More Cotton Insects in Fields Than Last Year

(Information released by Joe Burkett, County Agent of Foard County, and George Davis, Extension Entomologist.)

Now that June 25, our cut-off date for automatic early season control, has come and past, let's take just a moment to consider the present situation and what should be done from now on to keep insect damage at a minimum on cotton this year.

There are more cotton insects in the fields to start with than there were last year, and if we get weather that is even fairly favorable for their reproduction, a heavy infestation may be expected in the late season. A fair part of the farmers carried out an early season control which should help somewhat; however, there are many fields left unpoisoned that will serve as a breeding ground for the destructive insects to build up in the spread to the poisoned fields. Naturally this decreases the effectiveness of an early season program, but the treated fields will have an advantage in that they should have a pretty good crop set and on the way before the destructive insects build up so heavy in the untreated fields that they will migrate to the treated fields for a better food supply.

Trips are so heavy this year that in some areas young cotton may have to be poisoned even though it is past the cut off date, to keep it from being stunted. One pint of toxaphene to the acre will do a good job.

Fleahoppers are showing up in large numbers for this time of the year; however, they can be controlled, even on large cotton, with one pint of 6 lb. toxaphene per acre without killing off the beneficial insects. The big advantage of this is that we can kill the fleahopper without killing off our friendly bugs and leaving the field unprotected against bollworms.

Bollweevils are very heavy for this time of year, but should be expected after the mild winter we had. Should we receive several showers between now and the last of July we can expect a heavy weevil infestation for the late season.

From now on we want to stay out of our fields with poison as long as we can. Insect infestation counts should be made in each field every 5-7 days in order to keep up with the insects and not let them destroy the cotton before we realize they are there. In our demonstrations from now on, we will show how to take these infestation counts as well as how to identify both destructive and beneficial insects.

Often more harm is done than good by poisoning a field when it actually doesn't need it, so know what you are poisoning for and be sure you are using the proper poison for that particular insect.

G. A. Mitchell, 95, Succumbs at Home Tuesday Morning

Last Rites for Pioneer Resident Held Wednesday

G. A. Mitchell, 95, prominent pioneer citizen of Foard County and probably its oldest resident, passed away at his home in Crowell Tuesday at about 9:30 a. m., after having been seriously ill for only a few days. Although he had been confined to his home premises for several years, he was still able to get out in the yard and would go to town occasionally. He retained his eyesight, and was able to read the daily papers and keep informed on national and international affairs.

Funeral services for Bro. Mitchell, as he was familiarly known by friends of long standing, were held at the Methodist Church Wednesday afternoon conducted by the pastor, Rev. M. A. Walker. He was a member of the Methodist Church here in the early history of this community and served as a local preacher on many occasions.

Funeral services were held at the home of Mrs. Mitchell, 1300 S. Gentry, Tuesday evening, June 24, at 8 o'clock. The services were held at the home of Mrs. Mitchell, 1300 S. Gentry, Tuesday evening, June 24, at 8 o'clock. The services were held at the home of Mrs. Mitchell, 1300 S. Gentry, Tuesday evening, June 24, at 8 o'clock.

George Alexander Mitchell was born March 16, 1857, in Morrisville, Mo., the son of B. C. and Matilda Looney Mitchell. He came to Texas in 1875 and settled in Burnet County. He was married to Mrs. Martha Ann Miller in October, 1878. Eight children were born to this union, six daughters and two sons. Five of the children survive.

Mr. Mitchell and family moved to a farm near Margaret in 1890 before Foard County was organized. They lived there until 1907 when they moved to Crowell and he had made his home in the same house for 45 years. Mrs. Mitchell passed away Oct. 19, 1929.

Mr. Mitchell was long identified with the development and progress of Foard County, and was always interested in and assisted in promoting any program that was for the advancement of the community. He served for many years as tax assessor of Foard County and also a number of years as tax assessor-collector for the Crowell Independent School District. He was a highly respected citizen of the county and loved by all who knew him. For many years he has not been able to be in contact with his friends over the county except when he would meet them in town or they visited him in his home, which they did often.

Survivors include four daughters, Mrs. J. R. Allee of Fort Worth, Mrs. Charlie Hunt of Sand Springs, Okla., Miss Dine Mitchell and Mrs. W. B. Carter of Crowell, and one son, Evans Mitchell, of Fort Worth, 13 grandchildren and 13 great grandchildren, and one step grandson.

$900.00 Received Here for Care of Local Polio Patients

A check for $900.00 to help pay for care for local polio patients has been received by the Foard County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, it was announced Tuesday by J. A. Stovall, Chapter Chairman.

When March of Dimes funds are raised, Mr. Stovall explained, half stays here with the local Chapter and half goes to national headquarters for research, professional education and emergency aid to chapters whose own funds have been exhausted by the demands of patient care. The check just received comes from this pooling of chapter funds at national headquarters.

Mr. Stovall said record-breaking polio incidence in recent years had exhausted the treasuries of hundreds of chapters across the country and that, in many cases, new March of Dimes funds had been committed to the payment of old bills before this year's first case had been reported.

The check received here this week enables the local chapter to pay its past due bills to Wichita Falls and Dallas hospital on last year's Foard County polio victims.

HOT, DRY AND WINDY

The weather here has been hot, dry and windy for the past two weeks or more and no prospects for rain at the time this article is being written Wednesday.

However, rain generally follows a long seige of high winds, and it is hoped a good rain can be announced in next week's paper.

The age of a race horse is calculated from January 1.

Crowell Cemetery Needs Funds to Carry on Program

The buying of more land and having it surveyed, which had to be paid for out of the regular funds of the Cemetery Association, has so depleted these funds that the improvement program which has made wonderful progress, is beginning to be slowed down. It would be a wonderful relief to those who have the responsibility of carrying on this work if some big gifts were received. A few big gifts by those who could afford it would be greatly appreciated.

Mrs. N. J. Roberts, president of the Cemetery Association, has the following to say in regard to the program:

"The cemetery program has practically come to a stand still. We had thought there would be those who would come to our rescue that we might continue our improvements. There are a number of things that must be completed before there's a stopping place."

"The Wichita Falls surveyors have recently spent two days surveying and marking the new section. This required over $25.00 worth of metal stakes other than the expenses of the surveyors. The west side could not be surveyed because of the johnson grass. Cotton Barker has cut the grass and we have bought the poison, which is quite expensive, and now County Agent Joe Burkett will advise us when the time is ripe to apply the poison to kill out the johnson grass. The surveyor has assured us that he will come back and survey this plot when we are ready."

"When the new culverts were placed at the two gates, there was considerable depressions left at the entrance. We have some surplus gravel and Jack Lyons has agreed to see that the gravel is spread."

"Commissioner Bill Bell will be back to finish our fence, but there are more posts and other material to buy."

"The street between the old part and the new must be dragged. Our contributions will no more than take care of current expenses, and we are urging those who want to have a part in this program to remember this is a county-wide project and should not be overlooked."

H. D. Agent Tells How to Select Cheese

Trying a new cheese for the first time is a wonderful experience. But sometimes it's a complex matter to make a selection from the more than 400 varieties of cheese on the market. Mary D. Brown, Acting County Home Demonstration Agent, explains that many of these are imported cheeses and not widely sold in this country. American or domestic cheeses are recognized to be high in quality and are less expensive than imported varieties. Mrs. Brown points out there are about 18 types of cheeses known as soft, semi-hard and hard and the hardness depends on the amount of water in the finished product. Flavors and texture are produced by the type of milk used, the amount of butterfat retained and the method of processing.

Soft cheeses, such as cottage and cream cheese, are not ripened and have a slight sour taste. Ripened soft cheese, such as Camembert and Brie, are produced by the use of molds. All soft cheeses have a high water content, do not keep well and should be used promptly.

Semi-hard cheeses are ripened with mold or bacteria. Listed among these are Blue, Roquefort and Stilton. Roquefort cheese, originally made in France, has a pleasantly tart flavor caused by a blue mold. Stilton is one of the principal English cheeses. It is rich, unpressed, of waxy texture and permeated with a blue-green mold and has a spicier flavor than the Roquefort.

Hard cheese are bacteria ripened and the flavor ranges from mild to sharp and the texture from smooth to granular. Of these cheeses, American and Cheddar, are smooth and mild; Edam and Gouda have a nut-like flavor; Brick is smooth and stronger in flavor than Cheddar and Gruyere and Swiss are both hard, have gas holes and a nutty flavor. Parmesan is very hard, granular in texture and has a sharp flavor.

Mrs. Brown recommends the liberal use of cheese in the family diet because it is a concentrated source of many nutrients of milk. Ten pounds of milk is required to make one pound of cheese and from the standpoint of calcium, one ounce of cheese may be used as an alternate for one cup of milk. The specialist points out that there is no end to cheese combinations. These may be cheese with cheese or with other foods such as meat, fish, poultry, eggs, vegetables, fruit, macaroni, spaghetti, baked products, crackers and as desserts.

Cheese, as a milk product, is high on the list of foods we should all use. Mrs. Brown reveals that the Texas Food Standard calls for at least a pint of milk or its equivalent daily for adults and a quart for children.

Home Demonstration Notes
MARY DEEB BROWN

Taking girls out of the county is always a big responsibility, but I certainly enjoyed taking Janet and Kay Rashberry, Roma Jan Spikes, and Gail Knox to the District Encampment at Leaders last week. These girls will certainly be a great help when it comes time to plan our county 4-H camp, for they took an active part in everything at camp.

These girls will also bring the 4-H demonstration to the Home Demonstration Clubs in July. Council voted to hold the summer encampment August 5 and 6 at Lake Pauline. Make plans now to attend. We always have a wonderful time, and you will be sorry if you miss it.

We are all looking for cool recipes which require very little preparation and here is one for Orange Chiffon Pie which you might like.

Health Letter
Texas State Department of Health, Austin, Texas, Geo. W. Cox, M. D., State Health Officer.

This is the season when an increase of undulant fever may be expected, according to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

An undulant fever patient suffers from chills, sensations, or severe shaking chills, sweats, and high fever. The patient loses weight and becomes weak. If the illness is of mild type, the patient may find it hard to remain in bed, but if he tries to keep on with his work he finds he has not sufficient energy.

Symptoms often continue for a number of weeks before recovery occurs. Fortunately undulant fever has a low death rate. Body temperature may reach a higher mark each day than the day before for some time, and then gradually return to normal over a period of several days. Fever may be absent for some days and come back again in the same way as before, registering higher each day and then gradually going lower. The patient's temperature chart will resemble smooth waves or undulations. The appearance of the temperature curve in typical cases has given this disease the name undulant fever.

Undulant fever is one of the infectious diseases known to be transmitted from animals to human beings. In hogs and cows, the germ produces a great economic loss because it causes contagious abortion. When this same germ invades the human body, the resulting disease is undulant fever. Prevention is dependent upon (1) eradication of the disease in farm animals, (2) careful pasteurization of dairy products, and (3) avoidance, in so far as possible, of direct contact with infected animals.

Uncle Sam Is on Land Buying Spree Which Began in 1937

Abilene, Tex., June 21—Uncle Sam started a land-buying spree in 1937 that has taken 65 million acres off state and local tax rolls and made the Federal government owner of one-fourth of the land area of continental United States, according to a bulletin just issued by the taxation and legislation department of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Current Federal programs call for federal acquisition of many additional millions of acres, the WTCC declared.

The WTCC report said that a 1947 report of the Senate Committee on Public Lands showed that the government then owned from 35 to 87 per cent of the total land area of ten western states, as follows: Nevada, 87 per cent; Arizona, 73 per cent; Utah, 72 per cent; Idaho, 64 per cent; Oregon 53 per cent; Wyoming, 51 per cent; California, 46 per cent; New Mexico, 44 per cent; Colorado, 38 per cent; Montana and Washington, 35 per cent.

The Committee report is quoted as declaring that a federal policy of land acquisition which stresses Federal ownership and control of all the resources of the United States had developed from activities of various government agencies.

"This policy is inimical to the proper and full development of many of the states . . . and seriously impairs the entire tax structure of such States and their local subdivisions," the Committee report declared.

The WTCC commented that "this trend toward increased Federal land ownership is of comparatively recent origin. For many decades it was the established policy of the Government to dispose of its more accessible lands to private owners who proceeded to put them to productive use. Federal land holdings gradually diminished under this policy until in 1937 the total government acreage was a record low of 394,657,000 acres. By 1949, government acreage totaled 455,147,000. A recent unofficial check showed that approximately four million acres more had been added."

Seattle, Wash. — The University of Washington's self-help program for small towns in the state is breathing new life into many communities, making them a better place to live—richer in money and spirit.

In communities taking part in the university program, the vital has begun to count. Under it, the people of the community first study their town from every angle. This town-study type of study may take six months to a year, but it is worth it. Buried talents are discovered and put to work. Persons who first are too timid to talk come leaders. They indulge in "glittering generalities."

The whole town is called to approve the program of which follows the study. Actually all help carry it out.

In White Salmon, the local paper, The Enterprise, is an example of how it affects a community. One year after study began, eight of 16 projects on the front page were completed resulting from the study.

One of the results of the study was a move to conserve the area's main source of power and to increase local production of timber.

This will free the community from dependence on logging, the chief industry. Since it is seasonal, it will also create unemployment compensation relief.

Dozens of other large projects were carried out at White Salmon. The community established a school health clinic, and added to and improved its including sweeping changes in curriculum.

Streets were paved and roads improved. The projects are financed by benefits, volunteer labor, equipment and, in some cases, tax money.

More than 50 other communities in Washington are working for assistance.

HAD A CHECK-UP LATELY?
from Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

Everyone knows it's a good thing to have an annual physical check-up, and it's best to visit your dentist twice a year. Most of us are quite careful to keep tabs on our physical well-being, yet how many of us take time now and then to check up on our spiritual status?

Let's check up on our spiritual habits and attitudes. Been going to church lately? Perhaps we have been singing in the choir. No doubt many of us are engaged in giving charity—both time and money. Good enough. But how are we giving all this? With the idea that we're being noble, sacrificial and God should certainly appreciate what we're doing for Him?

And what about the time involved? Are we the one-day-a-week type? Sunday we devote to the Lord—but the other six days are ours to do as we will? We'll think of our neighbor, we'll read our Bible, and do other things on Sunday as our duty, our sac-

Bacterial blight is a disease which cotton growers have become more and more aware of in recent years. The disease is also known as angular leaf spot, boll blight, blackarm, sore shin and damping off, depending on time of year and part of the cotton plant affected.

On the leaf, bacterial blight appears as watersoaked, angular spots which become brown upon drying. On the bolls, the watersoaked round lesions become sunken and black upon drying. The blackarm phase of the disease occurs as black elongated lesions on the stems and fruiting branches. Sore shin and damping off are seedling diseases and infect the shank of young cotton just after it comes up.

The angular leaf spot infection maintains the disease in the field during the entire growing season and may then spread to the boll blight phase of the disease which probably causes the greatest loss. In boll blight, the bacteria may stain fibers, thus reducing the grade of the lint. Boll blight lesions may serve as avenues of entrance for boll rot fungi which normally would not infect healthy cotton.

Treating cotton planting seed with Ceresan M is helpful in preventing bacterial blight during the seedling stage.

Mrs. Lewis Poteet of Matador, Mrs. Minnie Moore of Denver City, Miss Irene Powell of Floydada, Mr. and Mrs. Joe R. Jones and baby, Debra, of Floydada, Miss Gertrude Haseloff of Vernon were guests in Mrs. Maggie Hammonds' home Sunday.

Weekly Sermon
FACING LIFE SQUARELY

from Moody Bible Institute, Chicago

"What is your life?" is one of the profound questions of the human mind. It is as old as God, yet always new, and never explained.

While we do not know what life itself is, there are some very important things about it which we need to "face up to squarely."

First, life is a gift. God did not create life—He gave it. "And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul" (Gen. 2:7). Life is God's greatest trust to man. It is not ours to sell for anything. Remember, life is too great to be destroyed. You may destroy the body that keeps intact the powers of life, but an act of suicide will plunge you into eternity where the mysteries of life are unfolded. Since life is a priceless gift from God, then, man is responsible to God for that life.

Second, life is a preparation. "Life is seed which has tremendous possibilities of endless growth." Therefore, let us not trample under our feet the possibilities and immensities of life.

Because of an innate craving for the highest and best in life, men have resorted to all kinds of sacrifices, fastings, and self-denials. Character determines a person's real worth. Now, character is built up by the impressions that are made on us, the emotions that rise in us, the thoughts that possess us, the volitions we pass; all that affects us in any way goes to construct character.

Character is based upon some one idea of life.

The sensual idea, "Eat, drink and be merry."

The secular idea, "Material gain."

The scriptural idea, "But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you" (Matt. 6:33).

Third, life is an uncertainty. How long will you live? James says: "For what is your life? It is even a vapor, that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away" (4:14). "We're here today and gone tomorrow; for thou knowest not what a day may bring forth" (Prov. 27:1).

Therefore, because of the uncertainty of life does it not behoove us to accept the Lord Jesus Christ now as our Saviour and Lord, that we may have life eternal?

RETAIL FOOD PRICES

Retail food prices rose one-tenth of one per cent between April 28 and May 15, according to the government report. Largest rises were for work and fresh fruits and vegetables. Decreases were noted in prices for poultry, dairy products and eggs.

H. D. Work Trains Local Leaders, Says Extension Specialist

Organization home demonstration work trains local leaders, develops rural communities, promotes inter-group activities and cooperates with agricultural and urban organizations. Bonnie Cox, organization specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, states in her 1951 annual report that 3,477 of the 3,779 communities in Texas have home demonstration and 4-H clubs and that 364,183 different families were reached through these clubs with home economics information.

Home demonstration clubs work on civic projects which make the communities happier, healthier and better places in which to live. The clubs assume the responsibility for these projects and are helped by the county home demonstration agents as advisors in organization.

The home demonstration program is carried into the homes and communities by home demonstration agents assisted by women and girls who serve as voluntary leaders. Miss Cox says that home demonstration agents last year conducted 922 special training meetings in organization with an attendance of 24,091. These leaders in turn conducted 2,324 training meetings with an attendance of 34,796.

In January 1951, a Civil Defense Program was initiated by other persons to buy stock in his venture—a hunch hole he planned to drill. A few listened and agreed. Those who did have received $1350 for every $100 they invested.

There are 65 producing wells in the field now. One has been measured at a flow of 150 million cubic feet daily, thought to be the largest in existence.

Other drilling outfits have moved in seeking to tap the rich natural gas from its bed in the layer of Oriskany sands which spreads in five directions through the area. Four cross-country pipelines are sucking the gas to distant cities for fuel and heat.

Although the entire town of Renovo has benefited from the find, investors and land owners have reaped the greatest rewards. Some people who owned wilderness camp sites or almost barren farm land have struck it rich.

Geologists estimate there's enough gas to flow for seven more years. And meanwhile, more well derricks keep going up throughout the region.

MAKES ALL "A's"

Boston, Mass. — Although two colleges refused to admit him in 1948 because of what they considered inferior high school background, Nicholas James Perella, 24-year-old orphaned son of Italian immigrants, graduated summa cum laude from Suffolk University, never having made a mark under "A" while working his way as a cook's helper through a four-year course.

Pennsylvania Town Prospers on Hunch of Farmer

Renovo, Pa.—Dorcie Calhoun, two years ago an impoverished farmer, today is the Horatio Alger of the booming community of Renovo.

He was the man who believed there was natural gas in the area and he drilled a 5,000 foot hole into the ground 20 miles northwest of the community. It turned out to be the discovery well for the Leidy field, Pennsylvania's biggest natural gas strike in many years.

Now, the farmer - turned - natural - gas - expert, drives around town in a custom-built sedan, which he replaces regularly. His pockets bulge with new contracts.

Calhoun's good fortune, however, was not without its trials. For two years he tried to persuade home demonstration club women. By July, defense chairmen had been appointed in 110 counties and 965 clubs had defense leaders. First aid and home nursing courses were given by American Red Cross instructors. Other activities along this line were blood typing, designating first aid stations and locating hospital and sick room equipment. Each family was encouraged to set aside linens for one sick bed and make lists of relatives and friends in cities whom they might care for in an emergency.

Miss Cox points out that throughout the program it was emphasized that the information given and the preparation made could be used in any emergency that might arise. As an example leaders in Cameron County gave demonstration on preparation of government issued dried food to citrus laborers in the Rio Grande Valley who were without work because of a freeze. In Young County, civil defense leaders put up an emergency feeding station after a tornado. Clubs sent boxes of clothing, bed linens and cooking utensils to families losing their homes.

In each county there is a home demonstration council composed of well trained officers and committees. The council is a business committee that transacts business and assists with planning the county program of work. The clubs are members of the Texas Home Demonstration Association. The THDA has shown wide interest in further growth by participation in the National Home Demonstration Council. Thirteen Texas women attended the annual meeting of this council in Lansing, Michigan.

Miss Cox says there were 8,883 home demonstration and 4-H clubs in Texas last year with a membership of 84,548.

nervous diseases, declares Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer.

It thus appears that modern civilization is exacting a terrific toll. High speed living with its cruel exactions upon nature, is responsible for a large part of the trouble. But improper personal conduct must also shoulder much of the blame. The fact is that nearly fifty per cent of the patients entering hospitals for mental disorders are there because of organic or toxic causes.

For example, general paralysis is the direct cause of many mental troubles in males entering hospitals. This condition is an organic disease of the brain due to the germ responsible for syphilis. It is a preventable disease. Early and effective treatment of acquired syphilis will block the end results of general paralysis in the insane.

The excessive use of alcohol is responsible for a number of mental disorders. Alcohol and syphilis combined are responsible for approximately one-fifth of the hospitalized insanities. Nevertheless, improper living habits continue to impair many brains. Insufficient sleep, neglect of bodily care and a consistent overforcing of nervous energy are the pitfalls to avoid in this connection.

Nature demands that her fundamental laws be at least reasonably observed. A constant outraging of the physiological economy takes its toll not only in bodies but in minds also. Insanities and lesser nervous disorders could be spectacularly reduced if this fact was more generally respected. Training for mental health must be started in childhood as that is the time when corrections can be made to the best advantage.

A man weighing 175 pounds on earth would weigh almost two and a half tons on the sun.

WHEN YOU TRY POWER-STEERING...
HERE'S WHERE TO COME FIRST!

You've heard about it and read about it. Now, if you haven't felt what Power Steering does for you, we invite you to try it first in a Chrysler New Yorker... where you will find full-time (not partial) Power Steering!

What happens is this...

You handle the steering wheel in normal fashion. But 4/5 of all the work is done for you by hydraulic power, constantly at your command. Also, you turn the wheel 1/3 less distance now for every maneuver... the feeling you get of utter control is as wonderful as it is new.

Even at a standstill you can turn the wheel easily. Now, parking is shorn of its troubles (and fatigue!)... and you can negotiate traffic, awkward drives, and garage doors precisely and with ease.

You can double the longest day's drive you've ever known... end up free from arm and shoulder strain. Rough roads, soft shoulders, snow, mud?... the power that helps you steer now prevents the car's wheels from "steering back" at you. The course you set is held, at any speed, till you want it changed. Yet, with this 5-times greater control, "wheel feel" is always the same.

Why not come try it? Learn for yourself why growing thousands of motorists say they'll never be without Full-time Power Steering from now on. Drive a Chrysler... and Learn the Difference!

'Revitalizing a Nation'

The Foard County News received this week a complimentary copy of a book entitled "Revitalizing a Nation," by Gen. Douglas MacArthur from Ralph W. Gwinn, Representative to Congress from the 27th District of New York. In his letter Mr. Gwinn said, "General MacArthur has risen in national esteem and confidence beginning with his speech on the battleship Missouri, in Tokyo in 1945, down to the last speech he made before the Michigan State Legislature just a few days ago. He rises above all other Americans in making a moral challenge to the people. They are responding. There has not been in a generation, statements of beliefs, opinions and policies comparable to those in 'Revitalizing a Nation' and none more pertinent to our needs right now."

In the introduction, Dr. Norman Vincent Peale says of the book: "It is an American document. Regardless of party affiliation, it should go into every home in America. It can, with our help, save America."

The book is published by The Heritage Foundation, Inc., 75 E. Wacker Drive, Chicago 1, Ill. Fiber-bound edition $1.00 per copy.

1950 Census Figures

The Census Bureau recently announced that final figures on the 1950 census showed a total United States population of 154,233,000. That figure applies to April 1, 1950.

The Census Bureau admitted that the country was growing so fast that this figure is already out of date and that there might be anywhere between 156 and 160 million Americans in the United States today.

The Department of Commerce estimates that U. S. population increases at the rate of one every thirteen seconds.

The final Census Bureau report shows that forty-four states gained population in the decade between 1940 and 1950, although South Dakota, Mississippi, Arkansas and Oklahoma lost population. California was the fastest growing state and jumped from fifth to second place in total population.

Other fast growing states are Florida and Washington, each of which moved up seven positions; Arizona, Maryland and Virginia.

FLOOD RELIEF

The Senate has passed and sent to President Truman a bill carrying $55,000,000 to repair the effects of recent serious floods in the Midwest. Of this amount, $14,500,000 is for the restoration of productive capacity of farms and $5,500,000 is for the repair and clearance of streams and waterways. Also included are $35,000,000 for the Army Engineers for emergency flood control work.

Publication of Texas Christian Advocate Resumed

The publication of the Texas Christian Advocate, Methodist church newspaper, was resumed June 19 when the first issue was mailed, it was announced recently by the Texas Methodist Information in Dallas.

The newspaper format is used. It is printed by the All-Church Press firm of Fort Worth. The firm publishes a weekly paper for local churches. Nearly 100 Methodist churches use the service with a circulation of about 40,000. The Advocate, bearing the title "Texas Methodist News," will appear in many local church editions.

Churches that don't use the All-Church Press are sending subscriptions for individuals.

The Texas Christian Advocate has been published since 1847 under three different titles. In 1949 what was known as "The Southwestern Advocate" was merged as an experiment to become a semi-monthly supplement to the Christian Advocate (Chicago). The circulation has reached an all-time high of over 30,000 in Texas.

On May 13, the 16-member Board of Publication for the six Texas Methodist Conferences concluded that the state paper should be resumed. Bishop A. Frank Smith of Houston said: "Texas must have a state-wide paper." Bishop William C. Martin of Dallas declared: "A new day calls for a swifter messenger."

Rev. J. H. Crawford of Stamford is the board chairman; Dr. Monroe Vivion of Beaumont, vice-chairman and treasurer; Rev. Gerald P. McCollom of Wichita Falls is secretary. The editor is Rev. J. Fisher Simpson.

The Texas Conferences enthusiastically adopted the plan at their recent sessions.

HEALTH LETTER

From Texas State Dept. of Health

A long-range battle plan against rampaging polio was outlined Wednesday by the State Department of Health.

State Health Officer Geo. W. Cox recommended these eight points of action in combatting the disease which this year is striking harder at Texas than at any other part of the nation:

1. Spot spray insect breeding places after they have been cleaned up and destroyed. Spraying indiscriminately might kill a few insects on the wing, but it won't do the job. It might kill valuable plants and create a false sense of security.
2. Get rid of animal shelters in urban areas. They cannot be kept clean and consequently create a health hazard as fly breeders.
3. Get rid of dump piles, tin cans, old tires, and accumulated debris which breed flies and mosquitoes and provide harborage for rats.
4. Provide a properly operated sewerage system and get rid of all surface toilets. Dr. Cox believes surface toilets constitute one of the major health hazards facing Texas.
5. Provide a source of pure water.
6. Protect food supplies in wholesale business houses, retail shops, and private homes.
7. Make regular inspections of all premises to see that no possibility exists for fly breeding. If you have flies, somebody is maintaining a breeding spot.
8. Garbage should be placed in fly-tight garbage cans until time of disposal. Tubs, boxes, lidless garbage cans, etc., are of no value. He urged each home owner to assume responsibility for keeping his property clean inside and out. This will help protect you and your neighbor. More people have been struck down by polio this year than ever before.

He said it takes months and months to clean up a city, and that it "takes forever to keep it that way." The program must be continuous. "It will take from one to five years to really clean up our larger cities," Cox said.

"This is the same program we have followed and published for the past ten years. People have got to get over the notion that spraying alone will keep their city fly-free," Dr. Cox declared. "The only way to kill flies is to do it methodically, block by block, by eliminating their breeding places."

"They carry many diseases—diarrhea, typhoid fever, cholera, trachoma, just to mention a few. I firmly believe that if this 8-point program is invoked, we'll see a lessening of polio incidence in the future."

The force of gravity on the sun is 28 times that on earth.

Production Freedom

A nationwide salute to the production miracles of America, which have made this country the bastion of the free world, will be given this fall.

This will show how the outpouring of materials from farms, factories, mills and mines under the American free enterprise system has made our country a world leader. It will highlight the great strides made by agriculture and industry since 1945.

The activities will be carried out under the banner of Production for Freedom, and they will center around the week of September 7-13.

With agriculture and industry hitting new production goals, it will be a startling story that every community has to tell.

The program has the endorsement of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The Chamber told its local groups: "Production for Freedom Week is designed to promote economic understanding . . . a better appreciation of the role of your business firms in the unique American system of Production for Freedom."

Since the availability of electric power has been a major factor in making this production possible, the electric theme will run as a current through the activities. Power use by manufacturers has increased 109 per cent since 1940. The United States, with less than seven per cent of the world's population, produces one-third of the world's goods. The American worker uses an average of 14,000 kilowatts of electric power a year to do his job—the equivalent of having 210 other men as helpers.

Every type of industry will participate in some form to tell the dramatic story of America's production might.

Prices and Incomes

It is something of an economic axiom that the price of any article is determined largely by how much there is of it—and how badly people want it. And that fact has led to a considerable amount of confusion in the public mind.

Take, for example, so simple and so widely-consumed a product as pork chops. The housewife will argue that the price of these chops is way too high—and automatically reasons from that that all meat prices are too high. Actually, pork chops are expensive because there are so few of them. After a 240-pound hog is butchered and processed, only about 150 pounds of pork products are left for the butcher to sell. And only 10 pounds of those products are center cut pork chops—the cuts most people like best. So it is entirely natural and inevitable that the chops cost substantially more than other pork products which are just as nutritious. This goes for other kinds of meat as well. Only a small part of a steer, for instance, winds up in the butcher's show window in the form of T-bones.

A tremendous amount of misinformation has been making the rounds concerning the meat price situation. If you told the average housewife that meat costs less now than it did in the 30's she'd look on you as a candidate for the booby-hatch. But meat does cost a little less—if the price is measured in proportion to family incomes, which is the only accurate

The Next Step

Early in May, the Federal Reserve Board suspended Regulation W, which controlled installment buying. This action obviously stemmed from the fact that there are ample supplies of merchandise in all categories, and shortages are almost unknown in the consumer-goods field.

This was a step in the right direction. And Congress could use it as a precedent for taking a far more important step—the elimination of all price and wage controls.

There is only one law which should govern a free nation's economy—and that is the law of supply and demand. There has been a great deal of idle talk as to whether suspension of the artificial controls would result in higher prices or lower prices. No one knows with certainty, and this question is beside the point anyway. Controls hamstringing the economy. They take the drive out of it and discourage initiative. In many instances they fall hardest on the small business and prevent its growth. They substitute the judgment of politicians and professional bureaucrats for natural economic law. A dynamic nation is a free nation—and vice versa.

Congress has held long hearings on the Defense Production Act. Witness after witness has testified to the damage the controls have done and are doing, and has backed that attitude up with facts and figures. It's high time we got rid of them and the Office of Price Stabilization, the costly administering agency.

But meat does cost a little less—if the price is measured in proportion to family incomes, which is the only accurate yardstick. According to U. S. Department of Agriculture figures, meat accounted for 6 per cent of the average consumer's disposable income during the 1930-39 period. During the four-year 1948-51 period, on the other hand, it took 5 1/2 per cent. And we eat more meat and better meat now than we did in the past.

Meat prices have risen—certainly. But our incomes, on the average, have risen even more.

NATURAL QUAIL COVER

He lists different types of planted quail cover and then adds: "Planting anything for quail cover is a slow process requiring two to four years to show results. It is far better to work with existing cover where possible. Landowners who later wish to have quail will find that replacing the cover is expensive. One of the most constructive things that can be done by persons interested in quail is the prevention of the destruction of essential cover."

Paderewski, the pianist, played his first American concert on Nov. 7, 1891.

NATIONAL WEALTH

According to a report of the National Industrial Conference, our ever-growing share of the national wealth is finding its way into units of the Federal Government, which now holds thirty-five to forty per cent of American savings.

DOCTORS

In 1951, 6,282 new physicians were licensed in this country. That was offset by the death of 3,640 during the year, making the net increase 2,640 and a total of 211,680 physicians in the United States.

Texas Publishers Seek Accounting of Public Funds

Texas newspaper publishers expressed strong objection to the failure of state officials to publish accountings of receipts and disbursements of public tax monies at the 73rd Annual Meeting of the Texas Press Association in Houston, June 14.

Resolutions pointed out that such were passed calling attention to the fact that, even though required by law, such publications are seldom made by city, county and school board district officials. Resolutions pointed out that such public notices are required for the "understanding, benefit and criticism of the voters and tax payers," and that the light of publicity could place a curb upon the "careless, wasteful extravagance and often corrupt handling of public funds."

In part, the resolutions read: Whereas, laws in other states recognize the need of such detailed publication of all expenditures of public monies, wherein said expenditures are listed in the local or regional newspaper, item by item, dollar by dollar; and that experience in other states proves that the cost of publication is more than justified by its enormous saving in the taxpayers' money. Therefore, be it resolved that the Legislative Committee of the Texas Press Association be called upon to study this particular phase of our state law and that said committee be empowered to suggest corrective measures for consideration by the State Legislative body.

J. C. Smyth, publisher of the Liberty Vindicator is chairman of the TPA Legislative Committee. A second resolution passed by the convention urged the election of officials who will pledge themselves to call a halt to tax increases. A third called for revision of the state election code to "create a basis of equity between and among candidates contending for any particular office." Another endorsed the efforts of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic fraternity, in their fight for freedom of information and the peoples' right to know.

Attempts by certain groups to place a curb on advertising for selfish purposes and the TPA's objection to false or misleading advertising also were cited by the Resolutions Committee. Canadian manufacturers of newsprint were condemned for their increase in the price of their product, and domestic producers were urged to maintain their present prices, in another resolution. The association also went on record as approving the work of Weekly Newspaper Representatives of New York City, a new organization formed for the handling of national advertising in the country's weekly newspapers. Michael Coleasanto, general manager of Weekly Newspaper Representatives, was a speaker for the Houston meeting.

William Rawland, publisher of the Cleburne Times-Review, was elected president of the Texas Press Association, at the meeting. He replaces Brad H. Smith, Westaco News publisher. Smith will serve during the coming year as chairman of the Board of Directors, succeeding Frederick I. Massengill Jr., Terrell Daily Tribune, Arthur H. Kowert, Fredericksburg Standard, was named

300-Year-Old System of Government Is Becoming Extinct

West Newbury, Mass.—A form of government—the Town Meeting—that special 300 year old New England system by which hundreds of small towns govern themselves, is in serious danger. The Town Meeting form of government calls for the election of three selectmen for the combined duties of mayor and council. Once a year the selectmen and the community voters gather at the town hall and examine, debate and adopt or reject, item by item, the town's proposed budget or list of expenditures, and other proposals.

As an example of what is happening to hundreds of New England small towns with Town Meeting form of government, consider West Newbury, population 1,598, often called the typical community of the section. It has a Main Street, lined with old houses dating back to the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, a couple of small grocery stores, one small factory employing 20 workers and a false front post office.

Problems Increase
Like other towns in New England, West Newbury—located 40 miles north of Boston—has survived on P. W. A. grants and war contracts. Twenty years ago the community was virtually a dying town. Births and marriages had dropped below 12 a year, and 25 to 30 old people were laid away each year. Then came the New Deal, Pearl Harbor, and war.

Because of its location near Boston and other communities where there were industries, newcomers poured into the village. And these new people wanted city ways: good schools, good roads, water and street lights, and school bus service even on back roads. Instead of decreasing, these problems have increased during the years. Soaring inflation and ever-rising demands have added to the problems.
West Newbury, and the towns like it, however, can not meet all of these demands. They can not enjoy the luxury of deficit spending. They must balance their budgets. If they can not, then they must give way and the state takes over the town.

Demand Improvements
If inflation continues upward and taxes become heavier, many towns like West Newbury may be forced to curtail even essential lighting services and resort to a cheap-grade school building program to keep within their budgets. Yet, the newcomers and many of the natives, continue their demands for improvement and have no desire to slide backward into the old ways.

The only solution would seem to be the consolidation of towns into larger political units and combining school systems and other services. But that solution will kill the Town Meeting form of government—the oldest in the nation.
Buying for cash is a good way to keep your debts paid.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Expenditure of close to a billion dollars last year on highways and streets helped alleviate traffic congestion in some instances, but in still more cases it wasn't nearly enough. Last year, more than 52 million motor vehicles were registered and annual travel reached 500 billion vehicle miles.

Chocolate beans were once used as currency in Mexico.
Maximum brain weight of a man is attained at about the age of 20.

Property Settlement Discussed by A&M Extension Specialist

Too few people know what would happen to their property in case of death. Florence Low, home management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says confusion can be avoided by thinking through plans for settlement of the property and disposing of it by a will.

The owner of any kind of real or personal property has three choices under Texas laws for transfer of property to heirs. He may let the estate be distributed to those specified by law, make a will or arrange for joint or single ownership of real or personal property.

One procedure is to let property pass to heirs without making a will. This is called intestacy. Four things can happen to community property when no will is made.

If a man or woman dies leaving no children, all the property goes to the spouse. If a man or woman dies leaving a spouse and children, one half goes to the spouse and the remainder to the children. The law provides that the homestead shall not be divided among the heirs during the lifetime of the surviving husband or wife so long as the survivor elects to use or occupy it as a homestead. If a widow or widower is survived by children, the property is divided equally among them. If a single person, a widow or a widower dies without children, the property is divided equally between the parents. If only one parent is alive one half goes to him and one half goes to brothers and sisters, and so on down to the next of kin.

Another choice offered by law in the transfer of property to heirs is by a will. A will, to be valid in Texas, must be written and witnessed. To prevent possible delays and expenses in the settlement of estates, Mrs. Low says an attorney should be consulted before a will is made. The attorney can assist in the wording of the will so that it states plainly what disposition the testator desires for the property.

A third option in disposing of property is through joint ownership. There are three methods of owning property jointly. Joint tenancy is when two or more persons own any kind of property as "joint tenants" on the deed or bill of sale transferring property. Secondly there is "tenancy by the entirety" which is possible only for a wife and husband and applies only to real property. Then there is tenancy in common where two or more persons hold any kind of property as "tenants in common." The deed or bill of sale carries all the names and makes no reference to survivorship. Each of the three joint ownership of property options carries its own method of disposing of the prop-

Costs Between $4,000 and $5,000 to Develop New Irrigation Well

It costs between $4,000 and $5,000 to develop and equip a new irrigation well on the High Plains of Texas, according to a study just published by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

These averages are based on installation and operation costs reported during 1947, 1948 and 1949 in a study of a yearly average of 176 wells in Lubbock, Hockley, Hale, Floyd and Swisher counties. Present costs may be somewhat higher than during the period of the study.

Installation costs included the drilling, casing and spillway for the well, which averaged $1272. Purchase and operating costs are given for four types of power units used to pump irrigation wells. These were electric energy which should be thoroughly understood.

Each property owner has a choice of any of the three methods of disposing of property.

Screwworms To Be More Active This Year, Says Agent

Surveys made in Texas by the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, in cooperation with other state agencies, show that the mild winter has permitted the screwworm to overwinter as far north as Crockett, Schleicher, Menard and Lampasas Counties. However, the number of reported cases is not numerous, says Joe Burkett, County Agent.

He points out that there is danger ahead for the livestock producer unless they treat infected animals at once and avoid using practices that may leave wounds on the animals. Recent rains over much of the state have produced favorable weather conditions for the pest and stockmen are warned to be on the alert. The destruction of the worms before they mature will not only stop further injury to the animals but will help reduce future infestations.

To prevent and cure infection caused by the screwworm, Burkett recommends the use of EQ-335, a medicine which was developed through BEPQ research. EQ-335 is applied to the wound as a smear. It contains lindane, a chemical insecticide, which has a lasting effect as a screwworm killer. One application per week, except in severe cases, is sufficient. This is a time saver because other medicines must be applied twice per week. Another big advantage for EQ-335 is lindane's residual killing power—in its ability to kill female screwworm flies that attempt to feed or lay eggs in the wound.

Livestock producers are urged to carefully examine all animals before shipment and again when they are unloaded. This is very important since many cattle are now being shipped from Texas to pastures in other states. All scratches, sores or wounds of any type that might possibly be in-fectured by the worms should be treated for screwworm eggs might be present and thus would be shipped with the livestock to the new areas.

Screwworms can increase rapidly in number if allowed to do so, says Burkett. As weather conditions become more favorable, the pest will move northward at the rate of 25 to 35 miles a week. Stopping the worms before they get started will head off lots of trouble later.

Earth, Texas, Moved To The Railroad

Earth, Texas — This little community has an unusual history. Once the citizens tried to persuade the builders of a new railroad, the Texas & Pacific, to plan the route to pass through their town.

The railroad, however, ignored the pleas of the village. When it became evident that their efforts had failed, the citizens held another meeting and decided to move the whole earth — homes, stores, school, church and every citizen's personal belongings — five miles away to a new site.

And that's how Earth enjoys the facilities of a railroad today. Someone in the community must have read something about Mohammed and the mountain.

Help for the Whooping Crane

An oil company and a natural gas company recently were awarded the Audubon Society's citation of merit—and back of that highly unusual event lies quite a story.

The whooping crane is now almost extinct. Only 32 of these gigantic birds are known to exist and they are extremely timid. Their winter sanctuary lies in an area leased by the oil and gas concerns. Company officials pledged that they would do everything possible to avoid frightening the birds.

A few months ago drilling crews moved in to sink a test well. Then they discovered that a mother whooper was hatching an egg in the vicinity. So all activity stopped and the men spent their time bird watching until nature took over and the crane departed to summer in the far north.

The well was sunk, and proved to be an extremely fine producer. Other wells were drilled, and plans were made to build a canal, road, dock and other facilities to move the oil from the field to refineries. Then the engineers found that the proposed route would run smack through the crane's winter sanctuary. So orders went out to abandon the original plan, and to lay out a route which will skirt the area and leave the cranes untroubled.

No one knows whether the whooping cranes will survive, or whether they are destined to go the way of the dodo and the passenger pigeon. In any event, a couple of supposedly hard-boiled American business concerns have gone all out to help them survive.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

When foreign economic aid will end no one knows. Last year, the Secretary of State, testifying before a Congressional committee, talked in terms of a 3-year program, costing approximately $25 billion. This year he is saying he cannot foresee any date on which the program could be ended.

The mean diameter of the earth is 7,920 miles.
