ADVANTAGES OF TRENCH SILO TO BE SHOWN

Demonstration Will Be Held at McLarty Farm

Demonstration of the construction and filling of trench silos will be held on the S. W. McLarty farm, six miles northeast of Thalia in the Rayland community, Thursday morning, July 22, beginning at 10 o'clock.

R. Eudaly, Extension dairy agent from Texas A. & M., will conduct the demonstration. He will be assisted by J. A. Scofield, district agent, and John Nagy, Foard county agent.

The most satisfactory way to store forage crops is to feed them to livestock, but with ordinary means of curing them dry, 75 per cent or more of the crop is lost in shattering and bleaching, and in feeding. If made in silage the total loss of the crop should not exceed ten per cent.

The silo in semi-arid climates is found very desirable as a means of storing green feed to be preserved for use in dry months. Tests have shown that silage does not deteriorate with time, but retains its full nutritive value, hence the crops of heavy silage can be carried over indefinitely.

With these added possibilities the farmer is more independent of the market, and is enabled to carry a larger herd on the same amount of land. The crop is preserved in its most nutritious and palatable condition and is the best supplement for short pastures during dry seasons.

The county agent urges anyone who is interested in trench silos to attend this demonstration next Thursday.

Evangelist

The revival was started Sunday morning and will continue until Sunday, July 25. Two services are held daily, one at 9 a. m. in the church and the other at 8 p. m. outdoors. Large crowds have been attending the services.

HIGHWAY 16 GRAVEL WORK PROGRESSING

Two-Course Base Will Be Completed By Last of Month

Laying of the two-course gravel base on four miles of State Highway 16, south of Crowell, is progressing rapidly and will be completed by the latter part of this month, according to Tom Seale, resident engineer.

About one and three-quarter miles is yet to receive the second course before the work under this appropriation is finished.

Additional Appropriation
A $3,000 additional appropriation was asked for to finish the four-mile strip and it was granted, but unless another allotment is given, work will be stopped when both courses are down on the four miles now being gravelled.

The second course is now on two and one-quarter miles of the road south of Crowell.

Over 16,192 yards of gravel are now in place on the road bed and about 5,000 more will be used to cover the remaining distance. There are 29 laborers, 22 trucks and four 4-up teams employed on this job.

Good Record
The men working in the gravel pit north of Crowell have established an unusually high loading record. Eighteen men are loading the trucks in the pit by hand and they average loading 336 yards per day, eight hours, for an average of 18.6 yards per man.

Gravel hauling has been stopped for today while more gravel at the pit is being uncovered, but will start again Friday morning.

Sprinkling of the road and other work at the south end of the job will be carried on today.

To Hold Revival

REV. E. L. YEATS

Methodist Revival Will Start at Thalia Church

A revival meeting will be conducted for the Methodist Church in Thalia beginning Sunday, July 15, with services being held in the community tabernacle in Thalia, according to announcement made by Rev. E. A. Irvine, pastor of the Margaret and Thalia Churches.

Rev. E. L. Yeats, pastor of the Crowell Methodist Church, will do the preaching and the singing will be under the leadership of local people. Services will be held each day, both morning and night.

"We trust that all Churches in this community will feel that it is your revival and pray and work for the services," Rev. Irvine states in making the announcement.

New Law Firm Formed in Crowell This Week

A new law firm was created in Crowell Monday when R. D. Oswald was joined in his law practice by his son, Robert D. The latter was graduated from Crowell High School in 1930 where he was active in the speech department, having won the County Interscholastic League contest in extemporaneous speaking for four consecutive years. After graduating from Crowell High School Robert D. attended Texas Tech at Lubbock for two years and St. Mary's University in San Antonio for one year. He finished law school in Cumberland University in Lebanon, Tenn., in 1936, and attained the scholastic honor roll which requires an average of 90 or above.

R. D. Oswald has been a practicing attorney in Crowell for the past 14 years, coming here from Quannah in 1923, where he was county attorney of Hardeman County for five years. He has served as county attorney for Foard County for many years and is well known here.

The offices for this new firm are located upstairs in the Lanier Building.

The local Boy Scouts who attended the National Boy Scout Jamboree in Washington, D. C., arrived in Wichita Falls Monday afternoon at 1:30 and were met there by their families, Charles Stuart Clark, J. M. Hill Jr., John Clark Long, James Everett Long, Joe Reavis Spencer and Jimmy Williams constituted the Crowell delegation.

They report a wonderful trip, with side trips to Annapolis, and New York City. Points of historic interest in and around Washington were visited. The entire number was reviewed by President Roosevelt.

The boys brought back many mementos of the trip, exchanging items with Scouts of other states, in many instances.

There were 26,000 Scouts who were privileged to make the trip to the American shrine.

CRITICALLY ILL

The condition of J. L. Glover, who has been critically ill for the past several weeks, is reported to be unchanged.

NEW VEHICLE REGISTRATION

The following new motor vehicles were registered in the office of the tax assessor-collector during the past week:
E. R. Roland, Chevrolet sedan.
C. C. Ribble, Pontiac tudor.
Margaret Curtis, Ford tudor.
F. L. Sloan, Ford tudor.
A. Weatherall, Ford tudor.
John S. Ray, Plymouth sedan.
Ed Huskey, Ford Coupe.
T. L. Owens, Ford truck.

ROOF OF WARD SCHOOL TO BE FINISHED SOON

Felt, Asphalt and Fine Gravel Being Laid At Present

The roof of the grammar school building, now under construction just east of the high school building, will be completed by Saturday of next week, according to L. I. Saunders, building supervisor.

Roof Deck Completed
The roof deck was finished Wednesday and the roof covering was started at that time. Laying of thirty pound roof felt was started at that time and will be completed by Saturday. When this work is done the inside of the building will be protected from rains. After the thirty-pound felt is laid then there will be three layers of fifteen-pound felt, mopped with asphalt, put down. Asphalt and gravel will be put on the layers of felt. Sixty-five pounds of asphalt and 125 pounds of fine gravel will be put on every ten square feet of the roof.

24 Ventilators
A total of twenty-four ventilators are being installed. Eighteen of these will be used to take stale air from the rooms and six will draw the hot air from between the ceiling and roof. Regulators will be placed on each of the ventilators to open or shut them, controlling the flow of air in the ventilators, so they may be opened or closed.

Finish Partitions
Erection of short partitions between several of the rooms will be done, and stringing of metal lath on the partitions for the plaster will be started by the first of the week.

Windows and Doors
The windows and doors are being painted at the present and will be put into the frames next week. The building will be well lighted as there are 124 windows with 18 panes of glass to each window in the building and 12 outside doors with 12 panes of glass each.

As soon as the roof is completed and the windows and doors are put in place, which should be completed by next Saturday, the building will be closed from the weather and work will not be delayed by rains, Mr. Saunders stated.

HERE FROM GEORGIA

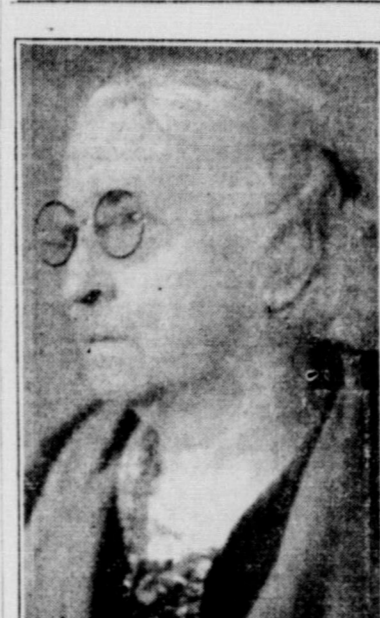

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Fite and son, Warren, and wife and small daughter, Louise, left Monday for their home in Calhoun, Ga., after visiting for several days with Mr. Fite's sister, Mrs. N. A. Crowell, and other relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Fite were residents of Foard County 32 years ago, owning a farm a short distance southwest of Crowell. After returning to Georgia, their native state, they have made many visits back to Crowell. They had never seen the Plains section of the state and Sunday morning Mr. Fite and Warren made a trip to Plainview.

WILL PREACH HERE SUNDAY

Rev. I. C. Brown of Spur will preach at the Methodist Church Sunday morning in the absence of the pastor, Rev. E. L. Yeats, who will be assisting in a revival meeting at Thalia.

There will be no evening service at this church on account of the revival in progress at the Baptist Church.

Pioneer Dies

MRS. JOHN WESLEY

Billy Fred Short Is Severely Burned While Killing Ants

Billy Fred, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Short, was severely burned on his right arm and on the right side of his body Thursday afternoon when he accidentally caught fire while burning ants.

He had drawn some gasoline from a barrel and had poured it into an ant bed. When he struck a match the gasoline that had spilled on his right arm when he drew it from the barrel ignited his bare arm and shirt sleeve. His overalls caught from his arm. Billy displayed calmness that would have been commendable of an adult when he immediately sat down and pulled the flaming clothes from his body.

The boy did not make an outcry and it was not discovered that he had been burned until he entered the house and was met by his mother. The burns received on his body were painful but his arm was more severely burned. He is recovering rapidly.

Alpine Minister to Conduct Meeting at Truscott Church

A revival meeting will begin at the Truscott Christian Church Sunday, July 18, with the preaching being done by Rev. John W. Tyndall of Crowell on Sunday and Monday. After that time Rev. M. A. Buhler of Alpine will be in charge and will do the preaching for the balance of the meeting which will continue for two weeks.

Rev. Buhler began his ministry as a Christian preacher with the Truscott church. The people of the Truscott community are invited to take part in this meeting.

Four From Foard Will Attend Short Course

Three girls left this morning for North Texas Agricultural College in Arlington and one boy for John Tarleton in Stephenville to attend a six-weeks' agricultural short course in domestic science.

They were sent by the local relief office and their expenses are paid due to the fact that they will work on an NYA program while they are gone, according to H. E. Thomson, head of the office.

Those attending the short course are Miss Lucy Railsback, Miss Maudie Dawson, Miss Addie Briscoe, and Jodie Wallace.

MRS. WESLEY SUCCEUMBS AT MARGARET

Resident This Section Since 1880; Funeral Friday Morning

Funeral services for Mrs. Jno. W. Wesley are to be held at the Methodist Church in Margaret Friday morning at 10 o'clock, conducted by the pastor, Rev. E. A. Irvine, who will be assisted by Rev. M. G. Brotherton of Vernon, a former pastor of the church. W. R. Womack, funeral director of Crowell, will be in charge of arrangements. Interment will be in the Margaret cemetery.

Mrs. Wesley, 83, died at her home in Margaret Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock following a lingering illness. She had been an invalid for the past two years and her condition for the past two weeks had been critical. All of her children who live at a distance were at her bedside Sunday. Two of her daughters, Mrs. Will Grimm and Mrs. Mattie Pollock of Oklahoma City, remained here and were with their mother at the time of her death.

Miss Mary Frances Dougherty was born in New York City, October 19, 1854, and continued to live in that city until her marriage to John W. Wesley February 16, 1879. In the fall of 1873 Mr. and Mrs. Wesley left New York for Texas, coming by water to Galveston. They lived at Brenham and Weatherford before coming here in 1880. They settled on land about five miles north of Crowell where the first postoffice for this territory was established in 1884. Upon the resignation of the first postmaster, D. E. Lower, who served for only a short time, Mrs. Wesley was appointed postmistress and when Hardeman County was organized in December, 1884, the postoffice was moved to Margaret, county seat of the new county. Mrs. Wesley held this position until her oldest son, H. A. Wesley of Margaret, became of age and also became postmaster.

Mrs. Wesley was a charter member of the Margaret Methodist Church which was organized in 1885. Only two other charter members of the church survive, Mrs. Wesley's son, H. A. Wesley, and W. T. Dunn.

She is survived by her husband and six of the twelve children born to this union. They are, H. A. Wesley of Margaret, Mrs. Will Grimm of Oklahoma City, George Wesley of Riverside, Mrs. Mattie Pollock of Oklahoma City, Mrs. Sam Taylor of El Reno, Okla., and Mrs. Joe McGill of Oklahoma City.

All children and their families will be here for the funeral Friday.

VIVIAN ROAD TO BE FINISHED BY WEEK-END

The all-weather road being constructed to connect the Vivian school with State Highway 28, twelve miles east of Crowell, will be completed this week, according to Dwight Campbell, project superintendent.

Work on the road started March 8 at the old Paducah highway near the school house and progressed toward the state highway. The road is 1.5 miles in length.

The road has a six-inch sledge-stone base and a five-inch caliche topping. Mr. Campbell stated that the part of the road already completed and thoroughly soaked by rains was holding up wonderfully under the heavy trucks used on the job. A road of this type will last indefinitely, authorities believe. The stone was obtained from a field owned by J. H. Carter, west of Carroll's service station, and was reduced to small rock by sledge hammers on the road foundation.

Although the project was set-up to give labor to 99 men, not more than 45 have worked at any time since the road construction was started nearly four months ago. At the present there are two shifts, averaging 15 men to a shift, and about 45 men receiving work on this project. Three trucks are being used on the job. Two are furnished by the WPA and one by Foard County, the sponsor.

Over $8,000 was approved for this project, but only approximately $6,000 total expenditures will be used. Walter Thomson has been hired as time keeper on the project.

Senator Joe Robinson Died Suddenly, July 14

Senator Joe T. Robinson, 64, Arkansas died suddenly at his present home in Washington Tuesday, July 14, of a heart attack. His body was found slumped on the bathroom floor.

Senator Robinson was an inveterate leader of the senate's moderates and the battle over the Roosevelt court reorganization bill of the already arising struggle for the reorganization of the executive branches of the government were vitally affected by his death. For every administration official, Robinson was a tower of strength.

He is survived by his wife who lives at their home in Little Rock.

4-H Girl's Wardrobe Contest to Be Held Saturday, 3:30 P. M.

The 4-H Club girls' wardrobe contest will be held Saturday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the district court room.

School Fund Row

The action of the state board of education — including a healthy segregation of Allied appointees — in ignoring the governor's expressed hope that the per capita school appropriation might be held at $19, and the tax rate on property reduced, was still another manifestation of the waning Allied influence. The board promptly hiked the per capita figure to $22. If Allied can get one other member of the state automatic tax board — which includes the governor, Comptroller George Sheppard, and Treasurer Charley Lockhart — to stay with him, he may nullify this action, however, by getting the tax board to reduce the school ad valorem tax rate from the present 30 cents to 6 or 8 cents, thus giving the property taxpayers the "break" Allied claims they deserve. The school lobby, however, is all-powerful, and it is doubtful whether, with an election in the offing next year, either Sheppard or Lockhart would care to antagonize the school vote by joining the governor in such action. The board meets July 20 to settle the matter.

Third Term Reaction

First reaction from out over the state to the third term movement is privately reported somewhat disappointing to the Allied strategists. Observers who have traveled into the creek forks report a lack of strong public demand for the breaking of the two-term tradition. Allied, despite his vetoes of many measures affecting large groups, seems not to have made many bitter enemies recently, except an extreme, but comparatively small group of "liberals" — over the race repeal business. But, on the other hand, the scouts report he has made virtually no new friends, as they point out he had the "moral" vote almost solidly already. And too many folks just don't think a governor ought to have a third term.

Judgeship Involved

Friends of Senator Tom Connally believe Allied may be trying to "scare" the junior senator into renewed effort to revive the moribund bill to create an additional federal judgeship at Houston, by talking of a third term. If Allied were elected governor again, he would be in excellent position to run against Connally in 1940. It is believed here that Connally would go a long way to avoid a race with Allied as his opponent, particularly in view of the sharp division of sentiment in Texas over the president's court reform plan. Connally has fought the bill unequivocally, while Allied has never committed himself on the issue. Connally undoubtedly strengthened himself with the lawyers, and with the conservative Democratic element in Texas, but recent events have raised grave doubts about whether he has done himself any good with the mass of Texas voters, who, most observers here think, are strongly for the president. They cite the results in the recent special congressional election in the 10th district — probably the most conservative in Texas — in which Lyndon Johnson won overwhelmingly over a court plan opponent. Johnson endorsed the Roosevelt program enthusiastically.

Allred Aides Drifting Away

There is little doubt that the third-term talk on behalf of Allied also is designed to hold the Allied machine together, and halt a distinct tendency which it has been manifesting in recent weeks to break up. The governor, in the always unfortunate position of a second-term governor "on the way out" has seen politicians whom he has rewarded with one, two and in some cases, even three fat appointments, drifting away from his influence. Most notable is the case of R. B. Anderson, ex-assistant attorney general under Allied, and later state tax commissioner, then director of the unemployment compensation commission, Anderson hired out to Waggoner interests of Fort Worth as an attorney. The governor was rather burned up to discover later that Anderson had worked to defeat his race-track betting repeal bill. Still other Allied stalwarts, highly placed in state bureaus by the governor, have conveniently "overlooked" recent patronage recommendations of the governor. Actually, the boys

Sterilization by Silver

Successful commercial advantage has been taken of the discovery made more than 40 years ago that water in contact with clean copper or silver becomes sterilized without any destruction of the salts which take place in distillation. It is known as the katadyn process. The silver is introduced into the water by the immersion of plates through which is passed a very feeble current of electricity, and this is said to effectively kill the bacteria. The cost of the current for treating a hundred-weight of water amounts to a few cents. The greatest expense is the silver, but it is consumed in small quantities.

Gilchrist To A. & M.

Inside information that Gilchrist, state highway engineer will accept the proffered post of college engineering at A. & M. — which he has under consideration as this is written — was welcomed enthusiastically by the nation's ablest engineers, by those who have clashed with him politically in the past, the offer to head A. & M.'s engineering school is a high compliment which will help to compensate him for a sacrifice in income which his acceptance will necessitate.

New Farm Bill

It appears that Congress will remain in session for some time yet, and it is now thought that a new farm bill will be passed at this session of Congress.

The Tax Avoidance Joint Committee, appointed by a resolution passed by the Congress, after the President's message to the Congress, specifically pointing out some of the many loopholes in our tax laws, seems to have suddenly decided to close their public hearings and go into executive session.

self. If this tax committee would give this Congress such a tax bill, it would quickly be enacted into law. Then, if we could get the Revenue Department to administer such a law, as it is written we would be able to double our revenue collection and within a short while, would be able to materially lower our tax rates.

Thunderstorm's Warnings Nature's greatest warning of the approach of a thunderstorm is experienced on a mountain, where the atmosphere becomes so charged with electricity that it makes a man's hair stand on end, his fingers emit sparks and the metal points of his ice ax hiss like vipers, says Collier's Weekly.

Crowell, Texas, July 15, 1937

Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Jehovah my rock, and my redeemer.—Psalm 14:14.

The dust bowl occupies a section of country in which five states corner. It contains 90,000,000 acres lying in some 102 counties. Formerly most of the area was in wild grass and constituted a great pasture range. During the war when the demand for wheat sent the price up tractors were brought into the area and so much wheat produced that the elevators could not begin to care for it. It was piled in great mounds on the ground until it could be shipped. When the drought came the fine top soil was easily moved by the high winds which prevail in this section. During the height of these dust storms it is impossible to see across the street. The impalpable fine powder sifts into the houses, through the cracks around the doors and windows, and frequently suffocates men and animals. Before the dust storms some 400,000 people lived in the territory. Thousands of these have left their farms and sought homes elsewhere. Q. V. Winningham of Crowell is a former citizen of Boise City, Okla., approximately in the center of the dust bowl. Mr. Winningham says that before he and his family left Boise City the Government was shipping in dust masks and that residents of that section were compelled to tuck wet blankets over the windows to absorb and help keep out the fine dust. Little relief is promised until grass can be made to grow again in this section, since grass is the only thing that will hold the soil from blowing.

It is a singular fact that certain areas are more liable to be visited by a hail storm than others. Insurance companies have maps that show patches of country subject to hail storms. It often happens that a well defined area exists around these patches in which hail seldom if ever falls. Markings on these maps show that some of these sections are visited by severe hail storms every year while farms an eighth of a mile away never receive any hail. The maps are used as a means of determining hail insurance rates. Rates in the dangerous areas are always higher than in the other areas. Knox and Foard Counties have different rates on hail insurance for wheat, the rate being higher in Knox County. The rate over the State of Texas runs from $4.00 to $12.00 per hundred.

Total solar eclipses occur on an average of once every 18 months somewhere in the world. It is said that any given spot should have one every 360 years. The recent total eclipse lasted seven minutes. There has not been a total eclipse of the sun lasting seven minutes in 1,200 years. One is scheduled to appear in 1955 and one in 1973. The recent eclipse was not visible at its high point from any land. Observers were stationed on boats 1,800 miles from any land to study it and make observations.

The soy bean, from which little has been heard until recently, has become one of the most important products of the farm within the last few years. Some forty million bushels of soy beans are produced annually in this country from which some fifty commercial products are made.

The barber shops used to be the fountainhead of village news of the more intimate nature, not as a rule dispensed by the newspapers. The beauty shops are giving the barber shops some competition in this matter.

The reason some business men never make any money is that they work harder trying to keep their competitors from making a dollar than they do in trying to earn one themselves.

The more shiftless a man is the harder he is to suit with work. An industrious man will turn his hand to anything that comes along that gives him a chance to get in a day's work and earn an honest dollar.

PROBABLY SO?

The Row the Editor Hoes, by W. Earle Dye in the Rotarian Magazine.—I am confident that all newspaper editors will go to heaven. No matter how eloquently the editor may boost for the development and progress of his community, no matter how diligently he may labor to build up his home county, no matter how loyally he supports a friend in politics, extolls the virtues of a famous native son, stretches the truth to praise a local prima-donna-to-be, or gently lays a metaphorical wreath on the grave of a departed, he seldom hears a "Thank You." Rarely does anyone say, "Well done." Almost never does he hear, "We appreciated that." But let him make a slip. . . .

YOUNG MEN EXAGGERATE

(From an editorial in the Rotarian Magazine.)

Kathleen Norris, famed authoress of more than half a hundred books, recalls her brother's enthusiasm when, as a lad of 14 years, he came home one day to tell his mother about the telephone, then in the early stages of its development—in the 1890's. The boy predicted spiritedly that when large hotels would be built, there would be a telephone on the top floor, "so that folks won't have to go all the way down to the first to answer the phone." "And that, son," cautioned Mrs. Norris' mother, "is the kind of exaggeration which makes the world laugh at you."

But men young in mind will always dream dreams and see visions. Some of them will be quixotic without a doubt. But some will not. And wise men will ponder long before they scorn "exaggerations." Is the prediction that some day war will be out-moded and nations will settle differences around a conference table to be scorned? Is the guess that in the years ahead employers and employees will solve their problems without recourse to strikes, blacklists and lockouts more chimerical than the "exaggeration" of the young chemist who saw aluminum in clay?

Find out the kind of a person a man admires and you will know pretty well the sort of a person the man is.

WHAT WE THINK
(By Frank Dixon)

I note by my daily that a number of the should-be heavy income tax payers of this country have been beating the government out of their taxes by one scheme and another. Most of them are men who earn big salaries and whose money comes more or less easily. One such tax evader will cost the government more loss in taxes than a hundred small tax payers who are struggling for existence, yet the little fellow will get pursued and harassed until they pay, and the big fish will continue to get away. Something is wrong. Is it that the big boys are bigger than the government or is it that the government isn't smart enough to beat them at the game? . . .

I've noticed that an employer who tries to do the fair thing by his employees is not always treated fairly by them. I have seen workers soldier and kill time who were working for a fair employer when they wouldn't have thought of it if they had been working for the most unscrupulous of employers who felt he wasn't doing a good job unless he gave some one a good bawling out and fired some one every week. I used to think that all the tyrants were capitalists and employers, but I have lived long enough to discover that they are about evenly divided. . . .

I have lived long enough to discover that the term "home made" as applied to cooking and food is not a guarantee of quality. Some of the poorest food I ever ate was home cooked food and some of the best food I have ever eaten was home cooked food, but the mere fact that it is home cooked is not a guarantee of its quality or a mark of it. . . .

In our Sunday School lesson the other day we studied the family. The fact was brought out by the teacher that the reason family life has fallen into decay, more or less, is because the family group is not together so much as it used to be. . . .

I do not agree with this theory. I believe that if the family has in it a background of honesty, morality, sincerity and courtesy, and culture, and conception of child psychology, it can put into any boy or girl, by the time they are fifteen years old, all of the knowledge of right and wrong and all of the moral fiber and stamina they will need to carry them through life and make real men and women of them. . . .

BITS OF PHILOSOPHY
(CIA)

Politeness is the strongest rebuke to him who is rude. Education is not always measured in college credits. The fool is rich in experience and poor in wisdom. Some people have head trouble when they put their foot down. A pleasing disposition is more convincing than argument. Stay away from the doctor who urges you to be sick. Greatness abhors ostentation as much as it loves simplicity. You can always do without what you can't get. Those who think of you invariably recall something you have said or done. A fool depends himself when he knows he is wrong. Enemies come only from those you dislike. Don't try to find a reason for everything you do. The way to get out of your head is to keep another on your mind. Better give inspiration than expiration. . . .

Will Sell Hogs
The first Poland China sale will be held on the Ferguson Bros. farm five miles east of Margaret August 7, by Blevins and Ferguson Bros. Forty bred sows and gilts will be sold at this time. Among the foremost of the pioneers of the thoroughbred breeding business in Foard County are Blevins and Ferguson Bros. Captain Orange, son of the famous Long Orange, a $7,000 boar which for a long time was one of the big winners at the Dallas State Fair, has been with the herd for two years and something like 30 of the sows and gilts to be sold have been bred to this boar. The pride of the owners is to be transferred, however, to the younger one, Ranger 2nd, son of Ranger, a $20,000 boar, which is already coming into service. In these two fine specimens are some of the finest Poland China stock of the Southwest.

Vaccinates Hogs
In order to take no chances on his hogs becoming infected with cholera J. L. Orr has had his entire herd immunized by vaccination.

Applications for S. S. Numbers Should Be Filled Out Properly
Dallas, July 10.—Workers throughout the Dallas territory of the Social Security Board have been requested to use the greatest possible care in filling out applications for social security account numbers. Ernest L. Tutt, manager of the Dallas office of the Board, explained that many application forms had been returned to workers because the forms had not been properly filled out. Application forms are available at post offices and posters now being displayed in the post offices contain the address of the Social Security Board office to which the completed application forms should be sent. "If applicants will carefully write in all the information requested to the best of their ability, they may expect to have their account number cards returned to them promptly," Tutt said. "For instance, the age and the date of birth should agree. If they do not, we have to return the application form, because the true age of an individual must be established in order that the monthly income may be determined and payments started promptly upon attainment by the worker of the age of 65. "Likewise, the applicant should give his mother's maiden name; that is, the mother's name before she was married. If that name happened to be the same as the father's, a statement to that effect should be attached to the application. "If the applicant discovers an error in the typing of his name on his account card, the card should be returned within thirty days to which it issued. "Requests for duplicate cards should be accompanied by a new application form marked 'duplicate requested' and a supplementary statement showing the reason for the request, such as 'card lost,' and the place and approximate date the original application was filed. Employees should make known their account numbers to all employers for whom they have worked since January 1, 1937. This will prevent the employer's having to file applications on behalf of employees whose numbers he has not recorded."

Infantile Paralysis Summer Disease, Says State Health Officer
Austin.—Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, states that infantile paralysis, like typhoid fever, is largely a summer disease. Although cases may occur during any month of the year, over half the total number come in July, August, September and October. To date, 69 cases of poliomyelitis have been reported to the State Health Department in 1937. Direct contact between persons is regarded as being the chief factor in the spread of infantile paralysis. Because of the seasonal prevalence of the disease, flies and other insects have been suspected of conveying the virus or germ. Insect transmission has not, however, been demonstrated. Although animals are subject to paralysis, they are seemingly not susceptible to the human type of this paralytic disease. Carriers are difficult to determine; this fact makes advisable the reduction to a minimum of human contact during an outbreak. Early symptoms of infantile paralysis comprise headache, fever, vomiting, bowel disorder, drowsiness and irritability, followed by neck or back stiffness. Prompt medical care, early recognition and reporting of cases make possible the use of valuable preventive and control measures. After the acute state of the disease has passed and walking is finally permitted the patient, under no circumstances must the affected part be fatigued. It is thus observed that the secret of successful rehabilitation lies in continuance of professional guidance and large doses of patience. Children under five are more susceptible to the disease and all children under 12 should be watched for suspicious symptoms. There are important things to do when a child shows symptoms. Your family physician should be called at once and physicians should report all cases to the health authorities immediately. When the disease occurs all cases should be isolated for 21 days. All should be boiled unless it is sterilized. Children should not visit where the disease exists or where are symptoms of it. Flies should be killed and their breeding places destroyed. Promptness in diagnosis of poliomyelitis is important in preventing spread of the disease.

Penny Bought a Resort

Zakopance, famous Polish tourist resort, was once put up to auction as part of a vast estate. To save it for his country, a Polish nobleman offered a penny more each time a non-Polish bidder made an offer for it. The bidding went up and up, but the Pole finally secured the resort for just a penny more than others had offered.

MESCAL IKE By S. L. HUNTLEY

CHURCHES

Christian Science Church Sunday School at 10 a. m. Sunday services at 11 a. m. Wednesday evening services at 8 o'clock. Sunday, July 18, 1937. Subject: "Life". The public is cordially invited.

Christian Science Services "Life" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist on Sunday, July 18. The Golden Text is: "Now that the dead are raised, even Moses showed at the bush, when he called the Lord the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. For he is not a God of the dead, but of the living; for all live unto him" (Luke 20:37, 38).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?" (I Corinthians 15:55). The Lesson-Sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "The relinquishment of all faith in death and also of the fear of its sting would raise the standard of health and morals far beyond its present elevation, and would enable us to hold the banner of Christianity aloft with unflinching faith in God, in Life eternal" (page 426).

Thalia Methodist Church Rev. E. L. Yeats, pastor of the Crowell Methodist Church, will assist the Methodists of Thalia in a revival meeting beginning next Sunday.

Services will be held in the community tabernacle, night and morning. We trust that all Christians will feel that it is their revival and pray and work for the services. All who are without God in their lives are urged to come that they might be helped. Paul said, "My heart's desire and prayer for Israel, is that it might be saved." That is our earnest prayer for every individual and may this meeting be a blessing to you. It will if you will come and have a part in the services. E. A. IRVINE, Pastor.

Two Minute Sermon (By Thomas Hastwell)

The Quality of Home Teaching: The story of Joseph illustrates the value of a background of good family training. When the young man was sold a slave into Egypt by his brothers and taken into a strange and distant country far removed from home and friends and surrounded by the idolatrous life of the Egyptian court he remained true to the teachings and traditions of home. We often hear it said today that much of the wrong doing of young men and young women is due to the lack of the proper home influence, the lack of the right kind of teaching and the fact that due to our present day scheme of living, too little time is spent in the family group. I think as a general thing the young people of a home represent fairly the home. I do not believe that it is possible to turn out from a home in which there is strife, and hickering, and hypocrisy, and dishonesty, and insincerity, and disregard of law, a high type of boy or girl, with the right mental background and moral fibre, no matter how much time the family spends together. On the other hand I believe that the homes that have the proper concept of honesty, industry, sobriety and right human relationships will send out young people with high moral stamina and fibre, who, like Joseph, will continue true to their ideals even after they leave the parent roof. I believe they will do this even though the family is together but the brief time that the usual observance of the general conventions of the day seems to require. In other words I do not believe that the kind of boys and girls a home turns out depends so much on how much they are together at home as it does upon the quality and sincerity and the type of fellowship and teaching they receive during the time they are at home.

Temper Run in Families

Temper, like temperance, runs in families not because of heredity but because of approximation. The "nuisance" tax will be continued for at least two years more as a result of the majority vote in its favor in Congress. Included in the "nuisance" tax is the three cent letter postage. Ninety per cent of the applications for the 3001 divorces secured in Reno, Nevada, last year were women. Each applicant must be a citizen of Nevada by establishing a residence of six weeks in Reno previous to the hearing of the case. "Extreme cruelty" and "mental anguish" are sufficient causes to warrant granting a decree. When a Reno divorce is desired the applicant goes to her local attorney who establishes connection with the Reno, Nevada, attorneys who handle all the details of the case. Applicants for divorce during their stay in Reno spend an average of $250 a week. The average cost of a Reno divorce is $1,500.

Texas Has One of the World's Richest and Most Varied Marble Deposits, Says Dr. H. M. Law

Dallas, July 7. (Special)—While the problem of what to do about "marble boards" is bothering Texas and many of its cities, the question of doing something about Texas native marble may soon prove a more important one—and its solution far more profitable. Quarrying and marketing of one of the world's richest, most varied, and most easily accessible deposits of high-grade marble could be made one of the biggest new industries of the Lone Star state, according to a report to the All-South Development Council by Dr. H. M. Law, Dallas geologist who has made a first-hand study of the state's limestone and marble resources.

The eye-filling display of scores of handsome marbles Dr. Law has assembled for the new Greater Texas and Pan-American exposition, an expansion of the 1936 Centennial exhibit, has brought potentialities of a Texas marble industry dramatically to the attention of thousands, among them many influential Texas business men who have expressed interest in developing it, said Judge John M. Spellman, director of the National Resources Committee. Interesting skilled merchandising and investable capital in converting these possibilities into real "merchandise," thereby creating profitable employment for hundreds and new wealth for the state, is one of the aims of the committee. Adoption by the state of a more reassuring policy with regard to natural resource taxation would, the Council's report points out, greatly simplify the problem of attracting capital and enterprise to the development of this, as of many others of the state's more than 100 yet undeveloped resources.

Decrying a lack of showmanship comparable to that of a butcher who "would try to sell steaks from a steer still out on the range," Dr. Law said that all Texas marble needs to become a gigantic "cash crop" is the relatively modest investment in equipment to harvest and polish some representative Texas buildings annually use more than $2,000,000 worth of marble imported from other states which have done a better merchandising job with no better materials, and have presented an inviting front to resource-conversion industries, the council's report concluded.

Since the beginning of the war in Spain more than 30,000 children have been driven from Spain. Recently 500 were transported to Mexico. A $500,000 memorial was recently dedicated to Stephen A. Foster on the campus of the University of Pittsburg, Penn. Foster was the composer of "My Old Kentucky Home," "The Old Folks at Home," and many other immortal Southern melodies. Foster died in a charity ward in Bellevue hospital in New York on January 13, 1864. Though his 200 songs were all of the South he never lived in the South and only visited it on two occasions. His life was most unhappy and he died at the age of thirty-eight a victim of strong drink. Radium is worth 25,000 times as much as gold. National Youth Administration boys working on a park project located near Zuehl, Texas, on the Bexar-Guadalupe County line, have constructed a low-water concrete bridge over the Cibolo Creek which withstood a serious flood test early in June. Before the bridge was entirely completed, the concrete road slab was left exposed to the full force of a 10-foot rise, and later a 16-foot rise, in the creek. The Bexar County engineer complimented the NYA project superintendent on the excellence of the construction work which the flood waters left undamaged.

TAXPAYERS of CROWELL INDEPENDENT SCHOOL DISTRICT

Why wait longer about paying your delinquent school taxes? It's not only an HONEST debt but is an obligation you owe to the community, to your children or your neighbor's children.

The district owes honest debts which the Board of Trustees is anxious and willing to pay. It will pay when you pay.

Interest and penalty increases one-half of one per cent each month. It has not been remitted and will be collected from all alike. You can save money by paying your taxes now, not next month or the month after.

We have plead with the taxpayers as man to man to pay their taxes; have tried to appeal to them from every angle but without the results we expected. We will therefore begin filing tax suits within the next few days with a view of collecting that which rightfully belongs to this district and the children whom it serves.

WHY WAIT LONGER and THEREBY INVITE A TAX SUIT?

BEAUTY'S DAUGHTER

By Kathleen Norris

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER VI—Vic and Quentin are idyllically happy in their new home. During six years Victoria has been entertaining guests at Sunday luncheon, when Victoria's mother, who has returned from Europe, her husband with her, ends a bit of business with her. Victoria, looking older and actually penniless, she goes to the Hardistys, who now have five children.

CHAPTER VII

It was at the opera that they saw Serna Morrison. Victoria said that Vicky or anyone in her neighborhood knew the woman. With four men, she sat in the forward seat of the opera house, looking at an ashen blonde in a black gown, with petal-smooth shoulders, and deep-set, unshadowed eyes. Everyone in the audience was looking at her when the lights went down and the strains of the orchestra began to play, but if she was conscious of the admiration and curiosity she gave no sign of it. That's Joe Younger—that stout man with her. Quentin said, looking down his glasses after a quick inspection. "By gosh, she is beautiful!" "Oh, Vic, you know him?" Vicky said eagerly, leaning forward in her old chocolate lace to another look. "Couldn't you ever meet her?" "No time now—I will in the next act," Quentin whispered to her. The house lights fanned down and the footlights went up. But the next act there was the familiar whisper in the back of the box. Vicky had resignedly ex- claimed: "It always came somehow on they were daring enough to go to the theatre."

Dr. Hardisty? The whisper said. "The hospital on the phone, Doctor Dr. Bruce, he it was urgent." And then Quentin was groping the gloom for his hat and coat, off in full evening regalia for the hot, odorous surgery, with vialyries' wild scream inter- mediate half way. It was too bad, it wasn't the first time and wouldn't be the last, Vicky re- minded her mother philosophically, they were in the car going home. And lucky for you, too!" Vicky responded. "Well, he was perfectly mad at that blonde woman, who she was. He was going over that box just to meet her. But I ought you handled that very well, Vic," Magda said. "Handled what?" Vicky was amazed. "Oh, saying she was lovely and didn't like to know who she was. It was smart, Vic."

There was nothing smart to Vicky laughed, in generous sentiment. But she felt just a chilled, nevertheless. A bleak path of wind from an almost rotten country seemed to touch her cheek. "Quentin admires you," she presently said. "But as far as it goes." "Just the same I'll bet you're something, Vic, that he finds out how you do it." "Mother, you're incorrigible!" they were at home now, yawning, sagging themselves up the long stairs. "I'll bet you a chocolate that he never mentions her name!" They were in the house the following afternoon when Quentin came in to smile wearily at Kenty Susan, who were cavorting at in pajamas, and to discuss products of the Argentine with Magda, Magda was playing solitaire by the fire. "Oh, listen, Vic, remember the Venus in the box last night?" Quentin presently asked. Magda looked up, and Vicky turned with a little color in her face to a minute inspection of Susan's reputedly burned finger. "She has English Mrs. Harrison or Robinson or Robinson or some- thing," Quentin said. "I telephoned

Joe Younger today—I wanted to ask him something about the golf club anyway. Her husband is an English officer attached to the foreign office or something—they left today for China. He fell to musing, a half-smile on his face. "That was certainly one beautiful woman!" he said. "If you want to hold a man like Quentin, you ought to—well, flirt with him!" Magda said. Victoria laughed. "Flirt with my own husband?" "Something like that. Not flirt exactly, but—interest him," Magda said, a little at a loss for the exact words she wanted. "Keep him busy. Unless a man is kept busy he gets into mischief—especially a sheik like Quentin, with a voice all the women fall for."

"I don't know that all the women fall for his voice," Vicky said, unalarmed. "And as for keeping him busy, I don't know what would keep a man busy in an exacting profession, five children, four servants, a wife and a mother don't!" "Oh, Lord, not that kind of busy!" Magda scoffed. "I don't mean worrying about the furnace or if the new electric light bulb came. And I don't mean curvature of the spine, either. A man's got to have some play, Vic. The sensible thing for a woman like you to do is cut out all this nursery stuff, have a hair-do every week, get a new lipstick and some 'peau de jeunesse' and lie around in the mornings reading fashion magazines!"

"I don't know where you'd be today if you'd cut out all this nursery stuff!" Vicky wanted more than once to say good naturedly. But she never did. "Men have always liked me, and yet I've never had any character and I never do anything I don't want to do," the older woman explained simply. "I sleep late, wander down town in the afternoon to a movie; I never assume the slightest responsibility, and I am altogether unwise and idle and useless!"

In the beginning Victoria would laugh at such whimsicalities. But her mother had not been long her guest before she discovered that they were partly true; Magda really never did make any effort, or assume any responsibility, except to interest and please men. She would not be left alone at home at night with the children, even though they were all asleep in their beds. "One of them would set something on fire, and then you'd think I deliberately killed the lot!" she pleaded, and the mere suggestion of this calamity prevented Victoria from ever urging the arrangement.

For the rest, it was astonishing to discover that Magda's self-respect had suffered no whit by her long and exciting career. In the beginning of the European experiences, Lucius Farmer had become "strange." He had been a delightful person in Tahiti and Majorca, but somehow southern Germany had affected him bad-

"He Wasn't a Gentleman; It Simply Wasn't There!"

Magda explained it, generously. "He wasn't a gentleman; it simply wasn't there! Perhaps I was to blame for thinking that it ever was."

Victoria listened on, scrambling as she did so along the line of the sitting room bookcases, taking out children's books, matching sets, stacking the volumes neatly. Now and then she sat back on her heels, smiling at her mother. Magda busy with a nail file and a tiny pair of scissors, occasionally in- ter turn raised her eyes from her hands and looked seriously at Vic, while without anger or resentment she recounted the strange actions of Lucius Farmer. After all she Magda, had done for him, he had been unappreciative enough to desert her.

As the days went by, and Vic found herself drawn more and more under her mother's influence, affected more and more by her mother's point of view, she found it increasingly difficult to maintain her own standing; the solid earth rocked a little sometimes beneath her feet. Poor faded Mummy with nothing to show for all the flattered, romantic years, the presents and the checks, the beautiful face and the beautiful gown—Mummy couldn't be entirely right in her preposterous ideas and attitudes, but there were moments when Victoria felt uneasily that perhaps she wasn't entirely wrong, either.

Mummy, for one very important thing, thought that having more than one or two children was a mistake. It was a forgivable mistake. "For you have them so easily, Vic, and you do adore them so. But I tell you it's selfish. You'll lose him!"

Victoria felt that she could afford to laugh at this. According to Mummy every man between the ages of sixteen and eighty was interested in any reasonably pretty woman, anywhere, everywhere, at all times and seasons. No wife was safe!

But Magda was not to be laughed out of her position. She said thoughtfully: "Women must go crazy about him. He's stunning!" "He's forty-three!" Vic laughed. "And he has a large family and the hardest surgery practice in the city."

"Forty-three. He's not at the dangerous age yet," Magda mused. "Is anyone specially crazy about him?" "There's always some woman telephoning," Vic answered unalarmed. "I know the signs. But he doesn't take them seriously." Magda was hardly listening; her eyes were narrowed in speculation.

"I don't think any woman gets hold of a man," Vic submitted, comfortably relaxed in a big chair now, with her feet stretched out before her. "I don't believe any woman loses her husband because some other woman wants him," she substituted, beginning again. Her mother regarded her in astonishment.

"What do you think?" Magda demanded. "I mean I think the wife has lost him first," Victoria explained. "Ah, yes, but it all depends upon what you mean by losing him," the other woman said. "It doesn't always mean that they're quarreling, that they've made up their minds to separate! It may mean that they've drifted apart—perhaps they don't realize it themselves..."

"Mother, do you really believe that all married women are waiting for affairs with other men to come along; that all married men have an eye out for charming women—fresh women?" Mrs. Herrendeen's surprised stare was sufficient answer. "Why, but of course!" she said, amazed. "Vicky, look at them! They do."

"They all don't!" Vicky muttered. But she was thinking. "Some men never would," Magda conceded. "But some men are after women—smart women and beautiful women—all the time! The world's full of them now—women who have comfortable big alimonies or settlements, and who are off the loose hunting for someone like Quentin—someone to love!"

"There are lots of men handsomer than Quentin for them to go after," Victoria observed with a laugh.

"But it isn't looks that count, Vic. That hard-faced, deep-voiced, dark-headed square sort of man is—well, I tell you," Mrs. Herrendeen said, shrugging lightly, looking away. "I tell you that if I were ten years younger I'd give that lad of yours a run for his money!"

For once Vicky was not amused; she was secretly affronted by her mother's words. Magda broke the silence.

"Marriage isn't what it used to be, Vic. In the old days if a man wanted to wander there were places he could go that his wife never heard about. Women suspected what was going on, but they were having their ten or a dozen children and feeding chickens and making soap and putting up preserves, and they didn't have much to say. It's different now. The women they can buy are of their own class, and they're not all after presents and trips and alimony. They want love—they've got money! They're after the love part! There's a sex war on, Vic—women don't want one experience, they want twenty, now!"

"Well, I hate the word 'sex,' and I hate so much talk about it, and I hate the idea that it's the most important thing in the world!" Vic presently said, with feeling.

"But it is the most important thing in the world," her mother assured her seriously.

Victoria shook her head, frowning. She fell into thought, and her mother, idling in her favorite fashion on a couch beside the fire, was silent, too. Later that evening Victoria asked Quentin if he thought sex was so important. "Sex?" he echoed in surprise. Vicky laid a hand on his.

"I don't mean in youth, when flirting is natural and right. But afterward—does it have to go all through life, men tempting women and women tempting men to throw everything else over, decency and home and honor and obligation?"

"Often," the doctor said slowly, "it is that way. They tell me about it," he added.

"How do you mean, 'it is that way'?"

"I mean that a man who really loves his wife and kids, who is perfectly satisfied with his home life—"

"Perfectly satisfied!" The tame phrase affronted her, and she laughed.

"Well, perhaps what I mean is that his new affair has nothing to do with his—his organized life. He meets some woman who appeals to him tremendously—irresistibly—"

"Physically!" Vic put in, scornfully, as he hesitated for a word. He accepted it simply, unsuspectingly.

"Oh, yes, primarily that. Primarily that. She has some trick of using her eyes—some note in her voice—something that sets him on fire just as definitely as if a fuse were lighted."

There was a pause. Victoria was studying his face attentively. "Yes, but suppose all that," she presently said. "Grant all that! Is he then to tear up his whole life, kick his wife out, deprive his children of their father—"

"It's usually the wife who does that, Vicky."

"A man might expect his wife to forgive him," Vicky said, after thought. "But then how would she know that it mightn't happen again?"

"She wouldn't," Quentin said.

"I'd tell you if I had, would I?" "I think you would." "Well, I don't know but that I would! I believe you'd be very understanding about it. You'd pity the sinner and forgive the sin. But a man with five kids, another coming, a new stove to put in, bills unpaid, and an operation at eight-to-morrow morning has a swell chance at that sort of thing!" Quentin yawned. "I'd be afraid of your mother, anyway," he laughed.

mildly, unsmilingly. "Ha!" Vicky exclaimed, out of deep thought. Quentin laughed.

"It would seem that it takes you by surprise," he observed.

"Well, it does. I've always felt—I've always hoped—that a man liked a woman for other things—her being sweet-tempered, and a good sport, and making him a comfortable home, and loving him—"

She stopped short in her catalogue so much in earnest that tears were near her eyes.

"He does, Vic. A man who has a wife like that is lucky, and he knows it. But that doesn't mean that—oh, well, that the look some woman gives him over her shoulder as she goes out of his office won't—won't stay with him for days."

"Oh, Quentin!" Victoria exclaimed in surprise and dismay. And irresistibly she added, "Does that happen to you?"

"Sometimes!" The doctor admitted, laughing.

"But—but there's no sense to it! Look what it leads to. Look at Mother, and so many others—the mess they make of it! In the end—in the end—"

"In the end it's the Vicky's who show them what fools they were," Quentin said, teasingly.

"Quentin, have you—since we were married, I mean—ever had that feeling about any other woman?"

"I'd tell you if I had, would I?" "I think you would."

"Well, I don't know but that I would! I believe you'd be very understanding about it. You'd pity the sinner and forgive the sin. PICNIC FOR VISITORS

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McMillan and daughter, Mary Catherine, of Overton, who have been visiting friends in Crowell, were honored with a picnic at the roadside park north of town Wednesday evening with Mrs. A. Y. Beverly and Mrs. T. V. Rascoe as hostesses.

Delicious food was enjoyed at the supper hour, after which games and conversation were diversions until a late hour. Twenty-five or thirty guests were present. Mr. and Mrs. McMillan and Mary Catherine left for their home Thursday morning.

THALIA IDLE HOUR CLUB

Mrs. Ben Hogan was hostess to the Idle Hour Club in her home Thursday afternoon of last week. A very pleasant afternoon was enjoyed. Unknown friends were revealed at that time. The club will not meet again until Sept. 9. At this time it will meet with Mrs. J. W. Wright in the home of her mother, Mrs. H. W. Bamister.

Those attending were, Mrs. Truett Neill of Elmonte, Calif., and the following members: Messdams Bob Abston, W. L. Cox, Mark Edens, C. C. Lindsey, Loe Sims, Joe Johnson, C. H. Wood, E. S. Floscher, Clyde Bray, W. J. Long, J. W. Wright, Andy Thompson, Opal Grimm, G. W. Scales, Miss Minnie Wood and the hostess, Mrs. Hogan.

FOARD CITY W. M. S.

The Foard City Woman's Missionary Society met Monday afternoon with Mrs. T. F. Welch, with Mrs. Virgil Johnson, presiding.

Mrs. Geo. E. Tyson of Truscott brought the devotional in an effective and inspirational way. After a short business session, an interesting program was rendered with Mrs. Bonnie Johnson as leader, with Mrs. Ruth Marts, Mrs. Mark Morris and Mrs. J. M. Glover, participating.

The members of the society will give an ice cream supper on the Foard City Church lawn next Tuesday night and the public is invited to attend.

FOARD CITY H. D. CLUB

"Cucumbers packed down in 60 degree brine water and kept the same temperature will keep indefinitely." Miss Myrna Holman, home demonstration agent, told the ladies of the Foard City Club Tuesday, July 6, when they met at the home of Mrs. J. L. Farrar for a lesson on canning and scoring canned products.

All products should be gathered at the proper stage of maturity. Vegetables should be young, tender, crisp and freshly gathered, thus they are richer in food value. "One hour from the garden to the can," being a good slogan, said Miss Holman.

A large number of club members were present, with Miss Holman and Mrs. A. E. Barker of Crowell and Mrs. Mel Gover of Hobbs, N. M., as visitors.

The club will meet again July 20 at the club house.

LIBRARY NEWS

Ursula Parrot, whose hobbies are gardening and antiques, is one of the most hard working of authors—has to be, for hobbies like these, as practiced in Connecticut, keep one's bank account permanently crippled. She began her career as a newspaper woman where she learned the value of being on time with copy. As a result, she sometimes writes for thirty-six hours at a stretch, drinking black coffee and nibbling sandwiches.

Her stories are very popular with readers of modern fiction, and they contain just enough paths and reality to keep one's interest. Among her most popular novels are "Say Goodbye Again," "When Summer Returns," and "Though You Be Far."

ROTARY CLUB

The regular weekly meeting of the Crowell Rotary Club was held at O'Connell's Lunch Room Wednesday at noon. Visitors for the luncheon were Carl Vestal, Rotarian of Quanah, George Backus, Rotarian of Vernon, Dr. Sam J. Muirhead of Crowell, Mrs. Arnold Rucker and Misses Geraldine Carter and Doris Oswalt.

The program was in charge of John Rasor and consisted of a Rotary International talk by Frank Kirkpatrick followed by a vocal duet by Misses Carter and Oswalt, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Rucker.

I. T. Graves concluded the program with a talk on the local Rotary Club. The club was organized in February, 1927, and received its charter June 11 of that year and had twenty charter members. Five charter members are still active in the club. They are Mark Henry, John Ray, Henry Ferguson, John Rasor and Tully Kipper.

Visiting Editors Laud Casa Manana

Fort Worth.—Southwestern editors are unanimous in the verdict that Billy Rose's Casa Manana Revue of 1937 at the Fort Worth Frontier Fiesta is a more spectacular production than last year's Casa Manana. A few typical comments follow:

Henrietta Leader: One just simply has to see Casa Manana to realize what it means. It is bigger, better and more gorgeous than last season's wonderful show.

Gainesville Signal: Billy Rose and members of the Fort Worth Frontier Fiesta Association promised a bigger and better Casa Manana Revue for 1937 and they made good.

Holdenville (Okla.) Daily News: From the opening moment, when Paul Whiteman flashed his illuminated baton until the smashing finale, the show is a swift succession of spectacular scenes including even a realistic burning of an old Southern home by the Yankee soldiers.

Bonham News: Planned on a scale that is awe-inspiring in its vastness, breath-taking in its beauty, of expert execution and original in conception, it will long be remembered.

Texas Weekly: Casa Manana's cast is something to talk about. Besides Harriet Hoctor, the world's foremost ballerina, who is unquestionably the star of the show, the audience is privileged to see and hear Paul Whiteman and his band; Everett Marshall; the Cabin Kids, five uproarious little pickaninnies; the Stuart Morgan adagio team as well as the Oriental dancers, a singing octette, two buffoons who burlesque an aesthetic dance, a pair of fox terriers of astonishing talents, and the new Texas Sweetheart, Grey Downs, of Temple.

Camden (Ark.) News: Casa Manana has the great outdoor revolving stage with four sets, one weighing over a million pounds. The settings and costumes can not be described.

Attendance for the first 10 days at the Frontier Fiesta has been 30 per cent greater than for the corresponding period last year. Melody Lane, featuring eight composers of famous old-time songs; Firefly Garden with the Salici Marionettes; Flirting with Death, free thrill show, and Pioneer Palace, with the Original Dixieland Jazz Band, are presented besides Casa Manana.

Andrew Carnegie, Messenger Boy
Andrew Carnegie, the philanthropist, became a telegraph messenger boy in 1851, subsequently learning telegraphy in the employ of the Pennsylvania railroad and becoming a telegraph operator.

Ziegler Is Here in Interest of NYA Farm Instruction Project

H. A. Ziegler, assistant district supervisor for the National Youth Administration in District 7, was in Crowell Friday of last week. Ziegler stated that the principal reason for his tour of the district at this time is in connection with the NYA farm instruction project which is to operate over a period of six weeks during July and August. Any youth who is eligible for employment on a NYA project and who is earnest in his desire to know more about farming by learning the best way to do things that are to be done on a farm, is eligible to assignment to this project which will operate for boys at Texas A. & M. College at College Station and North Texas Agricultural College at Arlington. The girls will go to John Tarleton College at Stephenville. This is a very worthwhile opportunity for those young people who are really interested and will make the most of the privilege, Ziegler said. In making selections, he will interview and make selections from among those who have expressed a desire to attend. Youths will work part of the day on this project sponsored by the above named colleges whereby they will receive practical experience in doing things that are done on a farm. They will attend special agricultural classes during their spare time, with members of the regular faculty of each college as instructors. They will earn enough to pay for lodging, board and medical care and have about $5 a month left for personal spending. Local officials are co-operating with NYA representatives in the matter of transportation of youths from this county to the colleges.

When questioned in regard to local NYA work projects, Ziegler stated that the program will continue pretty much as in the past and that he hopes to receive the same co-operation from officials and other citizens who have shown interest in the welfare of the youth of their community, as he had in the past. The fiscal year closed June 30, but applications for projects to operate during the year starting July 1 are now in Austin and he has been advised by J. C. Kellam, State Director of NYA, that these applications will be passed on and be ready to start the new program around July 15. Ziegler further stated that projects now operating in Foard County will go into the new program without interruption.

Know Texas

Denton.—Oil may not mix with water, but it evidently does a good job of it with roses. One of the centers of the East Texas oil field is also the center of the East Texas rose-growing industry, which now furnishes nearly half the nation's supply of rose bushes.

Outdoor rose nurseries were begun in Texas over twenty years ago, but they did not gain momentum until within the past five or six years. In 1935 the production mounted to over 4,000,000 plants, and the figure made another jump in 1936 to about 6,660,000. This means that the total income now reaches approximately one million dollars.

This million dollar rose business is not a hothouse affair, but is confined strictly to the open air. Soil and climate conditions in many parts of Texas are particularly well suited to rose growing.

Smith County, which ships around 7,000,000 plants annually, is the heart of the industry, and other important farms are in Gregg, Van Zandt, Rusk, Henderson and Anderson counties.

Rose creations which are developed by breeders and distributors over the United States are sent to many East Texas farms for multiplication. The field grown roses of Texas lack the weakness of hothouse plants, and can be shipped anywhere in the nation.

Fatigue Causes Trouble
Fatigue occurs first in brain, then nerve, then muscle. Not less than one-third the cost of sickness and accidents could be attributed to fatigue.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLE CANNING PLANTS IN TEXAS WOULD BOOST FARM INCOME DURING SUMMER

Dallas. (Special)—Not a cure-all, but one of the soundest possible steps toward stabilizing Texas farm incomes on a self-help basis is seen in the continued growth of commercial fruit and vegetable packing in the state and its encouragement of diversified crops for quicker turnover, says a report of the All-South Development Council.

Citing the benefits of industry and agriculture which have accompanied the extraordinary growth and progress of a Dallas canning plant (Thrifty Packing Co.), which is the largest and only year-round independent canning plant in the South, the Council's report says that similar enterprise, multiplied throughout the state, with its assurance to farmers of profitable disposition of "between-cotton-season" crops, would markedly level out the peaks and valleys of the farm income graph.

Not only would consistent marketing of food crops for canning, such as black-eyed peas, English peas, corn, beans and spinach mean—as it has in North Texas—a bolstering of the farmer's pocketbook against the expense of harvesting his main crop, cotton, but the rotating of these crops on cotton land would be of great help in reviving and re-nitrogenizing the cotton-growing soil—and Texas' alarming decline in cotton per-acre yield indicates this is an extremely important consideration.

Between 1933 and 1935 Texas fruit and vegetable canning virtually doubled in all phases, the number of plants increasing from 32 to 55, value of manufactured product zooming from $2,554,000 to $5,311,000, salaries and wages from $288,000 to $568,000. Indications are that the 1937 figures, due to greatly increased citrus canning activity in the Valley and the rise in pea canning, will show at least another 33 to 40 per cent rise.

Perfection of a commercial canning method for fresh black-eyed peas—traditional backbone of the Texas dinner table in farm and city—has been the outstanding factor in boosting Texas vegetable canning to the threshold of a major enterprise, says the Council's report.

Last year 3,000,000 pounds were contracted for by the Dallas plant alone, which does a little more than 50 per cent of all this type canning in the state, and this year it has contracted for 4,000,000 pounds, representing, at $30 per ton, cash payments aggregating $60,000 for cotton which, until last year, was mostly allowed to dry on the vine and was harvested, in only about one-fourth the quantity, only in the form of dried peas.

An illustration of how quick cash from pea crops sold for canning can solve the cotton-harvesting money problem was furnished last year by an Athens, Texas, bank which was about to borrow $25,000 to help farmers finance their cotton operations when word of the brisk market for fresh black-eyed peas in Dallas came along. The farmers trucked their peas to market, got their cash, and relieved the bank of its chore.

The new canning process for blackeyes has turned the market for this dish virtually upside down, besides promising to expand it many fold and far beyond the original southern tsates market. The vine-dried variety never had virtues of palatability sufficient to sell it outside the South, but grocery men generally believe the canned fresh ones can win favor on dinner tables in the most effective and remote sections of the land. Pulling the peas green instead of waiting for them to dry on the vine more than quadruples the yield. At present the Dallas plant is running 180,000 cans of peas per day, and nearly that amount of corn.

Significance of Texas canning enterprise to major industry is reflected in expenditure of more than $2,500,000 in plants at Houston within the last year by the country's two dominant can manufacturing companies. While the growing use of cans in the oil industry was largely responsible for this movement, officials of the companies say the great expansion of canning of citrus fruits and juices in the Valley region and the growth of canning-consciousness throughout the state bulwarked their faith in Texas as the outstanding can "prospect" section of the country.

Knight of the Bath

The title Knight of the Bath is derived from the ceremony of bathing, which was practiced as a symbol of purity when a knight was inaugurated. The last time this ceremony was used in creation of knights was at the coronation of Charles II in 1661.

Smallest Book in the World

The smallest book in the world is a translation of the chief parts of the "Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam," which is in the Bodleian library at Oxford, England. The volume measures one-fourth of an inch in height and three-sixteenths of an inch in width.

More Self-Control Needed

Sometimes it takes more self-control not to do things than to do them.

UNMARKED GRAVES

Short crops for several years has made it impossible for many to mark the graves of loved ones. The wheat harvest has made it nice for some who want to arrange for memorials. Write or call Geo. W. Backus, Vernon, collect, or visit our plant in person and save unnecessary commissions as well as extreme prices often paid to agents and dealers from distant places. 6p
