The W. R. Womack Burial Association

of Foard County, and All Counties within a radius of 100 miles in the State of Texas from Crowell, is now in the process of being organized, and our legally appointed agents or writers are now in the field with our authority to take applications.

Since 1935-1936 to date, we have been in position to co-operate with all those who wanted a small insurance protection for Funeral and/or Burial purposes. We were and are now connected with the Vernon Mutual Life and Accident Association of Vernon, Texas, who issue policies from $100.00 to as high as $1,000.00, depending on the size of policy wanted by applicant. This type of insurance naturally is being written expecting to make a profit after all expenses of whatsoever kind are deducted. So they cannot, and will not take risks and chances that will cut down on their possible profits. We specifically request that you do not drop this type of insurance, if you are now carrying a policy with the Vernon Mutual Life and Accident Ass'n., but if you wish, you can carry our policies and theirs also. Be sure and keep some kind of insurance.

A Burial Benefit or Cash Insurance Law, was passed so that the Texas Undertakers actually doing business in the State of Texas could organize their own burial insurance to give protection to their own trade territory. They can either write for merchandise benefit or cash benefit, however, most of them are writing for merchandise, and that is the plan under which we have organized. This is the only way that we could offer such low rates per person.

The agents of The W. R. Womack Burial Association are now in the field. Please let them present to you our plan for Burial Benefits, and the description of the type and kind of funeral that is listed in each policy.

We are giving a special invitation to the general public, but especially to those of you whom we have been permitted these 34 years to serve in the capacity of your Funeral Director, and in many other ways as your local furniture dealer, to become a member in the W. R. Womack Burial Association. We will give you exactly the type and kind and careful service that is promised as if you paid cash for same.

Respectfully,

The W. R. Womack Burial Association

Overseas Unit Beginning Study Of War-Time Ills

London. — After months of painstaking preparations—including the shipment of a 22-building prefabricated hospital from the United States—a corps of 84 American doctors, medical technicians and Red Cross nurses will be soon engaged in a long-range study of war-time disease which will be conducted by the American Red Cross and Harvard University.

Overseas Unit Beginning Study Of War-Time Ills

Although the immediate aim will be to assist Britain in fighting communicable disease, the long-range purpose of the undertaking will be to get more information about how epidemics start, what can be done to head them off and how the United States can preserve its own health if war ever comes to American shores.

Overseas Unit Beginning Study Of War-Time Ills

These are some of the questions to which Dr. Gordon hopes to find an answer. When the project gets into full swing, doctors and technicians, aided by the overseas corps of Red Cross nurses, will fan out in motorized units, covering an area within a 150-mile radius from the hospital base.

Jesus said unto him, all things are possible to him that believeth.—Mark 9:23.

It is being predicted by those whose knowledge of affairs should result in reliable prediction that the war will last for considerable time, at least throughout the winter and beyond. As a result of the demand upon the resources of this country no one is going to escape the effects. Living costs are going to increase and many things now in common use will be off the market because the material and the factory facilities will be used in defense lines. It is predicted that even those of some means will find it necessary to economize and get along with what they have that industry may be spared as far as possible the burden of production. It is predicted that it is going to be popular to economize and be thrifty.

There is one class of people whom we believe seldom, if ever, receive praise or the credit due them. They go about their work month after month and year after year giving generously of their time and talent. They are seldom rewarded and seldom receive a word of praise. Sometimes we think they are seldom appreciated. We refer to the Sunday School teachers. Many Sunday School teachers spend hours preparing the lesson to teach Sunday. When they appear before their classes, instead of the twenty-three that should be there, whose names are on the roll, six or seven show up. One or possibly two of the seven who are present have given the lesson any thought or study. And so it goes, 52 weeks a year, year after year. Of course, there is some satisfaction that comes to a Sunday School teacher for having done a good job and rendered a service—but even so why should appreciation, real sincere appreciation, be so often and so seldom shown this loyal group of individuals.

Setting adrift in mid-ocean the passengers of the Robin Moor and refusing to radio their position that the survivors might be picked up by passing ships, is an act typical of the man whom some in this country seem to think we could get along with and enjoy business relations with, in the event he is victorious in his campaign to conquer England.

IN ONE RECENT MONTH, U.S. AIRLINES FLEW MORE THAN 10,000,000 MILES—THE DAILY EQUIVALENT OF A TRIP TO THE MOON PLUS 4 JOURNEYS AROUND THE EARTH

IT NOW TAKES 18 CIVILIANS TO "BACK UP" EACH MAN IN UNIFORM—DURING THE WORLD WAR ONLY 5 WERE REQUIRED!

MANGBETO WOMEN OF THE CONGO SHAKE PIPES 6 FEET IN LENGTH

IT WOULD COST OVER $5,000 TO FIRE A SINGLE .50-CALIBER MACHINE GUN FOR ONE HOUR!

IF ALL THE DESCENDANTS OF JUST ONE PAIR OF PARENTS LIVED THEY WOULD NUMBER OVER 355,000,000,000 IN A SINGLE SUMMER.

Scarcely a week passes but that the daily press of the country does not record the death of one or more persons caused as a result of pouring kerosene from a can upon a lighted fire, yet intelligent people continue to do it and suffer burns or horrible death from burns. Pouring kerosene from a spouted can upon a burning fire is every bit as dangerous as pouring gun powder from the same can would be. When kerosene flows out of the can it creates a vacuum within the can which sucks the flame into the can. The instant the flame comes in contact with the oil charged air in the can an explosion occurs that invariably bursts the can and throws the flaming oil upon the unfortunate person holding the can and others in the room. It is so obviously dangerous and foolish that it is difficult to believe why intelligent persons continue to take such unnecessary chances. If you use kerosene to start a fire, first pour it in a cup or open tin can.

Those in the know say that as the defense program progresses the country can expect to feel the squeeze of the unusual demand produced by an abnormal situation. Food prices will advance, cotton prices will advance, the use of chemicals and metals will be restricted. The sale of certain of these items is strictly limited to defense production. Inventories of wholesalers have been taken and these wholesalers have been notified which items they can and cannot sell. The penalty for violation of the order is severe enough to be effectual.

At the close of the war the United States should find herself in a position to have the last say and the deciding vote. By that time we will be in a shape to make suggestions and back them up. It is going to be up to this country to work out, if at all possible, a program upon which peace can be built that will make impossible in the future the thing the world has witnessed the past two years. It is a tremendous task, but a task that the best genius of the age must rise to and meet.

We believe the time has come to forget a little of the free speech upon which we pride ourselves and proceed to depart from this country everyone whose actions are unfriendly to our type of government. There is no need for us to actively participate in the European war at the present time, but there isn't any reason that anyone can give why we can't pitch in and clean up house at home, before it is too late and the termites have the whole structure undermined.

It has come to the point where the number of deaths due to holiday highway accidents can be fairly accurately forecast. A week-end with a holiday on Friday or Monday is usually good for 500 deaths.

What We Think
 (By Frank Dixon)

America and the American way of life face great perils today—perils that in my opinion are relatively greater than any the nation has ever faced in all its history.

There is the peril that will be ours in the event Hitler should defeat England. The long, long years of a costly defense program—a program which because of its far reaching immensity will continue to drain from us all of the surplus and all of the fruits of our toil, until we may find ourselves, though not engaged in war, slaves of the God of War and its insatiable and costly demands.

If Hitler defeats England I can see no end to this costly program of defense. More than that, it will continue to become more costly and a greater and still greater burden as time goes on. War implements have a way of soon becoming obsolete and must be replaced with more and more costly machines.

It is most depressing in my opinion to think that so much of our wealth and so much of our resources, and so much of our physical power may have to be divested from constructive channels that would build up this nation, and be used for those things which never build anything. Great as we are, we can't build for betterment while all our resources are being dumped into the hoppers of the rapacious God of War.

Another peril that I think is ours today is the absence in the hearts and thinking of too many people of a keen and active sense of love and patriotism for this country, and for its institutions, and its way of life.

There is too much passive patriotism, too much taken for granted patriotism, too much dilution of patriotism with Communism and Naziism and other isms. There is too much spirit of tolerance for those isms that have as their underlying principle the destruction and overthrow of this government and the institution in its place of another. We have got to quit temporizing and dodging the issue. We have got to adopt the policy that America is for Americans and begin to enforce it. We have got to put an end to harboring in this country the termites that enervate its patriotism while planning its overthrow. We've got to purge out of our borders all of such.

Things have come too easy for us in this country. We have built a nation almost overnight, the like of which has never existed in the world before. We have gained many wonderful things, but we have lost some vital things. We have become too soft, too indifferent, too selfish, too much wrapped up in our own plans. There is not enough of a definite sense of the real value of it all, of the priceless wonder of it all, we don't realize to the degree that we should what we have in this country of ours. We have got to come to the point where we do realize this. We have got to come to really love it, not passively, not alone for its greatness and its grandeur, but for what of life it has given to us. We've got to come to a point where we love the air of it, the soil of it, the soul of it. We've got to reach a point where the flag means more to us than mere notions of the earth. It has got to become the shekinah of liberty, of a wonderful way of life. We've got to become more passionately concerned for America. We have got to become awakened. We have got to come to know and love this country as Washington knew it, and loved it, as Jefferson knew it, and as Lincoln knew it and loved it.

Unless we do, in the very nature of events, we stand to lose it all. America must wake up.

A nation-wide Gallup poll shows sentiment 4 to 1 favoring a law forbidding strikes in defense industries. Labor has its radical and communistic elements to thank for the rising tide of sentiment against it. Labor should show its independence and purge itself of its undesirable and un-American elements before the whole cause is brought into ill repute.

When cornered the Reds and Communists always resort to the freedom of speech and freedom of political belief defense, yet this is the first thing that Communism puts an end to once it gets its fangs in the throat of a government.

The Communist party should be outlawed in America. If the Democrats and the Republicans can't keep the ship of state on an even keel it just can't be done. There is no place or room for Communists in the United States.

Anti-Nazi public sentiment is said to be developing in France and other conquered countries of Europe, in Spain and Italy and even in Germany itself. If the war drags on into the winter and food supplies run short, as it is predicted they will, internal troubles may be expected.

The invasion of Russia by Hitler is giving the English the chance they have hoped for to build up their air force and equipment—the British Isles and in Africa. For this purpose it appears to have been made to order.

Death—Died at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe W. Beverly, in Crowell on the 6th inst., John W. Bevedy, age twenty-one years and seven months. Johnnie was just budding into manhood when his health began to fail and for the last eighteen months he and his friends have known there was no hope for his recovery, but like a brave soldier he faced death without a tremor, knowing that the Captain of his salvation would give him victory over disease and death in the end. At the age of nine years he was converted and from that time to his death lived a devoted Christian life, taking an active part in the work of the church up to the time his strength failed. When he could no longer perform the active duties of life he waited with patience and resignation for the hour to come when God would call him to "come up higher."

Cotton Producers May Dispose of Cotton to Comply with Program

It is permissible for Foard County cotton producers to dispose of cotton to comply with the supplementary cotton program to bring their acreage reduction in line with the reduction indicated on their intention sheets, Grady Halbert, chairman of the Foard County AAA committee, has announced.

This is made possible, Mr. Halbert explained, by the recent amendment to the 1941 agricultural conservation program which provides that acreage will not be considered as planted to cotton if the cotton is disposed of before reaching the bolting stage or within 10 days after notice of the seeded acreage is given, whichever is later.

"Under no circumstances, however, may a cotton producer receive cotton stamps for reducing more acreage than he signed on his original intention sheet on the cotton stamp program," he pointed out.

"To make this ruling clearer," Halbert said, "assume, just for illustration to bring out my point, that a cotton producer has a 1941 cotton allotment of 50 acres, planted 50 acres in 1940, and to receive cotton stamps, indicated a reduction of 2 acres. This would permit 48 acres to be planted to cotton for this year. However, when the cotton acreage was measured, he showed 49 acres planted. He would be allowed to dispose of 1 acre to come within his intended 48 acres but he would not receive cotton stamps on more than 2 acres since this was the amount signed on his original intention sheet."

Under the original definition of cotton, the acreage of cotton disposed of below the acreage allotment would still be classified as acreage planted to cotton. The amendment also provides that if cotton is seeded but does not reach maturity, the smaller of (1) the acreage seeded to cotton, (2) 3 acres, or (3) 3 per cent of the total amount spent by the railroads for advertising space in newspapers and magazines and radio time and talent in 1940 newspapers received 74.7 per cent, magazines 20.7 per cent and radio 4.6 per cent, according to the Association of American Railroads.

Texas produces around 40 per cent of all the natural gas produced in the United States.

Misses Bertha Womack, Alynne Lanier, Gusta Davis, Mayme Lee Collins, Gladys Plumley of Pawnee, Okla., and Mrs. Irving Fisch left Sunday morning for a vacation trip to Estes Park, Colo. Mrs. Mattie B. Hutchison of Covina, Calif., who has been on an extensive trip through the Southern States, in company with Misses Carrie and Eva Hughston of Dallas and Mrs. Carrie Hart of Rockwood, arrived in Crowell Sunday for a short visit with her brothers, J. E. Beverly and A. Y. Beverly and their families and other relatives and friends. She is en route to her home, after having been here for the 50th celebration in April and in Dallas with her sister, Mrs. Luther Roberts, who will accompany her home. Each contestant drew three steers by lot. Miss Mulhall got two big tough ones at the start. She roped and tied the first one in 1 minute and 45 seconds. She cut that time down to 1 minute and 11 seconds with her second steer and she dropped her third one in the remarkable time of 46 seconds. Her total time for the three was 3 minutes and 36 seconds which was several seconds faster than her nearest cowboy competitor. So they hailed the slight girl (she weighed less than 100 pounds) "Queen of the Range" and awarded her the championship gold medal valued at $1,000. Just to prove that her victory at Fort Worth was no fluke, she entered a steer-roping contest at McAlester, Okla., in 1903 and roped and tied three steers in 30 1/2, 40 and 40 1/2 seconds. From that time on Lucille Mulhall was the sensation of every contest which she entered and her room in the Mulhall ranch house was filled with her trophies. She was the star of the Wild West show which Colonel Mulhall organized and took to the world's fair in St. Louis in 1904. When it showed in Madison Square Garden in New York city the next year, the Eastern papers and magazines waxed lyrical over her and printed pages about the "Best Horsewoman in America." A "Trail Boss." Another of her feats for which she became famous came about in this way: Colonel Mulhall had bought a herd of 700 steers down in the Texas Panhandle but was too busy to go down there and drive them back to his ranch. So Lucille Mulhall proposed that she and her sister, Mildred, take on the job. They took a few cowboys with them but Lucille was the "boss of the outfit" and under her direction the 700 steers were driven over the 300-mile trail through bad weather without suffering the loss of a single steer. When they buried her in the family plot on the Mulhall ranch an old-timer was heard to remark: "Cowgirls and cowboys might live longer if they stuck to horses." Perhaps he was thinking of the fact that Tom Mix, who had once worked on the Mulhall ranch, had been killed in an automobile accident in Arizona a few months earlier and that Will Rogers, who had also been a Mulhall ranch cowboy and a rider and roper in Colonel Zach's Wild West show, had lost his life in an airplane accident in Alaska.

Historical Highlights

Historical Highlights by Elmo Scott Watson (Released by Western Newspaper Union.) The 'Original Cowgirl' WHEN an automobile accident resulted in the death of Lucille Mulhall near the town of Mulhall, Okla., recently, it snapped another link with the Old West. For she was the "original cowgirl," the first of that tribe of daring young women who risk their necks riding bucking broncos and roping steers or calves. But unlike many of the "synthetic cowgirls" you see at the rodeos or in circuses today, Lucille Mulhall was "authentic." She was the daughter of Col. Zach Mulhall, a pioneer of Oklahoma, whose ranch on Beaver creek once comprised more than 80,000 acres. While she was still a little girl her father offered to give her every yearling she could rope and brand by herself. But he soon begged off on his bargain when he noticed how many of his steers were wearing the brand of "L. M."

Old-Timer Sums Up Conditions in County for the Year 1941 To The Foard County News and the Citizens of Foard County: As one of the remaining old-timers of Foard County, I would like to make a few remarks on the conditions here today. I will have lived here fifty-two years on the 7th day of next September, and have never seen conditions just as they have been this spring and summer. We have never had as good promise and as poor performance as this year's wheat crop gave, in my opinion, and I have been farming here myself, or closely connected with farming since I landed here in '89. Out of eleven hundred acres sowed in wheat on my land last fall only a little over half was harvested at all. From four hundred and fifty to five hundred acres will never be touched by combine or binder. The average yield of the acreage harvested was about ten bushels, which was better than the average the county over. The grade was poor. As to the cotton crop, that is in the future. This much we know, it is all late and a rainy fall would undoubtedly bring worms or fleas to destroy it. We have seen that happen to late cotton before. This is my jeremiad—take it all in all, Foard farmers are, in my estimation, facing about the gloomiest year in their history, though some of them have not realized it, I am afraid. C. P. Sandifer.

FOARD CITY H. D. CLUB An interesting book, "Trees to Heaven," was reviewed by Mrs. Grady Halbert at the meeting of the Foard City Home Demonstration Club Tuesday at the club house. With Mrs. Frank Cates as hostess, assisted by Mrs. G. M. Canup, cookies and punch were served to club members and one visitor, Mrs. Glennie Owens. Next meeting will be a called meeting Tuesday, July 22, with Mrs. A. L. Davis as hostess. Miss Joelle Vannoy, county home demonstration agent, will be present. Landscaping the yard will be her demonstration. All members are urged to be present and visitors are always welcome. Whatever it was Hess didn't get it done.

Deal With A Bank That Has Confidence in YOU We Place Our Confidence in You So That You Will Have Confidence in Us. Confidence is the foundation of a bank. Without it no bank can live. Confidence is the total belief that another person or institution will carry out his promises. We have always believed in the people of this community because they keep their promises. You believe that your word is a solemn and binding obligation and we honor you for it. Look at the illustration, it symbolizes the harvest, the end of the growing season, the time when every farmer sells his produce and thinks of the obligations he has contracted during the year. We know that every farmer who has an obligation to us will come in at this time to square accounts, or help toward the payment of his debt. But it isn't to our regular customers that we are speaking because they know that we have confidence in them, and they have confidence in us, but to you who have never taken advantage of our services and learned of the great help we can give you. Come in today and talk with us about our services and open an account. We want to prove to you that we have confidence in you so that you may have confidence in us. CROWELL STATE BANK Member of F. D. # Consumers Should Know How Living Standards Are Raised is the fourth in a series of studies prepared by the Bureau of Research and Education of the Advertising Federation of America in response to the interest of consumers in affecting advertising practices.

most important question in the life of any civilization is the standard of living under it. In the beginning of civilization the first men lived each depending on his own strength and ingenuity to produce the necessities of life for himself and his family. His tools, food, clothing, and shelter were all produced by him. The living standards of the first family were severely limited.

economic organization, the highest individual skill and intelligence could not have produced a comfortable living for all. It would have been impossible for an individual to produce the things any of us use today, even if he and his whole family had the strength of giants and they each possessed the skill of all modern men.

It is interesting to think of this apparent riddle for a moment. The answer is simple. It puts our finger on the things that have raised living standards in the past and will be higher in the future. It is our friend, the cave man, who had to get the things he needed to work with in groups, all producing the things they needed. And before they began producing, they would have had to put in a great deal of time and work building a large quantity of tools, materials and structures.

we have the two requirements without which the cave man could not have survived. One is the need for goods and services that he must produce for himself; and second, he must be supplied with the tools, materials and structures necessary for the production of these goods and services.

first requirement, men produced goods for each other, it is possible when it is practical for workers to exchange the products of their work. The modern method is to use money, and a part of merchandising. A man works in a shoe factory takes home each Saturday a basketful of shoes. He cashes and goes to a store to buy shoes for himself and his family. Free and active exchange is necessary for successful operation of the system.

second requirement, an exchange of buildings, materials, transportation facilities, farm developments, and tools for producing goods, is possible when for a long period it has been a habit for individuals to put effort into these things, with the expectation that they will benefit from so doing.

people are to have a standard of living it is necessary to have a continually increasing amount of these facilities and equipment for producing goods, for the production capacity of any people sets the one rigid limit to the amount of goods they can have, and, therefore, the top limit of their living standard for the time being.

So there we have the two simple ingredients for raising the standard of life, a more active exchange of goods and a greater capacity to produce them. There can be no substitute methods. It is always helpful to keep these simple facts in mind. Sometimes there are temporary complicating conditions which draw our attention away from them. But no matter what else may be true, these fundamental principles are always there and can never be any less true than they always have been.

The economic arrangement by which our form of society produces and exchanges goods can hardly be said to be man-made. It was never thought out by man, and can almost be described as the work of nature. It may sound strange to say this, perhaps, but basically it is true. Our methods and customs having to do with the making and distributing of goods have grown out of the natural instincts and habits of human beings everywhere. From the most primitive bartering to complex modern merchandising, each change in method came as a step made necessary by the increasing production and demand and developed in harmony with human nature.

Forms of government have sometimes been changed successfully through violence, but the general form of the system for production and distribution of goods has never been changed successfully by force, except in the direction of making it more free to develop naturally. In recent years, several nations have felt compelled to impose certain drastic changes on their economic systems, but they have only succeeded in building up military power at the expense of the living standards of their peoples.

It took thousands of years to develop our economic system. Uncounted millions of individuals have worked on this development, each trying his best to be economically useful. Innumerable experiments throughout the ages tested every conceivable sort of method and step by step the most practicable and most workable methods were adopted and became a part of the system.

It would be a mistake to think of this development as being completed. It will never be finished. Our economic arrangement is never perfect and the process of making it better must always continue. Changes must come slowly, however, accompanied by all kinds of experimentation. Nations that have used a heavy hand in forcing drastic changes will regret their unwise policies, though for the time they may serve the ends of their power.

In this country we have made mistakes too, but our form of government is such that we can profit by those mistakes. Business and government have gained valuable experience. So long as we are a free people, we will continue to improve our methods and to make possible higher standards of living.

But we must always keep in mind the fundamental elements which alone can bring about a greater production and distribution of goods and a better living for all the people.

Often we hear that the greatest need is for more purchasing power. That is true; obviously we must have more money to spend more. But it is also true that all purchasing power comes from production, and that we cannot increase it by merely passing money around. Every dollar's worth of wealth was brought into existence by someone who produced it through the work of his hand and brain. Money is just a lot of tickets for work done, entitling us to some of the products of other persons' work. We need it for convenience in exchanging goods and services.

What we need for a higher living standard is greater production. We cannot get this by simply commanding all producers to turn out more goods. That would be disastrous. Channels of trade would be cluttered up with unsold goods and everything would get out of order.

Arbitrarily increasing production would not automatically raise the standard of living even though it would increase purchasing power. Goods plus purchasing power do not necessarily equal purchases. Why? Simply because we are people and not statistics. People do not react automatically on a mathematical formula.

If production is to be increased (and it must be to raise the living standard) it must be increased in an orderly manner, in response to increased demand. Each industry will produce more when the public shows an inclination to buy more of its products. And new industries get under way as we favor them with our purchases. As we start buying more, individual companies see their sales going up and begin making more goods. That means additional wages to their employees and therefore more purchasing power.

With optimism for the future, business will then build more plants and machines, giving employment and earnings to those who make such equipment. Thus greater prosperity results and we have enlarged the means for a better standard of living.

It is evident that one of the most important elements in all this is the creation of demand. Under modern conditions, this is accomplished chiefly through advertising. This method of stimulating the sale of goods has proved to be very effective and economical, and almost every kind of business now uses advertising in getting its goods sold.

It is sometimes said, inaccurately, that extra efforts to sell goods cannot increase total sales because consumers have only a fixed amount of purchasing power. The fact is that there always exists a margin of idle purchasing power in the hands of consumers. It is what might be called a psychological margin, to be used or withheld, according to the temper of the public. The absolute amount of unused buying power is not so important as the temper it reflects. If some of it is induced to go to market, sales immediately rise and may be followed by increases in production, wages, and still more purchasing.

Sales and advertising efforts are tremendously important as stimulants in the cycle of increased buying, selling, producing, and earning. These elements must all move upward together, with the psychological leadership in the hands of buyers.

Advertising, playing its role in the raising of living standards, has even more important work to do than its purely economic function. There is no force in existence today which is as powerful as advertising in creating a more insistent demand by all people for possession of the things essential to a higher standard of life.

To the individual man or woman, this means greater ambition and initiative, and harder striving to earn a better living and to provide the advertised comforts and luxuries. Since society is nothing but individual men and women, the general level cannot help but be raised when the individuals get more ambitious and work harder.

In this country we have vast natural resources, and in this respect our nation is peculiarly fortunate. When we think of our rich source of raw materials, our immense tracts of fertile land, and our incomparable diversified climate, we may well feel confidence in the future of our people. So far as the available materials are concerned, we see possibilities of living standards far higher than anything we may have dreamed in the past.

This Week In Defense

President Roosevelt informed Congress he had ordered a Navy force to Iceland to "forestall any pincers movement by Germany against the Western Hemisphere." He said German occupation of that country would threaten the North American continent, shipping in the North Atlantic, and the flow of munitions to Britain. The President said the Navy had been ordered to take "all necessary steps" to insure safety of communications "in the approaches between Iceland and the United States, as well as on the seas between the U. S. and other strategic outposts."

The President later told his press conference that whether Iceland lies outside the Western Hemisphere is an academic question. He said there are points outside the commonly accepted Hemisphere limits which are of importance to U. S. defense, and that in occupying Iceland he acted to forestall a hostile move which strategists considered logical or likely.

Selective Service Headquarters announced that 21-year-olds who registered July 1 will be given draft numbers so they will be called in proportion to previous registrants rather than ahead of or after older men. Older numbers will be determined by national lottery on July 17.

Headquarters advised local boards to defer men who have volunteered for civilian or military duty with Canadian or British forces. The House passed legislation to permit deferment of all men who were 28 on July 1.

The President allocated $14,000,000 of WPA funds for a program to educate 1,000,000 aliens in the duties and responsibilities of citizenship. More than 11,000 teachers on WPA rolls will conduct classes for aliens who wish to become citizens.

Registered Civilian Organizations WPA announced that more than 200,000 national, State and local civilian organizations with 50,000,000 members will be catalogued within the next 60 days to determine the parts the organizations and individuals can play in home defense so the Office of Civilian Defense can find qualified persons for new programs. All except purely social clubs will be indexed.

Civilian Supply OPM conservation officials announced that "our purchases, our habits, our daily lives, perhaps even our styles, will be controlled by the requirements of national defense." Some of the changes facing the public, according to OPM: No corks in bottle tops; Beverages in bottles rather than cans; silk used in parachutes will make silk stockings more scarce; women will have fewer permanent waves; cosmetics, and facial creams; it will not be patriotic to buy two automobiles; farmers will choose from 300 instead of 1,400 types of plows; chrome, copper, aluminum and woods such as mahogany will probably not be available to the furniture industry, and many designs will be eliminated.

Buy Coal Now The Federal Bituminous Coal Consumers' Counsel appealed to the nation to buy coal now so it can be moved from the mines before growing defense production burdens the country's transportation system. There is an ample supply of coal, the Counsel said, but by September 15 shortages in some places may develop unless coal is stored for the winter before then.

Prices Price Administrator Henderson announced that price ceilings on rubber tubes and other rubber products will be deferred for several months to allow the industry time to work out price problems voluntarily. He announced, however, that ceiling prices will be placed within a few days on cottonseed oil and certain grades of west coast lumber used by the government. Mr. Henderson also stated that recent action to check rises in hide prices does not mean the OPACS experts to freeze livestock or meat prices.

Army The President asked Congress for an additional $4,700,000,000 for the Army, most of it for purchase of heavy guns, $400,000,000 for clothing and other equipment, $200,000,000 for the Air Force and $350,000,000 for the Signal Corps, and $1,000,000 for horses. The War Department announced formation of a completely motorized, and heavily armed experimental division, strengthened with tanks, with 5 per cent more fire power than a present armored division although with 14,000 instead of 15,550 men. The Department also announced that to bolster anti-tank defenses, anti-tank specialists will be assigned to every Army large unit to work out methods of defeating armored force attacks.

Air OPM announced that during June 1,476 military planes were delivered to the Army, Navy and Great Britain—142 more than the previous month and a new record. The War Department announced contracts of nearly $200,000,000 for new airplane manufacturing facilities and ordered all Air Corps Reserve Officers except those in key civilian positions to active duty by August 1. The Army Air Force established its own Air Staff to form Air Force plans and decide on equipment and other matters without the approval of the General Staff as heretofore.

Navy The President asked Congress for $1,625,000,000 in appropriations and contract authority for the Navy for additional ordnance, yard equipment, planes, and repairs, including $400,000,000 for defense installations on naval and private ships—anti-mine equipment, armor, etc., but, the President emphasized, not for guns to arm merchant ships. Rear Admiral Robinson, Chief of the Navy's Bureau of Ships, announced the Navy shipbuilding program is proceeding so rapidly that "every single combat ship is ahead of schedule." He said the problem of labor supply has been solved and the rate of expansion is limited chiefly by the ability to obtain materials.

Ships The President asked Congress for $1,698,000,000 for the U. S. Maritime Commission, including $4,098,000,000 in cash for new ships and $1,296,000,000 in contract authorizations. The U. S. Maritime Commission announced a saving of more than 600,000 tons of steel in the building of 705 commission-designed ships by construction methods not known in the first World War. The Commission said the greatest single weight saving measure was the introduction of welding to replace riveting so that entire ships are now built without a single rivet.

Twenty-First Call on Texas Is for 446 Negro Selectees

State Selective Service Headquarters today announced the Army's twenty-first call on Texas for 446 Negro selectees for induction August 4th and 28th.

Texas' readjusted gross quota, fixed on May 15 and projected into the future as a sort of "bank account" upon which the armed forces may draw from time to time, is 136,488 men, according to General J. Watt Page, State Selective Service Director.

As of May 15, Texas had 27,050 men actually in training under Selective Service, and National Headquarters had given Texas a credit of 80,140 men, representing members of the armed forces from this State, exclusive of those inducted through Selective Service. The total of these two figures, when deducted from the gross quota, left Texas' net quota for future calls 29,298.

By June 30, General Page added, Texas had received credit against its net quota for 1,887 men inducted under Selective Service since May 15.

When a politician announces that he is retiring from politics it is a sign he has come to the conclusion that he can't get anywhere in politics.

Many Young Men Have Enlisted in U. S. Marine Corps

With registration of the second group of young men who have reached the age of 21 since the first registration, many of them have already volunteered for service in the U. S. Marine Corps. These young men may enlist in the Marines for either the four year period or in the Reserve for the duration of the national emergency, after which they will be immediately discharged.

The Headquarters Recruiting District of Dallas announced today they would open a temporary office in the post office for five days, from July 21 to 25, in each of the following named places, to accept applications for enlistment in the Marines: Vernon and Wichita Falls, Texas.

While in the above named places, the recruiting officer will accept an unlimited number of applications for enlistment, and men who pass examinations given in these places, will be furnished transportation to Dallas, where final examinations are given, and enlistment is accomplished. From Dallas, men enlisted will be transferred to the Marine Corps Base at San Diego, Calif., where after about eight weeks' of training, they will be further transferred to all branches of the Marine Corps. Many choices are available to men who enlist now, including aviation, tank units, parachute troops, infantry, artillery, sea duty aboard battleships and cruisers, foreign duty, and many schools for actual shop training.

Parents of young men are invited to visit the recruiting officer, so the advantages of the Marine Corps may be explained to them also.

As ex-officio chairman of the Steering Committee, County Judge Leslie Thomas is asking the wholehearted co-operation of every citizen of the county to the end that Foard County may do its part in this campaign. In these times of national emergency, conservation of all vital resources needed for defense purposes is essential. It is important to make available to the Government all material the defense program requires.

It is heart-warming to note the county-wide response which has

Ordinary Table Salt Will Help Prevent Heat Cramps

Austin.—If your work is such that causes excessive perspiration, add a pinch of ordinary table salt to each drink of water you take to help prevent heat cramps. This is advised by Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, to prevent a possible increase in the number of heat victims as the Texas thermometer hits 95 degrees and above.

Laborers, mechanics, farmers and white collar workers whose work causes them to sweat profusely, are in danger of having their body salt content become deficient with resulting heat cramps or heat fag. Salt is a prominent constituent of sweat; the body may lose as high as 40 to 50 grams of salt during hot days.

In industry, a method of preventing heat cramps is to take a tablet of pure salt or mixture of salt and dextrose with each drink of water. Workmen whose duties require muscular exertion should be especially careful to add more than the usual amount of salt to what they eat and drink.

Salt deficiency may be prevented by taking salt in various ways. Where prepared tablets are not available, table salt may be added to each drink of water. Milk is a source of salt and will help to make up for the deficiency caused by sweating. Alcoholic drinks should be avoided.

Heat cramp is characterized by pains (cramps) in the abdominal region, headache, and in severe cases, by nausea and vomiting. The body temperature remains about normal, likewise the pulse rate, but yast losses occur without the knowledge of the individual until there is a deficiency; then the abdominal muscles begin to cramp.

INVITATION ACCEPTED

The Colonel's wife sent the following note to Captain Brown: "Colonel and Mrs. White request the pleasure of Captain Brown's company to dinner on the 20th."

Captain Brown's reply gave her quite a shock. It read: "With the exception of two sick men, Captain Brown's company have very great pleasure in accepting your kind invitation."—Santa Fe Magazine been received to date from each and every person called upon to serve upon any committee or to assist in any manner possible and it is deeply appreciated. Every citizen who can contribute aluminum in any form is earnestly solicited to do so. Housewives are urged to make all donations possible. There may be later appeals for help in other forms after this one, but a wholehearted, popular response by the American people to this first general appeal from their Government cannot fail to impress the enemies of democracy.

All organizations in the county are urged to get behind this campaign and give it widespread publicity. Many organizations have already come forward tendering their services in this campaign. It is hoped that Foard County will make a sizeable contribution to this campaign to the end that if all counties in Texas do the same, the world may know that Texas is doing its share toward defending the Nation.

Don't forget the week of July 21-29. Bring out old pots and pans and what have you. "Let's keep our planes flying, our factories going at top speed and our morale high," Judge Thomas urged.

ROTARY CLUB

Visitors at the regular meeting of the Crowell Rotary Club Wednesday were Jim Cates, Rev. Mrs. Paul J. Merrill, and Orval Holt. Jack Seale was in charge of the program which consisted of an interesting and helpful talk by Rev. Merrill.

Texas has approximately 90 per cent of the entire oil refining capacity of the nation.

MEN WANTED

There's more than one way that advertising brings men to work.

The most important way is when advertising is used to increase sales.

Instead of "men wanted," it says, "customers wanted."

And more customers mean more jobs in the stores and factories that keep busy by using advertising.

Clean Clothes Are Always COOL Clothes

Step into your summer suit just back from Brooks Tailor Shop and you're prepared to face the most torrid heat-wave. You feel fresh and clean when your clothes are that way. Get the Brooks Tailor Shop habit and send them here often. It's popularity insurance for you during hot weather. Start this week!
