We're More Socialistic than Socialist India

From Human Events magazine: 'In an address in India, Ambassador John Kenneth Galbraith, former Harvard economics professor boasted that already one-fifth of the American economy is planned by the government. He said that if we take into consideration all current resources 'fully controlled and disposed of by the state, about 20 per cent of the American economy is planned.' Ambassador Galbraith pointed out that, as the comparable figure for India was only 13 to 14 per cent, 'the market economy of the United States has a larger public sector than the Socialist economy of India.' Translated, that means that now we're even more Socialistic than Socialist India."

He preached the gospel! to the poor, deliverance to the Want Ads in the News captives and healed the broken-hearted. Yet all these good works could not avail to cancel one sin or ease the conscience of one guilty sinner. Indeed, had He done all these good works and then gone to heaven without dying in our stead, He would have left us in a deeper condemnation than before, for His holy, spotless life could only emphasize our sin and guilt by contrast

And if all His good works could not avail to erase even one sin from the black record of human behavior, how utterly preposterous for the sinner to hope to erase or cancel his sins by his own "good works"! Thus, in contrast the Bible presents Christ's death as the price of our redemption: ". . . We have redemption
