Deporting Gangsters

The Justice Department has finally begun to go into action against nationally - known gangsters, who have risen to fame and fortune in the United States despite criminal records and — in some cases—an alien status. The testimony of some of these men, when up under questioning, is amazing in that it shows a tiesome cases—an alien status. The testimony of some of these men, when up under questioning, is amazing in that it shows a tieup between the nation's top gamblers almost paralleling the associations of top officers in a big corporation.

Ed Carlock of Paducah was in discovered the status. The Crowell Wednesday attending to over $53,000,000 as a result of automobile accidents during the first nine months of 1952. This total represents some 27,000 policies, through which beneficiaries have received the $53,000,000.

The question which arises as a result of this action by the Federal Government is why these turning Sunday. gamblers were not prosecuted or sent out of the country at an earlier date. The offenses they were guilty of committing occurred, in home of Mrs. J. A. Johnson. many instances, many years ago. Sometimes the offense dates back twenty or thirty years. Why is it, then, that these big-shot gamblers have reigned supreme, with very protection racket. Obviously, these Juanita Campbell, Lozel Kincaid, nationally - known gamblers and Mildred Nicholson and Mary Bilgangsters were given protection by top politicians. The protection could have come from New York City officials. New York State officials or even Federal officials. City officials. New York State officials. In any event, these old-world elements brought their form of corruption and vice to this country and bought protection from Amerand bought protection from American politicians. This is a sad com-mentary on the state of affairs in New York City and in other cities and sections of the country.

Members of either house of the Legislature can introduce as many bills as they choose. Usually about 1,500 bills are introduced at each regular session. Considerably less than half of them ever reach the Governor's desk. In order to be-come a law, a bill must pass through both houses by a majority vote. A bill may be, and often is, amended several times in each branch. Amendments also require a majority vote. A bill may pass one house and fail to reach a vote or be voted down in the other branch.

Amendments to the State Constitution must receive a two-thirds favorable majority in each house of the Legislature before being submitted to a statewide election for adoption or rejection by the
