RECIPE FOR MAKING A MILLION

A friend of mine who is still under thirty-five has made a fortune, and I asked him how he did it.

"I've been to your office several times," I said, "but you seem seldom to be there.'

"No, I don't go to the office every day," he answered. "A good deal of the time I just sit and look out the window and think.

"When I make a decision I go out and put it into effect, and a little more than half the time I have had the good luck to be right. When I find I have made a mistake, I sit down and say; 'Now what did I wrong? Were my facts inaccurate, or did I draw bad conclusions? How am I going to avoid that same mistake again?"

I knew another man who owned a small but profitable business. He was methodical in his habits. On a certain day of each month he stayed away from the office, and everybody in his employ knew that the old man was "thinking." From breakfast time until sundown on such a day he would sit before an open fire-or on an open porch, without pen or pencil or paper, or records or reports, and

He attributed his modest success to this unvarying habit. Henry Ford remarked to me once that "thinking is the hardest job there is", and added that he could get plenty of doers but not enough thinkers.

Most of us know from our own limited experience that thinking is hard, and we have insulated ourselves against it by a restless and noisy environment.

We are afraid to be found in a small audience, terribly afraid to be alone. Our unwillingness to take trips, or to retire, is not dictated so much by loyalty to the job as it is by the haunting fear that, removed from the protecting clatter of daily activity, we shall have "too much time to think."

Emerson tells the story of "a man who on his deathbed called to him his profligate son and left him large possessions, only exacting of him the promise to spend an hour every day alone. The son kept his word and became a wise and good man.'

In another passage Emerson remarks that "the gods and the wild beasts are both fond of solitude; thought makes the difference between the solitude of the god and that of the lion."

Solitude and thought are responsible for the considerable fortune of the young friend whom I quoted at the beginning. I pass on his recipe free to all. I have not been able to apply it myself. -having been too busy.

THIRTY-SIX THOUSAND LIVES

The United States is on its way oward establishing a new high record for deaths due to the automobile, according to a well-known authority. It is forecast that at the end of 1930 the total casualties will be 36,000several thousand more than were killed last year, when the present tragic record was established.

Recklessness and carelessness are still modern "rules of the road." Hundreds of thousands of incompetents are allowed full use of the pubhighways.

This last factor-that of incompetence-is probably largely responsible for our gigantic record of fatal-ties. Only a few states have laws requiring strict examination of applieants for drivers' ilcenses. Fortunately, thee is a trend toward such laws throughout the nation and when every state has and enforces them at least partial success in accident prevention will be achieved.

Another crying need, in most states, is for modernization and revision of traficfe ordinances. Up-todate, enforceable codes that would be supported by the public, are essential to highway safety.

We have no more serious problem than that of automobile accident prevention. It affects every citizen and is a vital element in the life of every community.

It is estimated that there are 2, 000,000 lepers in the world, one-half of them in China.

Our attendance was smaller than usual last Sunday. With Christmas near at hand, Thanksgiving just past, the new year not far distant, we certainly should be thankful enough, interested enough, have in mind new plans and resolutions enough to lead Glory us to the house of God on the Lord's Day and a more zealous service for Him. JUST a tasteless dose of Phillips Milk of Magnesia in water. That is an altali, effective, yet harmless. It has been be standard antacid for 50 years. One spoonful will neutralize at once many times its volume in acid. It is the right way, the quick, pleasant and efficient way to kill the excess acid. The stomach becomes sweet, the pain departs. Pep Squad Entertains C. H. S. Football Boys

One of the gayest events of this year was Wednesday night when the Pep Squad entertained the football boys with a bonfire out on the school ground. The members of the high school faculty and the band were also present.

Songs were sung as the crowd danced around the huge fire, which slowly burned down. Many yells were given. Speeches were made by nearly every one present. George Self, Ragsdale Lanier, Teddy Bur-row, Mitchell Allee and Crews Cooper proved to be good orators. The crowd then went to the home economics room and played several games.
