Strong Power Needed

Military leaders speak often of the necessity that the United States should maintain strong armed forces. A military power far stronger than what the country had before World War II seems an absolute necessity.

If the power of our armed forces should be allowed to decline anywhere before World War II, it would be an encouragement to warlike elements in Germany and Japan to attempt a military revival.

If the United States reduced its military power too far, it would be an encouragement to warlike people in Germany to try to rebuild their military strength. It will be cheaper in the long run to maintain a power strong enough to convince any would-be war-makers that it will be hopeless for them to try it again.

Diabetes Taking Tragic Number of Human Lives

Austin.—Despite the fact that modern medicine can do much to help the diabetic live out a normal life span, nevertheless diabetes took a toll of several hundred lives in Texas during the past year, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

"While the communicable diseases such as typhoid fever, malaria, diphtheria and smallpox are annually causing a decreasing number of deaths in this country, diabetes is taking a tragic number of human lives each year, especially in the middle aged group," Dr. Cox said.

"Until recent years diabetes was noted as a major health problem, but it became accepted as such in direct ratio to the development of medical laboratory procedures, which made the disease more easily diagnosed."

Dr. Cox said that diabetes is generally recognized as a "lame disease. It seems to attack the white collar class of indoor men and women much more frequently than it does the outdoor person whose work is more vigorous and calls for more exercise. Whatever the actual cause of the disease may be, vocational and economic conditions are factors, since it seems a fact that those who do not indulge in luxurious living and whose occupations call for manual labor are not frequently affected."

Dr. Cox stated that simple, wholesome diets, sufficient exer-

For Herod feared John, knowing that he was a just man and an holy, and observed him; and when he heard him, he did many things, and heard him gladly.—Mark 6:20.

According to a report issued recently by one of the nation's large insurance companies, accidents caused by drunken drivers are on the increase in this country. The increase has been so marked that it has become necessary to increase sharply automobile insurance rates.

Fortunately for the future of the race a good many of the so-called juvenile delinquents turn out to be pretty good fathers and mothers and head up fine families that have one or two young juvenile delinquents to worry about.

Some one once said: "The power to tax is the power to destroy." Evidence of the verity of this statement grows each year. With the largest federal income tax in history there is the state income tax, the unemployment tax, the social security tax, the state sales tax, the use tax, the noxious weed tax, the excise tax, the gasoline tax, the luxury tax, the city tax, the school tax, the county tax, the state tax, the road tax, and a score of others. The demand is for more and more from the taxpayers. The disturbing feature of it is that these taxes continue to grow and increase in size. All of these burdens are borne by the workers. It is out of the toil and sweat, and physical weariness, that the tax money comes. As time goes on the worker and the business man has less and less of his earned dollar for himself, and more and more of it is demanded for taxes.

The editor of one of our exchanges suggests a plan for ending all of our domestic turmoil. He would have a national wage board which would allow workers to fix all wages and a national price board which would allow purchasers to fix all prices. It may sound queer, he says, but isn't that the thing toward which a considerable number of people in this country are working?

Governor Warren of California is making a strong bid for the office of President. During his term as Governor of California he has cleared the state of debt and has reduced state taxes.

What We Think (By Frank Dixon)

I have reached a point in my thinking where I would be willing to support, work for, and vote for any individual party or organization that might come out for a change in our form of government whereby the President, members of Congress and governors of the state would serve for one term of six years and could not be re-elected to the same office.

I have come to feel that too often these office holders allow their actions to be influenced to too great an extent on how they will affect their chances for re-election, rather on what is best for the country.

Sometimes—too often this is so obvious that it is to be wondered at that there is not a general demand for the one term plan of government.

Our government has reached a degree of complexity, and there are so many matters demanding decision and action, that no official can give anything like the necessary service with his mind centered on his coming re-election.

I contend that the business of running this government has become too big and too complicated to be entrusted to such divided allegiance. Both at home and abroad we are faced with questions of vital importance as they pertain to our present needs and future welfare. To arrive at the correct and best solution these problems must be approached with a mind free from entangling alliances and confusing considerations.

I do not desire to convey the impression that all the men in Congress are interested in re-election to the extent that they permit it to influence their actions but many are and others are prevailed upon to line up back of the party program in the interest of the next campaign.

At the present time the problem abroad is most difficult and the problem at home is little less difficult. We are faced with an enormous debt that is not only a mortgage on our future but a threat to our security. Even though the country is riding on a high wave of prosperity, we are making little effort to reduce our debt. Suppose for example our high tide of prosperity leads to another depression, or in twenty or twenty-five years another war. Are we prepared at home to meet the cost of such an undertaking and pile up a still greater debt? We talk about keeping strong, and keeping prepared, and keeping our position as the most powerful nation in the world, secure. I think we should. But I feel that one of the best ways to build security at home is build up a sound financial backing and clear our books of debt.

There isn't an individual who

HISTORY

Labor Day—September 2: Labor Day has become to be one of the most generally celebrated holidays in the United States. Its observance at first confined to organized labor groups has spread since its beginning in 1882. Credit for instituting Labor Day is usually given Peter J. McGuire in 1882. He was then president of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America. He suggested to the labor group of New York City that a day be set aside on which Labor should hold a parade to show its strength and esprit de corps and follow the parade with a picnic. He selected as the date the first Monday in September. New York labor unions adopted his suggestion and on October 9, 1884, the Federation of Organized Trades and Labor Unions of the United States and Canada, meeting in convention in Chicago voted to make the celebration national. This organization later became the American Federation of Labor. Oregon was the first state to designate through its legislature a Labor Day. This was followed in rapid succession and by 1894 the day had become a legal holiday in thirty states. On June of the same year Congress passed an act making it a legal holiday in the District of Columbia and the territories. The day is not observed in every state.

The House of Representatives voted that no relief fund should go to countries that do not allow American reporters to see and report what becomes of it. This includes Russia who seem to think that it is none of our business what she does with the food we take off American tables to give to her. We think the suggestion of the House a good one and one that should be strictly adhered to.

War costs billions of dollars and millions of human lives and peace costs nothing except a willingness to forget greed and selfishness.

does not believe that his business is more secure and sound when his debts are paid and he has a sound cash reserve. In this respect our government is no different.

I do not feel that under our present system we are getting from the men we do send to Congress the things of which they are capable. I believe that freed from the shadow and the threat of approaching election they would exercise better all around judgement, and we would have an infinitely better governed nation. No private business could survive if it had constantly to keep its ear to the ground in order that it might always cater to the demands of political leaders and the greedy demands of pressure groups. Business isn't set up or operated that way. It could not do its best under such a system, neither, in my opinion, can our government.

The woodshed is an institution of yester year that is rapidly disappearing from the scene of American life. Modern heating installations no longer seem to require the woodshed as a part of their equipment. It is not our intention to couple the disappearance of this one time common home facility with the rise in youthful delinquency—although there might easily be some connection.

The most effective means of holding down prices is the buyer's strike. As a rule the buyer's strike is not attended by a lot of noise and clamor. No meetings are held and no rules and regulations or picket lines are set up. Buyers go quietly about their business, buy what they feel is priced right and do not buy that which they think is priced too high, merely because they happen to have the money to pay for it.

While men continue to present themselves in droves at unemployment offices business and professional men continue to mow their lawns, do the janitor work and other jobs that they would like to have done. Reconversion will not be completed, it appears, until the unemployment checks are spent and the only way left to get money will be to work for it.

There are grave obstacles between the United States and Russia in the consummation of the final peace treaties, but tackling the problem with a defeatist attitude—with conviction for instance, that a war between the United States and Russia is inevitable—is the worst thing we can do.—General Eisenhower.

4-H Boys Attend Summer Camp

The following Foard County 4-H boys have been selected to attend the annual District 3 4-H Boys' Camp at Camp Perkins, August 8, 9 and 10: Glyndon Johnson, Leon Pechacek, Jimmie Stinebaugh, Gordon W. Bell, Kenneth Polk, Jimmie Tom Cates, Billy Ray Dunn, Billie Abston, Ginger Johnson and David Jackson.

Bob Abston will go as an adult sponsor and furnish transportation for some of the boys. The group will leave Thursday, Aug. 8, and return Saturday, Aug. 10.

Getting Publicity

People sometimes ask how they can get publicity for the organizations with which they are connected, or for their own efforts. There is one sure way to get it, and that is to form some plan that will be useful to the community, or plan something that is out of the usual run.

If some organization starts a project that will provide the town with some new advantages, or that will be entertaining or interesting, it will not have to seek publicity. The publicity will come without seeking, and the newspaper people will be coming around to get information. They will consider that it is interesting news, and will be glad to give all the details of the plan or program. The newspapers are always keen to write up anything that is new, or which represents an effort to do something advantageous for the town.

It is reported that labor leaders are incensed over the appearance of corporation ads to the effect that prices will not be raised until and unless there is a demand for further wage increases. Labor doesn't like the thought of being held responsible for increased prices on merchandise.

CARD OF THANKS

We cannot find words to express our appreciation and grateful thanks to our many friends who were so very thoughtful and kind to our loved one during his illness and to us in our trying hour. Such ministrations have made our burdens easier to bear. The beautiful floral offerings, the dishes of food, the kind words spoken and each and every neighborly deed will ever be remembered and cherished by us. May God's richest blessings be upon each of you.
