families and at which there were about 800 in attendance.

Mrs. E. Duval and Mrs. Florence Williams have had as their guests during the week their mother, Mrs. M. Alexander, their sister, Mrs. Jas. A. Stephens and Miss Marguerite Stephens of Benjamin, and Miss Lelia Grace Bisbee of Abilene.

master of Trinity Valley Lodge, Dallas, who gave a most beautiful address on the lofty principles of the order, and his address was thoroughly enjoyed by the large number of Masons in attendance.

At the close of the program delicious refreshments consisting of ice cream, cake and punch were served, and the declaration of all present was that the event was one of the most enjoyable and profitable meetings that they had ever attended, and many are looking forward to having meetings of this kind in Munday more often in the future.

BANKERS PROVIDE STUDENT LOANS

American Bankers Association Completes Plan to Award 167 College Economic Scholarships Throughout Nation.

AWARDS TO START THIS FALL

Students in Agricultural Economics to Be Helped in Farm States—Will Also Facilitate Entry into Business Life.

One hundred and sixty-seven college economic scholarships will be granted by the American Bankers Association this fall. The awards are being paid to 11 selected colleges and 157 students in 33 states. It has been announced by John H. Proctor, chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Association's Foundation for Economic Education, that the foundation fund of $100,000 was started in 1925 to commemorate the Association's 50th anniversary and to aid in education and all worthy work in various fields to further progress in banking and economics in various parts of the country.

The scholarship awards will be available for the following year beginning this fall and will provide help with all kinds of expenses to be paid on any terms following their own free will. The awards are given to several farm states, it is provided, and the plan is to provide scholarships in agricultural economics. A special feature of the plan in addition to its educational advantages is that scholars, upon discharge of all their financial obligations connected with their loans, will be given certificate of honorary membership in the foundation signed by the members of the board of trustees, which will be available as evidence of financial responsibility for their use in starting their business careers.

College Awarded Scholarships Profoundly of one or more scholarships have been made to the following institutions:

- Alabama: University of Alabama
- Arkansas: University of Arkansas
- California: University of California
- Colorado: University of Colorado
- Florida: University of Florida
- Georgia: University of Georgia
- Illinois: University of Illinois
- Indiana: University of Indiana
- Iowa: University of Iowa
- Kansas: University of Kansas
- Kentucky: University of Kentucky
- Louisiana: Louisiana State University
- Michigan: University of Michigan
- Minnesota: University of Minnesota
- Mississippi: University of Mississippi
- Montana: University of Montana
- Nebraska: University of Nebraska
- Nevada: University of Nevada
- New Mexico: University of New Mexico
- New York: Cornell University
- North Carolina: University of North Carolina
- North Dakota: University of North Dakota
- Ohio: University of Ohio
- Oklahoma: University of Oklahoma
- Oregon: University of Oregon
- Pennsylvania: University of Pennsylvania
- Rhode Island: University of Rhode Island
- South Carolina: University of South Carolina
- South Dakota: University of South Dakota
- Tennessee: University of Tennessee
- Texas: University of Texas
- Virginia: University of Virginia
- Washington: University of Washington
- West Virginia: University of West Virginia
- Wisconsin: University of Wisconsin
- Wyoming: University of Wyoming

The general plan allows scholarships to higher institutions of learning in states where the banks have completed the subscription quotas assigned them in the foundation fund. Institutions are selected on the basis of type of school, educational standards, geographical distribution and desirability to the plan. A scholarship committee is to be created in each selected institution, to consist of members of the faculty and a prominent banker. All scholarship applications must be made formally through the college committee and not direct to the foundation. Three home-town references are required of each applicant, at least one of whom must be a banker. Only students of junior or higher grade in banking and economic courses are eligible and those who have also attended American Institute of Banking courses will be given preference.

Easy Terms
Scholarship payments will be given only to those whose means of education are dependent in whole or part upon their own efforts and will continue only during satisfactory scholastic standing or conduct. The loans are at five per cent beginning the first day of the second January after the scholar leaves school, with 60 interest, on repayment made prior to that time. Loans may be paid off in monthly installments of $10 or more. After three installments have been promptly met payments may be placed on a quarterly basis until the loan is wiped out which must occur within three years. In cases of delinquency, consideration will be given to special circumstances, such as ill health or unavoidable unemployment.

SCIENCE NOTES

Greater speed and accuracy in preparing air maps are anticipated with an aerial camera that has four lenses. It was recently subjected to field tests by army flyers before mapping an area of approximately 2,500 square miles along the east coast of Florida.

Exploration of polar regions by means of submarines is considered practical. Stefansson suggested the plan in 1918, and just recently Capt. George H. Wilkins endorsed the idea. He declares that a submarine should be able to cruise from Spitzbergen to Alaska and that the craft would be useful in making investigation of ocean currents.

Birds have exceptionally keen eyesight and the additional faculty of seeing an approaching person while apparently intent on feeding. Small birds will instantly discover a hawk, although it is so high as to be merely a speck to the human vision. The mystery is explained by the fact that the bird's eyes do not co-operate but each can focus on a different object at the same time.

Methods of predicting weather changes a week in advance, and with an accuracy almost as great as that for the daily forecasts, have been developed by C. L. Mitchell, district forecaster of the weather bureau. More time and preparation are required, but he considers the results worth the extra work involved.

Among the by-products from coal at a German plant is viscose artificial silk, several tons of which were produced this year. The amount is expected to be doubled when new factories are completed in 1929. Benzene has also been extracted.

That radio may be used indirectly in treating disease, is the possibility suggested by recent investigations into the effect of waves of low frequency upon the human system. It had been noticed that men working about a six-meter set in an eastern laboratory frequently fainted, or became ill. A fever was present in almost all cases of this kind, and experiments showed that it was induced by the action of the waves. In treating some disease, fever is induced to kill germs that will not live at high temperatures, so it is thought that radio waves may be used for this purpose.

Light and plenty of it, is usually required in searching for visible flaws in any object, but the seventy-inch disk of optical glass recently made at the bureau of standards for the Perkins observatory at Ohio Wesleyan University, was subjected to its most exacting tests in darkness. The reason was that the internal condition of the big piece of glass is revealed by passing beams of light through it and then studying the patterns and colors that result. This can be done satisfactorily only in a dark place.

Potassium permanganate, applied as a 5 per cent solution to affected parts with a soft cloth or a bit of cotton, has been found an effective cure for itchy poisoning, the department of agriculture reports. It stops the itching in a short time and recovery is rapid.

for brief spurts of activity but is too restless for long concentration, experiments have shown. Mental tests on a number of subjects recently proved that the subjects achieved a 10 per cent higher score at night. As the day wears on, the brain appears to become better adapted to concentration.

Women do most all of the work in the fields and in the homes among the Bataks of Sumatra. Some of their farming customs and implements are unique. To loosen the soil for planting crops, long poles, sharpened at one end, are forced into the ground and then pulled out. This crude method has been in use for generations and is always performed by women.

Sound waves of a frequency of 200,000 to 500,000 vibrations a second passed along a tapering glass rod caused the tip to bore a hole in a piece of wood and a plate of glass. A French experimenter discovered recently. When the waves were communicated to a glass rod about one one-hundredth of an inch thick and more than a yard long, the frictional effect was so intense that the flesh could be burned.

HINTS FOR THE HOME

When you go a-visiting on your vacation, keep in mind these simple suggestions for the parting gift to your hostess: (They will save you much time and speculation when it comes to shopping.)

A set of pretty boudoir boxes for her dresser; a pair of spun glass swans in colored glass for salt and pepper holders; a quaint old print or mezzotint to brighten some dull spot on the wall; one of the new standing mirrors in photograph size for the occasional table; a luncheon set in colored damask; a pair of quilted pillow tops in shades in harmony with the guest room or the hostess' room.

Packed attractively, with a well-chosen greeting card enclosed, any of these gifts will express your appreciation of the visit in a most acceptable way. And a gift is a gift.

A Delicious Ice-Box Cake

Soak a tablespoon of gelatin in 1-4 cup cold water and dissolve in 1 cup boiling water. Let stand until thickens. Beat with rotary beater until frothy. Stir together 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 1-2 cups sweetened condensed milk, and add 1-2 cups crushed strawberries. Fold this mixture into beaten gelatin, return to ice box until it begins to set. Line mold with split lady fingers; fill with strawberry mixture; set on ice for several hours. Turn out on plate and serve with or without whipped cream.

For Meatless Summer Meals

With the vegetable menu it is nice to serve one starchy dish such as baked cheese rice, hominy fritters or macaroni croquettes made with chopped cold macaroni, cheese and white sauce, poached into croquettes and fried crisp in butter or margarine. These "substantials" give body to the meatless meal and make it quite satisfying.

Chairman Instructed To Draw Petition For New Road Election

Haskell, July 6.—The result of a mass meeting held here this afternoon to discuss a proposed bond election to provide funds for paving Haskell county's part of hard-surfacing its state highways was to instruct the chairman, R. C. Couch, to prepare a petition to be presented to the commissioners court asking that an election for the purpose of voting on approximately $200,000 in bonds be called for a date yet to be decided.

About 60 representative citizens from all parts of the county, representing both the opponents and proponents of the issue, attended. The meeting continued for more than two hours. Discussion was heated but not bitter.

BUT—still in high

YOU'LL be surprised at the power your motor develops when you run on Conoco Ethyl Gasoline. Throttle down to a dog trot—even on a hill—and you glide smoothly along—without a jerk, without a knock, without a shift.

Of course, Conoco Ethyl is the fuel for high compression motors. In fact, Ethyl fluid made high compression motors commercially possible. But Conoco Ethyl gets the best from any motor—and it's most economical because it eliminates all the engine wear and tear caused by knocking when ordinary gasoline is used.

Dodge Brothers Standard Six is the fastest car, with the fastest pick-up, under a thousand dollars.

HOWEVER

That is only HALF the story. The IMPORTANT point is that this exceptional speed is made practical by Dodge ruggedness of chassis and body construction.

OTHERS

Might succeed in building a car at this price with equal SPEED, but to do so successfully they would also have to build a car with equal STURDINESS.

and in the darkness, had stretched his nerves almost to the breaking point.

I had noticed a curious thing, evening drew on. It seemed to me that the other occupants of the house were avoiding me. Perhaps it was just a coincidence; yet the thing had happened three or four times from eight to ten he had spent out of his time roving from room to another. Who was in the room when I had greeted him a few days ago, but now had business elsewhere. I saw it work out with not only Southley, but his daughter as well. Of course there were reasons; but I couldn't even get a glimpse at them. I imagined that Vilas would not have cared to be alone in the library at that moment, if there had been any other choice. From time to time he summoned the servants, seemingly for the most trivial services.

About eleven I walked out onto the grounds, mostly because the atmosphere of the house had begun to strangle me. I wanted fresh air, the wind blowing off the water, the sight of a friendly moon in the sky. Of course the tragedy of the night before had occurred outside the house, on the very hill on which I stood, but there remained the feeling that the crime had its root and source and cause in the house itself. But the moonlit hillside wasn't much of a relief. What wind there was brought curious smells from the marsh. The moon looked wan and pale and strange.

There was a light in the power-house—a little building at the rear of the manor-house that contained the engine that had previously generated electric light for the house, hoping for a friendly word from some fellow, African voice, I walked around to it. The workmen were busy at the plant, trying to repair the break.

But the workmen weren't colored people, after all. They were bending over the engine when I first approached the door, and I couldn't see their faces. They didn't hear me coming in the soft grass, and they seemed very intent. Then they started up as my foot grated on the threshold.

One of them was the elder Southley. The other was the lean, bewhiskered old man who had brought the boat—Robin, he called himself. I noticed just one impressive thing about him. He wore rubber boots.

He was the only man on the plantation, as far as I knew, that did. They were little, angle-length, quaint affairs; and I was amazed at my own stupidity that I had not remembered the fact before. I had noticed the boots the minute he had stepped from the motor boat. They had plain rubber heels, such as had made the track we had found on the hillside, beside the white stone. Beyond all doubt or question, he had been the man he had chased just after nightfall.

My eyes leaped over him. He had long legs—the kind that could stride swiftly. He was agile, too.

"Howdy, sir," he greeted me. "Would you like a job?"

Southley looked up with a smile.

"We're trying to get these lights so they'll work," he explained. "I'm getting tired of candle-light. I don't suppose you know anything about electric generators?"

"I knew quite a bit about them when I had the engineering bug—in college," I confessed. "I might be able to help you."

Then I had a curious impression. It seemed to me that a swift expression of apprehension and dismay flashed across his host's face. It wasn't in the least distinct. And it was so senseless a thing I concluded I had been mistaken. Robin looked up, too, somewhat quizzically.

"I can fix the thing," he said hurriedly, "and, besides, I need the job."

"I guess he can do well enough," Southley gazed.

But I couldn't resist the impulse to make a cursory examination of the generator. Perhaps it was love of the engine. Perhaps it was that irresistible human impulse to tinker—and more than that, to exhibit knowledge. At first I found it difficult to believe that the plant was really severely damaged. It looked in the most perfect condition. But Southley called me away in a moment, and invited me to walk back with him to the manor-house.

Inspector Freeman would have been dismayed if he had known my thoughts as Southley and I went back to the drawing room. For before another hour had passed, there was to be further amateur interference in the working out of the Southley mystery. Even while I chatted with my host, I was planning the best means to get back to the power-house. I was going to keep a close watch on the garrulous, long-legged longshoreman, Robin.

In some way that I was yet to find out, he was involved in the problem of Southley Downs. He had washed the blood from the rock on the hillside. He had eluded the inspector and myself in the chase in the darkness. Now I had found him with Southley working upon the engine in the power-house—and yet they had seemed merely to be examining it, rather than at work. I remembered that neither of them had held tools in their hands, or even seemed to have any tools with them.

I was suddenly deeply suspicious of this man Robin. I remembered that he had volunteered his services to the negro Sam, and that looked as if he had business of his own at Southley Downs. His excuse for coming seemed somewhat trumped up. Besides, he looked his part too well. He was too perfect an example of a certain type of squatter. He had an English accent, and I had been watching all through my visit at Southley Downs for the intrusion of some one with such an accent.

Roderick, of whom Alexander Pierce had told me, who evidently had not yet put in his appearance, had lived long years in England. The names were somewhat similar, too; and I had heard before of that peculiar trait of human nature that influences a man against giving up his own name altogether. The alias he adopts is usually somewhat similar to his own name.

I made a feint of going back to a book. Southley seemed relieved. He left me in a moment, and joined his daughter in the den. Vilas had gone to his room, and lost as it was among the many, breathless corridors of the great house, I could imagine it was the last place in the world he had really wished to go. I drew my chair up to the great dormer window that overlooked the power-house. And I didn't see one word of the type beneath my eyes.

The hill was swept by moonbeams. There was a silver path across the face of the swamp, leaping ever to my eyes. I waited possibly five minutes. And then I saw Robin emerge from the power-house.

For a long minute he waited in the shadows, and my suspicions leaped to a certainty. Then I saw him steal away toward the edge of the marsh.

A minute more and I was out in the darkness too, trying to shadow him. I tried to keep to the less open part of the hillside and yet not lose sight of my quarry. He walked slowly at first, and I shortened the distance between us to one hundred yards. As yet I had no reason for thinking he had seen me. His form was perfectly visible in the moonlight, but I had kept mostly in the shadow. But all at once he increased his pace.

I walked faster, too. My quarry broke into a slow trot. It was impossible that I could run behind him and still keep out of sight. So I made a furious dash toward him at top speed.

For a moment I thought I would overtake him before he saw me, but when I had covered half the distance between us he began really to run. He straightened out his long legs, and fairly seemed to fly—straight for the marsh at the bottom of the hill.

"Stop, Robin!" I shouted at him. "Stop at once!"

He only increased his speed. I never saw a man run faster. I was in great condition and I gave him the best I had. He hadn't the chance to elude me, but he was in our previous encounter earlier in the evening. The moon was as now.

He passed across a pond of shallow water at the base of the hill. Possibly he thought I would not follow him here. But he was to be disappointed. No water was deep enough to throw me off now. I was going to find out his connection with the crime if I had to follow him to the mainland across the swamp.

But at once he splashed out of the pond and circled back up the hill. I was soaked to the knees. But I gave it no thought. Of course he couldn't run so fast up the steep slope, nor could I. And my breath was coming in great sobs before I approached the house.

He swung about the great structure, and I dipped for enough to one side to watch. I saw him slip into the postern door that led to the library.

Twenty seconds later I entered the same room. Evidently he hoped to elude me in the maze of rooms. But he had forgotten one thing.

His boots—the same boots that had left the telltale track beside the rock—were splashed with mud and water. They made a trail across the rugs and hardwood floor of the library, and they turned into the den.

Once more the drama of Southley Downs shifted to this little room. Once more I stood at its threshold. And I had a curious sense of portentous developments that would come to pass within its doors.

Southley and Josephine were standing up near the same table that had figured in the drama of the previous night.

"Close the door," Southley told me.

"But where is that man Robin? I saw him rush in here. And I know he has something to do with this mystery."

"Robin? You mean the man who helped me in the power-house?"

A large blue portiere hung at the side of the den, and out of the corner of my eye I saw it waver. No wind blew it. And then, looking straight, I saw the ends of white fingers that clutched its folds.

"Mr. Southley, the man is behind that curtain now!"

Then the man behind the curtain answered me himself.

"Oh, old Doc Long!" came a familiar voice. "You're the most persistent devil!"

"There is only one person in the world that calls me 'old Doc Long.'"

The hope of hearing his voice about this cursed house of the Southleys was dead in my breast. It was the voice of the man I had longed for, whose keen brain and able hands would so quickly bring light where there was shadow.

him off."

"Miss Southley already knows that," I commented. "And look at my trouser legs—my best dinner clothes. You are a trifle wet yourself."

"These beautiful boots protected me." Then he grew serious. "Besides, Long—among among your many talents, I'm afraid you can't claim to be an actor. Just a look—a word—might have given me away. It was much better that you devote your attention to the excellent work Inspector Freeman has been doing. And as to the reason why I came in disguise—I don't believe the time is quite ripe to divulge it. I assure you that it served my ends very well."

YES, your resolve in sober moments is the BATTLE LINE TODAY.

You really mean to do it, but I have a long list of names who MEANT WELL, but INTENTIONS DO NOT PAY CLAIMS. What do you think she's going to do when you are gone? It's easy to say "They'll get along somehow." But "getting along somehow" usually means broken homes, women at work, children scattered among relatives, the stores, the laundries—one tenth of the women at work are there because someone said—"They'll get along somehow."

I can meet your NEEDS.

After we had got through pounding one another on the back and roaring out what a pleasure it was to meet again I began to put a few questions to the great detective. And all the time I marveled at his disguise.

"But why didn't you let me in on it?" I demanded just a little hurt.

I saw laughter in his eyes, but his face remained grave.

"You were doing so well without me, doc," he replied. "And the way you chased me through the mud—it was rich, my lad! What a persistent devil you are! Miss Southley—if ever this young man gets on your train, you'll never be able to shake

Large Engine - Long Wheelbase and above all else - Big Value

It runs to big proportions... this All-American Six. In size... in quality... and, above all else... in value... Beneath the hood... a big, clean brute of an engine. With 212 cubic inches piston displacement. Powerful as the driving wind. But smooth and silent at every speed... Then there's its wheelbase... 117 inches in length. The source of the All-American's riding ease. That and its long springs... its oversize tires... And its handsome Fisher bodies. Deep seated... luxurious... comfortable. Unique in the leg-room and head-room they combine with swank and style... Larger throughout than any other six selling for as little as $1015. And with its size comes the quality which makes it the biggest value offered in its field.

Mrs. Mayes Honors Haskell Guest.

Mrs. C. L. Mayes complimented her guest, Miss May Fields, of Haskell, with a party on Tuesday afternoon of last week. "42" was the diversion for the afternoon. After the games, Mrs. Mayes assisted by Rosaline Houser, served an ice course, with favors of miniature flags to Mrs. W. H. Atkinson, F. O. Campbell, P. B. Baker, S. E. McStay, Ethie Lee P'Pool, W. E. Reynolds, Tom Haney, and Misses Shelly and Kimmie Lee.

Compliment Abilene Visitor With Bridge Party.

Mrs. W. H. Atkinson and daughters, Misses Kathleen and Frances, entertained Miss Courtenay Bess Cook of Abilene with a bridge party Tuesday afternoon. At the close of the bridge hour a salad plate was served. The guest list included: Misses Lorena Wilson, Mary Langford, Thelma Newsom, Helen Smith, Lucy Martin, Kathleen McCoy and Mesdames W. C. Newsom, J. D. McStav, Wm. P. Farrington, H. H. Langford, Joe Davis, R. D. Atkinson, E. H. Bauman, the hon. Mrs. Miss Cook, and hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Milam have been entertaining a fine baby girl in their home since July 7th.

Mr. and Mrs. Foy Easley and children and Mrs. J. W. Hogan have gone to the Llano for a fishing expedition. They were joined at Stamford by relatives and will spend about three weeks enjoying a fishing and outing trip.

J. L. Perry and family of Merkel were guests the latter part of last week in the home of J. H. McAfee. These gentlemen are cousins and one is about as tall as the other—which is some tall, and both are real optimists.

CHRISTMAS BAGS FOR MEN OF ARMY, NAVY & MARINE CORPS IN DISTANT POSTS

Bags should be made of bright colored chintz or cretonne. When finished should measure 10x10 and should pull together at the top with two draw strings, one from each side.

Contents. It is essential that these bags should have a certain uniformity so that one man does not receive a great deal more than another. Each bag should contain at least nine or ten articles selected from the following list, care being taken to have half of contents of the larger articles. Inspection of all bags is to be commended:

- Pocket knife—Men can never have too many, they are constantly getting lost.
- Wash cloth—which may be wrapped around a piece of soap.
- Memorandum books—small pocket size.
- Diaries—small pocket size.
- Tobacco pouches, cigarette cases, pipes, etc.
- Playing cards and puzzles.
- Key rings with chains.
- Mechanical pencils and pencil sharpeners.
- Handkerchiefs—one or two.
- Pin balls—which smaller children can make.
- Writing pads and envelopes.
- Shaving soap.
- Tooth brush.
- Tooth paste.
- Small comb with case.
- Small mirror (not more than 2" x 2 1/2")
- Return post card addressed to chapter or individual, sending bag with slip attached reading, "Please let us know on this post card if you liked the bag."
- Warning: No perishable supplies such as candy and cake, or breakable articles should be put in the bags. Tobacco and cigarettes spoil by moulding. Each article should be wrapped in a piece of red or white tissue paper and tied with a red or green string to give it a Christmas-like look. It adds greatly to the gift if packages have to be untied.

Note: A personal appeal to organizations of women, such as Daughters of American Revolution, Colonial Dames, Women's Relief Corps, American Legion Auxiliaries, Women's Clubs, etc., will be well worth while, as experience has demonstrated the fact that the women belonging to these groups are not only anxious to help but are constantly on the lookout for work of this kind.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Loveless and children and Mr. and Mrs. Jim Ashcroft of Bomarton, left on Saturday of last week for points in New Mexico, where they will spend some days viewing the mountain scenery and enjoying the cooling breezes. While away they plan to visit the famous Carlsbad Cavern, which is becoming one of the show-places of the nation.

Mrs. Steve Smith and little son, Jimmie, have gone to Wimsboro, Texas, for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Culbertson.

Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Ammons, who have been here during the past week visiting in the home of their son, Dr. E. M. Ammons, returned to the home at Houston on Monday.

Dr. G. M. Ammons of Houston has arrived in Munday and will be associated with his brother, Dr. E. M. Ammons in the practice of dentistry, and we are glad to extend to him a hearty welcome to Munday.

The Rev. and Mrs. R. R. Gilbreath and daughter, accompanied by Mrs. Gilbreath's mother, Mrs. Johnson, passed through Munday on Friday afternoon of last week enroute to their home at Jayton from Sioux City, Iowa, where they had been visiting relatives. Mrs. Johnson resides in Sioux City, and accompanied them home for a visit.

Miss Grace Nelson and Miss Lorene Parker spent the weekend in Comanche and Eastland. Miss Nelson visited her mother at Comanche and Miss Parker visited her grandmother at Eastland.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Grady West of Shamrock, Texas, have been here the past week visiting in the home of her mother, Mrs. Florence Williams. They are enroute to Alpine, where Mr. West will enter school.

Fans who have heard him over the radio for the past three years will be delighted at the opportunity of hearing and seeing him and his wonderful uke. He has a very pleasing way of putting over his offerings and we are sure that the Munday audience will be delighted with his program. He has just returned from South America, where he spent twelve weeks and gave programs before the presidents of both Argentine and Uruguay.

Thos. West of Benjamin is here for the reunion and to shake hands with the voters in the interest of his candidacy for the office of County Clerk.

ABSENTEE VOTERS

Voters who plan to be away from home at the time of election should make their arrangements to cast their vote under the terms of the absentee voting law, which permits voting not more than ten days nor less than three days before the date of the election, hence those who contemplate being away may cast their vote any time between the 18th and 25th of the month.

It has also been pointed out that under the law those who have become twenty-one years of age since January 1, 1927 are entitled to vote without a poll tax receipt.

There are not illiteracy tests imposed upon voters in Texas.

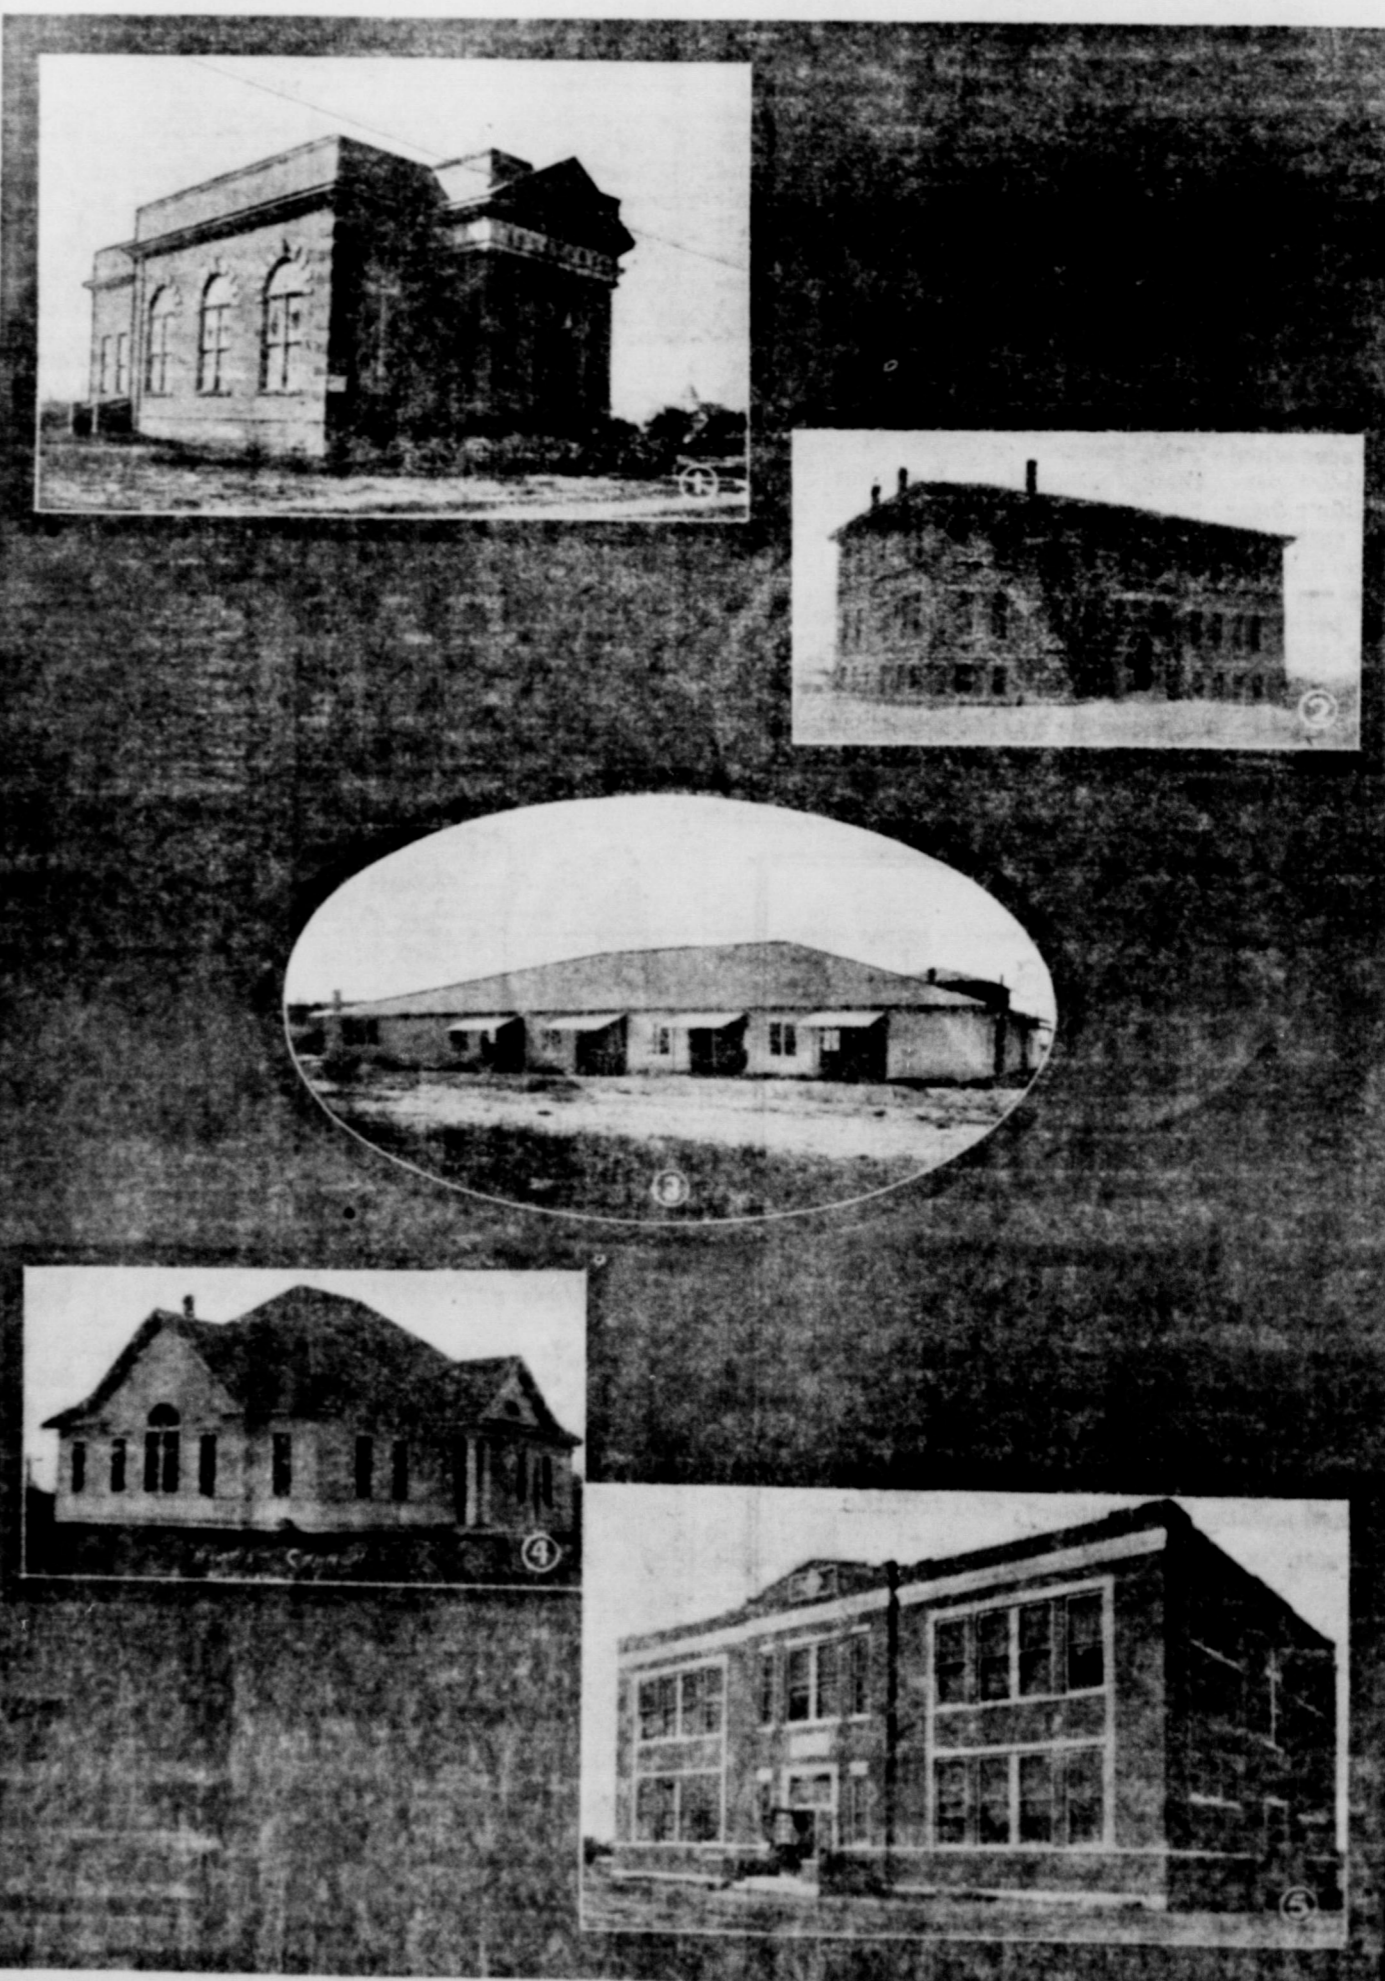

No veteran is getting more enjoyment out of the reunion than is Adj. Matt Guthrie of Knox City. Adj. Guthrie is a member of Carson's Texas Rangers and engaged in many fights with the Indians in the early days. He is 83 years of age.

METHODIST REVIVAL BEGINS SUNDAY

Flowers Evangelistic Party to Do The Preaching; Gifted Woman Preacher To Assist With The Revival

Everything is in readiness for the Methodist revival which begins Sunday at the big Tabernacle. The R. L. Flowers evangelistic party of Dallas have been secured to hold the meeting. The members of the party are Evangelist R. L. Flowers, his wife, Mrs. R. L. Flowers and A. J. Flowers, brother of the evangelist.

The Flowers party are experienced evangelists. They hold meetings in all parts of the country. They are not strangers in this section. They have held successful meetings at Stamford, Haskell, Amarillo and Wellington since the first of the year. They go to Childress from Munday.

Evangelist R. L. Flowers is one of the general evangelists of the Methodist church and has been in the evangelistic field for fourteen years. He is a forceful speaker. During the period he has been in evangelistic work more than 40,000 people have been converted in his meetings.

Mrs. R. L. Flowers, the wife of the evangelist is a very charming speaker. She will do some of the preaching in the revival. She also will speak to the married ladies and the young ladies while in Munday. She will conduct a bible story each afternoon for the boys and girls. Mrs. Flowers is a native of Texas. She spent her girlhood days on a farm in Ellis county.

The following are the names of those on the revival committees:

Flowers Trio Delights Illinois Pastor With Conservation Revival

Freeport, Illinois. To Whom It May Concern:

The Flowers Evangelistic Party of Dallas, Texas, came to us unheralded and unknown, and in the short time they have been among us they have endeared themselves to all of us. Their program combining the old-time evangelism with new methods of conservation is strongly effective and is to be highly commended for the splendid way in which it meets the needs of the modern-day church.

The Evangelist R. L. Flowers has proved himself a valiant knight of the cross and a faithful preacher of the essential gospel. He has fearlessly rebuked wrong and has exalted the right, and has raised the standard for righteousness and purity in this community to which the honest and just may repair. His poise, his undisturbed serenity of spirit, in the ebb and flow of interest in an extended revival campaign have added to the force of his message.

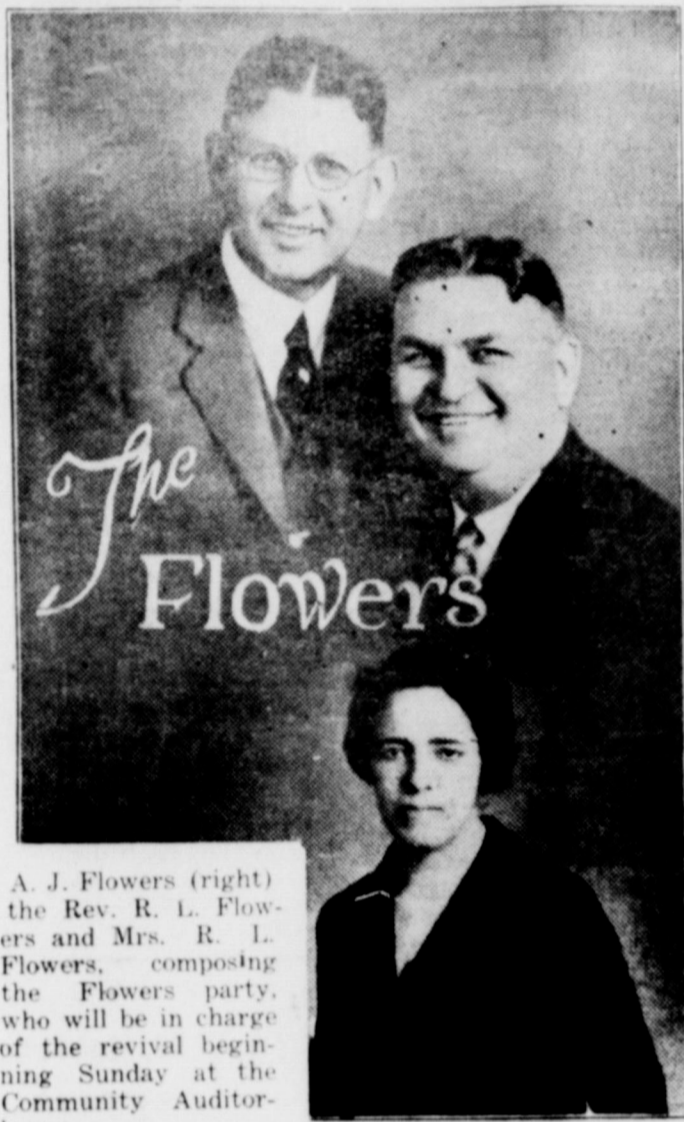

A. J. Flowers, the Sunday school efficiency man of the party is as fine a specialist in dealing with the Sunday school problems as is to be found anywhere in the country. He has given us many practical ideas, which when they are worked out, as we expect a number of them to be worked, will have far-reaching results in enabling our Sunday school to reach even higher goals.

Mrs. R. L. Flowers, who has had a tremendous influence in the Flowers campaign, needs to be made special mention of. She has exemplified in her cultured personality that inimitable charm so closely associated with her native Southland. With brilliant intellectual gifts and fine training plus whole-hearted consecration to the Master, she has presented Christ's Gospel with the winsomeness and compelling power.

The Flowers have all been a great blessing to us, not only by the power of their thrilling messages, but by the new visions of service which they have held out before us, as well as by the example of their lives as they have gone in and out among us. We have felt they were people given over to the task, possessed of great convictions and actuated with absorbing purposes for the enthronement of Christ and the establishment of Kingdom of God in the world.

We commend the Flowers party with unqualified and unreserved confidence to any church or community. North or South, looking for the services of an evangelistic party.

Sincerely,
W. L. COLLINS,
Pastor of Embury Church.

A. J. Flowers (right) the Rev. R. L. Flowers and Mrs. R. L. Flowers, composing the Flowers party, who will be in charge of the revival beginning Sunday at the Community Auditorium.

Notice To The Public Big Revival Begins Sunday, July 15th

I take great pleasure in commending the Flowers Party. I have known them and their work for a number of years, and I have never heard anything but praise for their work. They do not seek to do a sensational work. Their whole aim and ambition seems to be the Master's will.

Brother and Sister Flowers have held revivals both North and South and equal results. Few men have been more successful in evangelistic work in the North than Brother Flowers and we who have held meetings in the North find it not so easy as in the South. You will find that Brother and Sister Flowers have no time to fight anything but sin and the devil. You will enjoy working with them.

Mr. A. J. Flowers, a brother to the Rev. A. L. Flowers, is a high type Christian Layman—a member of the Baptist church and is considered one of the best Sunday School men in the state. He will have charge of all the organization work, all committees, in fact, all the business end of the campaign. One of the Laymen, Brother Bryant, of Stamford, told me following the campaign there that Mr. A. J. Flowers was one of the best all round men he had ever worked with.

Now folks, let's get into this revival effort with all our heart. No half-hearted work will suffice. This is not just a Methodist meeting, though the Methodist church is fostering it. We want EVERYBODY to feel that it is YOUR revival—A TIME AND OPPORTUNITY TO SAVE SOULS, and no real Christian will hesitate to save

S. S. Supt Urges Support of Revival

E. Duval, S. S. Superintendent Methodist Church

In the coming revival led by the Flowers party of Dallas, Texas, we have an unusually strong group of workers. The Flowers party have held successful meetings in many of our Texas towns. They were at Crowell, Stamford, and Haskell this spring and nothing but good reports follow their efforts.

Mr. A. J. Flowers of the party has had much experience in organization work as well as an experienced Sunday school man. He was 10 years in Y. M. C. A. work and several years at the head of that great Sunday school of the First Baptist Church at Houston, Texas. We are looking forward to a great revival. As Sunday school superintendent, I wish to publicly pledge to the party the hearty support and co-operation of our entire group of teachers and pupils to do anything in our power to follow their directions and help make this revival a success. We urge all the Sunday schools of the town and community to feel free to take part in the meeting—make it your revival—everybody invited.

the lost any time. We welcome you. We want you to take part.

Ardmore, Oklahoma Has Greatest Revival In Its History

To Whom It May Concern:

The R. L. Flowers Evangelistic Party of Dallas, Texas, closed a three weeks revival meeting with the First Methodist Church at Ardmore on December 13th, with the following results: 200 united with the First Methodist Church on the closing Sunday. We have seventy-five more whose names have been given us for membership in our Church and about fifty-five names given to other churches of the city. The entire membership of my Church was stirred and Ardmore was shaken religiously as never before in her history.

Their unified program of conservation running simultaneously with the revival is in my mind a departure in the evangelistic work that is very badly needed. I think the uniqueness of organization and earnestness for the plan of work they undertake to do, and the energy with which they carry it out together with the Christian spirit and earnestness and power of their messages, they are unique and stand alone.

Mr. A. J. Flowers, brother of Evangelist R. L. Flowers came a week in advance and conducted a campaign of advertising and organization which was thoroughly sane and in which he laid his hand upon the organized life of the church, corrected the weak places and set it to function for the revival. The many years of experience in the Y. M. C. A. work and as Religious Educational Director of one of the largest church organizations and Sunday schools in the Southwest, give him a practical knowledge of the value of church organization which few church workers possess.

He conducted a survey of the city from which we got almost an inexhaustible fund of information which he brought to the various organizations in such a form as to enable them to go directly to their several tasks in an intelligible way. And as a personal worker, he was that earnest and consecrated that he is a veritable power among men both in the service and on the street. I regard him the best layhelper I have ever known.

Evangelist R. L. Flowers is a splendid preacher, strong, clear and scriptural in his message. Mrs. Flowers has a message for the women of today. The Flowers are not sensational, but tremendously in earnest. They impress everyone with their sincerity and superb passion for the salvation of men. They are clear in their appeals and strong in handling the after service, and do it without prolonging unduly their meetings.

They conduct story hours for boys and girls, heart to heart talks to young men and women, and women only and men only meetings. Meeting each of these groups segregated from others, they seemed to get closer to them and impressed them all alike with seriousness and importance of right living.

They handled their own musical program, and while the song services were not long

Texas Divine Pays Tribute To Flowers

Great Results Attend Revival Held In That City Especially In Sunday School

When Marvin Methodist Church set about to find a suitable evangelist to lead our forces in a revival campaign, they finally settled upon the Flowers evangelistic party. One thing chiefly affecting their decision was their conservation program. Now that the revival is closed, the church feels that its judgment has been amply vindicated in the splendid results of the meeting.

Our Sunday School has received special impetus. A. J. Flowers in organizing the forces and putting them to the task of building a great Sunday School, is in our judgement unsurpassed. The immediate results in increased attendance and enthusiasm is highly gratifying, but the material received from the survey, and so organized as to be usable, is even more gratifying and gives promise of greater things in the future.

An especially attractive feature of the revival has been the work of Mrs. Flowers among the women and girls. Literally hundreds have been moved by her messages. She has spoken plain words, but with an appeal that carries with it the deepest conviction.

Mr. Flowers' forceful preaching has combined firmness as relates all forms of sin with a very happy and pleasing presentation of the truth which enabled him to draw the net. He is one of the most forceful evangelists it has been our pleasure to hear. His ability to sustain interest is a characteristic feature of his work.

The near 200 who have joined our church and 100 re-announcements and applications for membership in other churches, and the greatly increased Sunday School attendance, together with increased efficiency and enthusiasm everywhere are a part of the wonderful results. Much of the results cannot be tabulated. We would be ungrateful did we not express to the Flowers party our sincerest appreciation as a church.

Marvin Methodist Church,

DON'T FOR CHURCHGOERS

- Don't visit. Worship.
 - Don't stop in the end of a pew. Move over.
 - Don't monopolize your hymn book. Be neighborly.
 - Don't wait for introductions. Introduce yourself.
 - Don't choose the back seat. Leave it for the late comers.
 - Don't dodge the collection plate. Pay what you are able.
- they were practical and helpful. The feeling in Ardmore is that our city has had the greatest revival in her history.
- The church is more strongly entrenched and better organized than it has ever been. We are very happy over the coming of these people, and take great pleasure in recommending them to any church or community anywhere that desire a real spiritual awakening. I am Very sincerely,

Wellington Pastor Is For the Flowers Evangelistic Party

I wish to say to the people of Munday and the entire surrounding community that the Flowers evangelists are not unknown to me. I have used them in five revivals the one just closed is the sixth time I have had them to help me in revivals. I know the type of work they do. I like their methods and endorse every plan they use. I consider the Flowers evangelistic party the safest, sanest and most practical evangelistic party in Southern Methodism today.

In the first place they are courteous to everyone. No unkind word or reflection will be cast upon other denominations from their pulpit. They use no sensational or trap methods. They love God and have a passion for the salvation of lost souls. They preach the old time religion with spirit and power. They preach hard against all sin but do not abuse the sinner for they love him and seek only his good.

The Methodist of Wellington join me in wishing for you Munday people the greatest revival in your history.

Yours truly,
I. A. SMITH,
Pastor Wellington M. E. Church

HOUSTON PASTOR PRAISES FLOWERS

Rev. Jas. B. Leavell, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Houston, Texas, says of A. J. Flowers:

"Mr. A. J. Flowers, the bearer of this testimonial, was intimately associated with me for a period of five years as Sunday school superintendent and co-adjutor in all the affairs of the church. During that time our Sunday school grew from a position of almost insignificance to one of the leading schools in the country. There is no line of church work with which he is not intimately acquainted, his training being one, which because of growth and the magnitude it reached, carried him over the whole field of church methods. I cannot imagine how one could be better prepared for a work such as he has undertaken.

"In character and disposition he is of sterling worth. He is consecrated to the Master, and is as true as steel. He will prove himself worthy and efficient for any trust which is laid upon him.

Faithfully yours,

Flowers Explains The News Plan For Church Revivals

Does The Church Have An Adequate Program Of Expansion?

Is it a fact that old-time revival methods are not wanted? Has the time come for a more up-to-date method of conducting revivals?

Cannot the ministry of rescue be co-ordinated with the ministry of conservation?

The Rev. R. L. Flowers has reduced his work in the vineyard of the Master down to a scientific basis according to a lecture delivered recently at Nashville, Tenn., before the General Evangelists there.

After rehearsing all the complaints made about modern evangelism and sweeping them away as negligible, Mr. Flowers said:

"The problem as I have faced it for ten years, is this: What can I do during the revival campaign that will co-ordinate my work of rescue with the pastor's work of conservation? When I have been able to do this I will have, in a large measure, eliminated the causes for criticism of my work as an evangelist. Not only so but I will have enlarged my usefulness to the church. In this paper I am offering to you my plans for an adequate program for evangelism. In doing so it is my conviction that these general plans are workable in any well-planned campaign.

"I came to the conclusion that if the result of a revival meeting were conserved it would be done largely through the women's work, the young people's work, but principally through the Sunday School. To be sure the pastor will be at the very heart and center of all this. All these years I had been boosting all these organizations of the church but in a hit and miss way. I had been boosting without building. There must be a closer co-ordination and co-operation of all the activities of the church if there should be an adequate program of conservation. In my boosting these organizations in the past I was working under a distinct disadvantage. My knowledge of the various organizations was general, not special. For instance, in this day of highly organized Sunday schools to do a constructive work one must be a specially trained Sunday school worker. Furthermore, had I such qualifications I could not do this myself in addition to any other work in conducting a revival.

"So at the beginning of 1924 I secured a layman who is not only trained but is experienced in every phase for a number of years by a large down-town church as educational director, having already had ten years experience in distinctive religious work. He took a small Sunday school with an enrollment of 400 and in five years built it up to an enrollment of 2,500.

"He goes in advance to the new field. He makes a careful survey of the existing organization, studies its needs and its program, with the idea of meeting the standard of efficiency as mapped out by the representative board. He also makes a careful survey of the field and classifies the information as to the possibilities for the revival, the church and the Sunday school and will also put in to operation a sane financial program for the church.

He meets with the people and discusses such subjects as:

"How to build a great Sunday school?"

"Making the Sunday school social program effective."

"Financing the Sunday school and church."

"Plans and programme for weekly teachers' meetings."

"The use of special days in the building of a great Sunday school."

"The Soul-winning Sunday school."

"The monthly visitation day and how to plan for it."

"Surveys and how to follow them up."

"How to get Sunday school pupils to attend the preaching services."

"How to get results in an unorganized class."

"How to enlarge the present organization, and such subjects as the local conditions may require."

"In addition to this he makes all preliminary arrangements and pushes the publicity of the revival. His work enables me to outline a very definite program for the revival. For example, I have exact date, number of men in church and out of Sunday school, number of women in the church and out of Sunday school, number of young people in the Sunday school, number of people with church letters elsewhere.

"Beginning the day the revival opens the worker meets daily with groups and directs personal visitations. Also he meets teachers and officers and discusses local problems, needs and possibilities. He revises the records and rolls. Then when the people are converted they are urged both publicly and privately to join the church during the revival. Prominent time is set aside for such services, names of converts are given to group workers and special effort is made to get them definitely lined up in Sunday school classes, young people's societies, etc."

Flowers Program a Winner

Mr. Flowers says: "Times and things are changing. We are living in a new world and the church that plans to do business like she did 20 years ago is a losing proposition. It is also true that the revivalist who tries the same old methods that were used 20 years ago is a failure." The Flowers program of work correlates the reaching of people for the church with an intensive program of conservation seeking to hold the folk after they are once lined up. This part of the program is conducted by A. J. Flowers, a Sunday school man. This new program of work is attracting wide attention from ministers in the largest churches in the country as the Flowers have recently held meetings in the following cities: Baltimore, Chattanooga, Kansas City, Dallas, Canton, Ohio and many other large places and large churches.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S MEETINGS EACH EVENING

Each evening at 7:45 the young people are to have a service in the main auditorium of the church. The first of these services will be Sunday night at the league hour. The young people of the community are invited to these young people's meetings.

In the revival conducted by the Flowers in Wellington a few weeks ago seventy-five new members were added to the Epworth League. The object of the young people's program each evening is to interest the young people of the community in the work of the church.

Each afternoon at four o'clock the grade school boys and girls are to hold their meeting.

WHY JOIN THE CHURCH

I OUGHT to belong to the Church because I ought to be better than I am. Henry Ward Beecher once said, "The Church is not a gallery for the exhibition of eminent Christians, but a school for the education of imperfect ones."

I OUGHT to belong to the Church because of what I can give to it and do through it as well as because of what I may get out of it. The Church is not a dormitory for sleepers, it is an institution of workers; it is not a rest camp, it is a front line trench.

I OUGHT to belong to the Church because every man ought to pay his debts and do his share toward discharging the obligations of society. The Church has not only been the bearer of the good news of personal salvation; it has been and it is the supreme uplifting and conserving agency without which "Civilization would lapse into barbarism and press its way to perdition."

I OUGHT to belong to the Church because of memories; memories of things I can never forget; memories of faces that will never fade; memories of vows that are the glory of youth.

I OUGHT to belong to the Church because of hope; hope that lives when promises are dead; hope that paves the way for progress; hope that visions peace and social justice; hope for time, and hope for eternity—the great hope that casts its anchor behind Jesus Christ.

I OUGHT to belong to the Church because of the strong men in it who need reinforcing; the weak men in it who need encouraging; the rascals in it who need rebuking. If I say that I am not good enough my humility recommends me. If I sit in the seat of the scornful my inactivity condemns me. I OUGHT to belong to the Church but not until I am ready to join a going concern; not until I am willing to become an ac-

PONTIAC TO SPEND MILLIONS IN FOUNDRY

Pontiac, Michigan, July 2.—Marking the latest development in the spectacular building program of the Oakland Motor Car Company, A. R. Glancy, president and general manager, announced here today that construction will start immediately on a thoroughly modern gray iron foundry.

While no cost figure was released, it is understood the new building project will represent an investment of several million dollars.

Six new buildings will comprise the foundry unit. Full operation is expected to be reached not later than February, 1929, Mr. Glancy stated.

Completion of the project will further the claim of the Oakland company to having the most modern and best equipped automobile factory in the world.

Excavation work is already under way for the new building, under the direction of L. A. Blackburn, resident engineer for the Oakland company. Mr. Blackburn estimated that 70,000 cubic yards of earth will have to be moved for the foundations, and that thirty days would be required for this work.

The foundry will stand adjacent to the recently completed Oakland and Pontiac factories, and will be devoted to casting engine blocks and other castings used in the manufacture of Oakland and Pontiac Sixes.

Included in the group will be a foundry proper; a core building, a cupola building, sand storage building, cleaning building, and service building. The group will have a total of 200,000 square feet of floor space.

The foundry will have a pouring capacity of 450 tons of casting daily. Machine operations will be eased wherever possible, so that a maximum of only 700 men will be needed when the foundry is running at capacity. Several miles of conveyors, overhead monorail electric trucks, pneumatic equipment and scientific devices of the most advanced type known will perform the labor which was done by hand in the old type shop.

Partner with Jesus Christ.—Daniel A. Poling.

The foundry proper will be 260 by 247½ feet in size—a one-story building of a height equivalent to two stories. This will provide light airy working conditions comparable to the ideal arrangement in the new Oakland and Pontiac Plants.

The core building will be one-story high and 160 by 247½ feet in size; the sand storage building will be fifty feet high and 80 by 225 feet; the cupola building, three stories high and 60 by 100 feet; the cleaning building one-story high and 120 by 270 feet, and the service building, two stories high and 60 by 260 feet.

Mr. Glancy explained that by operating its own foundry, the Oakland company will be enabled to maintain still closer supervision over the quality of materials used in the building of Oakland and Pontiac Sixes.

The foundry represents a continuation of the expansion program launched in 1926, when construction of a thoroughly modern and complete automobile manufacturing plant was started on a high plot of ground on the outskirts of Pontiac. This plan is now well under way with the recent opening of the new Oakland assembly plant, the transfer of the old Oakland motor plant of the new location; and the opening a year ago, of the new Pontiac factories.

Increased efficiency, Mr. Glancy explained, will result from this centralizing company operations because inter-plant transportation costs will be entirely eliminated.

Woman Speaker To Assist With Revival

Women's Meetings Are Always Great Success

One of the outstanding features of the Flowers' revival campaign is the work that Mrs. R. L. Flowers does in her special women's meetings. The tendency today is for the modern woman to give much of her time to clubs and parties. The church is neglected because of the modern day life. The meetings of Mrs. R. L. Flowers with the women during the Flowers revivals have been able to accomplish much needed good in helping the modern women to see that the church is entitled to the best that the women

W. M. S. Pledges Hearty Co-operation In Flowers Revival

We wish to heartily welcome the Flowers Evangelistic Party to Munday, and to pledge to them our most loyal and hearty co-operation in every way possible to make the coming revival a community-wide success. We have heard much of the great work that is being done by Mrs. Flowers in other revivals and we hope that every woman in this entire community, regardless of denomination or faith, will avail themselves of this opportunity of hearing Mrs. Flowers, as well as attending all of the services from July 15th to 29th.

Flowers Explains Changes Made In Church's Methods

"That we are living in a changing world no one will deny. We are doing things different in every line of endeavor. This same spirit is in the church. There must be new methods if we are to reach the masses. The same messages as of old but surely a new way to do things. The Flowers program of work is a three fold one. Mass evangelism is combined with visiting evangelism, and then running through the entire campaign is a conservative program.

A. Flowers Conservationist
A. J. Flowers, a Sunday school specialist, conceived the idea that a real constructive enrollment program could be put on during the revival meeting. He has been a member of the Flowers party now for four years and a half. This innovation in the evangelistic field has put the Flowers party in the largest churches of the country.

What He Does—Survey
Surveys the Sunday school roll.
Surveys the church roll.
Surveys the public school.
Surveys the congregation in each service.
Hundreds of prospects are secured in this way for the revival.

Visitation

Their Tasks
To get definite decisions for Christ.

Is Your Religion In Wife's Name Asks Evangelist

Is your only contribution to the church made through your wife and children? Does Sunday golf claim your attention while they are lending their moral support as well as your financial support to the cause of Christianity?

If such is the case you are contributing but sparingly to an institution which merits your utmost support declares A. J. Flowers of the Flowers Trio which will hold evangelistic services at the local M. E. Church here next week.

Your money is appreciated—naturally—regardless of whether it comes directly from you or directly through your family. But even more important is your attendance at Sunday school or church.

Do you by your failure to attend church, sanction the idea that it is only women and children who may profit directly through the church's teachings? If so, is there any reason to expect that your son will regard it in any other light while he grows into a fuller understanding of the impression which your inactivity in church affairs conveys?

Yet you would not want your son to consider the church as an institution demanding only his financial backing, would you?

Then it's up to you to set the proper example. Attend at least one church service each Sunday. Pay your property in your wife's name if you like—make out your life insurance in her favor. It is her duty—but your religion—that's something which cannot be successfully placed in anyone's name but your own.

To get every member of Sunday school to attend the preaching service.

To get every member of church to attend Sunday school.
See that every new convert is lined up with Sunday school and church.

The Florida darkness is always worth watching. It comes so gently, so like a dark mist that the wind blows up. The color of the water changed and deepened. The shadows that were the jungle grew black. Again we heard the sounds of wild life that the storm of the previous night had stifled.

We smoked cigars and talked. And after while one of the colored men came to tell us of a discovery.

A flat rock jutted from the hillside about fifty yards from the scene of the murder, he said. Just at twilight he had walked near it, and had noticed a queer discoloration on the stone. It was evidently caked blood, he thought, and what looked like fragments of flesh.

"You don't mean—human flesh?" Freeman asked.

"His eyes narrowed, ever so slightly. It was evident that the colored man was terrified almost beyond power of speech.

"Yes, sah. I couldn't tell for sho'. But it was some kind of flesh, sah."

We didn't waste any more time. We hastened down the footpath. Although the night had fallen, the darkness was nothing of the infure as he walked ten paces in front of me. I could detect the shadows that were the stables and garages, and the nearer of the cottages of the tenancy of the night before. I was able to discern the outline of his colored farmhands. And then, at the same instant, both of us saw another shadow.

Someone was standing perfectly still on the hillside. Of course we couldn't see plain. He was possible fifty feet distant; and if we had not possessed such an accurate knowledge of the geography of the hill he might have easily been mistaken for a shrub or stump. He was doing that which all hunters learn to do, standing perfectly still to avoid detection. He was trusting to the shadows to obscure him.

We both stopped on the trail. Who's there?" the detective demanded. The shadow did not waver.

"Who's there? Answer, or I'll shoot," Freeman insisted. He started across the turf toward him. And as a deer springs, the other sped down the hill in flight.

There was something startling in the speed with which he ran. We flung out in pursuit, Freeman firing his pistol in the air. But even if he had wished, it would have been impossible, except by the hindes-luck, for the detective to have hit the fugitive. A pistol is never accurate at long range; and few marksmen can shoot at all in the darkness. In an instant our quarry faded, slipped away and melted in the shadows.

We ran and cried out and hunted over the hill in vain. And after a while we met again, he path.

"If that doesn't beat the devil!" the detective greeted me. He was panting, and he swore softly between his gasps. "Long, there's plenty of things yet, about this case, that I don't know."

"Do you think that was Ahmad?"

"Couldn't have been. The Hindu was in the house when we left. But there isn't any doubt but that he committed the crime. I'm sure of that much, anyway. And now there's nothing to do but go down and find that stone that the colored man told us about."

We found the place where the body had been found, and struck off fifty yards directly to the left. The detective flashed his light about. He called out when he saw the stone. It was the only white rock in the vicinity, and it could not be mistaken. He knelt quickly beside it.

Then he got up with a little snort of disgust. "That colored man was crazy. Nothing here—but by the Lord!" He scarcely breathed as he rubbed his hand over the surface of the rock. He bent until his eyes were within a few inches of its rough face.

"What now?" I asked.

"Somebody's bent us to it, that's all. This rock has just been washed off, with water. Either there's another amateur detective around this place—cleaned off the clots to make blood-tests—or else the walls of that old house have ears!"

"What do you think?"

"What is there else to think but that someone came down here and destroyed the evidence?"

Freeman made a close examination of the soil about the rock. The man who had preceded us had left one clew at least. There was a bare bit of soil just beside the stone where no grass had grown, and in it we found the clear, sharp imprint of a man's heel.

"But it might be the track of the colored man that told us about it," I suggested.

"And it might not be, too. If I don't do anything else I ought to at least observe who I'm talking to, and all about him. That darky was bare-foot."

"Then it's the track of the man we chased a moment ago?"

"Of course. He'll come up here, just before we did. He either collected the evidence for some amateur experiments of his own, or, what's more likely, destroyed it to protect the murderer. But there's something funny about this print."

He bent over it with his light. "You see it's perfectly clear—a perfect imprint. Never saw a better. Ground happens to be particularly sticky, and there are no grass roots to interfere. Probably the water drained off the stone and softened it, in yesterday's rain. And the odd thing about it is that the heel hasn't any nails in it."

"A rubber heel then?"

"Evidently—but not the kind (Continued on page 4 this sec.)" have. In her special series of meetings the following subjects are discussed, namely: "The Modern Woman and her relation to society; the modern woman and her relation to God; the modern woman, her responsibility; and the modern woman, her opportunity."

Mrs. Flowers also conducts a special series of meetings for the high school girls, the college young ladies, and the young business women. In these meetings vital problems of the young women are discussed.

The above special messages of Mrs. Flowers are all given in evangelistic appeal. Thousands have accepted Christ in these meetings and new visions for service have been received.

WORK OF MRS. FLOWERS RECEIVES MUCH PRAISE

(Baltimore Report)

One of the interesting parts of the Flowers revival meetings is the services conducted by Mrs. R. L. Flowers. She has won for herself unique place among Christian workers in America. In Kansas and Nebraska where she has been in meetings, she has won the reputation of being one of the leading women evangelists that come to that section.

Her messages at first were looked upon with a little bit of indifference when she first spoke in Baltimore, but after she had spoken she never wanted for a crowd when it was announced she would speak.

Mrs. Flowers has made an extensive study of women, young ladies and children's problems. She has interviewed thousands, and she knows their problems.

At one of her recent meetings 2,200 women crowded the building to hear her message to married women only.

Our Children's Education

Our public school system is developing the mind of the children along educational lines, but it is impossible for the public school system, with its multitudinous demands to emphasize to any great extent the development of character in the individual child. It very often happens that we depend too much upon our school system, and neglect in the child, the more essential problems which are the very foundation of his existence.

The teaching of the fundamental principle of right living must come from the home or the church. The public cannot accept this responsibility.

The duty of any parent is to instruct the child in the way that it should go and point out to him the principles which should guide him through life. The home, stimulated and elevated by church affiliation, gives the parent the means to guide the child in the way he should go. Our public school system must be backed by the church influence through the home in order for the child's education to be complete.

As a business unit of this community we are glad to welcome the Flowers Evangelistic Party to Munday, and sincerely trust that their visit to our city may prove of great benefit.

Big Sunday School Institute Begins Sunday

Sunday School Institute Begins Monday

One of the new features of a revival is the Sunday School Institute and Enlistment Campaign conducted by A. J. Flowers in connection with the revival. The object of this effort is to stimulate interest in all parts of the Sunday School work. The first session of the Institute will be held Monday night thirty minutes before the night service, which will be 7:45 o'clock. These meetings will be held on the lawn of the church.

A. J. Flowers is an experienced Sunday school worker. He will discuss at these meetings the following subjects: "How to Build a Great Sunday School," "How to get the Sunday School Pupil to Attend the Preaching Service," "How to Make the Weekly Officers and Teachers Meetings Effective," "How to Make the Sunday School a Soul Winning School," "How to Make the Financial Program Effective," "Records that Record."

The Sunday School Institute is for anyone in the community who is interested in a bigger and better Sunday school. The Sunday school program in the Flowers revivals is one of the features that brings new interest to all phases of the Sunday school work.

A. J. Flowers, the Sunday school worker of the party, has charge of this part of the program. For eighteen years he has been giving all of his time to religious work. He is a Baptist layman with a great message.

In other cities where the Flowers party has been in meetings the attendance of the Sunday school has been greatly increased, and new classes and departments have been started. The goal set by the Sunday school evangelist is to have as many attending the Sunday school as are on the Church roll.

A. J. Flowers was for five years the paid Sunday school superintendent of the First Baptist Church of Houston, Texas. During this period the Sunday school increased in attendance until it was one of the largest in the southland. He is familiar with every phase of Sunday school and church work. He is a forceful speaker and has a practical message. During the four years he has been with the evangelistic party he has been in fifty-nine churches in seven different states.

Evangelist R. L. Flowers ability to hold the attention and attract the crowds for an extended revival campaign makes him one of the successful evangelistic preachers in America.

TEN REASONS WHY WE SHOULD ATTEND SUNDAY SCHOOL

By A. J. Flowers

BECAUSE the Sunday School is the greatest organization in the city for religious instruction.

BECAUSE the greatest Bible teachers in the country are found in the Sunday school.

BECAUSE the school offers Christian fellowship for those who are in attendance.

BECAUSE the Sunday school is a real school with real teachers, real courses of study and have a real organization.

BECAUSE the crime wave which is sweeping the country can be checked in a very worth while way by this organization.

BECAUSE the most faithful Christians to be found in a community are behind this organization.

BECAUSE the greatest helper to the church is the Sunday school organization.

BECAUSE the lessons offered and the inspiration received help each one to fight winning battle in the battle of life.

BECAUSE in this school one will associate with those who have a great ambition which will inspire one to live a worth while life.

TIGER TRAIL

of rubber heel you wear. Most of them have some sort of non-skid devices. This heel is solid rubber."

He took a long-bladed hunting knife from his pocket, and with infinite care, cut the earth around the imprint, and lifted it from the ground. I thought it would crumble at first. But the soil itself had a sticky quality, and some of the grass roots around it helped to hold the little cube of earth together.

"It isn't safe to leave it here," he explained. "But I'll be lucky if I get it to the house. And this, Dr. Long, gives use something else to think about."

We thought about it as we walked back toward the house. And I thought of many things else, particularly those never-to-be-forgotten words of the elder Southley.

"My daughter is going to marry Vilas Hayward," the old man had said.

Her face had given no sign whether or not he had spoken the truth. In the seconds that followed, it might have been that she glanced at me. But she didn't hold the glance long enough for me to tell for sure. Her face as it had been, was still before my eyes, soft-lined, shadow-eyed. And I was scornful at my senseless optimism that I even presumed to doubt but that her father had spoken the truth—that I was even fool enough to hope otherwise.

Of course she had loved Vilas from the first! Nothing else mattered. She was the kind of woman, whose love subjected me to the gentleness with which she looked and smiled, might have been simply the expression of a sweet girlishness such as most men, some time in their lives, are fortunate enough to know. And again it might have been contrivance, design, the purpose of which was hidden in the intricate web of the mystery. Perhaps unconsciously I was playing a part in the drama of the old house, and her relations with me were in some mysterious way involved.

Yet I couldn't bring myself to question her motives. It was simply impossible for me to accuse her of actual craft.

But in the test her true feelings had stood forth. She had shown where she really stood. The fact that I was to leave the house in disgrace meant nothing to her. Her love had spread its wings above all such things of this. I had not mattered a grain of dust on the window sill.

Of course I hadn't forgotten her hesitancy. Perhaps there had been regrets—indecision—but the truth had come out in the end.

And it had come out again in the little scene beside the marsh, when I had been ready to leave the estate with the coroner. It was not to be forgotten that he lips had told the detective of my dispute with the Haywards, bringing down upon me a certain measure of suspicion.

I remembered how she and Vilas Hayward had always been together. And it only cost a laugh to remember that I had attributed this fact to the mysterious forces that were at play in the old mansion, rather than to her own wish. Her love for him was evidently the most passionate, intense kind, hardly to be expected in the slender, appealing girl. She showed this fact in her willingness to sacrifice for him.

But why had she been ready to kill him that night in the den? The look on her eyes as she leaned across the table could not be mistaken. Yet many times before, in the long years of the world, women have killed the men they loved. Conditions have arisen in which love itself was the power that pressed back the finger against the pistol trigger. It was not for any man to say. The question went deep into the mystery of a woman's heart. She had tried to kill him, and yet she loved him. He brought sorrow to her eyes; and yet it had made no difference. I was seemingly a love not to be measured. And I wished that I could go beyond the dull, strange reaches of the swamps, and never return to Southley Downs again.

"After all," I heard Inspector Freeman saying, "I don't see why I should worry about these things. Such things as the track that the niggers tell about in the road—and that chap who ran away from us on the hill—and all the rest of the funny business, I've got my man, and that's the only thing that matters."

I don't know how much he had said that I had not heard. My thoughts had been too busy.

"So you're sure of it, are you?"

"It's a clear case. Blood-stained shirt—ancient enmity—above all things, the fact that he's the one man, except of course Hayward's own son, that hasn't an alibi. He went outdoors with him. Nothing to it at all, Long."

We climbed the steps of the great house, and parted in the hall. The detective took the clod that held the imprint up to his room to deposit with the shirt. He was to meet me in the library immediately after.

I waited a long time for him to come. And when at last I heard him on the stair, he walked as slowly as pall-bearer with a bier. Every step was distinct and slow, instead of the usual tap-tap of his quick motions.

Then I saw him in the candle-light at the door of the library. And never have I seen such bewilderment upon the face of a human being.

"This is the damndest house I ever saw!" he cried.

He stalked into the room with eyes wide and staring from sheer amazement. He sat down in a great chair, and rocked himself back and forth, his eyes on the floor. And now and then he swore gently, dazedly. I have seen the same look, in my professional experience, in the faces of men just picked up alive after startling automobile accidents.

"You look a trifle upset, inspector," I said. "What's the matter now?"

He turned slowly, still numbed and dazed. "I say the damndest! No case I was ever in had quite the devilish, upsetting, aggravating features that this one has. When I started to put away that clod that held the footprint, I opened the drawer where I had put the stained shirt."

"Yes."

"Somebody had unlocked the drawer with a screw-driver."

"And the shirt was gone?"

"Gone nothing! Some one had just torn a solid square foot out of the front part of the shirt-tail. And it dazed me so that I dropped the clod."

The moon that night cast every square of light on the floors. The orchestra of the marshes started up again—the call of birds, the noise of insects, the rustling of branches, all deeply remote and hushed. In the day-time the occupants of the manor-house had all been ordinary, sensible Aryans, not afraid to look in a dark corner. In the night, you could see a different expression on their faces.

I kept remembering the strange legend of the tiger. Then I thought of Ahmad Das, and the theory of reincarnation; and finally came around to the memory of those two curious scatches on the face of the dead man. Again and again I had that same cycle of thought.

I had the drawing-room to myself, except for the younger Southley. The detective was at work in his room. Southley himself had gone into the den, whether he had come out again I did not know. The negroes had retired to their cabins, as usual in the latter part of the evenings. Vilas was in the library, trying to read.

I don't think he was having any too good success. The last two days had made stupendous changes in Vilas. He had picked up two or three little nervous habits, too, that were particularly distressing to watch. The mysterious death of his father was of course the greatest influence; and the ever-present menace, the

TOO MUCH "BALAHOO"

A. M. Bourland of Vernon is the newly elected president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Bourland is probably the first real farmer that has been honored by this great organization with the presidency, and that Mr. Bourland will make his influence felt is not a matter of conjecture.

Already he has made a number of suggestions which, we believe, will meet with the hearty approval of the rank and file who contribute toward the support of the organization. Among his first recommendations was that the annual conventions of the organization be conducted along more conservative lines and be attended only by those who are actually interested in the work of the organization. He favors cutting out all of the "balaahoo" in the organization and devote all the efforts of the body to constructive work.

Mr. Bourland contends that West Texas is already sold to West Texans, and that these annual conventions are merely a repetition of efforts along this line, which is an undeniable fact.

The new president wants to devote the efforts of the organization toward bringing new enterprises and new capital to West Texas. This can be accomplished only by selling West Texas to Textile and other manufacturers in the East, so why not cease so much effort in each town in West Texas trying to sell their neighbor, and visa versa?

We believe that Mr. Bourland's program will receive the hearty support of the member ship.

However, Mr. Bourland doesn't touch the greatest reason that we have often heard in years gone by for curtailing the efforts along the convention idea.

These conventions have reached the point that they really detract rather than add to the laurels of West Texas. They are attended by hundreds, yes, thousands, who go there for the sole and only purpose of the carnival feature—the liquor parties and things that do not add to the usefulness of the organization to West Texas, and this objection to these conventions will eventually work to the serious detriment of the great organization, if indeed it has not already done so.

MR. MAYFIELD'S "IDEAS"

(Editorial, Fort Worth Star Telegram, July 1, 1928)

Senator Mayfield, the candidate for the "sympathetic" nomination in Texas this year, seems to be trying to climb on the Democratic bandwagon backwards. Mr. Mayfield, returning from Houston, announces that the agricultural plank of the Democratic platform is "thoroughly satisfactory" to him. He even places on the plank the acme of approval by saying that is "in keeping with the ideas I have propounded in each speech I have made in my present campaign for re-election." Thus, it seems, that the Democratic national party has seen the light and itself has been converted into a "sympathy" party.

Still, it is perhaps well to look a bit further into the situation. The only idea on the agricultural situation that Senator Mayfield has been known to "propound" in his speeches has been an acceptance of the McNary-Haugen bill. He appeared before the platform committee at Houston and argued for a plank endorsing this bill by name and pledging the party to its enactment. Does the Democratic platform, which Mr. Mayfield says follows his ideas so closely, endorse the McNary-Haugen bill? Nobody but a disappointed candidate looking for outside support for his own weak position could so twist the significance of the plank adopted at Houston.

The Democratic party did not endorse the McNary-Haugen bill, and for very good reasons. In the first place the equalization fee clause, which is the main feature of the bill, is admittedly unconstitutional. Senator McNary himself has come to that conclusion. In the second place, the bill if it were constitutional, would result in a sensational failure for either of two reasons. If it were made compulsory on all farmers, the farmers themselves would revolt. If it were made optional, there would be no force behind it. In fact, the agitation for the McNary-Haugen bill came chiefly from professional organizers of farmers' co-operative associations who sought a federal law to compel farmers to join, and remain in these associations. This much was admitted at Kansas City by farm organizers who appeared before the Republican convention.

The Houston platform did however, by inference at least, adopt the idea of another bill which was introduced by another candidate for the Senate from Texas. The platform declared for spreading of the benefits of the tariff to agricultural production by whatever means are found suitable and promising of success. One such means suggested is the export debentures plan, which the platform mentions, which was embodied in a bill introduced in the House by Congressman Tom Connolly who is now a candidate for the Senate. The advantage of this plan of especially interest to Texas, is that it would apply equally as well to cotton, whereas the McNary-Haugen bill, whatever problematical benefit it might confer on wheat growers, could not, by any stretch of the imagination, be put forth as promising benefit to cotton farmers.

But any port in a storm seems to be Senator Mayfield's motto. He appeared before the platform committee at Houston seeking endorsement of the McNary-Haugen bill because that action would defend his action in voting for the bill in the Senate. But, having failed to get this endorsement, he now discovers in his rejection a triumph for his "ideas." The desire for victory, made desperate by the imminent prospect of defeat, is a powerful solvent. It dissolves "ideas" as well as backbone and consistency.

Doctor Found What is Best for Thin, Constipated People

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated. In the course of his 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

J. B. Caldwell, M.D. AT AGE 93

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in his private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home—where many lives someone is sure to need it quickly. We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

ON BUILDING AN INCOME

As Aunt Emmy came out of the savings bank she met young George Oliver.

"Well, well," he said, "it's funny to see you coming out of a savings bank, Aunt Emmy. I thought only poor folks like me had money in savings banks—people like you just clip coupons!"

"Have you a savings bank account?" countered Aunt Emmy.

"Well, er—I suppose I haven't," he admitted. "You see, it's hard to save money when you're first married. Somehow there never seems to be enough money to go round—let alone to put in a savings bank."

"You never will have if you don't get started," interrupted Aunt Emmy. "You should make your weekly savings deposit, no matter how small, the first claim on your salary after paying your bills. I make my weekly deposit in this bank faithfully—I put away a certain sum regularly."

"You can't!" Nat commented.

"It is more a habit than you would suppose," Aunt Emmy continued. "Any one can do it who is willing to let other things wait. I began putting a little money in a savings bank years ago when it was no joke to save a few pennies. I remember what a wonderful thrill I got the first time I saw my interest entered in my bank book. There was money that my money had earned all by itself. After that it was a sort of game with me to put a certain sum in the bank, even if I had to do without things I would have enjoyed having. Now I realize what it means to keep your money busy earning all the time so I continue to put a little in the savings bank regularly and, after it accumulates, I draw some out and invest in safe securities that pay a higher rate of interest than savings. All the time, you see, the money is working for me."

"Of course, when the sum is small, it earns little, but if you start young as you and Molly are, it is almost like magic the way it mounts up after a few years—then when your savings get grown up into a real investment they start a real income."

"I never thought of it in that light," said George.

"Try it—and see for yourself how it works," urged Aunt Emmy. "Have you ever thought how nice it would be to have a few dollars ready for use in case of an emergency? Accidents and illnesses do happen. Or suppose you had an opportunity to buy something you knew you could sell at a profit and you had to let the opportunity slip for the lack of a few hundred dollars. You and Molly would never miss five dollars a week—and if you keep at it, it will work wonders!"

"You're right, it would!" exclaimed George. "I'll talk to Molly tonight, Aunt Emmy, and see if we can't revise our expenditures."

"There would be a whole lot less family trouble and worry over money matters if every young couple did the same thing early in life," Aunt Emmy said. "Start young, is the magic slogan."

BANKERS PROMOTE FARM CONTESTS

Standard methods of farm administration have been made the basis of a contest by bankers of Pickens County, Alabama, as a method of bringing a farm and home program to their patrons, says the bulletin of the Agricultural Commission, American Bankers Association. A safe and profitable farm community is the goal in this work.

The farm and home program has been outlined as follows:

Standard Farm Scorecard

Total Net Income: Per acre 15 points Per worker 15 " 30 points

Total Diversified Income: Cotton 4 points Corn 2 " Poultry 2 " Hogs 2 " Cows 2 " Garden produce 2 " Dairy products 2 " Fruit and melons 2 " Miscellaneous 2 " 30 points

Soil Building: Legume crops 5 points Rotation of crops 5 " Fertilizer 4 " 10 points

Farm Supplies: Food for stock 5 points Food for workers 5 " 10 points

Business Ability: Farm management 4 points Records 3 " Investments 3 " 10 points

Home Efficiency: Conveniences 5 points Appearance 5 " 10 points

Grand Total 100 points

A booklet explains the contest to the bank patron and urges him to enter by securing a record book from his bank. The winner for the entire county receives a grand prize of $100. The county is divided into districts with 75 and 80 prizes for each district.

J. D. Moyer, Editor Honey Grove Citizen, Passes On Thursday

Many of our citizens who had met him upon his visits here to Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Bengel were greatly shocked last Thursday afternoon when they received a telegram advising them of his death, which occurred at his home at Honey Grove after an illness of only a few hours. Heart failure was attributed as the cause of his death.

Mr. and Mrs. Bengel left immediately upon receiving the sad message, and attended the funeral services there on Friday afternoon. Mr. Bengel returned home Saturday and states that the funeral was one of the most largely attended he had ever witnessed.

Mrs. Moyer is a sister to Mrs. Bengel and she and Mr. Moyer had visited here on a number of occasions, and Miss Lucille Moyer, their only daughter, had returned home from a visit here only a few days before. Mr. Moyer is also survived by his son, Hugh, who is associated with him in the publication of the Citizen.

We join the many friends of the family here in extending our most sincere sympathy to the bereaved companion, son and daughter.

The following account of the funeral services is taken from the Bonham Daily Favorite:

The funeral of John D. Moyer, newspaper man of Honey Grove, who died suddenly in that city Thursday afternoon at 3:30. The church was almost filled with friends of the deceased and the family, who had gathered to pay the last respects mortals can extend to departed friends who have been called to that land from which no traveler has ever returned.

The chancel was a bower of flowers, both cut flowers and pot plants, sent by the friends of the family, and on the walls were garlands and wreaths, all in memory of the man who had lived his life for some thirty years in Honey Grove, and who was to be buried in the beautiful cemetery there, in the city he loved so well, and for which he had wrought so long.

The service was in charge of the Rev. W. J. Fenton, pastor of the First Methodist church, assisted by the Rev. Haywood, pastor of the Christian church, and the Rev. Cofton, pastor of the Presbyterian church.

The choir sang some beautiful songs during the service, and the minister of the congregation spoke with much feeling when he talked of his faithful parishioner, now gone. Well could he ask, "who is going to take his place?" The minister said that Mr. Moyer was always in his place at church, Sunday school and prayer-meeting, besides being a member of the board of stewards.

One of the touching things of the service was Mr. Moyer's daughter playing the organ while the choir sang the favorite song over the pier of his lifeless form, "A Little Bit of Love." Bravely did the little woman stick to the task of playing the last time for her Daddy, and while the notes of the hymn floated out and off on the soft summer breeze, there was not a dry eye in the house—men unaccustomed to tears wept.

Following the hymn the faithful daughter took her place with her brother Hugh, and the almost prostrated mother, as they mourned the sudden going of the husband and father. Then it was that she broke down weeping as if her heart would break over the parting—the parting with the dear Dad, who was so proud of her, and rightly, and who loved to hear her play.

John D. Moyer was a family man. He loved his little family with an endearing devotion, and when he went to press meetings or anywhere, it was his delight to have Mrs. Moyer, Miss Lucille and Hugh with him—their pleasure was his happiness. The golden family circle is broken for a time by the father's passing, but there will be a reunion some day, some sweet day, and that "Little Bit of Love" will last throughout all the eons of eternity.

A number of people from other cities, friends who had known deceased in life, attended the funeral, and the funeral train which followed the body to the cemetery was a very long one.

Stabilizing the franc is a boon to all Europe, ending financial disaster that has lasted ten years. It is a great achievement by Poincare, worthy successor of Briand, Turgot, Necker, Sully, and a long list of brilliant French statesmen.

Sir James Barrie tells Rhodes' scholars not to try for "greatness." The advice was humorous, probably. "Trying for greatness produces desirable mediocrity. Men aim high to shoot low," as the illiterate colored man said when he asked Grover Cleveland to make him Librarian of Congress.

The French settle down courageously to the drastic new money rate. Four-fifths of its value is cut from their money as a result of a war WHICH THEY WON. They face that situation bravely.

In place of paper money meaning little to peasants and working people, the French again will see gold and silver coins in circulation.

The grosse piece, size and weight of our silver dollar, will not come back. Worth five francs before the war, it would be worth twenty-five francs now. But ten-franc silver pieces worth forty cents will be coined, and the French will feel that they are working for REAL MONEY.

Childish talk of "necessary competition" and prattle about keeping business from getting "too big" are out of date. Where nations combine to monopolize world business, great American units must combine for self defense. Possibly some one will find a way to help our farmers form such a combination. They need it.

DR. FRANK CARNE SAYS AN INTERNATL. BUGABOO

One of the most persistent international bugaboos, a principal cause of the senseless race for armaments, not to say one of the evils of war, is the notion that seems to be popular in every country that diplomats of every other country are deep, cunning fellows, while the diplomats of our own country are babes in innocence and child-like trustfulness.

Much was said of President Wilson being deceived and hoodwinked by the deep and crafty representatives of other governments at Paris. It has always been my suspicion that President Wilson and his advisors were about as shrewd as any of the others.

Somehow it pleases us to think that the statesmen of Europe are oily, tricky, Metternichs and Talleyrands, while our own statesmen are merely

FARMERS AND ORGANIZATION. REAL MONEY. THROW OUT AMBITION! SOUND IN MOVIES.

Flour manufacturers, including Washburn-Crosby and Red Star, organized a $5,000,000 combination, largest flour-selling concern in the world.

That's in the line of modern methods, big units, small overhead, powerful marketing.

This news will interest farmers and make them wish somebody could show them how to organize. The first thing, and absolutely necessary, is to organize and intensify methods of production. An old-fashioned blacksmith could not compete with a modern automobile factory.

In place of paper money meaning little to peasants and working people, the French again will see gold and silver coins in circulation.

The grosse piece, size and weight of our silver dollar, will not come back. Worth five francs before the war, it would be worth twenty-five francs now. But ten-franc silver pieces worth forty cents will be coined, and the French will feel that they are working for REAL MONEY.

Stabilizing the franc is a boon to all Europe, ending financial disaster that has lasted ten years. It is a great achievement by Poincare, worthy successor of Briand, Turgot, Necker, Sully, and a long list of brilliant French statesmen.

Sir James Barrie tells Rhodes' scholars not to try for "greatness." The advice was humorous, probably. "Trying for greatness produces desirable mediocrity. Men aim high to shoot low," as the illiterate colored man said when he asked Grover Cleveland to make him Librarian of Congress.

The French settle down courageously to the drastic new money rate. Four-fifths of its value is cut from their money as a result of a war WHICH THEY WON. They face that situation bravely.

Childish talk of "necessary competition" and prattle about keeping business from getting "too big" are out of date. Where nations combine to monopolize world business, great American units must combine for self defense. Possibly some one will find a way to help our farmers form such a combination. They need it.

Sunday school teachers from Kokomo, Indiana.

We are bluff, hale and frank, while the people of other nations are crafty and shy.

I was once in a boat sailing along the coast of Japan. My daughter exclaimed, "What a beautiful 'cast line'!" One of the party replied, "Yes, but the Japanese are tricky." Even a coast line must have some deep and sinister significance.

There are doubtless bad and devious people, also nations, in this world, but the world is never going to get along well until we learn to trust each other. This was the teaching of Christ and he was about the most adult-minded of human beings.

"He who trusts everybody will probably be bitten," said Spurgeon, "but he who suspects everybody will be devoured."

Sometime ago a man wrote a book—I think he was from showed how human knots could be untangled by simply trusting your neighbor.

It is a long step in the dark to get the habit of trustfulness, but it is a good habit to form, nevertheless.

The Golden Rule is all right, but it needs an amendment. To the advice, "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you" should be added the supplement, dare to do it first.

To get along well with your neighbors requires after all a lot of daring, more courage perhaps than to quarrel with them. It is easy to be suspicious and really wanted a job as porter. A baby cries for the moon and is satisfied with a cookie. Youth reaches for greatness and is content with modest achievement and a place on the golf course.

Winfield R. Sheehan, who knows about moving pictures, says screens will be much bigger for large sized theatres now building everywhere. That will make it necessary to revise production methods.

Most important for budding genius, he says the "talking movie" will create a new army of scenario writers, knowing how to make sound effective in pictures.

In a detective story, noise of a creaking board, or a shot, might be more effective than the hero's smile.

Mr. Sheehan believes that the pictures with sound will double moving picture attendance.

In New York's brutal dancing contest—the dance to go on until all but one couple drop—the female dancers, nervously exhausted, slap their partners' faces. Then the men slap the women's faces vigorously. The yahoos, called "fans," looking on, shriek with delight, as the half crazed dancers strike each other. Such is our poor imitation of the Roman arena.

captious and touchy. It is hard to be trusting. But it pays.

Since 1914 a clock in Dayton, Ohio, has been running without being wound by human hands. It is equipped with a thermal motor, consisting of a gallon tank filled with alcohol, a one-half-inch cylinder and piston with a ten-inch stroke. A rise in the temperature expands the alcohol, pushing the piston up with a series of weights weighing sixty pounds. A fall in temperature allows the springs in the clock movement.

Sawee!

To earn money is one thing, but to save money is another and more important thing. Many fortunes have grown out of pennies saved in youth.

As a protection against destitution in the case of illness or unemployment, saving has come to be an absolute necessity.

People who spend all they earn really live above their income even though they may not be in debt!

Greatest 6 Months IN WILLYS-OVERLAND HISTORY!

Willys-Knight and Whippet sales already exceed total for 1927

2,000,000 CARS AND GOING STRONG!

JULY marks the production of the two-millionth automobile by Willys-Overland. This event happily coincides with the culmination of the greatest 6 months in the company's 20-year history.

Production during the half-year just completed greatly exceeded the entire output of 1927. This unit volume now makes Willys-Overland the industry's third largest producer.

The reasons are plain:— In the 4-cylinder Whippet the public is getting a light car value absolutely without parallel. Powerful engine; BIG 4-wheel brakes; silent timing chain; full force-feed lubrication, and many other features.

The new Whippet Six is the world's lowest priced 6-cylinder car. Demand has always exceeded production. It is equipped with 7-bearing crankshaft, Invar-strut pistons, and silent timing chain. The Willys-Knight Standard Six offers the exclusive advantages of the patented Willys-Knight double-sleeve-valve engine at the lowest price in history. The Special Six and Great Six complete this masterly line of motor cars.

Whippet Four-cylinder Touring $655, Roadster (2 pass.) $625, Roadster (coach) $625, Coupe $575, Cabriolet Coupe (with collapsible top) $705, Coach $555, Whippet Six Touring $725, Roadster $685, Coach $695, Coupe $695, Standard Six $705, Special Six $705, Touring $705, Roadster $705, Special Six prices from $1295 to $1495. Great Six prices from $1850 to $2095. All prices f. o. b. Toledo, Ohio, and specifications subject to change without notice. Willys-Overland, Inc., Toledo, Ohio.

"LeMONT"—MASTER MAGICIAN AND MENTALIST TO ENTERTAIN VETS

One of the features that will be presented during the Reunion of Confederate Veterans here on Wednesday and Thursday of this week will be the entertainment of "LeMont," the mystery man, master magician and mentalist, who will appear on the program on Thursday afternoon, and who will give one hour's entertainment of the kind that never grows old and mystifies both young and old. His program consists not only of some of the usual effects offered by other artists but presented in a new dress that takes them out of the ordinary but also contains a number of original effects which he is the inventor and builder, this adds considerable charm not obtainable otherwise. Specializing in animal and bird effects which never fail to please and is being lauded constantly for his exceptional ability in presenting his program in such a manner as to please the most exacting. While his program consists mostly of Magic and Illusions his escape work is truly super-marvelous and leaves his audiences gasping. "How can it be possible?" This feature entertainment has been secured by the program committee for the entertainment of both young and old and will be presented absolutely without cost to the spectators here on Wednesday afternoon.

Varying Summer Drinks

Instead of serving iced tea, coffee or lemonade all during the season, try Apricot Punch, Orange Mint Cup, Raspberry Shrub or Peach Punch for a change. A very tempting mocha beverage can be made with rich milk and eight teaspoons of strong cereal beverage to the glass. Iced cocoa made with rich milk is also wholesome, and beloved by children.

HEREDITY. GOING TO COLLEGE. ONE KIND OF SALESMAN. THE CAREER OF PHIPPS.

Felstead, with betting 33 to 1 against him, won the Derby. Horses, more fortunate than men, can inherit a father's qualities. Felstead's father, Spion Kip, also won the Derby.

Rich fathers, ask yourselves what would have happened had Spion Kip left his winnings to his son, to squander as he chose. Would Felstead have won any races?

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., tells Fisk University students that merely going to college doesn't necessarily mean getting an education. It may mean only "forming habits of idleness, acquiring an unwarranted sense of superiority, or becoming dissatisfied with circumstances and environment in which one's lot is cast."

Mr. Rockefeller's definition of what education ought NOT to do should be posted up in every college. It ought not to cram the mind with dates, facts, figures, produce shrewd, money seeking lawyers, turn out doctors that reckon success in dollars, or "fit men for a business life that is sharp, slick, shady."

The mechanical man, or "talking Robot," has been financed $2,000,000 worth. Manufactured in thousands, he will be used as a salesman, mechanically uttering certain words handing out cigarettes, etc.

You may say, "But he cannot THINK, how can he be a salesman?" He can be THAT kind of a salesman, and it's a numerous kind.

In Ohio, fifty years ago, an earnest young clerk named Phipps worked all day in a hardware store, then walked eight miles and back to keep books for a blacksmith. Phipps, the blacksmith and young Andrew Carnegie went into the iron business.

Some farmers think they need a low tariff, but don't. Tariff protection makes possible high wages, and high wages make it possible for American workers to buy farm products.

This country produces ninety billion dollars' worth of new wealth every year, thirteen billions from the soil, six billions from mines, sixty-three billions from industry. Cripple that industry with foolish tariff tinkering, and everybody will have trouble.

A survey by the Illinois Association for Criminal Justice, partly financed by the Carnegie Foundation, says gambling, thoroughly organized for many years, plays a great part in Chicago's crime problem.

Gambling is literally the worst of vices, most dangerous to those that practice it, and to the community on whom they prey. Those that promoted a revival of Chicago race tracks are responsible, whether they know it or not, for much of Chicago's crime.

It is hard to escape the crime wave these days. In one case bandits kidnaped a doctor, ordered him to treat one of them wounded, then beat him cruelly and finally killed him.

Six active bandits in New York City rounded up four taxi drivers among their victims. Taxicabs are associated with banditry in the public mind. The policeman "meaning it all for the best" shot down two of the innocent taxi men, killing one, knocked a third unconscious with his club.

Old China changes slowly. Chang Tso-lin fled from Peking to Mukden, his stronghold, on the advice of magicians and astrologers. Two astrologers, one called "Prince Benevolence," seventy-seven years old, another "Iron Mouth," have predicted things that convinced him.

The Mongolians like magicians. Genghis Khan was ruled by one of them nearly 700 years ago. Ultimately and wisely, he had the magician's back broken by a strong wrestler.

The Flowers Revival

DICK O'BRIEN

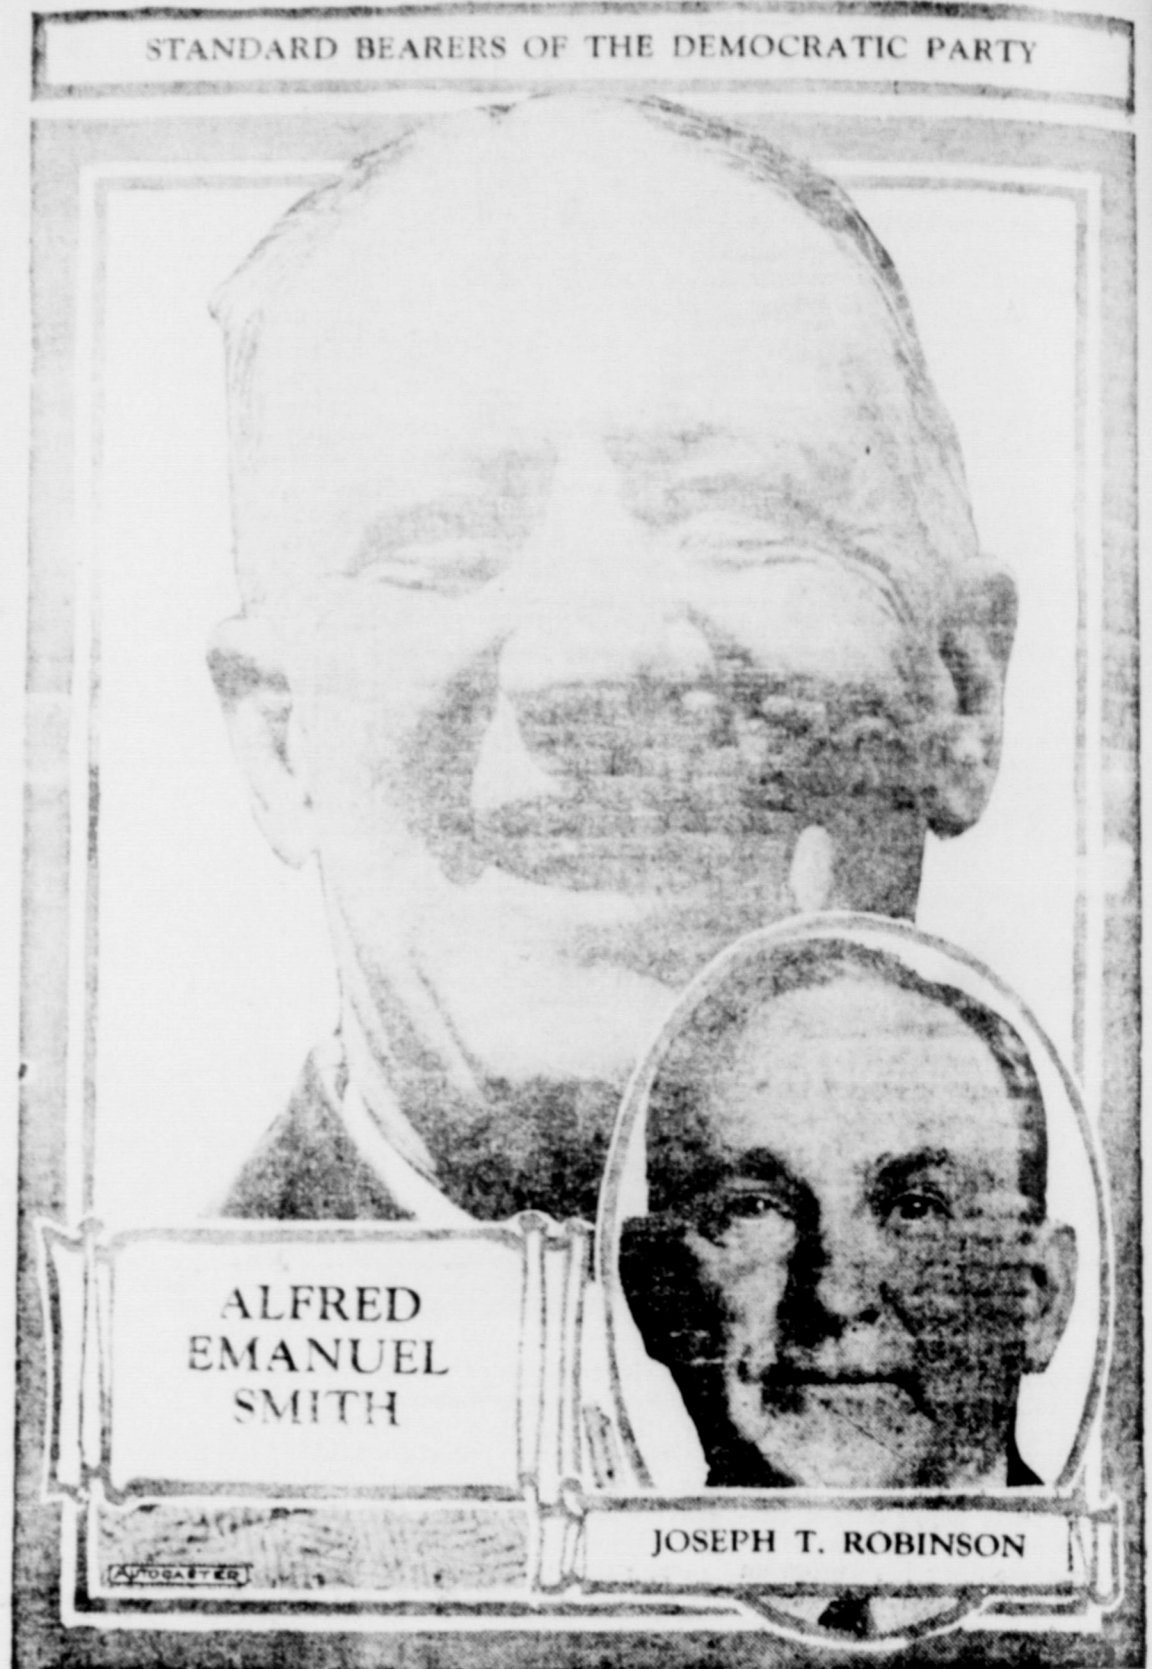

The first extensive evangelistic effort of the present season is to begin next Sunday under the human leadership of the Flowers Evangelistic Party. We here register our hope and prayer that a wisdom greater than man's and a power more than human may be manifested from the very beginning. We are sincerely interested in the success of this undertaking. We feel that the community is in a fine condition for a revival. The services of our church have been exceedingly well attended of late, and the earnestness of the worshippers encourage us to believe that a deep spiritual tide is moving in. If we are correct in this conclusion, then may we not hope for many of our friends and neighbors to be brought in on this rising tide. If this is accomplished we must be busy "throwing out the lifelines" and must "let the lower lights be burning." This is no time for neglect, indifference, unbelief and other common hindrances to our Christian lives. Certainly it is no time for selfishness, prejudice, pride, pleasure or selfishness to have place in our thoughts, or find expression in word or deed. May the same spirit that characterized Pentecost be ours as we strive together for the furtherance of the Gospel.

It has not been my pleasure to meet the Flowers party. I have never heard them, nor pastored a church in a community where they have held meetings. But all that I have heard and read of them is very favorable. It has come to me from very reliable sources that they are safe, sane and thorough in their methods. With the meetings held in the spacious, pleasant community tabernacle, and at a season of the year when the community is not very busy, we have reason to hope and expect that great crowds will greet the party from the first.

A Word To Baptists

As the meeting proper begins Sunday morning with the entire party here, we feel that it is best not to have our preaching service Sunday morning, as the leader will outline the plans for the meeting in this service. We will have our Sunday school program as usual in the morning, and our B. Y. P. U. program in the evening at 7:30. We urge every Baptist to do his duty in this meeting. Attend regularly, pray earnestly, labor diligently, sing, pray, work for we are to remember, "that our labor is not in vain in the Lord."

SWIMMING is now fine at Broach Lake. Plenty of shade trees and lunch tables with comfortable seats. Spring boards, grassy banks and clear water. 25c per person. Bring your bathing suit.

W. R. Lytle of Hefner Community Displays Cotton Blooms July 4

Cotton blooms of Knox Prairie on July 4th are unusual, and especially this year one would not expect them at this early date, when many of our farmers have scarcely finished their planting, but this paper has received two blooms from Mr. W. R. Lytle of the Hefner community, which were sent in to substantiate his claim that he had cotton blooms on July 4. Mr. Lytle did not state how much of his cotton was blooming, but we are sure that there is no great amount that far advanced.
