YOU CAN'T EAT GRASS

Close to half the land of this nation would be useless for food production if it were not for the breeders and raisers of livestock and the packers who start meat along the channels that end at the dinner table.

You can't eat grass. By itself, it adds nothing whatever to the food supply. Meat animals, on the other hand, thrive and grow on it. Inedible grass becomes edible meat that keeps the country's larders full.

Our meat animal population must be kept at a high level if we are to supply our own needs and maintain our foreign exports. We can't turn our meat supply on and off like a faucet.

There's no miraculous assembly line that will produce an animal ready for the packers in a few minutes. It takes more than a year to grow a marketable hog, and two to three years to grow a beef steer. Any considerable decline in our animal population would take a long time to make up.

The only sound policy for American agriculture, in the words of the Secretary of Agriculture, is "organized, sustained and realistic abundance."

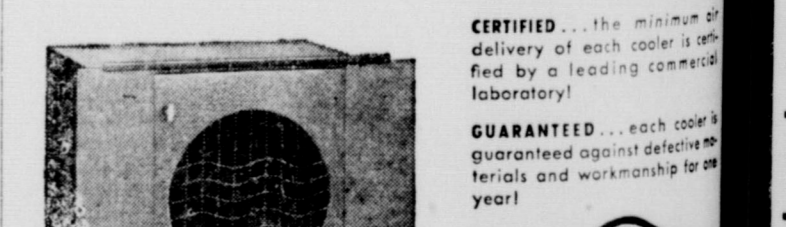

Meat animals, which are the farmer's chief source of cash income, are also the backbone of a tremendous competitive industry which processes the product

Joe E. Brown Scores Hit in "Tender Years"

There's a rich and exciting screen experience in store for local movie-goers with the opening Friday, May 21, at the Rialto Theatre of "Tender Years," a Twentieth Century-Fox release which stars Joe E. Brown in his dramatic film role.

Here is a picture that carries a new emotional thrill with one of the greatest and best-loved comedians of all time emerging as a wonderful new screen personality. For Brown's dramatic debut, he has been provided with a grand vehicle, a rich, heart-warming story, tender and poignant, yet carrying a terrific impact that will stay with you for a long time.

"The Tender Years" tells the story of a small-town minister who suddenly finds himself catapulted into the fight of his lifetime, battling to right a wrong that even the town's most respectable people had winked at for a long time. Rev. "Will" Norris' existence was placid enough, ministering to his community's spiritual needs, and being "the best dad a fellow ever had" to his 12-year-old son, Ted. But one day Ted brings a dog home with him. The dog, badly slashed, turns out to have escaped from its owner in the brutal sport of dog fighting. Will is forced by "legal rights" to return it to its arrogant master, only to find that he has lost the love and respect of his shocked son.

RESULTS SPEAK

The major labor organizations are out to secure absolute repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act. Union leaders have said that they will directly oppose every Representative and Senator who voted for it. This stand is based on the proposition that the act has enslaved labor, and placed it at the mercy of greedy and ruthless industrialists.

Obviously, there is much room for divergent opinion as to the merits of the Taft-Hartley measure. But just how the argument that it has deprived labor of needed protection and opened the way for a return to the sweat shop can be substantiated, is a very interesting question. For, as the record shows, some of the most favorable employer-employee agreements ever made followed passage of the act.

Coal is a good example of that. The new contract signed last July gave the miners a boost in the basic day rate from $11.85 to $13.05. It reduced the work day from nine to eight hours, with a 30-minute lunch period. It doubled the levy on the operators for the miners' welfare fund. It contained new safety provisions. It continued the $100 annual vacation payment, plus other tangible and costly benefits. It made the coal miner the highest paid of all industrial workers, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Similar contracts have been signed in other big industries. There isn't a solitary bit of evidence to indicate that the Taft-Hartley Act has taken from labor any legitimate bargaining power, or in any way weakened the unions. The act has, on the other hand given the worker, as well as the employer, certain protection against malignant abuses of power by labor racketeers. It isn't perfect. But it marks a fair start toward the goal of achieving equality between both business and labor. — Industrial News Review.

KILLER OF ROSES

Blackspot, the rose killer! This flower enemy number one may be attacking your garden right now. He comes in the form of black or dark brown spots on the leaves, and is sometimes found on the shoots.

Mrs. James Welch, County Home Demonstration Agent, says that blackspot is responsible for killing more roses in Texas than any other leaf disease.

As the spot grows, the leaf may turn yellow and fall off. On some rose varieties the leaves turn yellow and fall when they have only a few small spots.

Badly infested roses shed most of their leaves. When a large number of the leaves have been lost, the shoots begin dying first at the top, then back down the stems toward the ground.

Now that's what blackspot does. So here's what to do when your roses are attacked by this disease. Burn all the fallen leaves, and don't let irrigation water touch the leaves.

Ask the nurseryman to supply varieties resistant to leaf spot. Although roses are badly affected by this disease, polyanthas, tea roses and hybrid tea roses are even worse victims.

If more information is needed about blackspot and other rose home demonstration agent for Circular 87, "Rose Diseases."

What We Think (By Frank Dixon)

When the Social Security System was first promoted as a method through which the industrious and thrifty workers could insure their old age against the need of asking for charity, it was proposed as an incentive for thrift and a means for maintaining one's independence in his old age.

The average worker over 65 who has saved and contributed to his old age insurance since the beginning of the program receives less money from the federal government than does the waster and the spendthrift who has spent as he went, and then when he is no longer able to earn, has turned to the local welfare board and asked for old age assistance from welfare funds.

Records show that the payment of federal insurance in January averaged $23.36 monthly while the average payment for old age assistance or relief was $37.57.

As will be noted by these figures the destitute, the profligate and the spendthrift drew 63 percent more money from the government than did the individual who complied with the request of his government and contributed a share of his earnings to the federal old age insurance fund as requested by his government.

On the basis of this record the thrifty man who is always the nation's best asset receives considerably less from his government than does the spendthrift and the waster. The thrifty man has contributed to the government the money that is being returned to him in monthly payments but the spendthrift has contributed nothing.

Last January there were one million more persons in the United States receiving relief than there were drawing old age insurance. The total amount given away by the government for relief was $87,858,146 for the month compared to $31,367,653 for old age insurance.

Under the system thrift and self-denial are being made light of and federal paternity magnified and even glorified.

The time is here when the system should be overhauled and the homely virtue of thrift and self-denial and a concern for one's own old age support be given its rightful place in the economy of things. It is but natural that when the plan was set up it would not be perfect.

But the time has come when its imperfections have not only become evident but glaringly so and should be dealt with.

I believe that one of the first changes that should be made is that the thrifty man be permitted to increase his old age insurance through the purchase of old age Insurance Bonds at his bank or post office. These should be made available in denominations of $5, $10, $25, $50 and $100. They would not be cashable except for old age insurance and paid out the same as other old age insurance funds are paid out. By this simple plan the thrifty could build a competence as their ability permitted. It would also permit small business men, farmers and professional men not now covered by the old age insurance plan to come under its provisions.

TRIM YOUR TREES

"Some kinds of pruning may be done at any time," so says Mrs. James Welch, County Home Demonstration Agent. "Remove dead limbs, diseased limbs and limbs that injure each other regardless of season."

Some plants need pruning all during the growing season. Among these shrubs are abelia and Florida jasmine which have a tendency to send out long awkward shoots. If the buds at the tips of branches are cut off the plant will grow into a compact form which generally is liked better than a shrub with a few long sprouts.

Miss Whitis says, pruning shrubs which bloom in the spring or early summer just as soon as the blooming season is over for it is then they begin forming bloom buds for the next year.

Among flowering shrubs to be pruned as soon as they have bloomed and before they form bloom buds for the next year's flowers are: azalea, butterfly bush (buddleia), redbud, flowering quince, flowering dogwood, poinsettia, philadelphus (English dogwood, mack orange), photinia, flowering plums, spiraea, viburnum (haws and snowballs), privet, jasmine, winter blooming jasmine, and wisteria.

Weekly SURPLUS NEWS WAA

The people of Brownwood, acting through a community-sponsored corporation, this week is launching a plan to induce new industry to occupy the commercial facilities of their nearby surplus camp, Camp Bowie. The Brownwood Industrial Corporation assumed ownership of a 335-acre commercial area of the camp by tendering a down payment last week to the War Assets Administration for $56,000. A seven man delegation from Brownwood headed by D. T. Strickland, corporation president, made the presentation to Col. Karl E. Wallace, director of the WAA's Grand Prairie Region. Under the terms, a balance of $224,000 will be paid the government for the property during a ten year period. It included 108 buildings and railroad tracks in addition to the land. The 365 stockholders of the corporation were limited to the purchase of two shares each.

Heading a series of new war surplus clearances being announced this week is a $250,000 sale to be conducted May 24 through May 27 at the Naval Air Station, Corpus Christi. Offered in regular priority sequence will be photographic equipment, heavy machinery, textiles, office machines and furniture, vehicles and industrial machines. Inspection of the approximately 150 lots is to continue from May 24 through May 25, with floor bid awards announced May 26 at the station's hangar house trailers will be offered at fixed prices to World War II veterans.

One of the largest offerings of surplus camp buildings to schools and other priorities will involve 815 structures of the Amariillo Army Air Field. The buildings are for off-site use only and include mess halls, recreation, storehouses, hutments, warehouses, latrines, lavatories, officers quarters, office buildings, post office, post exchange, administration and similar types. The Grand Prairie WAA office of Real Property will entertain qualified applications until May 28.

Much additional material has been lotted up in readiness for a final clearance of the Dal 6 warehouse in the North American plant. The sale will include 85 lots of machine tools, industrial equipment, general products, office furniture and supplies, a few motorcycles, 10 passenger cars, and two trucks. However, as pointed out by WAA location clearance men in charge of the sale, the armed forces now have overriding priority rights in withdrawal of any material needed in the interest of national security. It is possible, therefore, that some of the equipment and much of the furniture will not reach the regular groups of buyers, including veterans. Awards on the sale will be made during May 27 and 28. More machine tools released from a previous armed forces screening are contained in a sealed bid offering of the regional War Assets Administration. This equipment includes 1,694 articles on 109 separate catalog listings. All is located in the Longhorn Ordnance Works, at Karnack, Texas, where it may be inspected. This special sealed bid offering closes on May 31. Another big war surplus sale in Texas is being planned at Fort Bliss, near El Paso. Besides some $90,000 worth of machine tools and similar equipment to be offered the various purchasers, more than $100,000 worth of consumer goods and veterans seaside items will be ranged for informal bidding and fixed price awards. Inspection on the industrial equipment will open at the site on May 10. Announcements of this and similar smaller sales will be made in local papers nearest the installations involved.

ROBBING MISSOURI

One of the marks of a rising civilization is the ability of a people, by community action, to soften the blow for those who have been hit by economic adversity. The United States, in recent decades, has taken tremendous strides toward eliminating hardships. However, there is a point beyond which society cannot go. It is a tragic fact that human nature tends to take merciless advantage of humanitarian ideals. A startling example of this is shown in a report on the Missouri Unemployment Compensation Law.

For over ten years, the people of Missouri have been insured against unemployment. And yet during the past five years, while there have been far more jobs than workers, Missouri paid over fifteen million dollars to workers, not veterans, who claimed they could not find work. The report shows that these claims could not be valid, that payments were unwarranted if the law had been properly administered.

During the war, from July 1, 1942 to July 1, 1945, nearly fourteen million dollars was paid out of the unemployment fund. This was during a time when the entire country was begging for workers to man the country's industrial machine, and when the chairman of the War Manpower Commission stated, "We are at the bottom of the manpower barrel."

Figures show that in Missouri, between 1940 and 1945, there were two hundred thousand more jobs with three hundred thousand fewer workers available to take them! During October 1946, sixty-three thousand help wanted advertisements appeared in St. Louis papers. At the same time in St. Louis, there were over four thousand new claims filed for unemployment aid, and a weekly average of 13,741 persons on the "payroll" of the unemployment fund.

A statewide survey of 236 companies revealed that the Industrial Commission paid over a million dollars in unemployment compensation to former employees of these companies from July 1, 1946 to July 1, 1947. During this same period these 236 concerns reported that 42 per cent of the 15,000 former employees who were paid out of work benefits would have been rehired if they had applied for their old jobs. But they were paid unemployment compensation. The tragedy of Missouri is that at a time when unemployment is at a minimum, unjustified claims are destroying the employment fund. The day may arrive when people legitimately out of work will be unable to get necessary assistance from the state. The humanitarian objective of unemployment laws will be defeated by the inherent tendency of human nature to get something for nothing while the getting is good, unless the people are awakened to the danger. And Missouri is not alone in this respect. The threat exists in every level of government today. — Industrial News Review.

There is a good story going the rounds in Washington to the effect that the scheme proposed by Republican Senator Bridges to fix up the coal strike was handed down already made up with the places where he would enter and exit marked in the text. Briefly here is the story as it is being told: Lewis fixed up the kind of pension scheme he wanted. He then met privately with Senator Bridges in advance. The terms were agreed upon and presented to some of the big coal companies. They agreed. Then Lewis handed the plan to Joe Martin to make it appear he and Martin had settled the strike. It was then handed to Senator Bridges who by the way already had it. Bridges presented the scheme, arranged with Lewis in advance, causing it to appear that Bridges had evolved the scheme after he had been appointed trustee. The result: The Republican leaders became the catpaw of Lewis and they are indebted to him for the credit of getting the coal mines in operation again. Lewis a long time ago put President Roosevelt in the same kind of a hole and made him pay off. It appears he has maneuvered the Republicans into the same hole and it is now their time to pay off when Lewis gets ready.

James Welch Weds Miss Carmon Whitis Friday Evening

In a wedding marked by simplicity and prettiness, Miss Carmon Leta Whitis became the bride of James Allen Welch at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Welch Friday evening, May 14, at 6 o'clock in the presence of relatives and a few close friends.

A beautiful altar was formed in the living room of the home by fernery with tall baskets of white gladioli and candelabra holding white candles completing the decorative scheme. A white prayer bench was placed before the altar where the couple stood for the exchange of the double ring wedding ceremony which was performed by Rev. D. D. Denison, pastor of the Methodist Church.

Miss Betty Meadows of Denton played pre-nuptial selections which included "To a Wild Rose," "Love's Old Sweet Song," "Aloha," "Because" and the traditional wedding march for the entry of the bridal party.

Mrs. Leon Graham of Chicago, sister of the bride, lighted the candles. Maid of honor was Miss Ruth Worthington of Wichita Falls and Ray Allen Brown served the groom as best man.

The bride, attired in a suit of light gray summer wool, with which she wore darker gray and white accessories, entered on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage. She carried a white Bible topped with a shower bouquet of gardenias. Her maid of honor wore a navy suit with navy accessories and her corsage was of white gardenias.

Mrs. Ray Shirley and Miss Thelma Henslee of Pampa registered the guests in the bride's book.

At the informal reception which followed the marriage, Mrs. O. R. Boman invited the guests into the dining room where the lace covered table had for a centerpiece an all-white boat-shaped arrangement of gladioli, roses, carnations and greenery. The beautiful all white cake was cut by Mrs. Homer Streit of Vernon while punch was poured by Mrs. Robert Lee, a sister of the groom. Mrs. Joe Burkett and Mrs. Leon Graham assisted in the dining room, also. All members of the house party wore white corsages.

Mrs. Welch is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Whitis of Throckmorton High School and of Texas State College for Women at Denton. She taught Vocational Home Economics at Justin and at Oklahoma. She has been County Home

Demonstration Agent in Foard County since early in 1948.

Mr. Welch, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Y. Welch, graduated from Crowell High School and from Texas Technological College at Lubbock. He entered the U. S. service in 1942 in the Air Corps. He served a part of the time in the South Pacific. He was a Lieutenant when he was discharged. At the present time he is Co-Ordinator of Vocational Education in Foard County.

Mr. and Mrs. Welch will reside in their new home in Crowell at an early date. They are now making their home in the home of Mrs. Frank Crews.

Out-of-town relatives and friends attending the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Roberts was program leader and in a pleasing manner introduced the program with reminiscences of the long ago and brought memories of childhood days. Mrs. Grady Halbert read from McGuffey's Fourth Reader the poem, "What Shall It Be?", calling to mind childhood school days. Mrs. Kenneth Halbert reviewed a clever story, "The Revolt of Mother."

Corsages were presented to the eldest mother present and the youngest mother and the mother with ten children. Mrs. Charlie Thompson led a sing-song of favorite songs, with Mrs. John S. Ray at the piano.

FOARD CITY W. S. C. S.

On Monday, May 10, members of the Foard City Woman's Society of Christian Service met at the church in special session to conclude the study "Committed Unto Us." The prayer of Mrs. Allison Denton and the opening song, "The Rainbow with the Rain" expressed the thankfulness of all for the much needed rain.

Mrs. Virgil Johnson presided over the business session and it was planned to erect a church sign in the near future.

Mrs. Johnson then brought an interesting devotional based upon an article "Today" by Angelo Patri. The futility of so living in the past or of being so blinded by what may come tomorrow that one fails to appreciate or act or truly live each present moment is a common mistake made by all. So live each day fully for what it may hold. Mrs. Johnson concluded her devotional with Grace Noll Crowell's "Psalm of a Country Woman" and a prayer.

Mrs. Grady Halbert brought the last lesson from the study book "Committed Unto Us." She described an ideal Christian Church as a fellowship of families whose task is to make Christ known to all the world; a fellowship which embraces all men regardless of race.

To live a blameless life is not enough. It must be a life that will bring Christ to one's fellowmen. Personal witness requires personal strength and prayer. Many Christians suffer from paralysis of the will. No miracle will come to save Christians from this. Paralysis of the will must be overcome in the individual Christian.

Mrs. Laura Johnson concluded the program with prayer.
