Warning Issued Not to Treat Lightly Mild Cases of Diseases

Austin.—With the incidence of chickenpox and mumps more than 50 per cent higher than records indicate for a seven year median, Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, issued a statement today declaring, "It is a great mistake to treat even light cases of measles, chickenpox, mumps, scarlet fever, or any other of the communicable diseases of childhood as though they did not amount to much. That sort of treatment makes it possible for these diseases to spread and cause serious outbreaks among children and their resulting impaired resistance makes them easy victims to other forms of infection."

What We Think (By Frank Dixon)

In my opinion the biggest problem before the world today is the problem of world peace.

Future world peace is not by any means the only problem that faces this country and the world today but it is under all circumstances the biggest and most important.

In feeling that peace is the biggest problem I do not underrate the problem of post war readjustment, post war planning, and post war standards of living as they will be affected by our impressive national debt.

I regard future world peace as the biggest and most important problem because of what it means to the future well being and future prosperity of the world.

Obviously if we are to be regularly plunged into wars of world wide proportions every twenty-five or thirty or fifty years there is little to be gained in working to build a prosperous economic and industrial back-log except on a scale as it will prove an aid in bettering our lot.

As I see it, it does not matter how prosperous we may become, how great a navy, or army, or air force we may come to have or with what resources we may stock our arsenal at home, when war comes it is going to strip it clean.

Because of these things and what they mean to any future long time program for advancement and enrichment culturally, industrially and economically, I believe that the United States is bound by obligations it cannot ignore to leave no stone unturned and to shirk no responsibility in the matter of shaping up the plans that have for their future aim and design world wide peace.

This is not only desirable, it is imperative. It is the outstanding heritage that this generation can bestow upon posterity. It is more than that, it is our most sacred obligation to posterity.

In this connection I am reminded of the reply of Mordecai to Esther when he had impudently interceded with the king for her people and who wavered and faltered: "Who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?"

Whether we like the idea or not it is my opinion that the maintenance of future world peace is going to be largely up to this country. We may hold out and in a spirit of grand isolationism say that the next war is not our war that we did not start it and have no business in it, but when the war chariots of the oppressor sweep over the land and the very foundations of liberty and democracy are threatened we are going to throw off our cloak of isolationism and go again to the rescue of human liberty, democracy and the oppressed.

For this reason I feel that we are bound to take an active, a leading, an aggressive part in all plans that have for their aim and hope, world peace. We must not be deterred because the plan appears not to be perfect. We must do all we can to make it the best possible plan and then stay on the job and work continuously and incessantly and persistently to

Easter Hopes

The celebration of Easter marks the event which started the great Christian movement that has become such a power in the earth.

Then came the news that Jesus had risen from the dead. Just what happened is not clear to some minds, but some mighty transformation had occurred, and it changed these followers from a beaten and baffled group to one that was bold and confident, and ready to undertake a mission to change the world.

The human mind is appalled by the mystery of death. The people whom we have loved and trusted are taken away from us. Where are they, and what has become of them? Shall we ever see them again? Such questions have perplexed every age of man since earliest history.

The story of the resurrection of Jesus gives us reason to hope that the separation of death is not a permanent thing. The idea that this life is all there is in the universe, does not fit in with our conception of the power that rules the world. It would seem that the power that made us would be superior to the creatures he has made.

So we rejoice with hope and confidence on Easter day, feeling that the power that enabled the life and work of Jesus to continue will rescue us when we finally sink into the eternal silence. It is a suggestion also that we have to deserve immortality by a useful and helpful life in order to win it.

New Business

A business promoter was once asked how it was that many towns succeed in getting new industries.

He accounted for many cases of obtaining such industries in this way: "Let us suppose," he said, "that one of your men who is a live wire and deeply interested in the progress of the community, goes on a visit some time to friends located elsewhere, or spends a vacation at some summer resort."

"He is so full of enthusiasm for his home town that he keeps talking about it and telling of its advantages. His words are heard by other people. Some day it happens that they are heard by some man who wants to branch out in his business. Conditions may not be just right where he is located. He is impressed by the remarks which this citizen made about his home town. He investigates that community and decides to locate his new enterprise there. Many new industries are obtained in that way, through someone's enthusiasm and habit of boasting."

The picture of the Marine Corps raising the flag on Mount Suribachi on Iwo Jima was taken by Associated Press photographer, Joe Rosenthal. The picture at once appealed to Americans as dramatically typical of the Marines. Plans are already under way in a number of cities to erect monuments using the picture as a model. A bill has been presented in Congress by Rep. Joe Hendricks, of DeLand, Florida, providing that the picture be used as a model for a Marine Corps monument in Washington.

Washington News

By Congressman Ed Gossett, 13th District, Texas.

Washington, D. C., March 23.—Among bills passed by the House of Representatives this week was one extending selective service, and another making annual appropriations to the Department of Agriculture.

Selective Service was extended until July, 1946, unless sooner terminated by Presidential proclamation or by an act of Congress. The draft extension bill as presented to the House was not subject to amendment. There is one provision in the draft law in particular with which some of us have been greatly displeased. Under selective service, deferments are subtracted, and state quotas fixed on the number of remaining eligibles. This has required numerically greater contributions from states having the fewest deferments.

The Agricultural appropriation bill has grown into a voluminous document. More than 1,800 pages of testimony were presented to the House. Although the bill as passed by the House reduces the budget estimate 141 million dollars, it still appropriates the enormous sum of 975 million dollars to run the Department of Agriculture for the next fiscal year.

Some 30 Baptist Churches in the City of Washington are now engaged in evangelistic campaigns. On Sunday night Baptist members were especially invited to hear Major William C. Taggart, Chaplain, at the Luther Rice Memorial Baptist Church, Congressman Beckworth, Sumners, and I attended the service, and it was my pleasure to have Chaplain Taggart as a luncheon guest in the Capitol on Monday, following his delivery of the invocation on the opening of the Senate.

Incidentally, Bill Taggart calls Wichita Falls home, and was pastor of a small church there when he entered the Army Chaplain Corps. Taggart served in Java, and credits the Lost Battalion with saving the lives of himself and others who escaped Java to Australia. He ministered to the famous 19th Bombardment Squadron in the early days of the war. He has been decorated for bravery, and at one time saved a 75-vehicle convoy from falling into Jap hands. He is best known as author of the book, "My Fighting Congregation."

Speaking of religion, the 23 members of the Texas Delegation, 21 Representatives and two Senators, have various religious faiths. Seven are Baptists, seven Methodists, three belong to the Christian Church, two are Presbyterians, one Episcopalian, one Catholic, and one Universalist.

In Capitol cloakrooms one frequently hears debates on what should be done with leading war criminals. This week's statement of famous English cleric that Hitler should be hanged without trial has provoked some discussion. That Hitler should be hanged seems to be a matter on which most agree. SUNNY SQUIBBLE The doctors listen to the sound of our hearts, but the public seems more stirred by the sound of the coins jingling in pockets. Many old folks are sore because they are too old, and many young folks are sore because they are too young. The old song told about rocking in the cradle of the modern world prefers a good automobile. The philosophers urge a search for truth, but the ordinary run of people may spend more searching in their pockets money.

Home Town Life The future of a community depends in part on whether people enjoy living in it. It may be said that people will live in any place where they have a good job or favorable business chance. But if they dislike the place where they live, they are more likely to accept chances to leave it. If they like the place, they make less effort to go elsewhere. Some young people are influenced in their choice of careers by the kind of time they have in their home towns. If such a place is full of life and activity, they hate to leave it. Many of them will stay on if there is a decent chance to make a living there. Social life, facilities for education, and pleasant entertainments, are factors in the future of a community.

AGRICULTURE

OUR VISIT TO THE SPUR EXPERIMENT STATION

Last Thursday Frank Welch, Virgil Johnson and myself attended a Field Day at the Spur Experiment Station. There were about thirty farmers and county agents present at this meeting from counties in this area.

May we say here that we doubt if any experiment station in this section of the state has done more constructive and practical work than this station and we feel sure that Ray Dickson, who has been in charge of the station for a decade, is one of the most capable leaders among all of the superintendents in this or any other section of the country.

There are many phases of the work under way at this station. We will mention four. The work in soil and water conservation, the improving and development and adaptation of farm crops such as cotton and grain sorghums, the experiments in livestock feeding to determine certain useful practices and the value of certain feed crops in a ration, and the work done in mesquite eradication.

In soil conservation the work of this station has been outstanding in that the facts developed on this station have furnished the basis for a nation-wide soil conservation program.

On one area the impounding of surplus water favoring the increase in production has amounted to $6.00 per acre on an 18-year average. On a grazing plot set to mesquite grass and cleared of mesquite the average production of beef was 40 lbs. per acre per month for the summer grazing season.

Work has also been done in testing terraces of varying grades from level to two inches fall. Exact measurements of run off water and soil wastage have been accurately measured from soil with no cover, and with cover.

In farm crops work has been done in improving, adapting and originating better varieties of grain sorghums and cotton. One of the outstanding developments of this station was Spur feterita successfully grown in many sections.

Perhaps the most generally useful products coming from this station was the adaptation of the grain sorghums from the taller types to the combine types, getting away from the row binder and hand heading of the grain sorghum crops. By this improvement the grain sorghums have become a profitable money crop.

In the feeding work perhaps the outstanding accomplishment has been the utilization of grazing crops in the economical production of beef. The crops used were native grass, sudan, grain sorghums and small grain; usually a combination of those in season, and finishing out with dry forage, silage, cotton seed meal and grain, largely grain sorghums.

By following this plan the finishing period has been shortened and the total amount of grain and cotton seed meal materially decreased with a much smaller cost per pound gain resulting, and a smaller overhead cost.

In the field of mesquite eradication much has been done and some successful methods have been developed, but as yet the methods perfected are too costly for the average farmer or ranchman. However, some progress has been made and, in time, more practical and cheaper methods may be developed. Anyway, they are working at the job and Americans have a way of ultimately doing the job that seemingly couldn't be done.

The Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey Circus now posts and expects to enforce a "No Smoking" rule when the circus opens in its new tent this spring. ABOUT PEOPLE AND PLACES

No, Geneile Nelson has not left us for good (we hope). Her father is ill so she, with the rest of her family, has moved indefinitely to Minnesota where her father has been placed in the hospital of Mayo Brothers. We miss you, Geneile.

Among the many Ex-Seniors home for the Easter holidays, we saw Evelyn Jean Scales from Houston, and Polly Davis, Naomi Teale, Benny Brown and John T. Rasor from Tech.

Medicine Park in Oklahoma seems to be the place that most of the Seniors want to go on "Their Day."

The "inside dope" on Prune and Edwin would be very hard to give, but the fact remains that they are trying to get into the Navy; so we all wish them, clear sailing.

And did you see those well known ex-students of CHS? Thelma Wiley and Glenna Garrett were here over the holidays.

To end this short column we would like to mention the grand and glorious fact that J. W. Solis, Seaman First Class, is home on a well-earned thirty day leave. It's swell to see you again, "J."

SENIOR CLASS MEETING

Tuesday morning the Seniors of Crowell High had a meeting to discuss plans for Senior Day. No definite conclusion was reached about this important event, but votes were taken and plans were made concerning their Baccalaureate Service. It was decided that this should be held at the Methodist Church with Rev. Otis Strickland presiding.

They were shown their diplomas, which are black leather with gold lining. With this the meeting was adjourned.

Food, Home Notes

(By Miss Elizabeth Elliott, County Home Demonstration Agent.)

GARDEN AND ORCHARD

Texas' goal for Victory gardens is again one million.
 This year's aim is for quality as well as quantity. There is plenty of room for improvement in this respect. Only one-twelfth of all of last year's Texas Victory gardeners disinfected their vegetable seed before planting, and only one out of twenty-five inoculated pea and bean seed. But gardeners who followed these recommended practices were enthusiastic about their results. A larger number, five of every seven, attempted to control vegetable diseases and insects.

Information on adapted varieties, methods of preparing plant beds, and other gardening jobs and problems can be obtained from county agricultural and home demonstration agents.

QUALITY SOUGHT IN FROZEN FOODS

Amount of food frozen by Texas homemakers has multiplied several times in the past decade, and it's important that the progress in quality keep step with the enormous increase in quantity.

Using high quality fresh food is the first step, but wrapping, preparation methods, quick freezing, and storage temperatures, all are factors in obtaining A-1 products. All foods to be frozen should be stored in moisture—and vapor-proof paper or packages, and experts consider a cellulose film best for this purpose.

For meats and poultry two wraps are recommended, with string or gum tape used to hold the wrap secure. The "drugstore" wrap for meats is considered better because it takes less paper and is more nearly air tight.

Vegetables must have a heat treatment before packaging and freezing in order to stop enzymatic or chemical changes which impair color, flavor, texture, and food value. Fruits do not have to be treated, but should be packed in sugar syrup or dry sugar for freezing.

Temperatures in home freezers or freezer lockers should be kept at zero degrees Fahrenheit or below and should not vary more than three degrees for best quality, quoting a report on food preservation issued by the Texas State Nutrition Committee. Food kept at low temperature will keep longer and retain its maximum quality.

Homemakers unfamiliar with recommended techniques can obtain bulletins on freezing of food

REFRESHER ON FAT SALVAGE

First of all, don't turn in all fat drippings and leftovers indiscriminately. If there are some you can use in home cooking you'll be serving the purpose of the program better by keeping them. For example, a homemaker who turns in four pounds of good bacon drippings and then buys a four-pound jar of "shortening" doesn't increase the over-all fat supply. And she's lost money and points as well. Practically all your leftover fat can be saved and used again, unless it's too strong in flavor or scorched.

Now about the salvage program. Dark or "smelly" fats are needed as well as clear fats. And melted-down meat trimmings and table scraps should be included. Put these into tin containers for delivery to your butcher. Glass jars may break, and paper containers will leak, so neither of these is acceptable. It's good to have a lid for your container. Straining fat to remove bone and pieces of meat is desirable, too.

Your grocer or butcher may pay you four cents per pound, plus two red ration tokens, for every pound of waste fat you deliver to him. It's going to take a lot of this kind of deliveries if the nation meets its quota of two hundred and fifty million pounds of waste fat this year.

Two Minute Sermon (By Thomas Hastwell)

Putters: I have had occasion to observe a good many people as they went about their work. My observation has led me to believe that generally speaking workers may be divided into two classes—efficient workers and putters. By putters I do not mean those who by deliberate or studied effort more or less sabotage their own efforts by "soldiering" or "puttering" on the job, but those who have never to all appearances learned how to work and direct their movements and their actions efficiently. I have often wondered what makes one person an efficient worker and one a putter? My conclusion is that one has an active interest in his work and is filled with eagerness, and enthusiasm, and desire for accomplishment. The other has but a passive interest in his work and little or no enthusiasm. I have often thought as I have observed such workers that people work at the job of being a Christian in much the same way. Some approach it with active interest and enthusiasm and give to it their energy and their personality and manner. Their mind interest, and a listless, uninterested, intellectual talent, while others approach it as their heart interest are not in it, there is no enthusiasm for it. They are putters.

Home Town Thoughts Many people who have lived in Crowell and then have moved elsewhere, look back with the utmost pleasure on the life in our community. If you could talk with them they would say we have a mighty fine town.

The farmer's field which is fertilized regularly, looks fertile and bears good crops. So it is with the business that is fertilized with regular advertising, it brings constant crops of increased trade.

The friendship of your neighbors in a good town like Crowell is one of the rewards you get from living in a town like ours.

BAD NEWS FOR JERRY

THE rockets, one of the most effective weapons of the war, have provided Allied aircraft with firepower equivalent to heavy field guns.

Some secrets of the rockets, with which the Royal Canadian Air Force's Buffalo Squadron of Beaufighters in Coastal Command and the famous RAF Typhoons are equipped have been disclosed officially.

The rocket-firing Typhoons have been described as the greatest of all array cooperation weapons and they have been used with devastating result against German tanks, road and rail transport, and even to aid in the reduction of fortresses and fortified cities, such as Aachen. Rocket-firing Beaufighters present one of the most formidable of all weapons against enemy shipping.

An official statement says the rocket is equivalent to a six-inch gun shell. Another rocket has a head with excellent penetrative power against steel plate. The success of rocket-firing aircraft must have gratified the group of men who went to Jamaica in 1939 to carry out experiments with anti-aircraft rockets for, even at this early stage, they had visualized the possibility of firing rockets from aircraft. When they had perfected the anti-aircraft rocket they made the alterations which turned into the aircraft rocket.

Essentially these two rockets, which seem to be so different, are the same. Their common parent is the "three-inch motor rocket," the part that drives the explosive head to its target—either upwards or downwards. When the motor rocket was first completed it was intended for one purpose only. Now by skillful adaptation it has become capable of several functions. Its use as an anti-aircraft weapon is well-known; it is used with a concrete head for practice purposes, it is used by Typhoons for attacking enemy armor and transports while Beaufighters destroy enemy shipping.

To the tail of the rocket hangs a tale: It is the story of the efforts made by scientists and workers in ordnance factories to perfect the new cordite that supplies power to Rocket firing Beaufighters of the R.C.A.F. Buffalo squadron have been wreaking havoc upon German shipping. In lower photo an armorer is shown loading the rocket racks of one of the squadron's planes.

The nature of rocket projectiles is such that the machinery used for general ammunition production is not suitable for their production and it was necessary to design special tools and equipment. To meet the Services' needs some millions of pounds were spent in laying down plant and machinery.

Because of the extreme urgency of the demand for these new weapons production was begun in advance of clear designs; and the factory staffs engaged in the manufacture of cordite willingly consented to undertake new operations, which may have involved abnormal hazards, without the usual thorough trials.

Kincaid was elected delegate to the district meeting.

An educational and enjoyable program was presented by the program chairman, Mrs. Virgil Johnson. A delicious luncheon was enjoyed at the noon hour. The club voted, as a wartime measure, to meet four times instead of five times during the fiscal year. At the close of the program, Mrs. Kincaid exhibited her splendid collection of pottery and gave the history of each piece. Six clubs of the county were represented in roll call. Those present voted thanks to Mrs. Kincaid for the hospitality of her home for the meeting.

The West Side Home Demonstration Club met in the home of Mrs. J. C. Prosser, Wednesday, March 28. Mrs. S. E. Tate, president of the club, presided. Roll call was answered by ten members and one new member, Mrs. Madge Johnson. "A Bad Break Veterans got after World War 1," was given in response to roll call. After the business meeting, the following program was presented: "Give us a Break," Mrs. G. H. Free Showing of Full Color Feature Motion Picture April 9th

The full color motion picture, "Southwest Challenge" is one of the most interesting and vivid portrayals of ways and means to greater farm and ranch revenue ever produced. It was prepared by the Magnolia Petroleum Company simply as a public service and is in no sense an advertising film or merchandising stunt.

The film was produced in full co-operation of outstanding agricultural specialists of the Southwest, including E. J. Kyle, former dean of the School of Agriculture, Texas A. & M. College; V. C. Marshall, State Administrator, Texas Soil Conservation Board; W. L. Blizard, Dean, School of Agriculture, Oklahoma A. & M. College; J. G. Lee, Jr., Dean of Agriculture, Louisiana State University; and Earle K. Rambo, Extension Agricultural Engineer of the University of Arkansas. Governor Coke Stevenson of Texas gave of his time and assistance in making possible the picture, and many outstanding farmers and ranchers throughout the Southwest also cooperated in many ways to make it one of the most distinctive productions of its kind ever filmed.

Every farmer, rancher and rural citizen should see "Southwest Challenge." It is not only highly informative and instructive, but is also a beautiful example of commercial motion picture art, its production and technical details having been in the hands of experienced professional motion picture experts, Gerald Knox, Agent, Magnolia Petroleum Company, is sponsoring this picture, which will be shown at Crowell High School auditorium, Monday, April 9, at 8 p. m.

Senator Harry F. Byrd estimates that the government could save $700,000,000 a year in salaries alone by dismissing superfluous employees. Byrd stated that 1,141 U. S. departments and agencies employed 3,278,291 civilian workers in December 31, 1944, compared with 1,400,000 in September, 1941. Byrd will make a fight to lop off some of the surplus employees whom he thinks could be better employed in industry when the budget appropriation bill, now being worked out in House committee reaches the Senate.

An Associated Press dispatch from Denver states that before the midnight curfew went into effect that arrests for drunkenness averaged twenty to thirty in the early morning hours but on the first night after the curfew was involved no drunks were arrested.

Youth's Uncertainty

The future of boys approaching military age is clouded with considerable uncertainty. The likelihood that they will be called for military service makes it harder for them to plan their future. Some of them may feel uncertain as to where they will locate after the war, what kind of work they will want to take up. Perhaps some feel that new things they will learn in their military experience may open up unexpected opportunities. They can have little idea as to how long they will be held in the armed services.

They can be sure of one thing, that any education they get now will be of high value. If some are held in military service for a number of years, they may feel when discharged that it is too late for any extended course of study. Now is the golden chance for them to get all the education they can.

After the war intelligence is going to count as it always has. The people who can talk and write well and show some originality in their thought, are valued in their home towns. They make a favorable impression on the world. Their chances of getting good paying jobs and living a successful life are excellent.

It would seem as if these boys should study the kind of work they like best, and form some impression of the occupation they would like to enter when their military service is concluded.

Periods of uncertainty are hard on those who go through them, but they tend to make people thoughtful in studying their problems. They stimulate people to make an intelligent choice, and not to drift into whatever occupation seems easiest to enter. The boys who are approaching military age are a splendid group. Whether we have war or peace, one has confidence that they will act in a way of which we shall be proud.

Correct Account Lumber Essential In All Cases

Wichita Falls, Texas, March 26.

In case a worker given his account number to an employer and it proves to be incorrect he is jeopardizing his protection under the old-age and survivors insurance program under the Social Security law, according to R. L. Surles, manager of the Wichita Falls Social Security Board office. It is equally as dangerous for a worker to give his employer his name incorrectly, such as the wrong initial or first name. He may be depriving his widow and children of monthly benefits, in case of his death, if these errors are not corrected.

It will prove of much benefit to the employer in aiding him to keep his wage records if employees will co-operate with him in checking a second time on the name typed on the account card and the one on the payroll under which he is working. The employer should make reports based on the information given him by the worker. He consequently should be provided with correct and accurate data.
