

Highway Commissioner Harry Hines Delivers Address to Texas Press Association in Lubbock on June 8

Using as his theme "The Press As a Community Builder," Harry Hines, Texas Highway Commissioner, addressed the Texas Press Association members at their annual convention banquet in Lubbock on the evening of June 8.

Mr. Hines, in part said: "I wish tonight that it were possible for me to be a columnist, a dozen outstanding names I could mention whom it would be a pleasure to emulate—personalities who could in a few brief paragraphs convey to you the message which is in my heart, but for which I feel myself eminently unqualified to express."

"As a young man I was private secretary to a gentleman whose years as a newspaper man prepared him to give a very definite contribution to the public, and from these days down to now, I have recognized in our press a medium of education, an information factor not otherwise available to the general public. It is a true and much used statement that our newspapers mold public opinion; nevertheless, it goes without challenge, for in no other way are the facts and doings of life so generally depicted and conveyed to humanity as a whole."

"In the realization that millions of our people throughout the nation get their only information on important political, social, economic, domestic, industrial and financial subjects from the press, places on our editors a very grave community obligation of fairness, justice and equity."

"It is true, as in most all other vocations and professions, that occasionally some paper feels it is sufficiently barricaded in with a group of people in the area who haven't access to other sources of information, that said paper can dominate the lives of its readers and so dictate the trend of their thinking as to control community thought, but these cases of press projected ego are so rare that they cannot be given a place in our thinking tonight as we discuss informally whether the press, as a press, is a dictatorship. "The press should not tolerate banning our conception of civic liberty, or banning the right of free speech, or countenance repressing free assembly and freedom to organize, for we, as American citizens, demand these rights so long as we are not fostering some foreign idealism, for we, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, for these things we came into existence as a nation."

"The press of Texas stands for Simon Pure Jeffersonian Democracy in the main, and the majority of our editors believe in the early fundamentals of our forefathers of honest toil, the laborer being worthy of his hire, an economy that does not believe in something for nothing."

"The editors of Texas, with few exceptions, believe that the old theory of our fathers is the true theory, namely, 'Let us have economical, efficient business management in public affairs, simple government and a rich and prosperous people, light taxes, abundant individual enterprise, and private capital having an incentive to expand and employ with confidence in government sanity, instead of confiscation by taxation, destroying their willingness to venture."

"The press of Texas is manned by editors most of whom are ruggedly independent and stand for a democratic government strictly limited to its sphere, a government respected and honored because of its competency and readiness to protect the rights and guard the interests of its citizenship. If such is the case, God forgive those who would lead us into a wilderness of thought. We salute the freedom of our press."

"I have observed from our Texas editors, as a rule, an attitude of fairness to both sides in their presentations, for you will see an article or an editorial that reflects the opinion of the paper, then willing to publish the other side of the argument."

"A newspaper cannot be blamed for not wanting its news columns to be used for promotional advertising, or their paper as a house organ for any party, group or organization, for that is not what the name 'newspaper' implies. Am deeply grateful to the newspapers of Texas for their liberal attitude on highway publicity; your willingness to run highway articles, and the going out of your way, many of you, from time to time, to gather information, data and pictures, and believe, from comments that come to me, that the public is glad to get these articles about one of the biggest businesses in Texas—The Highway Department."

"You have been very fair in your criticism of our Department, and your suggestions so valuable that I recommended we take the Clipping Service of Texas University, from which clippings many things have been brought to my attention, and am sure other members of the Department avail themselves of this information, and from these clippings have obtained the community slant on their highway problems, and have learned to know many of you fellows better than you know me. The confidence the press has expressed in our Department spurs us on to do the very best job we can, that your continued good opinion will be merited."

"By the way, talking shop a little, am wondering if you have noticed the modernized highways, fences set back, ditches filled up and levelled off, so that a car forced off the road can run right out to the bars wire fence and come back on the road and resume its journey unharmed. Have you noticed the enlarged letters and numbers on signs? (We have some 130,000 signs on the Highways of Texas), also the reflector buttons on bridge posts, culverts, bends and signs, also the painted center stripe on the highways, the widened shoulders now being hard surfaced? Literally hundreds of bridges and culverts all over the state are being rebuilt at this moment, resulting in saving many lives, the removal of sharp corners and the widening of many of the old asphalt roads over the state. There is yet much to be done, but we are happy in the doing and as these things are finished day by day our hearts are gladdened. You know it isn't the applause from the crowd that counts—it is that personal satisfaction in one's own heart when they do something beneficial and worthwhile, that is the real reward."

"It is our desire to apply broad conceptions and fundamentals to our planning which are essential to each year's work toward a realization of the ultimate objective."

"Our Department is well manned with a nonpolitical personnel based on a keen knowledge and comprehension of their task, with a vision of the component parts of the Highway construction and maintenance task, and as the funds are made available we shall continue to develop by correct construction programs and future planning, a concept or plan for tomorrow that will insure for our citizenship an adequate and safe highway transport for our future needs—to such a goal we are applying our best judgment and energy."

"As you good folks representing the press of Texas, join forces with your civic minded citizens in your town or city, advocating and promoting highway and bridge improvements, you are rendering a very commendable community service, for possibly no other community additions will render such a definite service to so many of your citizens as paved highways, allowing your trade territory to enter your town every day, regardless of weather conditions, and for the traveling public crossing the state to come your way."

"I like to think of our newspapers as community builders. Everybody likes a builder, whether he builds a house, builds character, or a community."

"A newspaper dyspeptic whose sarcasm and pessimism throws a wet towel on everything and everybody in a community, always finding fault but never suggesting a constructive remedy, is a community liability."

"On the other hand, a newspaper that radiates an up and up spirit, can do much to attract industries and individuals to their town or city. Yes, such a newspaper can do a lot for those citizens already living in the realm of its influence, for unfortunately not many of us do much original thinking in fact, we do very little mental exploring of new horizons. We usually think only the regular daily routine thoughts necessary to take us to work and back home again. 'No new soil is turned, no new ground is planted.' Too frequently all we think of is the picking of ripe fruit rather than the planting of new vines."

"Rapid are the transitions in current trends at this time, for the world moves—the scenes are shifting—Time marches on—shall we stand still and watch the passing panorama, or shall we become a part of it?"

"Carry on, my good friends, your field fairly sparkles with meters and opportunity—It is sun-up—Let us as Texans, arise and go forward."

To Those Owing Delinquent Taxes

Penalty, Interest and Costs Will Be Added on All Delinquent Taxes Due the City of Crowell on the 16th Day of August, 1939.

The City has been very lenient with those owing Delinquent Taxes, however, the time has come when it is forced to make collection on these taxes in order that it may meet its obligations and function in the manner in which a City must if it is to be of any benefit to the people.

Why not save the penalty, interest and costs which will be added to your taxes by paying them before the 16th of August, 1939?

The City Council earnestly requests that all owing delinquent taxes make a decided effort to pay them at once. In the event taxes are not paid, the City will be forced to use other means to enforce collection.

City Council, City of Crowell, Texas C. T. SCHLAGAL, Mayor. J. T. BILLINGTON, City Secretary.

Two Minute Sermon (By Thomas Hastwell)

Right Personal Attitude Necessary: The other day three came to see me a young lady. She had the feeling that the world and everyone in it was against her, and that they were all conspiring against her happiness and against her plans and ambitions. She was at odds with her family. Nothing they did met with her approval and the friction and disagreements created a most unhappy home situation. "Why is it," she said, "that everyone is against me and is opposing my happiness?" "Did you ever stop to think," I asked her, "that it might be you who is wrong? Does it not seem rather unusual to you that you alone are right and everyone else is wrong?" She went away unconvinced. Because of a wrong attitude of mind she was condemning herself to unhappiness. I thought, as she left, how like many grown ups, who try to change the world and even God's plan to suit their own ideas. An individual cannot expect all those about him to conform to his whims and desires and way of thinking. The world isn't set up that way. Any one can destroy his happiness with a mental attitude of that kind. God does not make over his plans to suit the whims of humans. The individual must accept them as they are and put himself in harmony with them if he desires to know content and peace of mind and happiness. The fortunate thing about it is that it can be done by anyone who is willing to let God have his way in his life. It is the only formula for human happiness and content.

He is only advancing in life, whose heart is getting softer, his blood warmer, his brain quicker, and his spirit entering into living peace.—John Ruskin

Every age has its problem, by solving which, humanity is helped forward.—Heinrich Heine.

Cotton Council Ready to Start Research Work

Memphis, Tenn., June 29.—Moving forward with co-ordination of the cotton industry's efforts toward increased consumption, the National Cotton Council announced today an agreement under which the Cotton Research Foundation will become the research division of the Council.

President Oscar Johnston of the Cotton Council and President Everett R. Cook of the Research Foundation said in a joint statement that the new affiliation would become effective on July 1.

Operating through multiple fellowships in the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research, the Foundation will continue its present exploratory program and in addition will handle all matters of scientific research arising out of activities of the national Council.

"This very practical arrangement," said Mr. Johnston, "has the double advantage of co-ordinating the efforts of the two organizations and of providing the Cotton Council immediately with a scientific research division which under any other plan would have required considerable time for organization and development."

"It is a major step toward efficient co-ordination of the efforts of the cotton industry as it proceeds with its new and aggressive program for increased consumption of cotton and cottonseed products."

Organized in Memphis three years ago, the Research Foundation has under way or completed 29 projects looking toward new uses for lint and seed products. New uses and processes which already have passed laboratory tests are being further developed for final commercial production.

Already on the market is a sweeping compound composed mainly of cottonseed hull bran which has been found to have superior cleaning properties. Most recent laboratory announcement is a white paper embodying cottonseed hull fiber.

In addition to its work in the Pittsburgh laboratories of the Mellon Institute, the Foundation has projects under way at the University of North Carolina, the University of Texas, the Texas Technological College, the University of Tennessee, and the University of Pittsburg. Further expansion of research projects is to be undertaken in colleges and universities where suitable projects are proposed and to the extent that available funds make possible.

In addition to funds which will be provided by the five primary raw cotton interests comprising the National Cotton Council, the Foundation will request support from other interests whose welfare is closely linked with cotton economy.

Commenting on the new affiliation, President Everett Cook of the Foundation said he was convinced that "through such a combination of effort, both organizations will be able to increase the effectiveness of their work in behalf of the cotton industry. We are happy indeed to join forces with the Council in its vital program."

Cutting Ragweeds a Likely Help to Hay Fever Sufferers

Austin.—"It will not be many weeks until a large number of Texans will be sneezing, wheezing and in other ways evidencing that they are victims of so-called hay fever. Many of these persons, either because of ignorance or carelessness, will endure their affliction, bolstered only by the distant hope of the "fall frost" which will mark the end of their ordeal for this year. On the face of it, these allergies have a rather hard row to hoe. However, for many of them, this situation could be altered most favorably," prophesies the Texas State Health Department.

"Indeed, science has developed a successful method of combating many forms of this seasonal affliction. For persons who possess this unusual sensitiveness to the pollens of certain plants, weeds, grasses and trees, serums have been developed to counteract it.

"Before this type of treatment can be effective it is essential that the particular pollen causing the disturbance be discovered. Guesswork plays no part in this investigation. The physician will make simple and painless tests with extracts of pollens that are suspected of causing the trouble. By way of a needle prick a minute portion of each of the pollens under suspicion is placed under the skin. And that extract which generates a slight local reaction points to the offender. Inoculation of that type of serum then is administered.

The potency of this treatment depends upon its use prior to the pollen season. Immunity must be established early. Bodily reactions to this type of therapy are slow. In fact several months, involving several treatments at intervals, are required.

While this preventive is not effective in all cases, the percentage of successes has been sufficiently high for every hay fever sufferer to give it a fair chance. In some patients, the result while not totally satisfactory, has noticeably reduced the suffering.

Also recommended for diminution of suffering is cutting of ragweeds from locales where hay-fever sufferers frequent. Vacant lots are a potent source of the ragweed and should be included in preventive measures against the disease.

GOOD FOUNDATIONS

Go Far Below the Surface

To every strong institution, as to every enduring structure, there is much more than appears to the casual observer. There is a foundation rooted deep under the surface. In this bank this foundation consists of great resources of a loyal, highly-equipped personnel of long, varied experience, of sound policy.

Home Institutions Indispensable to Local Community

In his column, "Tuning In," in the Holdenville (Okla.) Daily News, the editor, Tom R. Phillips, writes an unsolicited editorial concerning "mail order" mutual insurance concerns that should be read by all business men and leading citizens of every town in Texas and Oklahoma. The undisputable facts brought out in this editorial are applicable to all lines of business and local institutions in any town. Most every small town in the country today needs a "Trade at Home" campaign vigorously promoted, but before it can become very effective, leading business men will have to take an active part and practice trading with their fellow townsmen to the nth degree, lending every encouragement to local business that it is possible to give. At the same time, they should see that the merchandise or services they have to sell meet the requirements of their customers in every detail.

The editorial follows:

A circular letter invites us to take advantage of their "saving" on fire and automobile insurance protection offered by a "mail order" mutual insurance concern.

No, thanks! We shall be obliged to reject the offer. In the first place the so-called "saving" is very negligible and if we should have a fire or theft loss we do not want to have to take our claim up with some high-powered executive in some distant city whom we do not know or have never seen.

We get reasonable insurance rates by purchasing our insurance protection from established, reputable local agents who are here on the ground and whose services will be available should we have a loss against which we are protected in our safe. We would not be obliged to indulge in lengthy correspondence with some strange er in Dallas, Kalamazoo or Timbuctu. The local boys would be on the job, would check and report the loss, and settlement would be made without difficulty or quibbling.

Moreover, the established insurance agents are our friends and neighbors. They help support the schools which are aiding in the mental development of my 10-year-old daughter; they help support the churches that provide me and mine spiritual stimulation; they help support the police agencies that protect my property against plunder; they help support the fire department that protects my property against fire; they help support the city, school district, county and state governments that bestow many blessings upon me.

Why should I take my insurance business from those benefactors, these friends, these fellow-citizens and give it to some foreign concern, that doesn't care a tinker's damn about Holdenville—except what profit they can extract from Holdenville?

The few cents I would save on every hundred dollars of insurance protection I now have would not begin to compensate me for the trouble and inconvenience in event of a fire or theft loss. It isn't worth the difference.

Cheap insurance is like any other cheap commodity; it's very apt to be more expensive in the long run.

Besides, I haven't believed the Santa Claus myth since I was five years old. And confidentially, that's been quite a few summers, falls and winters back.

The stable, established, progressive business institutions in Holdenville are indispensable to the community. Without them there would not be a Holdenville. Keep this in mind—when you're buying insurance or any other commodity, service or merchandise.

The intelligent buyer gets what he pays for. No man ever house or concern is going to play Santa Claus to you. What may first appear as the bewhiskered old gentleman probably will prove to be a dusky pest in the woodpile.

No doubt you have various ideas as to the value of the church to the community in which we live but have you ever thought of the church as the backbone of the community? It is just that. Think of the people that you know who are wholesome, well-rounded and noble individuals; think of the families which you know that are really upholding the sacredness of the family institution; and these thoughts will lead you to admit that the church is having a large part in building wholesome Christian character in the community.

The "little white church on the corner" is seeking to give to those who worship there a distinct contribution in the realm of personal daily Christian living, and in the realm of Christian living in every sphere of our community life. You are welcome to come and worship with us on the Lord's Day.

The Golden Text is: "Unto the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God, be honour and glory for ever and ever" (1 Timothy 1:17).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "And they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord; for they shall all know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord;" (Jeremiah 31:34).
The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "As the mythology of pagan Rome has yielded to a more spiritual idea of Deity, so will our material theories yield to spiritual ideas, until the finite gives place to the infinite, sickness to health, sin to holiness, and God's kingdom comes 'in' earth, as it is in heaven" (page 339).

Save Feed at Its Best

Bath J. Cooper, Home Economics, Breeder-Feeder Ass'n.

It is the season when the corn crop or not? As every farmer knows there is a critical period which corn either "makes" or "doesn't." We have been in the habit of taking a crop of rubbin' with the best grain possible, but the tasks are more than enough gathering a rubbin' crop.

It is passing, there will be time in the next few weeks to get the trench silos ready.

The best ensilage is made by cutting the corn or sorghum after the grain hardens but before much of the foliage dries up—while the stalks themselves are still green and succulent, but not before the grain is well matured.

This is one of the things we have learned since the silo boom of forty years ago—that the best ensilage is not made from immature crops, as used to be recommended. That we can make ensilage from even dry stalks by supplying enough water to saturate them and facilitate fermentation; but the natural juices of the plants are better, and the crop should be ensiled at its best.

Some other things we have learned about trench silos: The walls should not be perpendicular. The ensilage packs and keeps better in a trench with sloping walls because in settling downward it is wedged into narrower space and thus avoids shrinking away from the walls, which permits air to enter and spoil the outside of the mass. Also, sloping walls are easier maintained.

The walls should be as smooth as possible in any case. Old silos in which the walls have sloughed off in places should be smoothed up before filling. This will widen the trench, and increase the area of the "face" from which the daily supply is cut. The relative width and depth are not as important considerations as keeping the square footage of the face in proportion to the number of animals to be fed. Talk it over with the county agent, or your neighbor who has one, follow proven recommendations.

The trench silo is not only a safe crop insurance, however, it is life insurance for the stock. It is "production credit" to keep up the milk flow, fat the lean kind, or merely hold the animals through the winter months of drought or cold. As such becoming common on western farms as barn storage silos, it retains more of the digestible nutrients in the corn than any other form of method of curing and storing.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

BY JULIAN CAPERS JR.

Austin.—Holding the line until the fall of the final gavel, the minority anti-sales tax bloc in the House of Representatives finally defeated the submission of a sales tax constitutional amendment in three additional attempts made to pass it on the final day of the session. The 46th Legislature's regular session ended without revenue-raising legislation.

Although it raised no new revenue, and left the State in a precarious financial condition due to the large deficit in the general fund, and the extravagant liberality with which the solons voted tax remissions, pension liberalization and other costly services, the session can by no means be designated as a "do nothing" session, nor a complete failure. There were more than 1600 bills introduced, and a larger percentage than usual were finally passed. The session broke all records, lasting 163 days—the last 43 days of which the members drew only $5 per day, as contrasted with the $10 they got during the first 120 days.

Cost of the session was $850,000—another record.

Some Good Legislation On the credit side of the ledger, however, the solons enacted many needed laws. They put an end to the flagrant abuses by some mutual assessment life insurance associations, providing stringent regulation. They ended much of the evil of the "vacancy hunting" racket, which has been an open scandal for years. They brought substantial tax relief to counties by enacting the road bond assumption act, authorizing the use of one cent of the gasoline tax to retire bonds issued by counties for building lateral roads, as well as for building roads that are now part of the State system. This legislation, however, probably will have to undergo a court test, so far as the principle of the State assuming county debts is concerned.

Legislation virtually guaranteeing a per capita apportionment of rural air money of $22.50 per pupil was enacted, ending a long controversy and establishing definitely a state aid policy. The liberal solons donated to the counties an additional $4,500,000 a year with a general tax remission bill, remitting half the ad valorem taxes for five years, which the Governor is yet to act upon. It liberalized the pension law to eliminate consideration of children in determining the need of applicants, but until the Board of Control works out details of its regulations under the new law, and gets an opinion from the Federal Social Security Board on Federal participation, no estimate can be made of the effect of this act. Some authorities have estimated it will add 80,000 oldsters to the pension roll, and not a penny of new revenue was added. The Board of Control will continue to administer the pension law until September after which the newly created State Department of Welfare, administering all of the State's social security program, will take over. As with pension financing, nothing was done to raise money for the blind, dependent children, and teachers' pensions.

Political Effects Uncertain

What will be the political effect of the session cannot be determined with any accuracy until some of the new laws are applied and the reaction of the people is ascertained. O'Daniel partisans were quick to claim that the governor "is stronger with the people than ever before," and that "he has put the buck on the Legislature's back." The Governor gambled on the success of his plan—one long sought by the wealthy special interests—to submit a sales tax to the people, containing a protective clause limiting taxes on natural resources for social security purposes. He lost, being unable to muster the necessary two-thirds majority in the House. He used the radio, abused the legislators, turned every manner of pressure ever known in Austin, and some new ones, on the minority. He has made bitter political wounds, which will be slow to heal. He has virtually committed himself to the task of defeating those who wouldn't see it his way. That he may find a difficult task. Among the "56" irreconcilables are G. C. Morris, Joe

Keith, Albert Dorden, Judge S. J. Isaacks, Leighton Cornett, Harvey Riviere, and a dozen others who are recognized as among the ablest men in the House. These members enacted much beneficial legislation which their constituents wanted. O'Daniel may find that in addition to re-electing himself, he may have bitten off more than he can chew if he attempts to participate in 56 other political races simultaneously next summer. Others have tried it, and failed. But O'Daniel, he remembered, is a political phenomenon, the like of which has never been seen before in Texas.

No Special Session

The Governor has made it clear that he will seek re-election, and that he does not intend to call a special session of the 46th. Opinion here is almost unanimous, both among his friends and foes, that he will change his mind about that, as he has about so many other issues. Pressure from the old folks and other groups, when the pension question is shaken down and the new laws applied, will undoubtedly be strong and constant. It may be found necessary to revise the "liberalized" pension law, to prevent loss of $10,000,000 year of Federal contribution.

Lobby Probe Fizzles

A 48-hour sensation was created when County Attorney Paul Holt, of Travis County, convened a court of inquiry in a local justice court, and summoned 20 prominent lobbyists for an investigation of lobbying. Holt was generally credited with having been induced to call the court by Senator Joe Hill, who wanted to prove that Gov. O'Daniel's ridiculous charge that the sales tax amendment was being opposed by the special interest lobby, was untrue. Holt got "cold feet" however, and called off the investigation before it started, announcing that he didn't have sufficient evidence to proceed, and requesting an indefinite postponement. Rumor was that Holt got strong and unfavorable reaction from his own constituency in Austin, where the lobbyists spend a good many thousands of dollars with local hotels, restaurants, merchants, etc. The serving of summons for the inquiry, however, did have the effect of relaxing the pressure for passage of the sales tax resolution on the final day, as the nervous lobbyists scurried for cover.

Wheat News

According to reports brought The News by farmers, the wheat crop is threshing from 25 to 40 bushels to the acre and is testing as high as 64. Taken as a whole there is no doubt but that this year's crop is the best this county has ever produced. Last week the price was $1.00 per bushel and many thousands of bushels were sold at that price. Threshing is well under way and in another week or two most of the grain will be shelled out and the farmers will be giving their attention to cotton and feed.

Brief Bits of News From Here and There

Two court decisions, one in the North Carolina Supreme court, and one in the Supreme court of Colorado, have ruled that associations formed among grocery stores for the purpose of more advantageous buying are subject in these states to the same tax that chain stores are subject to in all states having a chain store tax. These loosely formed organizations are organized around a wholesale house which attends to the buying, advertising display, window dressing store display and advises in the keeping of finance records. There are in the United States 750 of these voluntary chains with a merchant membership of 109,000. This is twice as many stores as the corporate chains have, for whose control the bill was originally passed. It is predicted that the Supreme courts in other states will make similar rulings.

In 1938 Congress appropriated $450,000 for an examination by the Federal Trade Commission of the automobile industry for the purpose of determining the possible existence of monopoly or other violations of antitrust laws. It rather admitted active competition and consumer benefits to a greater degree than any other industry studied by the commission.
