Crowell Churches to Co-operate in Daily Bible School in June

Four Crowell churches, Christian, Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian, will co-operate in a Daily Vacation Bible School that is to be held at the Baptist Church for two weeks early in June with Rev. Geo. E. Turrentine, Methodist pastor, as superintendent. This school was decided upon by representatives of the above churches in a meeting Monday evening at the Baptist Church.

Details of the school are now being worked out by pastors and laymen of the churches. Rev. Turrentine has made the following statement concerning the school: "The question of what our children are to do this summer is being solved for at least two weeks of the time. Now we come to the parents and capable workers of the town to ask for their co-operation in this undertaking. First we want the children to enroll now by writing their names, together with the parents' signatures on a slip which is to be turned in to your Sunday School superintendent. In this way we will get the permission of the parents and be assured of their co-operation. If you are planning a vacation, try not to be gone during the sessions."

"We are also in need of workers and we trust those who are being solicited for service in the school will take part in its enterprises. The following kinds of workers are needed: teachers, pianists, secretaries, Bible and missionary story tellers."

"We hope to begin the school with a parade, accompanied by the band on the first Monday. We will have our school songs, yells, salutes, mottoes and school spirit. The sessions of the school will be from 9:00 to 11:00 each morning, except Saturday and Sunday."

Folks—You'll Always Find The Very Best Merchandise for the Type and Price At Our Furniture Store

Womack Brothers have never catered to CHEAP, SHODDY, low-grade merchandise, just to make a sale. People expect their local merchant to know more about goods as to quality and service than themselves. They depend on their merchant to keep up with styles, prices and quality, and they largely rely on his word, both as to quality and what is a fair and reasonable price to the consumer.

This Store, with the present manager, started business February, 1907, and has continuously operated a FURNITURE STORE handling practically everything usually found in such stores ever since, and in all that time, we have faithfully endeavored to buy the BEST MERCHANDISE for the LOWEST REASONABLE PRICE, based strictly on SERVICE and QUALITY, obtainable at the time of purchase. This enabled us to always SELL to our customers at REASONABLE and FAIR PRICES for CASH, and to give as good terms and CREDIT PRICES as anyone else. WE BELIEVE that we have the confidence of the majority of the citizens of this trade territory. They have been very loyal to us.

FALSE ECONOMY

WE BELIEVE it is always FALSE ECONOMY to buy CHEAP, SHODDY MERCHANDISE AT ANY PRICE. We never have, and we never will. The merchandise you buy from us may be a little higher than something else similar, that you can buy for less, but remember, a counterfeit DOLLAR is worth less than a real DOLLAR.

Washington, May 3—(Auto-caster)—President Roosevelt's critics are beginning to be heard, and the chief ground of their criticism is that he is seeking and has obtained powers which heretofore have been jealously retained by Congress, making the President far more of an actual director of the nation's destinies than any President has ever been even in war time.

"Shelving the Constitution," some critics say, Mr. Roosevelt's friends admit that the Constitution is being stretched, but they point to history to justify the operation. "A rigid Constitution ties the hands of the present with bonds imposed under past conditions, by politicians now long dead," said one of these friends. "We think the country will be better off in the hands of a live statesman than in those of dead politicians."

Before this is in print the President will have received power from Congress to change the nation's whole currency system in almost any way he pleases. He will not be instructed by Congress as to what he shall do, but permitted by Congress to do any one of several things, as his judgment may dictate.

Banks, Pensions, Farms
Under the emergency banking law the President regulates credit, currency, gold, silver and foreign exchange transactions. He fixes restrictions on the banking business of Federal Reserve members, appoints conservators for any bank when that is necessary to protect depositors, guarantees 100 percent liquidity on accounts opened after a certain date, passes on the reorganization of national banks, permits the purchase of preferred bank stock by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, regulates bank loans made by the Corporation, and may issue a large amount of new Federal Reserve Bank notes on collateral not heretofore allowed as a currency base.

Under the economy act the President is given and has exercised the power to abolish the entire structure of veteran's benefits and he has substituted a new pension system, in which he fixes the rates and the classifications. The same act gave him sole power to reduce all Federal salaries by as much as 15 percent, to consolidate or eliminate any government agency or bureau, and to impound the money saved thereby in the Treasury.

In the farm relief bill it is provided that the President may reduce acreage, specify the growing of farm products on certain terms, employ the allotment, land-leasing and cotton-option plans or any of them, as he pleases; levy taxes on processing and punish those who do not conform to his orders; enter into marketing agreements; decide when the emergency has ended and proclaim it; control the distribution of basic farm commodities in interstate and foreign commerce; buy the Farm Board's cotton and all cotton held under Government loans, and organize a nation-wide policing system to see that his agricultural orders are carried out.

Currency, Mortgages, Employment
In the currency legislation attached to the farm relief bill the President is empowered to direct credit expansion through the open-market purchase by the Federal Reserve of Government paper not to exceed three billion dollars, to issue greenbacks up to three billion dollars if the credit expansion plan doesn't work, and use those greenbacks to repurchase government bonds to reduce the gold content of the dollar by any percentage he pleases up to one-half and to base it on any ratio he chooses in proportion to silver and to other currencies; to accept as much as $100,000,000 of any foreign government's debt in silver at not more than 50 cents an ounce, and to use that silver as the base for new currency.

Under the proposed Farm Mortgage plan the President will have the right to issue $2,000,000,000 of Land Bank bonds, and to lend money at 5 percent from R. F. C. funds last week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Truett Neill spent last week-end at Lake Kemp.

Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Moore of Vernon visited in the J. C. Davis home Sunday afternoon.

Nine of the R. F. C. workers from here worked at the Thalia Cemetery last Friday.

Dr. Clark was called to see Mrs. J. E. Batey Sunday.

Miss Willie Maude Coe and Wayne Price were united in marriage Sunday, April 16, at Altus, Oklahoma. They will make their home here.

to prevent farm foreclosures. The home owners' loan act sets up a two billion dollar fund for refinancing mortgages over a fifteen-year period with broad executive discretion.

The employment bill which is likely to be passed shortly will give the President virtually complete control over industrial production, hours of labor and rate of pay of industrial workers. The securities bill, also pending, would give the Administration complete control of all stocks and bonds issued in interstate commerce. The projected railroad legislation puts complete control of the whole railroad situation in the President's hands. The prospective tariff and trade powers to be granted to the President would give him the sole right to change tariff rates by executive proclamation.

Those are only the more important grants of power to the President, already made and proposed to be made to Congress.

Summing Up
The reason for this shifting of authority to the President is the grave national economic emergency. There is no doubt that that exists, and even the President's critics profess no fear that he will exercise these powers with the greatest caution and for the common good.

MOTHER'S DAY

Mother's Day, which is the second Sunday in May, falls on May 14 this year and will be observed throughout the United States in response to the annual proclamation by the President.

As is well known, the object of the day is to recall memories of the mothers who have passed to the beyond and to pay special tributes of affection to those living. The badge for the day is the white carnation, emblematic of the purity, beauty and fidelity of a mother's love.

Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia originated the idea of Mother's Day, which was observed in several cities in 1910, the custom being extended rapidly in the following years.

Congress in 1913 passed a resolution offered by Congressman J. Thos. Heflin of Alabama (later senator) recommending observance of the day by its members and by the executive departments at Washington. In 1914 Congress authorized the second Sunday in May of each year as Mother's Day, the first proclamation under this authority being issued by President Wilson on May 9, 1914.

Few of us reflect as often as we should on the debt of love and gratitude we owe to our mothers. By thoughts and acts of sincere affection on Mother's Day, we not only honor them, but also honor ourselves.

NEWSPAPER FACTS

Some interesting facts concerning newspapers and advertising are contained in a new book by Fred J. Haskin, veteran syndicator of information, from which the following are condensed:

Egyptians used advertising 4,000 years ago. Most early advertising was pictorial in character. The first newspaper advertising is said to have appeared in Germany in 1591.

It is estimated that about a billion and a half dollars are spent annually for all kinds of advertising in the United States. More than 360 American daily newspapers are equipped to print advertisements in color.

The fastest modern newspaper presses can turn out about 34,000 24-page papers an hour, and a somewhat larger number of 12-page or 16-page papers.

The first news agency in the modern sense is believed to have been that organized by Charles Havas of Paris in 1853. In 1840 he established a news service between Paris, London and Brussels, using carrier pigeons.

James Gordon Bennett began the publication of the first review of financial news in the New York Herald in 1853.

America's two most famous publishers are getting along in years. Adolph S. Ochs of the New York Times was 75 on March 12, and William Randolph Hearst will be 70 on April 29.

Newspaper editorials were originated by John Dillingham, an English journalist, and one of them got him into jail in 1645. Sometimes justly and sometimes unjustly, other editors have met a similar fate many times since.

That even a former vice-president may come back is evidenced by the fact that Mr. Curtis has been admitted to practice law before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Some debtors consider it against their principle to pay the interest, and against their interest to pay the principal.

The quickest way to make something popular is to pass a law against it.

Some live to a ripe old age, while others remain green or become rotten.

H. L. Kimsey Becomes Editor Newspaper In Bogata, Red River Co.

H. L. Kimsey of this city, former editor of The Foard County News, became the editor and publisher of the Bogata News, a weekly newspaper in Red River County, on Monday of this week. The Bogata News was established in 1910 and was leased to Mr. Kimsey by Chas. P. Allen.

Mr. Kimsey has a longer record of service as editor of The Foard County News than any other man holding this position. For many years he was a partner of T. B. Klepper, the present editor and publisher of The News who became the sole owner of the paper on Jan. 1, 1929, after he had purchased Mr. Kimsey's interest.

Previous to that time Mr. Kimsey had served continuously as editor for eleven years, although he and Mr. Klepper first became partners in publishing The News in 1908. This partnership continued with Mr. Kimsey as editor until 1911 when the two men sold out. Mr. Klepper went to California and Mr. Kimsey entered the grocery business here. Later he went to California, returned to Crowell in 1913 and a short time afterward he became associated with the Knox City Journal. He remained there until 1915, when he returned to Crowell and bought a half interest in The News from J. L. Martin.

Mr. Klepper returned to Crowell from California in 1917 and bought Mr. Martin's interest, thus renewing the partnership formed in 1906. This partnership continued until Jan. 1, 1929. For the greater part of the time since then, Mr. Kimsey was in the grocery business here.

The News editor extends sincerest best wishes to his former associate in connection with his duties in his new location and feels sure that the people of the Bogata section will find him to be a very capable newspaper man and a valuable citizen to their community.

Mr. Kimsey plans to move his family to Bogata within a short time.

A FASHION NOTE FROM THE BIBLE

We read a report in a New York paper of a convention of beauty shop people a few weeks ago. According to this report the most interesting things in the exhibits were removable lips, demountable eye-lashes, devices to change the shape of nose, apparatus to hold the ears back, artificial eye-sparkle and little pictures for fingernail decoration.

We began to wonder how women could be so foolish as to think that such artificialities make them attractive to men. But before we had got to the point of raising an outcry against this degenerate modern age we happened to think that we had read something of the sort before.

We looked it up and found it, written more than two thousand years ago by a prophet named Isaiah. "The daughters of Zion are haughty, and walk with stretched forth necks and wanton eyes, walking and mincing as they go and making a tinkling with their feet. . . . In that day the Lord will take away the bravery of their tinkling ornaments about their feet, and their cauls, and their round tires like the moon, the chains and the bracelets and the mufflers, the bonnets and the ornaments of the legs, and the headbands, and the tablets, and the earrings, the ring and nose jewels, the changeable suits of apparel, and the mantles, and the wimples, and the crisping pins, the glasses and the fine linen, and the hoods and the veils."

Perhaps it wouldn't be any use for us to try to talk the girls out of their finery. Apparently Isaiah's threats didn't change feminine nature, which seems to be about the same now as it was in Old Testament days. But we have an idea that the girls of Isaiah's time, like those of today, didn't put on their dew-dads so much to make themselves interesting to men as to make other women envious. That, however, is a mere man's point of view.

A NEWS MAKER

Let us look at Jesus 24 hours, schedule; see how it bristles with front-page news.

The activity begins at sunrise. Jesus was an early riser. He deposits Jesus and his disciples in Capernaum, his favorite city. He proceeds at once to the house of a friend. The report spreads instantly that he is in town, and a crowd collects outside the gate—a poor palsied chap among them. The day's work is at hand.

Having slept soundly in the open air he meets the call with quiet nerves. He stoops down toward the sufferer.

"Be of good cheer, my son," he cries, "your sins are all forgiven."

Sins forgiven! Indeed! The respectable members of the audience draw back with sharp disapproval. "What a blasphemous phrase," they exclaim. "Who authorized him to exercise the functions of God! What right has he to Jesus sensed rather than heard their protests. He never courted controversy but he never dodged it; much of his fame arose out of the reports of his verbal victories.

"What's the objection?" he exclaimed, turning on the dissenters. "Why do you stand there and criticize! Is it easier to say, 'Thy sins are forgiven thee,' or to say, 'Arise, take up thy bed and walk?' The results are the same." Bending over the sick man again he said: "Arise, take up thy bed and go unto thine house."

The man stirred and was amazed to find that his muscles responded. Slowly, doubtfully he struggled to his feet, and with one great shout of happiness started off, surrounded by his jubilant friends. The critics had received their answer, but they refused to give up. For an hour or more they persisted in angry argument, until the meeting ended in a tumult.

Can you imagine that day's issue of the Capernaum News, if there had been one?

PALSIED MAN HEALED . . . JESUS OF NAZARETH CLAIMS RIGHT TO FORGIVE SINS . . . PROMINENT SCRIBES OBJECT . . . "BLASPHEMOUS," SAYS LEADING CITIZEN . . . "BUT ANYWAY I CAN WALK," HEALED MAN RETORTS.

Front page story number one. One of those who had been attracted by the excitement was a tax-collector named Matthew. Being a man of business he could not stay through the argument, but slipped away early and was hard at work when Jesus passed by a few minutes before noon.

That was all. No argument; no offer of inducements; no promise of rewards. Merely "I want you!" and the prosperous tax collector closed his office, made a feast for the brilliant young teacher and forthwith announced himself a disciple.

Christian Science Churches

"Adam and Fallen Man" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, May 7.

The Golden Text is from Hosea 14: "O Israel, return unto the Lord thy God; for thus hast fallen by thine iniquity."

Among the passages to be read from the Bible will be the following from Romans 8: "There is, therefore, now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit. For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death."

The Lesson-Sermon will also be included from the Christian Science textbook by Mary Baker Eddy, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," one of which will be as follows: (p. 543):

"Paul says in his epistle to the Romans: The carnal mind is enmity against God; for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be. So then they that are in the flesh cannot please God. But ye are not in the flesh, but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwell in you."

"There will be greater mental opposition to the spiritual, scientific meaning of the Scriptures than there has ever been since the Christian era began. The serpent, material sense, will bite the heel of the woman, will struggle to destroy the spiritual idea of love; and the woman, this idea, will bruise the head of lust. The spiritual idea has given the understanding a foothold in Christian Science."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Charles E. Dunn

Jesus Faces the Cross
Lesson for May 7th. Scripture
Mark 10:32-52.

Golden Text: Luke 9:51.

The lesson begins with a very striking picture. Jesus and His disciples were on their way to Jerusalem. For some reason not stated the Master was walking along, ahead of the others. Perhaps, lost in thought. He had unconsciously quickened His pace. At any rate there must have been some strange expression upon His face, and something unusual about His manner. For Mark tells us that the disciples were both astonished and frightened. Apparently they had never seen Him look and act in such a way before.

Rev. Chas. E. Dunn

Our Golden Text helps us to appreciate the significance of this scene. "He proceeded with fixed purpose towards Jerusalem." The crucifixion, at once shameful and triumphant, drew Him forward by an irresistible impulse.

But note that He accepted the dire fate awaiting Him voluntarily. He was not forced into the shame of a bitter execution against His will, but deliberately chose the Way of Calvary. As Paul says, He "gave Himself for our sins."

Liszt, the composer, once spoke of the "madness and the exultation of the Cross." As we think of the fickle crowd that hailed Jesus on Palm Sunday, only to crucify Him on Good Friday, we are reminded of the collective insanity of man. At the same time, we think of Jesus soon to die, we feel an unmistakable note of triumph. Here is a matchless Master so brave, so resolute, that He does not shrink the Cross.

The disciples naturally did not understand the necessity of the Cross. They were thinking in terms of worldly fame and success. James and John, in our lesson, pleaded for favored position in the glorious new Age Christ was to introduce. And the Master had to make it clear to them that they must be ready to drink His bitter cup, and be baptized

Everything Looking Up As European Envoys Sail Home

"Everything appears to be looking up" was the gist of comment, semi-officially and otherwise, as Prime Minister, Ramsay MacDonald of England, right, and Edouard Herriot, France's envoy, left, waved adieu and sailed home, following their separate informal conferences with President Roosevelt, in which it is predicted agreements were reached which will considerably advance the prospects of success of both the Disarmament Conference and International Economic Conference within near future. It is hoped that steps have been taken under which a free international gold standard may be restored.

with His baptism of fire. And He proclaimed that sovereign truth that the golden Way of Life is not the path of lordship and authority, but of humble ministry in the spirit of the Son of man, a suffering Servant.

THERE IS MORE STRAIGHT THINKING NOW

The following conversation actually took place between a high school senior and a boy who had been out of school two years:

John: "I have absolutely wasted two of the best years of my life, and the tragic thing about it all is that I did not appreciate the fact until I did a little straight thinking about a month ago."

Henry: "What do you mean, John? You have been getting ten dollars a week ever since you left high school. You board at home and have plenty of money for your clothes and amusements."

John: "True enough, I have been getting ten dollars a week and I suppose I might go on getting ten dollars a week for the rest of my life if I should continue on my present job. It took me less than half a day to learn my work. Since that, I have been a machine. There is no chance for advancement, nor do I have any hold on the job; any one else with two hands and a reasonable amount of sense can do my work as well as I can do it. So you see, I am exactly where I was when I finished high school. I have no more money and my experience has been worth nothing to me."

"Had I taken a course in some good business college just after I finished high school, I would have been far ahead of what I am today, both financially and from the standpoint of valuable experience."

Many thousands of young men and women have had the same tragic experience and, unfortunately, many more will do likewise.

The thoughtful young person will do the wise thing and enter the Tyler Commercial College and School of Business Administration, at Tyler, Texas, for one of their Complete

Business courses and let them help him thoroughly and assist him in his employment which will pay him times as much as John receives his little makeshift job.

Their catalog, "Achieving Success in Business," is yours for the asking. Clip the coupon and mail it immediately.

"Say, folks, I'm going to buy you all a drink," exclaimed Ed, jumping up. "who's with me? Frills is so hol- low-thought tonight it scares me. I original something that'll put a little "I'll come along and help you, Ed," offered Art. Then a diversion occurred in the form of the arrival of two more men. One was Dr. Ellison, and the other was a man, of about the same age who was hailed as "Trace." Tracy Farnsworth was tanned like the rest. Everything about him was neat, well-creased, and immaculate, and like his person- ality, insipid.

With the arrival of the cocktails the party took on a shiller air. "Say, doc, did you write a per- scription for Frills after she did her leap for life the other day?" de- manded Clarice. "I did not," retorted the doctor,

"His kisses were on her neck, her eyes, her whole face."

"what does she need for it, with Neil's supply still holding good?" "And Mait's," added Kate with her loud laugh. "Where's your sweet patootie tonight, dearie?"

Joyce, thus directly addressed, an- swered coldly, "How should I know?" A second round of drinks followed close on the first. The whole evening took on a confused kaleidoscopic qual- ity that gave Joyce the feeling of being in a noisy, unreal nightmare. She did not like the spectacle of these uncultured men and women drunkenly in pursuit of a "good time."

Would they never go home? Her head throbbed and she felt inexpres- sibly weary and revolted. Finally, watching her chance, she slipped out of the room just as a lively dance melody came in over the radio and several couples leaped up and began to revolve rather un- steadily.

Joyce escaped out of the front door to the quiet of the fragrant starlight. As she stumbled on the dark step she was suddenly caught in a strong embrace.

"Sweetheart, I had to come again to see how you were," whispered Maitland softly. Joyce, overcome by her great weariness and disgust at the scene she had left, could not summon enough strength to struggle. She felt tired and terribly alone. All she was conscious of at the moment was that Maitland's cheek against hers was cool and sober, that there was no reek of liquor on it.

He did not try to take advantage of her yielding mood. He simply held her quietly, and Joyce, whose head had been spinning from the heat and the noise, leaned against him with her eyes shut and murmured: "Oh, I can't stand them, they're all drunk . . . I want some air . . ." "Get in my car and we'll take a run," said Maitland promptly. He led her to his machine which was only a few steps off. "Here, put this on, you'll be cold if you don't." He held up a light overcoat and Joyce in a daze slid her arms into it and dropped back into the low seat without stopping to consider exactly what she was doing.

In another moment they were rolling down the drive and out into the road. Maitland drove in silence, a tactful silence so welcome to Joyce in her lassitude that all her fear and ab- horrence of him melted into grate- fulness. Finally, when they had driven about ten minutes, Maitland asked softly, "Feel better, dear?" "Yes," said Joyce.

He took his hand from the wheel and felt for hers. When he had it in his warm clasp, she let it stay there, still too apathetic to care. "Who was there tonight?" he asked after a bit. "Oh, Clarice and Ethel and Ross and . . . Ed . . . and Kate and Art and . . . Charlie . . . and Tess and Trace . . . and . . . and Doc," re- traced Joyce drowsily, almost too tired to finish the long list.

"Same old crew, all talking at once, after they get a few drinks under their belts. Get damn sick of under drive, don't you, Frills. Suddenly the car swung abruptly to the left, drove in through the thick darkness of a narrow, treeshadowed road, then came out to an open space and stopped quietly.

Maitland took his hand from hers and putting his arm around her shoulder bent over her.

Maitland drew her suddenly closer to him and began kissing her, with the same intensity of that first em- brace in the living-room.

His kisses were on her neck, her eyes, over her whole face. She could feel his heart coming short and hur- ried. She was frightened and repel- led. She must keep her head and get him to take her back to the house as quickly as possible. Perhaps her very resistance was what inflamed him so; perhaps her safety lay in letting him kiss her.

She was so tired and it was so ut- terly futile to struggle against his superior strength. . . . Suddenly she relaxed her tense muscles and lay limp in his arms. The result of this, instead of cooling his ardor, seemed to fire him with new energy.

The touch of his cold fingers on her flesh sent a shock of flaming rage and humiliation through Joyce. She struck violently at him and pulled his hand away with desperate strength.

"If you . . . cared . . . at all about me," she cried, her voice quivering in spite of her efforts to control it, "you'd know I'm . . . that I haven't felt well since the accident. You'd do what I want, not just what you want. . . Please take me home right away. . . now. . ."

"Hell!" he exclaimed under his breath. "I don't get you at all, Frills. . . Well, all right, you're the boss." He released her, switched on the headlights and in a few moments had the engine running and the car turned toward home.

On the way back Joyce silently wondered what had happened. When they could hear the sounds of the party still in full swing. Maitland stopped the machine and said, "Want me to come in with you, sweet?"

"I don't want to see them at all," she insisted, "why can't I go in by the kitchen?" "All right," agreed Maitland, "you go up that way and I'll send the gang home for you."

Maitland helped her out of the car and went with her around the back of the house. At the foot of the back- stairs, Maitland drew her to him, turned her face up and kissed her, but this time very gently. "Good- night, darling."

Joyce hurried up the stairs, through the hall into the big bedroom which she locked with a sigh of profound relief. It seemed to her as if she had left its cool privacy years before.

The noise and music downstairs which came up in a muffled confu- sion of sounds continued for about five minutes longer and then with a succession of sharp bangs of the front screen door closing she heard her guests depart. She listened to the cars drive off one after the other and then there was absolute quiet.

The next morning a brilliant idea occurred to Joyce. Why should she not pack a suitcase and run off alone to San Francisco for a week? She could stay at the Y. W. C. A., where she would be unlikely to meet any of the Manzanita crowd, and there under an assumed name, she could learn to run an automobile and to ride horseback.

She found about seventy-five dol- lars in bills and silver in the desk and in a handbag on the dressing ta- ble. With courage newly-augmented by the excitement of her plan, she decided to cash a check in Manzanita.

Two thieves carried 18 bales of hay from the ranch of L. A. Wolcott, near El Paso, Tex., across the moonlit Rio Grande River to old Mexico. When a freight car struck him and knocked him down between two rails and two cars passed over him, Frank Wallace of St. Paul, Minn., suffered a broken toe and a torn shoelace.

SIDELIGHTS

By Marvin Jones

I am convinced that a controlled expansion of the currency will not only materially increase farm prices but that it is essential to complete national recovery. The dollar is supposed to be a measure of values—a medium of exchange.

We often speak of using dollars to purchase commodities. That depends upon which side of the bargain the trader is located. One man uses money to purchase wheat. The farmer uses wheat to purchase money. When one borrows money to be repaid in the future it is essential to fairness that the value of that dollar remain substantially the same, measured in the terms of the general commodity price level.

Here is where the hitch comes. Translated into farm commodities, the dollar is worth twice what it was worth a few years ago. The private debts of America run into staggering billions. It is impossible to pay these debts with dollars of the in- creased value of today. Yet the ob- ligation rests not only upon the farmer but upon other producers and up- on manufacturers to pay these debts with greatly appreciated dollars. This is responsible for a great deal of the grief and stagnation from which the country has been suffer- ing.

The strange part about this whole situation is that the debts we owe, we owe to each other. Not a dollar is owed abroad. Yet both agriculture and commerce have been chained and almost destroyed by the high- priced dollar.

The credit of the country has been so greatly contracted that the only practical way to offset it is through an adequate supply of money on a sound basis.

Currency and credit are like other commodities. When they are plentiful they are low in price. When they are scarce they are high in price.

Of course, no one wants printing press money. On the other hand, no thinking person wants money so high- priced that it becomes a hindrance rather than an aid to commerce and exchange.

Foreign countries have, by revalu- ing their unit of money on a lower basis, practically destroyed the market of the surplus farm products of America.

Any expansion should be properly controlled. Germany went to the extreme by increasing the volume of currency to such an extent as to practically cancel all debts. This was her deliberate purpose. For the last three years we have been going to the other extreme by contracting currency and credit to such an extent as to make payment of debts practically impossible. France, on the other hand, took the middle position, revaluing the franc on such a basis as to make payment of debts possible and yet at the same time increasing to a reasonable degree the farm and general commodity price level.

Through a reasonable increase in the volume of the currency which can be kept on a sound basis, the prices of farm commodities can be materially increased, debts can be paid, and conditions restored.

Money is the life's blood of the nation. One might have a perfect body, but if he had only half enough blood he would suffer torture. On the other hand, if he had too much blood he might suffer from high blood pressure. If he has a sufficient amount of blood his health conditions be- come ideal.

Properly controlled expansion of the currency merely means restora- tion to the normal flow of commerce and trade—a restoration of commod- ity prices to the point where they would be fair to everyone. Such a step is essential to the proper work- ing out of the different steps in the President's program for national recovery.

The action of the President in ap- proving an amendment granting authority to restore the currency to a proper basis has had a very fine ef- fect on the general commodity price level. The Speaker has designated me as one of the conferees to con- sider this amendment when it comes to the House. I am in hearty accord with its purposes and expect to urge early adoption by the House. I be- lieve it will do more than any one thing to restore confidence and to bring back prosperity.

The Family DOCTOR

by JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

A LESSON

I wish it had not happened, for it makes me sad to think of it. But it is true in every particular, for I know of the incident first-hand.

A little boy of about nine took an acute attack of appendicitis. The diagnosis was unquestioned, for a fine surgeon was called—he advised immediate operation. The father rebelled stubbornly; "I don't want no cuttin' done," he said with finality. The surgeon returned to his place of business.

Four days later the same surgeon—a man of eminence—was called hurriedly to see the boy; he had grown much worse. The doctor found him with cold, clammy extremities, thready pulse, dilated pupils, swollen enormously in the body,—peritonitis.

A glance was enough; the boy was dying. "He can't live another hour," the surgeon said quietly; "it's no use to try the impossible."

The father wrung his hands and begged the doctor to do some- thing—operate—anything. He writhed in despair with his unreason- able requests. But it was too late.

The doctor was in deadly earnest when he spoke to that father—a bitter lesson was to be studied. "I called here and told you what should be done," he said; "you didn't want me to do what I knew should be done. You wanted to temporize—I hoped the child might get well, in spite of my better judgment. You refused to listen—you are responsible for this child's death!"

Which was too true. So many people step in front of the trained physician. That boy could have been saved, but the one in au- thority objected. What do we learn from this?

First prize in a quilt show held by the Order of the Eastern Star in Barnesville, Ga., recently was won by a man, J. C. Williams.

Several robins flew in the open window of a North Side hospital in Chicago and upset the patients for an hour before they were evicted.

William Casey of Denver, Colo., was fined $50 for drunkenness when he tried to kiss Patrolman Richard Magor.

Trapped by fire in his home, George Daley, aged 85 of Glencoe, Ill., escaped by sliding down an iron pipe from the third floor.

IN LITTLE OLD NEW YORK

Some funny things happened in New York during recent bank holiday.

The manager of Luna Park, Coney Island, tried to borrow $25 on an elephant.

Ushers in motion picture theatres offered to exchange 95 cents in silver for dollar bills.

One hotel provided its guests with $10 in silver and charged the amount to their account.

At one hotel a guest presented a certified check for $30,000 and asked for $5 on account. He got it.

Taxicab drivers accepted I.O.U.'s.

The pastor of one church declined to take up a collection. He said the members of his church needed their money.

The owner of a restaurant sent men to the various churches for silver change.

Men with $100 bills and even $500 bills presented themselves at the ticket windows of the Pennsylvania Station and asked for tickets to Newark. They wanted change but they didn't get it.

Dance halls announced they would accept I. O. U.'s from patrons.

A cafeteria posted a sign it would accept no bills over $5. Ten and twenty dollar bills were barred.

Theatres accepted checks for tickets.

Hundreds of persons tried to return theatre tickets so as to get some change.

At one church the text for Sunday's sermon was, "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt and where thieves break through and steal."

One of the wisest students of finance in New York had just $1.55 in his pockets when the banks closed.

Many restaurants required their waiters to bring their tips to the cashier's desk whenever they totaled a dollar.

Five hundred young men and women, representing 66 nationalities, live in an eight-story building in New York. It is the International House on Riverside Drive, the home of New York's many colleges.

A New York department store is considering the introduction of a rock-me-to-sleep oscillator to be attached to beds. This is a machine which produces a gentle rocking effect which, it is said, is conducive to sleep.

It is said that a good many New York women are buying and wearing men's shirts. So long as the women own their own and leave husband's shirt's alone, all will be OK.

Henry Collins Brown, an authority on New York history, tells of an old tavern here in which were posted these rules:

- "Four pence a night for bed.
- "Six pence with supper.
- "No more than five to sleep in one bed.
- "No boots to be worn in bed.
- "Organ grinders to sleep in wash house.
- "No dogs allowed upstairs.
- "No beer allowed in the kitchen.
- "No razor grinders or tinkers taken in."

St. Paul's church, on Broadway, between Fulton and Vesey streets, is the oldest church building now standing in New York. It is the rear of the church which is seen from Broadway, as the church originally faced the Hudson River.

Thirteen years were required to build Brooklyn Bridge in New York. Work was started in 1870.

There are some heavy eaters in the Bronx Zoo here. Some of the big "Cats" eat 12 pounds of the best beef every day. This little duck-billed platypus consumes $4.50 of meal worms and shrimps every 24 hours. Walruses demand about 20 pounds of soft-shell clams a day.

In central Park is an obelisk which originally stood in front of the Temple of the Sun in Heliopolis near Cairo, where it was erected 1600 years before Christ.

There is a men's clothing store in New York which actually has never had "a sale".

We have heard of the man who will bring a trained seal to your home and do tricks to amuse your guests. And we are told of a man with four trained pigs who will do the same thing.

New York music lovers must raise $300,000 if they want a continuation of grand opera.

There are more Italians than Irishmen in New York City.

They are cleaning up some of the old-time beer gardens here.

After he violated the Sunday observance law by the sale of a pound of butter, Arnold Garoznik of Boiling Springs, Pa., paid a fine of $9.70.
