GETTING WORK DONE

It is related of Henry Ward Beecher, the great Brooklyn preacher of the last century, that when a friend once asked how he managed to get through so much work in a day, he replied:

"The formula sounds simple enough, but how many of us can follow it? An exchange contrasts the methods of fussy persons with the concentration and directness of a Beecher, in this fashion:

"The fussy, hurried, worried man is the chap who tries to do everything at once. He dabbles in this and dabbles in that—finishing nothing. He picks up a letter to answer it and lays it down to pick up another letter and fuss with that. He puts the hard work at the bottom of the pile. He leaves a hard job on his desk day after day until it absolutely has to be done and then he rushes it out in such a hurry that it seldom is done right.

"The big things of life are never done by a fussy man. When one is worried about half a dozen tasks that must be done in the future, he fails to do the present task as it should be done. One task at a time, finished and started on its way before tackling the next task, is a rule that makes for poise and power."

Happy Trio In New Film

Shirley Temple and Richard Greene make a charming trio in "The Little Princess," 20th Century-Fox's screen version of the great classic. The film, which is Shirley's first Technicolor production, is showing at the Kialto Theatre at the Saturday night preview, Sunday and Monday.

Letters had poured in from almost every corner of the world asking to see Shirley in the beloved characterization and additional thousands poured in asking that America's No. 1 star be presented in Technicolor for the first time.

No star has ever appeared before the Technicolor camera without benefit of makeup. The color experts insisted Shirley would be no exception. After making three tests of star, one with makeup, one without any makeup, it was felt that Shirley looked best in natural color. And so, in "The Little Princess," the dimpled appears just as she is in life.

Commencement Exercises
 Although the weather was threatening, the program at the Baptist Church was fairly attended. Members of the graduating class having individual parts in the exercises were: salutatory, Miss Ada Tysinger; class oration, Jack Roberts; class poem, Miss Lennis Woods; class history, Miss Lestelle Kincaid; class prophecy, Miss Hattie Veceera; valedictory, Miss Pauline Haynes.

National Cotton Week Proclaimed
Beginning May 22

Devoted to the story and sale of the agricultural product which gives employment to more Americans than any other crop, National Cotton Week has been proclaimed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt for the week beginning May 22.

The nationwide observance is the product of unanimous co-operation on the part of those who grow, handle and process cotton and cotton goods.

National Cotton Week is sponsored by the National Cotton Council of America and the Cotton Textile Institute, together representing virtually every phase of the cotton industry. Co-operation is further added this year by the Institute of Distribution, representing 109 chain store companies; and the National Cotton Consumption Council, representing several thousand cotton consuming establishments.

In the eight years since its inception, National Cotton Week has demonstrated its value, yet in none of these years has its significance been so great or its opportunities so outstanding as those of the current season.

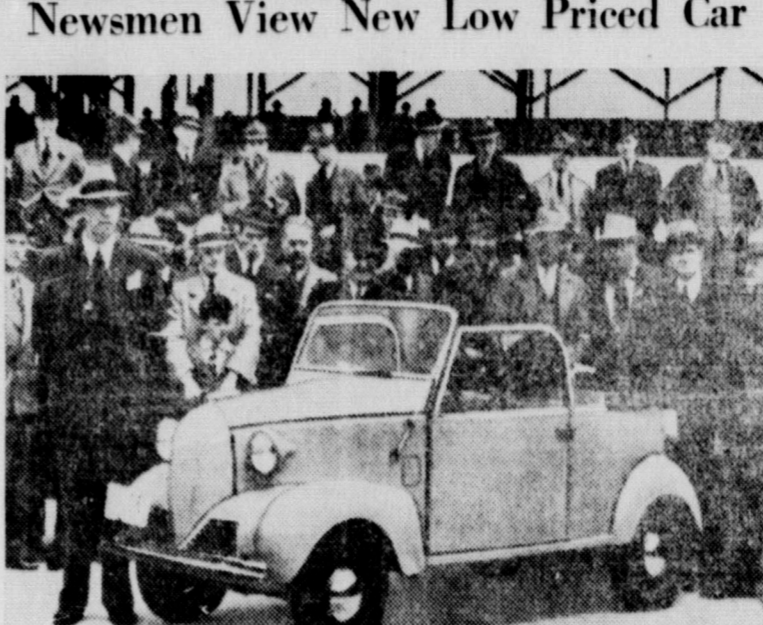

Never before has cotton offered such smartness of style or quality of merchandise as that which will present to the people of America from May 22 to May 29.

Besides the festive spirit of the week's program, National Cotton Week will constitute the greatest cotton sales event of the year, with more than 75,000 of America's retail merchants participating.

More than 400 miles of store windows will display cotton fabrics and cotton products, with customers expected to spend more than $3,000,000 for cotton materials during the week.

The nation's dependence upon cotton is clearly illustrated by the fact that almost 20 per cent of America's population is dependent upon its production, processing and distribution. More than 11,000,000 Americans, comprising 2 1/2 million families, live upon cotton farms and are dependent upon consumption of American cotton for their livelihood. They live in 19 of the 48 states, ranging throughout the entire Cotton Belt.

An additional 14 million are engaged in transporting, marketing, processing, and distributing cotton and its products.

Newsman View New Low Priced Car

A new low-priced, two-cylinder car, designed for a top speed of 50 miles per hour and a fuel consumption of 50 miles to the gallon, was recently previewed by newspaper men at the Indianapolis speedway. The car, which will sell for a $350 top price, is only 10 feet long, weighs 925 pounds, has a gas tank of four-gallon capacity and the crankcase holds only two quarts of oil. The engine is of a light aviation four-cycle type, while an aviation-type suction blower, part of the flywheel, provides air cooling.

Narrow Escape

Monday at Baxter Johnson's ranch Miss Christine Campbell had a narrow escape when a horse she was riding fell with her. Being fond of horseback riding the young lady anticipated a joyful ride, but the horse was too full of life to hold himself to a moderate gate, and not consulting the young lady about it, soon broke to run. Miss Campbell turned the reins loose and held to the horn of the saddle. Baxter Johnson, seeing that the horse was running, tried to overtake him on another horse, but that made him run the harder. He was brought to a standstill as he tried to jump a ravine and was not clear-footed enough to make a safe landing. The horse fell and the young lady went in one direction and the horse in another.

What We Think
 (By Frank Dixon)

In the gospel of Luke, the fourteenth chapter and twenty-eighth verse, is found the expression: For which of you, intending to build a tower sixteth not down first and counteth the cost?

How many persons who have gone through the experience of building a house have learned the wisdom of first sitting down and counting the cost of all of it. Most people permit their desire to lead them astray and forget much of the cost not only the original cost but the subsequent expense of upkeep. They wake up to find themselves burdened with a debt that often requires years to pay and the payment of which takes from the possession of the new home much of its glamor and pleasure and causes it to become the emblem of a burden and the reminder of a foolish mistake.

I think the phrase could well be used today in connection with all these rumors of war. It might be a good thing to impress upon the minds of people today the thought that he who would prosecute a war should first sit down and count the cost.

If every individual or nation contemplating rushing into war would first sit down and count the cost—all the cost—there would not be many wars.

On both sides there are always debts to be paid that cannot be measured in material values. Debts that represent perhaps the more serious costs of the war both to victor and vanquished.

We are a material minded people and perhaps it might bring the matter home more clearly if the cost of the war could be pictured in things—material possessions rather than in unbalanced budgets, bankrupted morals and morality, and human heartbreak, and human values.

The cost of war and its preparation, and war budgets that are now being passed one after the other by this and other countries, would, if they were devoted to constructive and useful things, transform the world for everyone living in it. We could wipe out want and poverty and surround ourselves with beauty and culture such as the world has never known before.

We could put a modern hospital, equipped with every known facility, and endowed with ample finance in every county in every state in this country. We could build libraries, parks, recreational centers, the like of which we only dream today that would be at the disposal of all. We could wipe out poverty, we could bring knowledge of the intelligent way of living to all of those who now live and die without ever having known it. We could rid our cities of their slums and bring to under-

1939 Prosperous for Motor Vehicle Dealers

Austin, Texas, May 22.—The last four months of 1939 have been prosperous ones for the motor vehicle dealers, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research announced today. Passenger car sales gained 27.4 per cent over the corresponding four months last year, and commercial cars gained 17.5 per cent.

Registrations in fifteen representative Texas counties reported to the Bureau showed that during April, however, passenger cars dropped 31.4 per cent and commercial cars 26.5 per cent from March. Substantial gains, of 30.1 per cent and 11.9 per cent, respectively, were recorded, however, in comparison with April of last year.

privileged children the just rights and privileges of all American citizens. We could lift a great burden of debt that hangs like a millstone about the neck of this nation.

We could do all of this and more if we could but learn through the exercise of intelligence and Christian living to live together in peace and harmony, and in truth and in fact beat our swords into plowshares and engage in war no more.

One of the greatest costs of war that we often overlook is the blessings that we are forced to give up because we will not give up war.

There's Cash Value In Good Manners

Think about politeness in terms of sentiment if you want to, but cold facts show that courtesy pays well in terms of hard cash. This is the verdict of Charles B. Hathaway, writing in the current Rotarian magazine. He cites examples of substantial fortunes resulting directly from thoughtful and good manners.

Clement George McCullagh, now one of the dominant public figures in Canada, impressed fabulously rich Bill Wright by his courtesy when trying to sell him some securities. Other salesmen had shown little respect for his privacy and feelings, so, attracted first by a single courteous act, eventually the two formed a history-making partnership, combining McCullagh's ability and Wright's money.

Or consider the girl working in the safety-deposit department of a Detroit bank. A certain elderly gentleman came to the vault only three times a year to be served by the girl, yet when he died he left her $5,000 in recognition of her "unfailing courtesy."

Mr. Hathaway points to the examples of John Wanamaker and Marshall Field, the great merchants. It was the former who insisted that "the customer is always right," and in applying the principle to his stores made himself wealthy. Mr. Field, at the height of his success, would take time to tour his store, wait on customers, and hear their complaints. He profited greatly by applying courtesy to merchandising.

While commercialized manners are desirable, it is even more heartening to meet a person who is mannerly, not because he anticipates a profit from his acts, but just because he is mannerly. Outstanding in this way is the great Paderewski. As one of the world's greatest musicians, he could indulge in any rudeness and have it charged off to temperament. "But," the author points out, "his simple kindness—manners, I call it—made him a national idol."

One corporation has a person, who first interviews applicants for positions and reports on manners only. If one fails to pass the courtesy test, no amount of ability will earn him a place with the firm.

"I believe we have established the point," Mr. Hathaway concludes, "we need not be sanctimonious when we talk about manners, or approach the subject as a semi-religious, nonprofit proposition; we can admit that it is a good thing because it has cash value."

CROP EXPERTS AGREE

Sharply increased production of soybeans in Ohio and Indiana in the future was forecast at the recent American Soybean Association meeting in Columbus, Ohio. A new type of early maturing soybean makes large production possible.

Experts reported on the easy consumption of the crop through increased feeding of soybean oilmeal to livestock. More than 90 per cent of the commercial soybeans now go into this product.

"In the last few years," said Professor C. F. Monroe of the Ohio Experiment Station, "soybean oilmeal has been produced in large quantities and sold at reasonable prices, thus being very popular with dairy feeders."

Professor Paul Gerlaugh of same station said soybean meal "is in the front line protein concentrate for beef cattle and sheep feed."

Professor W. L. Robison endorsed the soybean production feeding hogs, and Professor R. Winter, Ohio State University, declared:

"This feedstuff will prove to be the chief protein concentrate of the future. It is readily available, cheap, and constant in composition and feeding value."

The bright future of the bean as a cash crop for farmers was pointed out, it is due in measure to the fact that far more of the by-product feeding purposes than has been available.

Other speakers included eminent experts and leading soybean farmers.

When cotton came to the prosperity followed in its wake when cotton "comes back," times will follow again.

WORKING HARD Yet Getting Nowhere!

It may be a boat, swinging aimlessly with one oar. It may be a business with indefinite plans for expansion or improvement. It may be in a job, with nothing in sight for the future. But whatever the problem, balanced effort and straight steering are needed to solve it.

And the required means to solution is that a person should start planning for the future. The most advisable and safest step to take is to open a bank account.

Picnickers Should Avoid Poison Plants

Austin.—The main trouble with Rhus toxicodendron, which is blooming now, is that most of us do not recognize it.

Not knowing this plant, many Texans, particularly those city folks who seldom go to the country, may contract a severe case of skin poisoning if they are not careful on picnics, camping and fishing trips.

Warning that several cases of poisoning have been reported already this year, Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, describes Rhus toxicodendron for the benefit of those not familiar with it. The plant has three leaves which are now green, and later become red or bright yellow. It grows on a low but erect plant, varying from several inches to three or four feet in height. The plant bears smooth, whitish, waxy berries containing a stony seed.

The easiest way you can distinguish the plant is by its leaves. Two of them are on short stalks and the third is on a longer one. They are one to four inches long, dark green on top and lighter underneath. The leaves also have notched margins.

If you are susceptible to it, slight contact with the plant may result in violent skin irritation caused by a resinous substance in the sap. First manifestations will appear within a few hours to five days. Itching, burning sensations and redness, swelling and development of small blisters on the affected parts are symptoms of rhus poisoning.

Early use of soap and hot water soon after exposure will prevent poisoning, but a brush should not be used for washing. The most effective method of prevention, however, is to avoid the plant entirely.

Ignore Rhus toxicodendron as you would poison ivy, for if you haven't guessed it yet, they are one and the same.

Important Meeting to West Texans to Be Held at Lubbock

Lubbock, where the Texas Technological College is located, has been selected as the city where the first Agricultural-Livestock-Industrialist meeting of the Texas State Manufacturers Association will be held. The date is May 31, 1939. All sessions will be held in the Texas Technological College.

The Texas State Manufacturers Association is following the lead of the National Association of Manufacturers in staging a series of agricultural-livestock-industrial conferences. It will be remembered that at College Station, Texas, there was held on February 9-10 a Southwestern conference of farmers and manufacturers. This meeting was held under the auspices of the Texas A. & M. College and the National Association of Manufacturers. The Texas State Manufacturers Association co-operated in this meeting.

The Lubbock meeting will be a similar type. Whereas the College Station meeting was the fourth in a series of farmers-manufacturers conferences, the Lubbock meeting will be the first of a series of four Texas-wide meetings of similar type. While the Lubbock meeting is designed particularly for West Texans, still farmers and manufacturers from all parts of Texas are invited to attend.

The purpose of the meeting is to properly relate the purposes of agriculture with the purposes of industry and to create a better understanding between the manufacturers and farmers. As was the case of the meeting at the A. & M. College, the Lubbock conference will carefully avoid any set program or scheduled addresses except in special cases. Kenneth N. Renner, head of the Dairy Department of the Texas Technological College will preside.

The high spot in the Lubbock meeting will be the address by Dr. John B. Coulter, nationally known economist. Dr. Coulter will come to Lubbock from Lincoln, Nebr., where he will address a meeting of agriculturists and manufacturers. Dr. Coulter is considered the best posted man in the United States on the subject of "tariff and agriculture." At the Lubbock conference he will discuss the cotton situation from all of its angles. At the conclusion of his address he will conduct a questionnaire.

Thousands to Tour State This Year

Approximately 400,000 automobile vacationists served through the Conoco Travel Bureau are expected to spend about $40,200,000 in Texas this year, according to a report issued today by Joe H. Thompson, national director of the bureau and well-known travel expert.

Based on a survey of the number of motorists who received hotel, route and other information in 1938 and a study of the number of inquiries reaching the Conoco Bureau since the first of the year, Thompson said:

"We can safely say that this will be a banner year for this state. Motorists representing practically every state in the Union, and Canada, have written us asking for route information about Texas." From actual records of the spending habits in earlier years, we can say...

Thompson gave the following analysis of the probable expenditures of Conoco visitors in 1939: "About $10,100,000 will be left in retail stores; about $8,500,000 will be spent on food and meals; $8,000,000 will go for gasoline, oil and car repairs; another $8,000,000 will be claimed by hotels and tourist houses; $3,200,000 will be spent for recreation and $2,400,000 for refreshments, souvenirs and miscellaneous items."

CHURCHES

Christian Science Church Sunday School at 10 a. m. Sunday services at 11 a. m. Wednesday evening services at 8 o'clock.

Sunday, May 28, 1939. Subject: "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced. The public is cordially invited.

First Christian Church Regular services will be held at the First Christian Church with the pastor, Rev. Harrell Rea, preaching at both morning and evening services.

Everyone is invited to attend these services.

Christian Science Services "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, Alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced," is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, May 28.

The Golden Text is: "Mine hand shall be upon the prophets that see vanity, and that divine lies; and ye shall know that I am the Lord God" (Ezekiel 13:9).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Thou shalt fear the Lord thy God; him shalt thou serve, and to him shalt thou cleave, and swear by his name" (Deuteronomy 10:20).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Divine Mind rightly defames man's entire obedience, affection, and strength. No reservation is made for any lesser loyalty. Obedience to Truth gives man power and strength. Submission to error superinduces loss of power" (page 183).

Methodist Church Notes A cooling system is being installed in the Methodist Church this week. It will be completed by next Sunday and should add much to the comfort of our congregation during the summer months.

Our superintendent, Lesley Thomas, states that somewhere in the near future an old-time Sunday School picnic will be sponsored by the church and the oldest and the youngest are to attend. The full details of this festival will be given Sunday.

If the weather permits the Sunday evening service will be held out in the open at the rear of the church next Sunday. You will enjoy it.

Two Minute Sermon (By Thomas Hastwell)

To Whom Shall We Go: One day following one of the occasions on which Christ fed a multitude by the sea shore he sought to use the occasion of feeding the multitudes with material food to teach them the necessity of spiritual food and its greater importance. One by one his listeners slipped away from him until there remained but his twelve disciples. Turning to them with what must have been crushing sadness and disappointment Christ said: "Will ye also go away?" Then, as the text puts it, Simon Peter answered him and said: "Lord, to whom shall we go? How many times the past six years when human plans and human organizations and human aspirations have been upset have many, as they have seen the fruits of a life time swept away from them, said in their despair and bewilderment, "Lord, to whom shall we go?" This perhaps is the lesson that the depression has taught many—the futility of placing one's faith in material things. When faith is placed in material things, and material things fail, one has nothing, but when faith is placed in God, He never fails, regardless of the depressions or misfortunes that a changing world always brings.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

godly Hannah who, looking toward the face of God, made it her purpose to give the unborn child back to his Maker, and who, fulfilling her vow to God, surrounded him with those influences that shaped and molded his life and character so that he became the dominant force for righteousness in the day in which he lived. This business, then, of being a mother is a tremendously important responsibility, and we may expect the children of this and succeeding generations to be largely what their mothers conceive for them.

If I were to be asked to lay down some prerequisites to successful motherhood, I would say that first of all each mother should have a clear consciousness of a right relationship to God. That mother who has had a definite, unmistakable experience of the saving power of Jesus Christ, and who, from that day to the end of her life, lives in the glow of her love for Christ, will make so marked an impression upon the lives of her children that they will never be able to get away from it. Of course, she should be a faithful reader of the Word of God. Example is an important factor in the guiding of a young life, and her regular, devout, systematic reading of the Bible will lead her children to a greater awareness of the source of her strength and sure guidance.

The true and faithful mother will surround her children with watchful and loving care. Is there not a wealth of meaning in the Old Testament picture of the mother of Samuel, who, having sent her son to be instructed in the things of God, looking forward to effectual service, nevertheless cared for him in such a way that we read, "Moreover, his mother made him a little coat and brought it to him from year to year." Though unappreciated apparently at the time of the instruction, that child who has had such a mother will never get away from her life that was so tender, patient, considerate, and loving.

And such a mother should be full of the joy of the Lord. When the apostle Paul wrote to his young friend, Timothy, he said, "That I may be filled with joy, when I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother, Lois, and thy mother, Eunice." The Word of God exalts the sincere faith of these Christian women, and it is of such deep-rooted faith in God that there comes a happy heart, and from the happy heart, that which makes for a happy face.

The mother who would mold her children's lives must also be the Lord's faithful witness. Someone has said that a good life speaks more eloquently than any words. True though it is, it is the solemn obligation of such a mother, as early as possible, to so instruct her children in the things of God that she may lead them into the light of the gospel and direct them to the source of wisdom and faith and courage.

Perhaps the most important part of all of the equipment of a good mother is her persistent and believing prayerfulness. Prayer is a potent thing. Believing prayer degree when their mothers conceived them to be, even before they were born. This is true because very largely to the mother is entrusted the task of guiding and shaping the life. One could find many illustrations out of life and the Word of God which clearly indicate that the influence of the mother has affected the growing child, either for good or for evil.

In the Old Testament Scriptures it was the scheming Rebecca who molded and shaped the life of Jacob so that he became, at an early age, a schemer and deceiver. And, but for the long-suffering patience of God, who had great purposes to be accomplished through this growing lad, he might have gone down to his grave despised of men and rejected of God.

On the other hand, it was the changes things. That child who goes forth surrounded with the prayers of his mother, though he may stray from the beaten path, will be kept and made to stand on secure foundation. One day the books of God will be opened. Not till then will any of us know of the dangers that threatened us, of the calamities that were averted, and of the successes gained because a faithful mother on her knees before God remembered a child in danger.

Mother ponder these things in your heart, for your child will, to a considerable degree, be what you make him.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS BY JULIAN CAPERS JR.

Austin.—Somebody must have told the Texas Legislature about the veteran congressman who remained in Congress 30 years by "always voting for every appropriation bill, and against every tax bill." The Senate, insisting upon a sales tax constitutional amendment, has blocked the passage of any revenue measure for more than four months. This week-end, with a consistency marked as that of the Congressmen, it adopted a conference report on a bill by Doss Hardin, liberalizing pensions to such an extent that it is estimated it will put 100,000 additional pensioners on the roll, and bar virtually nobody but that famous "toothless old millionaire, eating his crackers and milk," so often referred to during the last state campaign—if there be such a millionaire, resident in Texas.

Senate confirmation, without dissenting vote, of Judge Bradley Gentry, of Tyler, as Chairman of the State Highway Commission, ended a fourth month battle between the Governor and the Senate over the post, which saw two other nominees rejected and one withdraw to avoid rejection.

Judge Gentry, active advocate of good roads, three times County Judge of Smith County, runner up in a race for Congress in East Texas last summer, was sworn in promptly, and inaugurated his service by presiding at the monthly highway hearing and contract letting in Austin this week. Good roads advocates, legislators, road contractors, county officials and others who deal with the Highway Commission expressed themselves as well-pleased with Gentry's selection, and predicted for him a continuation of the admirable record which has been made by the various highway commissioners since Dan Moody re-organized the Commission. Gentry's confirmation marked the passing from official life of John Wood, able East Texas representative on the Commission, who has been serving as a holdover during the battle over O'Daniel's various nominations.

Passage over the government veto will be sought by Sen. Pease Metcalfe of the bill offering free tuition to 100 Latin American students in Texas universities, passed by both houses as a good will gesture, and killed by the governor, because, he said, the State couldn't afford it.

Reps. Alvin Allison of Leaveland and Cecil Rhodes of Hearne, will make a visit to Mexico City, soon after adjournment, bearing credentials from O'Daniel as "Good Will Envoys" from Texas.

Maury Maverick, fiery ex-governor and now mayor of San Antonio, attacked John Garner before the House, he claims, in supporting him for President, in a speech before Austin Young Democrats. The State Convention of Young Democrats at Dallas pulled down a constitutional amendment that would have permitted them to endorse Garner on the advice of Garner leaders who feared it might be interpreted as a slap at Roosevelt.

Mayor Tom Miller, of Austin, fond of being called a "liberal" under fire from Austin weekly papers for passage of a city ordinance that would force the business to take out permits from the Austin city manager, who could refuse permits at his discretion, before they can solicit advertising. Two weeklies have announced they will defy the order, and Miller has asked Attorney General Gerald Mann for an opinion on its legality.

Notes

While the week was to see some action in the House on an omnibus tax bill, estimated to raise $20,000,000 for pensions and other social security measures. The bill would increase natural resources taxes and includes sales taxes on many so-called luxury items, including utility bills (tax to be paid by the consumer), automobiles, inheritance and franchise taxes, an additional cent on cigarettes, and increases on admissions to amusements.

When the Legislature will adjourn has become problematical, with nobody offering anything more than a guess. The House rejected a sine die adjournment resolution for June 4. Lt. Gov. Coke Stevenson guesses the session will last at least until June

Our Weekly Sermon

By Rev. Chauncey B. Nordland, Extension Director, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

Text: His mother kept all these sayings in her heart.—Luke 2:51.

George Herbert paid his tribute to the mothers of the world when he said, "One good mother is worth a hundred schoolmasters." The debt that men owe to their mothers can never be paid. It is fitting that once a year the whole world should set aside a day when the true worth of motherhood is recognized and homage is paid to mothers for the remarkable contributions they have made to the world.

Men are to a considerable degree what their mothers conceived them to be, even before they were born. This is true because very largely to the mother is entrusted the task of guiding and shaping the life. One could find many illustrations out of life and the Word of God which clearly indicate that the influence of the mother has affected the growing child, either for good or for evil.

Terraces Alone Do More Good on Farm and Ranch Than $28,000,000 Marshall Ford Dam

WITHOUT expenditure of tax money and through the voluntary work of farmers, ranchmen, and county agents, over 50,000 linear miles of terraces—twice the distance around the world—were built in this West Texas region last year.

Terraces, along with a balanced program of contouring, strip-cropping, and earthen dams, stored moisture in the soil for crops, at the same time aiding flood control. Altogether they impounded over 1,000,000 acre-feet of water... all without tax expense.

Inasmuch as Marshall Ford and similar dams earned the reputation for being a "flood menace" during the same period, a lesson thereby is offered that the only effective curb on devastating floods must begin at the point where the rains fall.

Believing that industrial and agricultural development go hand-in-hand, this company has lent its efforts to promotion of soil and water conservation and the successful culmination of the 1938 soil and water utilization contest.

Miss Mary Helen Moseley Married to Ed Gossett

Miss Mary Helen Moseley of Quannah was married to Congressman Ed Gossett of Wichita Falls, in a quiet, informal wedding ceremony in the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Firman E. Bear, of New York City on Saturday afternoon, May 20, at 5 o'clock.

The marriage ceremony was conducted by Dr. Robert M. Russell, pastor of the Larchmont Presbyterian Church, and the bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Dr. Firman E. Bear. Attending the bride was her sister, Miss Rebecca Moseley, Congressman Eugene Koehg of New York City acted as best man for the groom.

The bride was attractively attired in a smart Fred A. Block suit of white and navy blue with pink accessories. Miss Rebecca Moseley's costume consisted of a pink suit with navy blue accessories.

Mrs. Gossett is the daughter of Mayor and Mrs. W. A. Moseley of Quannah and is a graduate of T. S. C. W., Denton, where she majored in home economics for her B. S. degree. The romance culminating in this marriage began while Mr. Gossett was district attorney at Vernon and shortly after Miss Moseley began teaching home economics in the Vernon High School.

The bride elected not to have the usual round of gay, pre-nuptial parties and chose to have a simple, home wedding. When asked concerning their plans for a wedding trip, the bride stated that the wedding had been delayed because of Mr. Gossett's recent campaign for Congress and that the honeymoon would be postponed until after adjournment of Congress.

Friends say that the bride's background, training and temperament, will make her a great asset to her husband as representative of the 13th District in Congress.

Miss Hazel Key, D. A. Simmonds Announce Wedding

The marriage of Miss Hazel Key to D. A. Simmonds, which was solemnized at the home of the pastor of the First Baptist Church at Olney on Easter Sunday, April 9, has been announced.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Key of Mission, formerly of Thalia. For the past four years Mrs. Simmonds has been employed in the Wilbarger County schools. The past year she taught at South Lockett High School. She is a graduate of Crowell High School and N. T. S. T. C. of Denton and taught two years in the Vivian school of Foard County.

Mr. Simmonds is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Simmonds of the Rayland community. He is an employee of the Arrow Drilling Co. of Tulsa, Okla.

Attendants for the couple were Charles Boyd of Throckmorton and Miss Dora Muller of Bellevue. The bride wore a lovely original Dawnleigh ensemble of dusty rose with black accessories. The bride's attendant wore a navy sheen with blue and white accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Simmonds left Wednesday of this week for the Rio Grande Valley and points in Old Mexico.

T. E. L. CLASS

Mesdames A. E. McLaughlin, Pearl Carter and Viola Locke were hostesses last Thursday to the T. E. L. Class members and also to the members of the Dorcas Class of the Baptist Church in an all-day meeting at the home of Mrs. McLaughlin.

Mrs. Jim Long gave the devotional with "Faith" for the subject. Mrs. Alva Poole of San Angelo played several numbers on the Hawaiian steel guitar. Other out-of-town guests present were Mrs. R. D. Oswald of Vernon and Mrs. Bob Meadows of Mineral Wells. About thirty-two ladies were present for the meeting, which included a covered dish luncheon at the noon hour.

For the June meeting, Mesdames Dock Callaway, John Bradford and Frank Long will be hostesses.

Home Demonstration Delegates To Go To Texas A. & M. Meet

The Foard County Home Demonstration Council met in regular session in the office of the county home demonstration agent, Miss Joellene Vannoy, Saturday afternoon, May 20.

It was decided to send three members to Texas A. & M. on July 12, 13 and 14. These members are to be selected from the six clubs. Three delegates will also be sent to the Texas Home Demonstration Association which will meet in Lubbock on Sept. 6, 7 and 8. These delegates will be selected by the Council at the next meeting, from nominees put forth by each club.

Miss Bonnie Schroeder of Rayland was appointed chairman of the cook book committee.

The next meeting of the Council will be held on June 17.

Texas Legislature Has Encountered Difficult Problems

The Foard County News is in receipt of the following comment from Senator George Moffett, of Chillothe, who represents this district in the State Senate at Austin. Thinking it might be of interest to our readers, we are printing it in full:

"The Texas Legislature has been meeting in regular session every two years for almost 100 years. In that length of time, it's very probable that no other session has had the difficult problems to solve that this one has had.

"The State Treasury is approximately seventeen million dollars overdrawn, and taxpayers are generally not in a position to pay any additional taxes. Yet this Legislature has been called upon to raise at least twenty-five million dollars additional revenue to increase old age pensions, provide for the needy blind, and destitute, dependent, and neglected children, and for teachers' pensions, all of which have been voted by the people in the last four years by heavy majorities. There is, of course, some question as to whether the Legislature should levy twenty-five million dollars in taxes upon the people of Texas without those people having a voice and a vote upon the matter. And for that reason a Constitutional Amendment was proposed and has passed the Senate, which submits the question of a combined sales and national resource tax to the people for their consideration. This Constitutional Amendment is now pending in the House.

"This session of the Legislature has abolished several departments, consolidated some, and trimmed others down, thereby reducing the State's expenses over five million dollars annually.

"It's my sincere belief that we have an economical minded Governor, and I think he did exactly right in vetoing the bill, which would have permitted a hundred students from Mexico and Central American countries to attend Texas colleges without paying tuition. As long as we charge Texas boys and girls, others should pay too.

"I am always glad to receive comment on the problems before us in Austin. Vern likels, however, plenty of moisture and a good price for cotton, wheat, livestock, etc., will mean more to the people than anything done at Austin."

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to attempt to express by this means our thanks to those who so kindly aided us during the illness and death of our son and grandson. We are certain that we could not have carried on without words of kindness and aid given us. We especially wish to thank Rev. and Mrs. W. B. Fitzgerald and the Homemakers' Class of the Baptist Church. We will always remember you for your kind deeds, and may God's richest blessings be received by each of you.

signment after returning to Colombia, that of routing the line between Sincelejo and Talu, Mr. Brisco and two natives became lost in the jungle and were lost for two days and three nights, during which time they had neither food nor water. One of the natives told him that he knew the way to Sincelejo and with a second native, Mr. Brisco started a scout trip riding burros. The start-off following a burro trail, which Mr. Brisco stated were thicker than country lanes in this country, and the guide took the wrong one and they were soon hopelessly lost in the dense jungle.

During the time they were lost, they traveled only by day. At night, they camped and built a large fire for protection against tigers, which Mr. Brisco said were as many as there are jack rabbits in Foard County. The specie of tigers in Colombia is much smaller than a bengal tiger, but can easily kill a man.

After two days of following burro trails and three sleepless nights, they emerged from the jungle at Talu, the oldest town in Colombia, many kilometers from their original destination. Upon arriving at Talu, Mr. Brisco promptly ordered a "setting" of eggs. This dish, he stated, consists of eggs scrambled with onions and tomatoes and the only native dish he could eat. Instead of water, Mr. Brisco drank beer, as employees of his company have strict orders against drinking water that has not been purified in one of the camps with a purifying unit.

Although he was lost, Mr. Brisco found that pipe could be laid through to Sincelejo and from Talu, he returned to Barranquilla with orders for packing of equipment. The following day, the trip to El Retiro was made in an old paddle boat, said to have been serviced on the Mississippi, pushing five barges of equipment. The trip was made in 83 hours and covered a distance of about 200 miles.

From El Retiro, the pipe was strung back to Covenas and the job required from December until March. Part of the pipe was laid along one of the only two national highways in Colombia and special permission had to be received from the capital at Bogota, and they received it with the agreement that they must grade the road every day. Mr. Brisco stated the highway was no more than a country road in this country and had been made with wheelbarrows instead of road equipment.

The country through which the pipe was laid was mostly swamp land with only a few hills.

Mr. Brisco said that there was no twilight in South America and as soon as night fell, a person was forced to go inside a tent or house equipped with nets as protection against the mosquitoes, which were more bothersome to them than any other insect or animal.

After completing that job, Mr. Brisco went across the river west and strung more pipe, about 40 kilometers, from Barranea to El Retiro.

When this section of pipe was completed, he took a two-day boat ride to his next work from El Banco about 30 kilometers up the Papatyal River to the edge of the Catatumbo Mountains. Here he took a trip in an airplane between La Gloria and Convencion to route more pipe. The work on this section of pipe completed Mr. Brisco's work before returning to Crowell.

Mail and supplies are brought to the camp in a tri-motor plane. One day he was returning to camp on the plane, and as the pilot was preparing to land, he told Mr. Brisco to sit on a box which he did not want moving around when the plane struck the ground. He sat down on the box and when the plane came to a stop, he asked the pilot what was in the box. The pilot told him that the box contained 5,000 dynamite caps.

This plane fell a few days later in the mountains near Tara with two pilots and three workmen. The plane fell the first of April and has not been found yet.

Mr. Brisco was in a section in which the natives were friendly but those in the mountains are very savage and cause workmen no end of trouble. The men in one camp in the mountains captured a little native boy and took him into camp. Since then the natives have raided camps three times and four men are in the hospital after having been shot with poisoned arrows. The native boy has learned to speak a little English and tells the men that he can't return to his people as they would kill him for living with white men.

Starting for Foard County, Mr. Brisco rode about four hours in a canoe to Puerto Corozo and there caught a launch which took him to El Banco. He rode on the river boat for two days to reach passage on a United Fruit boat, Chiriqui, and rode to Cristobal. After waiting two days, he took another fruit boat, Sixiola, for New Orleans. The boat made four stops. One at Bocas Del Toro, Limon in Costa Rica, Tala in the Honduras and Havana, Cuba. The boat took on a cargo of bananas at Tala and Limon. Mr. Brisco saw a ship pass through the Panama Canal on the return trip.

The diet of the natives, Mr. Brisco stated, consists of rice, yuca, yama, palatanos and sugar cane. Yuca is root which the natives use for bread and yuma re-

West Texas Utilities Joins in Soil and Water Conservation

Farm and ranch leaders have been invited to call on the West Texas Utilities Company for any co-operation and assistance the concern can render to make the soil and water conservation program more effective, it was announced this week by Jack Seale, local manager.

Price Campbell, president of the company, called attention to the value of the soil and water utilization work last week and said that the organization's manpower in 166 communities served by WTU would be "happy to join in this movement."

"The thought is inspiring that a program of this character will have the result of passing on the land to the next generation in actually better condition than it is in this generation," he said. "That surely constitutes a due regard for posterity."

The program was climaxed by a "March of Conservation" during the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention in Abilene on May 15-16-17 at which time prizes totaling $1,000 was awarded to counties entered in the soil and water conservation contest.

Mr. Campbell announced that the West Texas Utilities Company provided the prize money in addition to joining forces with agricultural leaders to continue the work.

"Anything that benefits the communities in the areas we serve and increases the purchasing power of the citizenship, also benefits our company as well as every other type of business," he stated.

"This contest should do much to guarantee the permanency of our West Texas region, supporting firmly an enhancing its claims to being the 'Raw Materials Capital of the World' by increasing the spendable income and in furthering the welfare of agricultural and livestock producers."

He praised the 50,000 linear miles of terraces constructed last year and the earthen dams, impounding two and one-half billion gallons of water, as a method of catching the water where it falls, and "where it belongs."

"Terracing work alone, done at practically no tax cost, has been of greater value than the $25,000,000 of taxpayers' money spent on one of the Colorado rivers," he said. He cited a (Fort Worth Star-Telegram) newspaper editorial as saying:

"... By terracing, West Texas farmers have impounded 554,000 acre-feet of water, the same amount as that held by the $25,000,000 Marshall Ford dam. In the former case, rainfall has been stored in the soil to provide moisture for crops, at the same time contributing to flood control. A lesson is thereby offered that the only effective curb on devastating floods must begin at the point where the rains fall."

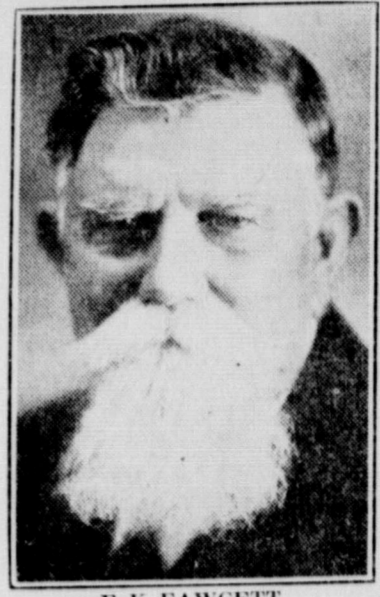

Among those commending Mr. Campbell and his organization for its co-operation in the soil and water program was Clifford B.

sembles pumpkins. Palatanos is a large banana good only when cooked.

Mr. Brisco said that the natives sleep on the ground, and if one gets any money he usually buys a hammock, which is the height of luxury for the natives. All cooking is done over an open fire as there are no stoves in the interior. In speaking of disease, he said that there were no doctors or medicine for the natives and if one contracts a dreaded disease, such as malaria fever, he is left to die. All of the natives are small and the average man will not weigh more than 115 pounds and a native is old at 35 years. The native tongue is Spanish. All of the natives go bare footed, although a few wear sandals. One white man gave a native a pair of shoes and the native could not walk with them.

All of the machine operators and welders are white men and the workers are natives who know the right way to do everything wrong, according to Mr. Brisco.

WTCC PRESIDENT

E. K. FAWCETT

E. K. Fawcett of Del Rio, new president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, is a typical pioneer West Texan.

For many years he has been one of the largest sheep ranch operators in Texas.

Mr. Fawcett has represented Del Rio and Val Verde County on the board of directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce for more than a decade. He was elected second vice-president of the regional organization in 1937 and was named first vice president in 1938. He was elected to the presidency at this year's WTCC convention which closed in Abilene Wednesday, May 17.

For the first time in history, every cotton organization in America is giving active support to a great cotton sales event—National Cotton Week of 1939.

Jones, chairman of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce agricultural committee.

"We are grateful beyond expression," Jones said, "but even surpassing our appreciation of your extreme generosity is the gratification we have that the conservation program is deemed worthy by you of such outstanding support. It is but another evidence of the constructive attitude of the West Texas Utilities Company toward all that affects the public welfare of this territory."

Mr. Seale, manager of the local WTU office, said he had been advised that the company's engineering staff and statistical department "gladly will co-operate in solving technical problems and in gathering data concerning soil and water conservation."
