THE FOARD COUNTY NEWS

KIMSEY & KLEPPER, Owners and Publishers

Crowell, Texas, June 9, 1922

The Interstate Commerce Commission has favored the Orient Railroad with a longer haul of sheep from Southwest Texas than has been its privilege heretofore. Instead of routing from Sweetwater by way of Fort Worth these can be sent over the Orient to Wichita and then over another line to Kansas City. The Orient has always had the hardest kind of competition, and it is doubtful if that competition has always been based on the character of the service rendered by competing lines.

According to an estimate made by the Texas Farm Bureau Federation, the Texas cotton acreage will be increased this year from 8 per cent to 19. In West Texas the increase will be greater, about 25 per cent. With the ravages of pests and floods in the East the yield in that country is not expected to be up to normal, while in the West it will very likely be far above normal. That means that Texas' big money crop this year will be in West Texas.

Many of the independent school districts are voting higher rates on property valuations for the support of their schools than ever before. There is no way out if the schools are to continue in operation. Crowell got used to the dollar limit last year and will have the same again this year. Only about one-third enough money comes from the State to run the school. Then, with the old rate of 50 cents on the $100 valuation a 6-months school is all that could be counted on.

Most people of Crowell are tying on to the water and those who already have it are tickled over what it means to them, not only for domestic purposes, but for watering lawns. There need be no reason why we should not have as beautiful yards in Crowell within the next year or two as can be found in any country. Shrubbery and grass once put out needs only to be watered and taken care of.

No finer growing weather was ever seen in this country, and cotton and feed crops doing exceedingly well. If conditions remain favorable this will be the greatest row crop year of our history.

There is nothing more true than that the more egerving a man is of advance criticism the easier he is insulted. If undeserving he says little about it if he passes through unscathed.

Ask your neighbor—she may have a Red Star oil stove. If so, she will tell you "I like it. I wouldn't take what I gave for it. I can cook anything anyway way I want to, and on time."—W. R. Womack.

OH! MY BACK!

The Expression of Many a Kidney Sufferer in Crowell

A stubborn backache is cause to suspect kidney trouble. When the kidneys are inflamed and swollen, stooping brings a sharp twinge in the small of the back, that almost takes the breath away. Doan's Kidney Pills revive sluggish kidneys—relieve aching backs. Here's Crowell proof:

Mrs. G. L. Nash, says: "My back was in pretty bad shape. All through the small of my back and up into my shoulders was a steady ache all the time and nights it hurt so I could hardly sleep. When I got up I was so lame and stiff I couldn't straighten. At times I became dizzy and I had spells of headache and my kidneys were weak. Doan's Kidney Pills bought at Ferguson Bros' Drug Store cured me of the attack."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Nash had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Why Should He Be Surprised?

Culture will crop out. A Boston golf player writes to the Outlook telling how his caddie gave him a bit of surprise. The golfer had played his ball into the rough, and they had about given it up for lost, when suddenly the youngster's eye lit upon it. Did he holler, ungrammatically: "I got it, mister?" Not this lad. Raising the ball aloft, he exclaimed triumphantly: "Miserable dicit—it's found!"—Boston Transcript.

BALM OF GILEAD LOVE GIFT

What is Known as "Bee Wine" Has Been Introduced into England by Returning Soldiers.

In many houses in Great Britain, writes a correspondent, a glass jar, filled with a yellowish liquid and containing small pieces of white fungus, may be seen. It is loosely covered with a piece of brown paper. This is "bee wine" in the making. The activity of the pieces of fungus rising and falling suggested the busy bee and gave the wine its nickname. Its correct name is "Balm of Gilead," and there is an old superstition that it must not be sold but always passed on as a love gift. Our soldiers, returning from Mesopotamia, brought the balm (which is procured from an Eastern tree) with them. The fungus doubles in bulk with every brew. Balm of Gilead is actually a yellowish, aromatic gum, collected from Arabian and Abyssinian trees. The making of it having become common knowledge, someone has raised the hokey that it produces cancer and other malignant growths. It may, however, be taken in an unfermented state, as it is useful in cases of whooping cough and other ailments. It has always been valued in the East for its exceptional fragrance and supposed medicinal qualities. In fact, the trees from which it comes belong to a family of plants styled "all heal." The gum is collected by making incisions in the trunks and upper parts of the trees.

Beavers Satisfied in Captivity.

The colony of beavers at the zoological park of New York, have tunneled under the foundation wall and escaped to the upper reaches of the Bronx river. One was ignominiously captured under a wash boiler. Many keepers camped on the trail of the others, but the "call of the wild" proved to be too civilized and the beavers returned to their home in captivity and they seemed glad to be home.—Scientific American.

Comparative Solitude.

"Yes, your honor," said the aggrieved woman, as she dabbed her eyes, "he neglected me shamefully. Why, he was never at home."

"And I suppose you had to spend your evenings all by yourself with no companionship whatever?"

"W-w-w-well," she sobbed, "I had two goldfish."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Rough on the Family.

A notorious war profiteer was talking to a group of young men on a golf club veranda. "Look at me," the profiteer said. "Twenty years ago a poor boy, working like a dog and today —" He chewed violently on his cigar. "Look at me!" he repeated. "See what I've done for myself."

The young men looked at him curiously, and then one of them said: "Your motive's good, of course, but doesn't your family object to your posing as a horrible example in this way?"—London Opinion.

LINE OF FUTURE PRESIDENTS

Time May Come When Movie Fans Will Elect Their Particular Heroes to High Position.

Who is to be the first movie candidate for president of the United States? Don't laugh or scoff. Do you know anybody who has a bigger following than a popular, good-looking movie star? Consider the voting strength of those who patronize the movies; would they rally 'round one of their idols if he were nominated for high office? The vote of the movie fan, male or female, is as good as that of any other voter, and if he fancied Reid Wallace or Ray Charles for president because one or the other of them had a "nice smile" or a "love of a curl," the reason which determined his vote would be just as well considered and just as weighty as many of the reasons which prompt voters now in the choice of a candidate.

All a man needs to be elected to high office is a reputation for honesty, "a strong face" and a well-circulated report that he is "good to his wife." And a movie star should be able to command these assets. Arthur H. Fowler writes in Leslie's. There are probably 90,000,000 movie fans in the United States. Who will be the first political boss astute enough to capitalize this following? Think of the adoring flappers of voting age, thousands upon thousands of them, who would take their first interest in politics were one of their screen favorites to be nominated for the presidency. They'd vote him into the white house because of his adorable eyes or the twist of his hair at the temples. Don't laugh. They would. And some day they will.

A Nuisance.

Charles M. Schwab said at a dinner in Loreto:

"Some men, retiring from business at fifty-five or so, take bungalows at Los Angeles and do nothing but sit on their front porches and listen to their arteries hardening. A bad thing."

"Others join the Atlantic City colony. There they are sure to become cranks, golf cranks, while their wives, frequenting the board walk sales in the Japanese shops, become auction cranks. Rather a nuisance, that."

"I once spent the week end at an Atlantic City cottage where my host and hostess were cranks of this kind. My bedroom adjoined theirs and I got very little rest, for all night long the golf crank husband kept shouting in his sleep. 'Fore!' and instantly his auction crank wife would yell out, 'Four and a half!'"

Adelphian Club

On Wednesday, May 22nd, the last meeting of the Adelphian Club for the year 1921-22 was held in the home of Mrs. W. F. Kirkpatrick, with Miss Emily Purcell as hostess.

During the business a committee was appointed to determine a way in which to commemorate the Indian battle fought in Foard County during which Cynthia Ann Parker was captured and to mark the battle ground. This historic spot is of statewide interest and should be of especial local interest.

The chief subject for the afternoon's study was The Canterbury Cathedral. This cathedral was immortalized in Literature by the Poet Chaucer in his "Canterbury Tales."

Other interesting features of the lesson program were two practical talks on home decoration and the arrangement of furniture. The thought in both talks was that to create a lineable as well as beautiful home one must use only that which will bring about harmony in color, lines and spacing.

At the close of the lesson the hostess announced that since the afternoon was such a favorable one for sport the club would adjourn and go fishing. Each person was escorted to the pond blindfolded, and each one had a "bite," but instead of finding a member of the finny tribe hanging on the hook, there was an interesting looking package. These packages were found to contain various "gifts" and directions for doing a number of stunts which were highly entertaining.

When all the fish in the pond had been caught, the fishing party including Mrs. Purcell, Mrs. Bush and Mrs. Grace Norris, guests of the afternoon, enjoyed a refreshing ice course.—Reporter.

KNOWING GOD AND KEEP- ING HIS COMMANDMENTS

The caption here used was the subject of a sermon delivered by Rev. Kilbourn, pastor of the Presbyterian church, at a union service at the Methodist church Sunday, May 28th. The scripture used is 1st John, 2nd chapter, 3rd to 6th verse. The preacher said:

"According to this epistle the purpose of the Gospel revelation is that we may know God and live in fellowship with Him, our souls abiding in union and communion with Him. But as sin destroys this fellowship and leaves us in darkness, sin being opposed to God as darkness is to light, and as any of us may fall into sin, John has shown that God has made abundant provision for the putting away not only of our sins, but also of the sins of the whole world.

Now, having completed that first circle of ideas, John goes back to the starting point, "God is Light," and enlarges the circle of his thought. Dr. Findley remarks, "The links of association in St. John's writings are curiously crossed and interlaced. The more simple his language and obvious the grammatical relation of his sentences, so much the more difficult to trace in its finer movements is the interplay of his thought." Fellowship now becomes knowledge of God. "God is light;" and if we choose to walk in the light, we come to know Him who is light, to love Him and delight in Him. This is true fellowship; this is genuine religion. As fellowship merges into knowing God, so walking in the light merges into keeping the commandments.

A practical danger confronts John's readers, many of them half-instructed converts recently out of heathenism. As a result of what he had just said about the abundant provision made in Christ for the putting away of our sins, some of them might conclude that a little more indulgence in sin would not make much difference. "I'll indulge in sin awhile longer" or "continue in sin that grace may abound," as Paul puts it. That leads John to insist with solicitous and emphatic urgency on commandment keeping as a test of our knowledge of God and our love for Him. "Deliberate transgression on the part of one who presumes on God's mercy and discounts the guilt of sin by the value of the atonement is an act that shows the man to be ignorant of God and to have no true will to keep His commands. There is more hope of a reckless prodigal transgressor than of him." We observe:

1. "Keeping of God's commands is a test of and pledge of an abiding knowledge of the Father." "Hereby we know that we have come to know Him if we keep His commandments." Practically he says, "To know God is to keep His commandments." "This is the love of God that we keep His commandments." Jesus said, "If ye love me, ye will keep my commandments." Knowing God and loving Him amount to pretty much the same thing. The better we know God the more we will love Him; and the more we love Him the better we will know Him. If we really know Him and love Him it is a pleasure to keep His commandments. After we have really known Him it is impossible to go back to the beggarly and filthy elements of the world and be satisfied with them as it is after having known what it is to have plenty of food and clothing to choose and prefer hunger and rags; or as it is to know an auto as a means of travel on a good road and then prefer an ox wagon on a rough road. "A sentimental love and a theoretic knowledge are equally vain, because they are both without obedience," and like faith without works are dead. But "everyone that loveth is begotten of God and knoweth God." (4:7)

This knowledge of the commandments is something that is habitual and is a rule of one's life. It becomes as natural to us as breathing, and as constant, and usually as easy. To Abram who was in the habit of obeying, how natural it was when told to go and sacrifice Isaac. This sort of obedience arises spontaneously from the heart that is in harmony with God's will. It is very different from doing through force what one is required to do. This keeping of His commandments implies earnest desire and thoughtful care, like following a safe path or guarding a sacred trust. Thus the Savior "kept the Father's commandments and abode in his love," and thus He "kept" the disciples whom the Father had intrusted to Him. One who thus keeps them soon learns that they are now harsh or arbitrary enactments, but are the laws of love to our souls, intended to guide us in the way of life and peace.

John has in mind here the religious pretenders of his time who claimed to possess superior knowledge. He applied to them the same test as the Master had used, "By their fruits ye shall know them," saying, "He that saith 'I know Him,' and keepeth not His word, in Him truly hath the love of God been perfected." This means that our love to Him is perfected through the observance of His word. Love is perfected when it permeates our entire being, "is regnant in the soul and suppresses every alien motive and desire." It then becomes the mightiest motive of our lives and gives complexion to every thought, desire, word and act. This seems to be the highest state of perfection attainable here. And bear in mind that this perfection of love is reached only in connection with the keeping of God's word. Parents sometimes try to bring their young hopefuls to perfection by allowing them to do as they please, by removing all restraint. The result is a miserable failure and a brutal selfishness. Self-indulgence and lack of restraint breed anarchy; and too much severity excites rebellion; but constant and loving obedience to the obligations imposed by God's word brings us to the highest perfection obtainable. A race horse

THE new low mark of $10.90 for the 30 x 3 1/2 size "Usco" created something of a sensation. Naturally, the first impulsive remark was on the "wonderful price."

Because it's the evidence of a Crowell citizen. Testimony easily investigated. The strongest endorsement of merit. The best proof.

A. L. Johnson, Crowell, says: "My back and kidneys caused me trouble. My back ached and pained most of the time through the small of it, and when I bent a sharp, stinging pain caught me. I could hardly stoop at night and mornings I was so lame and stiff I could hardly get around. My kidneys were weak and troubled by their irregular action. I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills and they helped me from the start. Afterward I used eight boxes of Doan's and they cured me."

old for $10,000 at two years of age; for $400 at three; and at auction for $40 when four years of age. Then it was put into the hands of a skillful trainer and made good. Man, like the horse, needs a trainer. His wild nature must be restrained, his splendid powers need to be controlled, trained, educated.

Then, loving obedience which results in the perfecting of love, brings the satisfying assurance of our abiding in Him. "Hereby we know that we are in Him." There is rest and peace and contentment in the assurance that we are living in loving submission and unbroken harmony with God. "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on Thee."

(111) Again, We Have the Standard and Pattern of Abiding Fellowship and of Christian Contact in Jesus Christ.

"He that saith he abideth in him ought himself also to walk even as he walked." That is as Jesus walked.

How did Jesus live and walk while on earth?

(1) Submitting his will to the Father's and aiming always to please Him. He lived in constant and intimate touch with the Father. (Luke 2:49, 51; Jn. 8:29, 54, 55.) He kept in spiritual tune by keeping in touch with headquarters. Like a drummer keeping in touch with the house. He took time daily for prayer and communion.

(2) He lived a life of singular simplicity, sweetness and purity. In this epistle 3:3 John says, "And every one that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure." On the night of his betrayal, Jesus said, "The prince of this world cometh, and he hath nothing in me." (Jn. 14:30.) Why was this? Because he was the son of God and Satan let him alone. Oh, no; He resisted the suggestions of the evil one, just as we have to do, to be like Him. "Resist the Devil and he will flee from you."

(3) His aim was to honor and glorify the Father by his life. (Jn. 17:1, 4, 10, 21.) By His life, by His work, by His death, he revealed the Father to men and led them to love and trust Him.

(4) He lived a life of service and sacrifice. "He went about doing good." (Acts 10:38.) "For Christ also pleased not himself." (Rom. 15:3.) Eph. 5:2, 2; 1st John 3:16.) Here is a mighty motive to pure and goodly living and to earnest, sacrificial serving that we may "Walk in His steps" and become like Him.

MOTHER'S AGE, TOO.

When a child asks the librarian to select a book for some one else in his family, an older brother or sister, it is almost necessary to ask the youngster the age of the person for whom the book is to be chosen.

Irwin is a new borrower at the library. On his first trip to the library he was delegated to get a book for his mother and one for his sister.

"How old is your sister?" asked the assistant librarian.

"She is ten," replied the boy, and then, thinking he had better volunteer all necessary information, added:

"And my mother is thirty-seven years old."—Exchange.

YOUNG MAN IN A HURRY.

When I was a student at college in a small town it was my habit to wear a green eye shade while studying. One spring day I hurriedly left my room to go down town for a purchase. After having gone a couple of blocks I met a girl to whom I had been introduced a few days before. I started to lift my hat, only to find that instead of having my hat on, I was still wearing the eye shade.—Exchange.

WALKS IN SLEEP; DROWNS

Young Girl Camping With Relatives Near River When Tragedy Occurs.

Astoria, Ore.—While walking in her sleep, Norma May McWain, thirteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas McWain of Kansas City, fell into the Neenah river at Seaside, near here, and was drowned. The girl had gone with her uncle, her mother and grandmother to the beach resort for the week-end. The party dined at the place. Not finding quarters at the hotel, the members of the party pushed their car near the shore and camped for the night. About 3:30 a. m. in the morning they were awakened by screams from the little girl struggling in the river. The body was recovered several hours later.
