News from the Congress

by Congressman Frank Ikard

About this time every year there is a great deal of speculation about when Congress will adjourn. Anyone in number of rumors about when the adjournment day will be; however, I doubt if anybody really knows now just when this session will come to a close. All indications are that every effort will be made to end the business of this session of Congress somewhere around the first of August. The two big pieces of legislation that the House has yet to consider are first, the agriculture bill which will provide for the agricultural program. This matter is still before the agriculture committee. Chances are that it will be some time yet before they report a bill to the floor of the House. Second is the foreign aid program which is now being considered by the foreign affairs committee, which has not completed its work on this legislation. After these two matters are reported to the floor of the House and are acted upon, all of the major legislative proposals that have a chance for action this session will have been passed on. I believe that most members of Congress will welcome the end of the session so that they will have an opportunity to get back to their homes and spend the late summer and fall; however, some of the committees will function right on through to the first of the year which will mean that even though Congress is not in session, there will still be a lot of work going on.

I have just been named to a special subcommittee that is charged with the responsibility of investigating alleged labor racketeering. In all probability this committee will hold extensive hearings this fall to inquire into this question. Even though it will mean a lot of work, I am hopeful that we can do a constructive and worthwhile job.

This week the House acted on legislation that will make it possible for some of our agricultural surpluses to be sold abroad and, in some instances, to accept foreign currencies for their sale. Legislation of this kind has been needed for a long time because of the fact that we have practically had an embargo on the sale of American agricultural products in the world market for the last several years. County Agent Urges Prompt Treatment of Screw Worms in Cattle

Stockmen and farmers are advised to look out for screw worms and to treat all livestock wounds to prevent worm infestation. Mild winters, similar to the one just past, induce an early worm build up, says Joe Burkett, County Agent.

To prevent and curb infection, Burkett recommends EQ-335 smear. It contains lindane which gives a lasting killing effect. One application a week, except in severe cases, will do the job. Screw worms increase rapidly once present. If headed off at the start, a lot of trouble can be avoided, Burkett added.

Approximately 10 per cent of polo cases use an iron lung. New Hampshire has the largest legislature of any state.

Soil Conservation Practices Do Not Decrease Amount of Water Available for Municipal and Industrial Uses

Cities and industries have been asking whether soil conservation being carried out by thousands of farmers and ranchers through soil conservation districts will reduce the amount of water available for municipal and industrial uses.

H. N. Smith, State Conservationist for Texas, says that for all practical purposes the answer seems to be "no."

The Soil Conservation Service has been studying this problem at the Blacklands Experimental Watersheds project near Riesel, Texas, since 1940. The studies include measurements of rainfall and runoff from two similar watersheds. They are still in progress.

Similar farming practices were being followed on both watersheds at the beginning of the study. Conservation practices were established on one of the watersheds in the spring of 1943. These practices included changing part of the cultivated area to grassland; the use of improved crop rotations; and the construction of terraces on land in cultivation. No change was made in the farming practices on the other watershed.

During the first five years rainfall was slightly above normal and the runoff-producing rainfall averaged 17.4 inches annually. The following five years, 1948 through 1952, were drought years and the runoff-producing rainfall averaged only 4.8 inches yearly. The total rainfall during the drought period was two-thirds the amount for the normal five years, but most of it fell in such small amounts or at such a slow rate that it produced no runoff.

For the normal rainfall period there was almost no difference in the runoff from the untreated and treated watersheds. Mr. Smith reported. The annual average was 10.3 and 10.4 inches, respectively. During the drought period the average yearly runoff from the untreated and treated watersheds was approximately 1.4 and 0.9 inches.

The fact that there was a difference of one-half inch in the annual runoff from these two watersheds during the drought years is not the significant point, said Mr. Smith. This minor difference in rate, even over a period of several years, would amount to so small a volume of water that it could not be considered in the planning of a dependable municipal water supply. The important point is that the total runoff from the untreated watershed during the five drought years was only about two-thirds of the average runoff for one year during the normal rainfall period.

Mr. Smith emphasized that because runoff during drought years may be very small, water supply reservoirs must have enough capacity to catch the water during years of normal to high runoff and store it for use during drought periods. A city cannot depend on the runoff during a drought to maintain its water supply. This is a fact which needs to be widely understood.

Although soil conservation practices on a watershed will not have a significant effect on water yield they can help greatly in protecting water supplies from loss of storage space by sedimentation. Conservation practices reduce erosion and the rate of reservoir sedimentation. By slowing down the rate at which reservoirs are filling with sediment, Mr. Smith said, more storage capacity will be maintained in which to store water for use during drought years.

No Insurance Mess

State Senator George Parkhouse told a meeting of insurance men in Austin that most of the controversy was being played out of true import.

He said that most of the trouble was being "generated artificially and unnecessarily to serve the political purposes of a little group of men." He added that the Legislature should, however, patch some present law loopholes and pay examiners better salaries.

'Ridiculous' Charges

Charges by a former agent of the State Liquor Board that the liquor industry and politicians run the board was termed "absolutely ridiculous" by Administrator Coke Stevenson Jr.

Stevenson said the accusation of former member Weldon Burney, who called the board corrupt and dominated by politics, was without basis.

The San Antonio man resigned May 27. Stevenson said that he had been demoted in grade and appeared dissatisfied when he couldn't get a transfer back to McAllen where he was stationed when Stevenson took office.

Water Is Big Problem

Water is one of the state's big problems, the president of the Texas Water Conservation Association told Texas University attorneys and water engineers.

Guy C. Jackson Jr., asking for water improvements, called for a "state-wide water plan" and for the state to assume financial responsibility for dams and other water improvements.

Joins Campaign Staff

A manager of Governor Allan Shivers' successful 1952 race has been named to help manage the Governor's campaign for re-election.

Jack Dillard, director of Alumni Affairs for Baylor University, will assist Senator Otis Lock of Lufkin in forming strategy for the campaign which was first Monday with a rally and broadcast at Lufkin, Shohome.

Tax Exemption Asked
Two Texas turnpike corporations have asked the State Supreme Court whether toll roads built by private firms can tax exemptions.

The Texas Turnpike Corporation appealed from Dallas Court of Civil Appeals. Both are seeking to build roads in the state; one from Dallas to Houston and the other Dallas-San Antonio route.

Horse Statue
Another work of Pompeiini, legendary name to University of Texas students because statues cover the sprawling campus, has been slated for a new location.

The bronze statue of a man called "Freedom," was given the Texas State Historical Association by Mr. and Mrs. Ham Magruder of San Antonio. Work is from the family's collection of statuary.

New Aluminum Electroplating

International Nickel and aluminum producers recently plotted a ten-year cooperative research program which developed a nickel-plating that bonds strongly with appropriate aluminum alloys that the companies may be deep drawn later finished with chrome plate. This is expected to open a new market in the plating aluminum appliances and furniture when nickel becomes freely available.

The Supreme Court does have the power to alter the situation.

AS GENERAL ELECTRIC SEES IT,

Few people realize how rapidly America's economy is growing

General Electric is backing its belief in a long-term period of industrial growth by the biggest building program in its history, spending more than a billion dollars since 1946

Anyone who spreads fears that we may be facing another major depression ignores completely how much America has changed since the 1930's.

First G.E. refrigerator helped create 100,000 jobs

Industrial research and development have broadened the base of our entire economy and, even more important, have laid the groundwork for a steadily increasing expansion in the years to come.

Here are just two examples of what has happened.

The first electric refrigerator with a sealed-in mechanism was introduced by General Electric in 1926, and its production in that year required only a few hundred people. Today, refrigerators and freezers make up a billion-dollar business which employs more than 100,000 men and women in manufacturing, plus additional thousands in retailing and distribution. The freezer itself has made possible another whole new industry, frozen foods.

Today's new products and new industries...

In 1939, most of us knew electronics only as tubes in our radio, and the entire industry sold 230 million dollars' worth of equipment. Electronics is now a 4½-billion-dollar business, and some experts predict it will grow to 20 billions in the 1960's. General Electric, just one producer, now has electronic equipment factories in 13 different parts of the country and has stepped up its payroll in this field to 27,000 in just 15 years.

This trend of expansion is not slowing down. It's rapidly accelerating.

Many exciting new industries are predictable as we learn how to make full use of atomic energy. Another important new field will be electronic machinery that will make work easier, production swifter. Our scientists are experimenting with metal crystals 50 times stronger than any metals we now know. New and better home appliances are on the way. More uses for the gas turbine are coming out of jet-engine experiments.

These are only a few of the things General Electric is interested in, and other companies, of course, are hard at work on equally promising projects.

... will continue to keep America's economy expanding

Our belief in a long-term period of industrial growth is not wishful speculation. It's being backed by the greatest building program America has ever seen. Last year, the nation's industries spent 23 billion, 400 million dollars for new plant and equipment; this year, they will spend only slightly less. Our own investment since 1946 has already reached more than a billion dollars. In 1954, a record 175 million dollars will be invested in new plant facilities by G.E., 24% more than last year.

This is the kind of confidence we have in the country's future.

Progress Is Our Most Important Product

and market would be open Monday, July 5, as usual. The market here has traditionally stayed open at the time because it is a season of heavy movement of livestock to market and often shippers need to move cattle that have been rounded up and are being held in dry pasture or trap pens and they would suffer unnecessary loss if the market closed, because of excessive shrink.

Orderly Marketing Helps Livestock Prices Hold

Most observers at Fort Worth are agreed that Southwestern livestock producers are doing a superior job of marketing their cattle and sheep this year and that it has saved considerable losses in price.

It has now become an established custom for marketings of cattle and sheep to be of considerable size on other days than Mondays at terminal markets, and on several occasions in the past couple of years the Tuesday receipts at Fort Worth have been larger than on Monday.

This was an unheard-of thing a few years ago.

Reasons for the more even movement to market are several, and it appears to have started during the transportation shortage during the war years when tires, gasoline and trucks were hard come by. Many stockmen acquired a Tuesday or Wednesday market habit at that time of necessity. Nowadays, with fast communications, many livestock shippers wait until Tuesday or Wednesday on the theory that those markets are more stable than Monday and usually the prices are pretty much the same—whereas Monday is difficult day due to being the first day of the week.

There is no argument among market men about the fact that 10,000 head of stock on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, will be handled better and sold higher than 30,000 head on a single day.

Hog Price Slide Is Halted at Fort Worth

The disastrous skid of hog prices that started on June 9 was finally halted at Fort Worth Monday, and sales were 50¢ higher on both butchers and packing sows.

The series of losses resulted in a roll-down of prices amounting

Soil Conservation News of District

Lower Pease River Soil Conservation District Board: W. C. Howard, Grady Halbert, O. T. Holmes, O. H. Brandon, H. L. Ayers.

District cooperators in the North Groesbeck community are planting guar for soil improvement and wind and water erosion control. Edmon Ward planted four rows of guar and four rows of food, W. H. Shackelford and W. S. Wall have guar up to a good stand. The seed was inoculated and planted in rows at the rate of six (6) pounds per acre.

Pete Colburn, another district cooperator, has 20 acres of guar up to a good stand. Colburn reported guar made excellent growth the first 10 days after it was planted. J. L. Elbert used a grain drill to plant approximately 100 acres of guar. One half of the spouts were stopped up. This guar will be turned under for green manure.

Reports from cooperators indicate that over 5000 acres of guar will be planted in the district this year. The following farmers, as well as many not listed, have purchased guar seed for planting: Herman Duncan, Floyd Richardson, W. F. Gregory, E. Prim, O. T. Holmes, E. Jackson, Russell Wood, L. V. Evans, W. C. Davis, J. C. Stephens, R. B. Coffield Sr., Gene Kennedy, W. Barnes, Otis Tooley, R. R. Donaghey, Leroy Perkins, Jessie P. Link, Lester Bell, A. L. Bell, Billie Custer, Harvey Karr, Henry Reid, Jim Armstrong, Roxie Mentor, L. A. Anderson, Leon Anderson, Wilson Gibson, Charles Emrick, Harpie Morris, Bennie Gibson, M. A. Mordecia, Lloyd Morrison and T. D. Howard.

Recently George Moffett and Raymond Touchstone reported cotton following guar made as much as one bale per acre, whereas, cotton following cotton made one-half bale per acre or less. Raymond Touchstone reports that some sandy land he operates made a better crop following guar in 1953 than the land has made since 1924. George Moffett says he likes guar because it will grow well on poor sand soil, help keep land from blowing and makes a little profit when the seed is harvested.

to 83 per hundred before the drop was stopped.

The trade listed a number of contributing factors. Hot spells of weather cut into meat eating in densely populated areas of the country, especially Middle West and Eastern Seaboard sections. Abundant supplies of competitive meats was another factor in the down trend. Slackening demand for sows and feeder pigs at country points that increased the supplies for slaughter was noted by some observers.

Probably the first real heat waves of summer was the bigger factor.

Top at Fort Worth Monday was $23.50, and sows sold at $14 to $18.

More Cowboys Can Be Seen at Reunion Than Anywhere Else

Stamford—You can see more real cowboys in Stamford than in any other place on earth—if you are there July 1, 2, 3 and 5 when the famous Texas Cowboy Reunion will be in progress.

The coming together of the old-timers is the feature usually thought of in connection with the celebration but the occasion is a reunion of younger cowboys, too.

In fact, there are more of the young cowboys than of the old-timers—and that's saying a lot for there are from 400 to 500 old-timers on hand. But there will be two or three times that number of the present-day riders of the range. In fact, something like 500 of them will take part in the rodeo (which is strictly for genuine cowboys) and many more cowboys will be in the stands.

The younger cowpokes do not observe the formal features of a reunion such as the older ones do but there are many greetings by friends who haven't met since a year ago.

So—old-timers, young fellows and waddies whose age is between, combine to give Stamford the biggest gathering of real cowboys in the world. There is a rodeo every night and also, on the final day, an afternoon performance.

Nickel Records

Nickel aids in the production of phonograph records. The master discs are made by nickel electroplating and the stamping plates which actually "print" the records are also of nickel.

Incoloy

Shipments of Incoloy, one of the newest of nickel alloys, are expected to reach 5,000,000 pounds in 1953, the first year of full production. The alloy was developed to combine available nickel stocks and at the same time provide a high temperature material with resistance to oxidation, strength at elevated temperatures and workability.

The largest grain elevators in the country are in Minneapolis.
