Care Should Be Used in Handling Wild Rabbits for Food

Austin.—During the winter months hunting rabbits is a popular sport and a wild rabbit makes a very fine food, but according to the State Health Department, extreme care should be used in the handling of wild rabbits to prevent a possible infection with tularemia.

"Those little cottontail rabbits are not always as harmless as they look," states Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, "for some of them are infected with tularemia. This serious disease which is also known as rabbit fever usually is acquired by human beings through contact with infected rabbits or through contact with the infested insect that spreads it from animal to animal."

Dr. Cox cautioned that hunters should shoot only the rabbits that run away at his approach. A rabbit without the energy to scamper away from the hunter is likely to be a sick one that can transmit tularemia.

"It is necessary to handle uncooked rabbit meat cautiously," Dr. Cox said. "The use of rubber gloves will protect your hands since the germs may enter the body through any cut or scratch however small if an infected rabbit is handled without gloves."

As a further safeguard, Dr. Cox said rabbit meat should be cooked very thoroughly so as to destroy any disease producing germs that may be present. This means it should be cooked at a boiling temperature for at least 20 minutes before cooking it to your individual taste.

Magnesium used in the Dallas-made incendiary bombs was a Texas product.

Texas will produce the smallest cotton crop in 1945 that it has in fifty years.

acre as a return for his work. This was James' first year here in Foard County, and we are glad to have him in our 4-H Club ranks. BOY MAKES GOOD WITH GILT Billy Joe Halenak, who lives 7 miles north of Crowell, purchased a small pig last year for $6.00. He took care of this gilt until she was old enough to breed. She farrowed 10 pigs which Billy Joe sold for $7.00 each, or $70; the sow is worth $32.50, or a total of $102.50 for the sow and pigs. His expense did not exceed $22.50 which gave him a net of $80.00 on an investment of $26.50. Not bad business. Billy Joe was one of the boys selected to attend the district 4-H camp at Perkins Reservation last summer. SWEET SUDAN DEMONSTRATION This demonstration was carried out by Bob Johnson, a 4-H Club boy, living two miles north of Thalia. We secured for him three pounds of sweet sudan from the Chillicothe Experiment Station last spring. This was sufficient seed to plant about an acre. This was planted on deep sandy land. After the crop ripened, he cut it and put it up in shocks. Soon after cutting it he had some heavy rains and wind storms which caused a heavy loss. However, he harvested 420 lbs. of seed from the plot even after suffering the loss. This seed will be sold to neighboring 4-H boys and farmers. So a good acreage of this pure seed will be grown another year. Bob paid 75c for the three pounds of seed and will get approximately that much per pound for his seed this year as he has kept it pure. He will easily net around $80.00 on his acre of sweet sudan this year. Bob is quite an enterprising boy as he has a well bred horse and a pure bred Jersey cow and calf there on the farm, aside from his sudan project. Sweet sudan is coming into favor as a grazing crop. Livestock prefer it and it yields more forage and seed than the old type of sudan. RURAL TELEPHONE SERVICE It is anticipated that within a reasonably short time rural people, who are served by rural electric service, will also have telephone service over the same lines. This is perhaps one of the greatest public service needs of the rural communities and when taken care of will give great satisfaction. "Thus Texas may well be the biggest customer for use of the carrier telephone when the system has proved itself suitable for commercial use," M. C. Jaynes, co-operative organization specialist of the Texas A. & M. College Extension Service, has predicted. The new equipment, devised by federal and commercial engineers and now being tested in several Arkansas farm homes, may be the means of providing telephone service to thousands of Texas homes now served by rural electric lines but out of reach of telephone lines. Under the new system, Jaynes explained, speech is transmitted on power lines along with the power supply by means of a carrier wave of radio frequency. Transmitting and receiving equipment is installed at the switchboard of the telephone exchange and at the subscriber's end of the line. The dial telephone is used in the same way as in regular service. If, as REA Administrator Claude R. Wickard expects, the system will work out under commercial conditions, any home served by electricity could also have telephone service. In Texas' 93 REA co-operatives now have 42,556 miles of rural power lines which serves 106,839 consumers. It is believed that many of these consumers are outside areas reached by rural telephone lines. HYBRID CORN ADAPTED TO TEXAS There is a small quantity of corn planted in this section and several farmers planted Hybrid corn last year with very satisfactory results so we suggest you read Mr. Miller's statements given below. "Texas varieties of Hybrid corn are adapted to many parts of the state. In fact, says E. A. Miller, agronomist for the A. & M. College Extension Service, the Hybrids are destined to replace most of the native varieties. This is because they have shown greater yielding qualities, especially during dry summers. An outstanding characteristic of Texas Hybrid corn is that stalks and type of ears are very uniform. Another is that nearly all ears reach the roasting ear stage at about the same time. Experience with the several varieties developed shows that yellow Hybrid Number Twelve has been the most successful one in the more humid sections of east Texas. This has been especially noted on well fertilized land or soil which was enriched with fertilized and inoculated legumes. In 1945, however, the new yellow Hybrid Number Twenty slightly outyielded the Number Twelve. In the drier sections, including the West Cross Timbers, and Rolling Plains, the yellow Hybrid Number Eight has proved a steady good yielder. Miller says that a good way to enrich soils in all corn-producing sections is by fertilized and inoculated summer and winter legumes. Commercial fertilizers also may be used alone for maximum yields."

CHURCHES Weekly Sermon By the Rev. Wendell P. Loveless, Member of Faculty, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago. Peace All through the centuries men have been searching for the formula of peace. Even today most leaders feel that the great problem of the world is to bring nations into peaceful relationship. But there is a problem that is greater. When this is solved, the other will take care of itself. To be real and satisfying, peace must be internal, not merely external. And we find the answer to this soul need in the precious Word of God: "Peace I leave unto you, my peace I give unto you. Not as the world giveth give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." (John 14:27). How striking are the words, "not as the world giveth." How does the world give peace? There are several contrasts between the world's method and that employed by our Lord Jesus. The world gives temporary peace; Christ gives eternal peace. The world gives peace as a doctor gives an anaesthetic; Christ gives peace that is life, and hope, and strength. The world gives a mere outward peace; Christ gives heart peace. The world gives peace which is selfish in its nature; the peace which Christ gives is peaceful and unselfish, and is most effective when it is serving others. The world doesn't really give peace at all—it sells it. But the peace which Jesus gives is bestowed as a free gift. The world gives peace which grows less as we know more about the world; Christ gives peace which increases as we know more about Him. Finally, the world gives peace that operates only in peaceful and favorable circumstances; Christ gives peace which is effective and efficient in any circumstances. Christ's peace enables the Christian to rejoice even when all around him goes "dead wrong." Peace and tribulation at the same time! Apparently a paradox, but blessedly true! Our God doesn't always calm the storm outside, but He does calm the storm inside. Such is the wonder of His peace! SHERIFF'S SALE The State of Texas, County of Foard.
