NOTICE! CITY DELINQUENT TAXES!

In our recent campaign to collect City taxes, those owing back taxes responded very good. We had numerous requests for an extension of the time of putting on the interest and penalty, so with this in mind we have extended that time to October 15th, 1939. Several of the largest taxpayers think they can pay all of their taxes by that time.

The City Council voted to accept partial payments of Delinquent Taxes. If you can't pay all of your taxes, by all means to protect your property, pay part of them. Regular weekly or monthly payments will pay them before you realize it, so be sure to pay some each month. If you will do this, the City can get by and so can the taxpayer.

Your response to this program will govern, to a large measure, the interest and penalty program that we will be forced to put into effect if the Delinquent Taxes are not paid.

For further information call at the City Hall.

City Council,

City of Crowell, Texas.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Heaven and earth shall pass away; but my words shall not pass away" (Mark 13:31). The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "If men understood their real spiritual source to be all blessedness, they would struggle for recourse to the spiritual and be at peace; but the deeper the error into which mortal mind is plunged, the more intense the opposition to spirituality, till error yields to Truth" (page 329).

Two Minute Sermon (By Thomas Hastwell)

The Greatest Adventure: Man, by nature, is an adventurer, a discoverer. Through all ages this desire to discover the unknown has lured him into strange and new lands and new fields of discovery. It brought Columbus across thousands of miles of uncharted seas to discover America. It has taken intrepid explorers into the jungles of Africa. It has prompted men to brave the cold in their search for the poles. It has led men into the field of invention until their discoveries have contributed much to the comfort and luxury of living. It has caused men to delve into the science of medicine that they may discover some new fact or grain of truth that will contribute to the alleviation of human suffering and ailments. Then there is the discovery that man makes when he finds himself, when he discovers the work in life for which he was made. These are all great and wonderful discoveries, but a greater and more wonderful discovery than any of these comes to a man when he discovers God. When God becomes to him a real personality, a being to whom he can turn in time of stress with faith and confidence and trust and belief. It brings a reward of content and peace and satisfaction found in no other discovery that man can make. The discovery of God is truly man's greatest adventure.

Ancient Institution

Chain stores, contrary to popular belief, are not new institutions in the world's economy. As long ago as 200 years before Christ the Chinese enjoyed their benefits. ## Medical Advice Should Be Sought for Cancer Symptoms

Austin.—"In spite of increased popular education on the cancer problem during the last decade, many false ideas regarding this disease still persist. Too often such conceptions are the basis of delay in diagnosis and treatment. Obviously, figures cannot be compiled, but it can be stated safely that a fair proportion of the thirty thousand preventable cancer deaths now occurring annually in the United States could be avoided if these mistaken notions were corrected," the State Health Department believes. "The following facts are pertinent: (1) Cancer is not contagious; the victim cannot give it to any other person. (2) Cancer is not a blood disease. (3) Diet is not a cause or preventive of cancer; vegetarians and meat eaters are equally susceptible. (4) Aluminum cooking utensils do not cause cancer. (5) Contamination does not cause cancer. (6) Mental worry will not influence the development of cancer. (7) No age is free from cancer; the oldest persons can be its victims. However, it is largely a disease of adult life, occurring chiefly between the ages of forty and seventy. (8) Self-medication is a waste of time and frequently fatal because of the delay involved. (9) Serums, vaccines, colored lights, patent medicines, pastes, salves, and diets are valueless. (10) Quacks and their super-claims, through false hopes and delayed diagnosis, cause many avoidable cancer deaths but do not effect cures. (11) No warning comes from pain. In the early stages and in the pre-cancerous condition, there is no pain or conscious health impairment. The one exception is bone cancer. "With a full appreciation of the above facts and the prompt seeking of medical advice when there are signs of cancer, it is conceivable that many thousands of deaths from this cause could be prevented. "The danger signals are any lump in the breast or any part of the body; any persistent sore, particularly on the face or mouth; any unusual discharge or bleeding from any part of the body, such as coming blood, passage of blood from the bowels, or unusual bleeding of any bodily passage, especially after middle age, and chronic indigestion. Procrastination in the face of any of these signs is dangerous and may even be fatal. "It is true that any one of these symptoms may be caused by a condition other than cancer; however, this fact is no excuse for delay in diagnosis, so that prompt treatment procedures may be instituted, for if cancer is diagnosed sufficiently early, the results of treatment are usually good."

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

BY JULIAN CAPERS JR.

Austin.—A showdown fight between oil conservation authorities of Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Louisiana, Arkansas and New Mexico and a group of major oil companies which cut the price of crude oil in the face of the best statistical position which the industry has enjoyed in 12 years, was under way this week-end. Led by Ernest Thompson, Texas railroad commissioner, the oil states enumerated, which produce more than 65 per cent of the nation's crude, through their representatives at an extraordinary session held in Oklahoma City, ordered shutdowns of their producing wells as a "strike" protest against increasing gasoline prices and declining crude prices. Thompson asked Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel to call a special session of the Legislature, and submit a 5-cent per barrel additional tax on oil, to finance social security in Texas, but O'Daniel promptly refused the request, with the same quick sympathy which he displayed during the recent regular session at every attempt to tax the large interests of the state for social security. He declared it his opinion the Legislature would not pass an oil bill, in rejecting Thompson's request. O'Daniel's judgment of what the Legislature will or will not do proved so inaccurate during the regular session that observers here doubted whether the governor was qualified to forecast legislative action. The oil companies contribute one penny to the present $20,000,000 a year social security program in Texas, the money being derived from taxes on liquor, amusements, and contributions from the Federal government. The oil crisis was precipitated by the Humble Oil Co., leading Texas refiner of crude, and subsidiary of the outlawed Standard. Railroad Commissioner Jerry Sadler demanded an investigation by the Attorney General, and Gerald Mann announced that he already had under way a probe to ascertain whether Humble was violating the state's anti-trust laws. Simultaneously, the Railroad Commission began a hearing on application of Humble to increase by 45 per cent the allowable quotas of its East Texas wells, as the result of a Federal Court order, based on the recent Rowan & Nichols case. Outcome of this hearing was expected to be a complete revision of the present allowable basis used for years in the East Texas field by the Commission, and a new East Texas production order. The Humble and certain other majors have consistently opposed intensive drilling in East Texas, while Thompson, policy-making member of the Commission, has advocated intensive drilling there to give every handowner the fullest opportunity to recover the maximum of oil, and to furnish additional employment to oil field workers. The shutdown order in the various producing states varies from 15 days in Texas to indefinite periods. Conservation officials hope that a restoration of crude prices may come out of the shutdown, and color was lent this hope by the action of several minor oil purchasers who had cut the price, and promptly restored the old schedule. There was no indication whether the Humble and Sinclair, major price cutters, would yield at the week-end.

Thompson's anticipated race for Governor next year was given a decided impetus by his bold stroke in demanding a special session and a tax on oil to pay pensions. The red-headed Colonel, who left the national guard command at Palacios to assume command in the oil crisis, placed O'Daniel in a most embarrassing position. O'Daniel told the old folks that his "first order of business" would be to raise pension money. His own plan failed before the Legislature, and when Thompson proposed what his friends say is a certain and painless method, the Governor shied away from it immediately. All this becomes a part of the "record," which the candidates are so fond of reviewing on the stump and over the radio, when another summer starts the political sap rising in Texas.

Political Sidelight
Thompson's anticipated race for Governor next year was given a decided impetus by his bold stroke in demanding a special session and a tax on oil to pay pensions. Federal Control Menace
Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, and foremost advocate of Federal Oil control in the national administration, promptly took advantage of the oil crisis to urge Federal control of production and other U. S. regulation, as contained in the bill by Congressman Cole of Maryland which failed of passage during the regular session just ended. Opponents of Federal control, which includes most Texas independent oil men, pointed to the prompt and effective co-operative action by the largest oil producing states in agreeing upon and or-ceptive change of pace that throws would-be tacklers completely off stride. He exhibited a bit of this Monday during a spirited afternoon scrimmage. "Davey O'Brien, the Texas Christian passing wizard who signed with Philadelphia's Eagles, claims Todd is the greatest running back ever to come out of the southwest, and the most dangerous player he ever tangled with. "His speed and shiftness should make him a great ground gainer this fall, particularly when it comes to returning punts and kick-offs. He's never played before a big line with plenty of beefy material clearing the way, and yet he has compiled an impressive record."

George White's Opinion

Following is a part of George White's "The Sport Broadcast" which appeared in the Tuesday issue of the Dallas News and in which the sports authority is commenting about Todd in connection with the College All-Stars and the Green Bay Packers, who will play in Dallas on Sept. 4. "One of the most interesting angles to watch in this year's football dream game in the Cotton Bowl Labor Day night between the College All-Stars and the powerful Green Bay Packers will be the performance of Dick Todd, the old Crowell Cyclone and for the last three years the most dreaded ball carrier in the Southwest Conference as a member of the Texas Aggies. "In the eyes of all competent observers, Todd was the greatest ball carrier this section has produced in years. Because of his ruggedness, many rated him over such stars as Bobby Wilson and Weldon Mason. They go back to the days of Wesley Bradshaw at Baylor to find a man they're willing to accept as an equal match for him with both playing under the same circumstances. "It's a pity that boy didn't have a better chance to show his real worth," said Ben Lee Boynton, formerly one of the nation's best grid officials, told me. "Given the right kind of opportunity, he would have proven an easy All-American and one more entitled to that tag of distinction than any footballer we've turned out in years. "Unfortunately, partly due to the fact that the style of play employed by the Aggies wasn't exactly suited to place Dick at his best, and partly due to the fact that, with a shortage of kicking talent at College Station during his tenure he was forced to shoulder this burden also, the public never had an opportunity to learn just how good a football player this West Texas boy really was. "Coaches Dutch Meyer and Matty Bell, who are directing the Collegians for the third time in this year's classic and who hope to keep the Dallas game record clear with another All-Star victory, are known to be banking heavily on Todd. They're known to have some plans hatched up by which they intend to use him quite different from the way he was played in college. They hope to break him loose and let him show his real ability as a broken field runner. They probably will use him at a wide wing or tail-back position, giving him more opportunity to get into the open and in addition to running with the ball from scrimmage they'll put him out on the receiving end of passes. "Todd, who has signed a contract to play professional football with George Preston Marshall's Washington Redskins, who is in training with that club at Spokane, Wash. Only Monday a prepared statement was received from Coach Ray Flaherty. It read in part: "At the close of the first week of training I can truthfully say that the prospects of the 1939 Washington Redskins are as good, if not better, than any previous Redskin team I've coached. "Although the Redskins themselves have two exhibition games booked on the West Coast in which they could use Dick very nicely, George has agreed to fly him into Dallas a week ahead of the game in order that he can become thoroughly acquainted with the role he is to play against the Green Bay Packers and be at his best for this assignment."

dering the shutdown, through the Interstate Oil Compact, as a complete refutation of Ickes' contention that Federal regulation is necessary. In addition to the cost and inconvenience of having to go to Washington to get a permit to drill an oil well, Texas oilmen realize that Washington control will deprive the state of one of its largest potential sources of income, should the Federal government preempt the taxation of oil, a natural corollary to Federal control. There have always been some major oil companies whose guiding geniuses favored Federal control. Many Austin observers believe that the time is not far distant when the oil industry is going to be required by the people of Texas to contribute something toward the costly social security program. Having Governor, to write into the constitution a provision limiting their fraction of one cent a barrel, some of the major companies are under a distinct suspicion of hoping to force Federal control to avoid future state taxation in Texas and elsewhere.
