STAR GAZING

Although having enough to occupy itself, the world is once again delving into the mysteries of Mars and its inhabitants—if there are any. Being only 42,000,000 miles from the earth, Mars is thought to be a fit subject for study and speculation.

The leading scientists agree that the mystery of Mars will not be solved in the present generation. Even with defeat certain, astronomers periodically make a valiant effort to tear aside the veil through which no earthly eyes have ever peered.

The men of science thrill at the prospect of discovery, though they know it to be well nigh hopeless just as a man who is a failure believes that one more chance will be enough for him.

Information about Mars has been a source of speculation for many decades. As early as 1892 the observatory was established at Flagstaff by Percival Lowell especially for the study of Mars.

At every occurrence of the "epidemic," when Mars gets relatively close to the earth, seekers after publicity concoct some fairy tales about prospects of communicating with the planet, but the almost limitless universe has ever thwarted the ingenuity of man.

The radio was once regarded as a possible means of establishing contact, and "quacks" have professed to have communicated with our nearest neighbor of the heavens, but even radio is limited.

It is well that there are men who are willing to go on even though they are certain to fail, because all of the investigations of the past have been necessary to gather the meagre knowledge we now have about the planet.

Directed in the right channel, most any flapper's efforts to be popular would elect her to office.

A sure cure for injured feelings doesn't work in all cases.

One thing a man never boasts about is his honesty, when it's real.

FINDING CONTENTMENT

Practically every who comes into the world and stays long enough to comprehend the surroundings starts in pursuit of that elusive thing called happiness.

One may look for it in climate, in diversion, in companionship, in wealth, in goodness knows what. But there is one place it can surely be found—in congenial employment.

The happy man and the happy woman are those who have found the work that they are best suited to do and like the best to do, and happiness is impossible without this.

Comparatively few are satisfied with their work. Comparatively few are happy in their work. They do not know where the trouble lies. They only know they are discontented and that work is drudgery. Beginning with Monday morning, they look forward to Saturday night. Beginning Saturday night, they dread Monday morning. Day after day, week after week, month after month, year after year, it goes on. But for the everlasting and blessed hope that springs eternal in the human breast, people would quit right where they are.

Getting out of uncongenial employment is usually not easy. At least, it impresses one as not being easy. In the first place, the average person does not know for what he is fitted or what he really wants to do. Even though a man has a desire for a given line of work, the trouble is he is not willing to do the necessary drudgery between him and the attainment of his desire.

As most great things are simple, the formula for finding one's niche is comparatively simple. The first ingredient is diligence. It is a powerful factor.

Somewhere within you is a talent. There is only one way to develop that talent and that is through diligence. Genius, after all, is but a special capacity for hard work.

The man who applies himself diligently and conscientiously, day after day, year after year, is going to climb, step by step, as surely and as positively as the days themselves roll by. He cannot help it. And every step he takes will be toward his niche. He may not know where those steps will lead when he starts. They may lead him through an intricate maze of toil, hardship and difficulty, but if he will keep on—if he will never permit himself to slip back—he will of a certainty find his niche, and with his niche, he will find contentment.

ARMISTICE

Eight years of peace—eight prosperous, busy years have sped by since the signing of that historic document which marked and created the first Armistice Day. Looking back, it seems but a recent yesterday that the whistles were shrieking, the bells ringing and the whole world dancing a mad celebration of the closing of the world's greatest agony.

We danced then, and we sang and we cried aloud our joy that "the war to end all war" had come to a glorious and triumphant end. We had won!

We, we did win. We won the war. We won our physical victories. And we won some moral victories, too. We purged ourselves of any faintest suspicion that Twentieth Century "commercialism" had deadened the souls of men to the deep tuned call of truth and honor and decency. We proved anew to a cynical world that men could suffer and die for a great cause, regardless of personal interest and prodigal of unselfish sacrifice.

But eight years have taught us that we did not win all we first believed we had won. The monsters of hate and greed and envy and mean suspicion which we thought to have buried deep beneath the thunder of the guns at Chateau Thierry, at St. Mihiel, at the Argonne, again reared their ugly heads to spew their venom upon the striving nations of the earth, to sow the dragon's teeth of discord and discontent.

And we came to find, in the end, that out the reek of France and Flanders we had brought not only a great reward, but a great and continuing obligation.

"To you, from falling hands, we throw
 The Torch—"

Our sons and our brothers and our buddies, who sleep today beneath the little white crosses, or bear upon their bodies the unfading scars of the great conflict, will have suffered and died in vain unless on this Armistice Day of 1926, and on those others yet to follow, we rededicate our strength and our minds and our lives to a reaffirmation of those principles for which they fought.

COMMUNITY CLUB FORMED AT FOUR CORNERS OCT. 12

Mrs. M. L. Mitchell and Mrs. Jim Cates gave a tea at the home of Mrs. Cates on October 12, bringing a number of farmers' wives together. It was decided that a club was necessary to meet the social needs of the community. A contest was held to select a name. Mrs. George Cates winning a prize by naming it "The Community Club." Club colors of violet and gold were selected. A motto "Be Kind." (Kindness is to do and say the kindest things in the kindest way.) We selected a creed "Golden Rules" by Eugene C. Sanderson. We resolved to meet twice a month in the afternoons and to have evening socials twice monthly.
On October 20th we met with Mrs. Herman Gentry and Mrs. Tom Russell at the home of Mrs. Russell. This was strictly a business session after which an elaborate plate lunch was served.
The first social was with Mrs. Fred Bell, Mrs. Ralph Bell and Mrs. Jim Cates at the home of Mrs. Bell. Our last meeting was November 3rd with Mrs. Frank Cates and Mrs. Hubert Brown at Mrs. Brown's. This was a study and entertainment by pictures and charts. We enjoyed two musical selections. A typical farmers' lunch concluded the afternoon.
This club has grown from a membership of seven to twenty-seven in one month, which shows that it is a worthy enterprise.—Reporter.

WHITHER ARE WE GOING?

Donald Benner went to Detroit, Mich., Tuesday in his airplane. He made the trip in three hours and twenty minutes.

The paragraph above is taken from a small town newspaper in Indiana, but one similar might be found in any newspaper in the United States. It seems insignificant, nothing out of the ordinary, that a young man living in a small Indiana village should fly to Detroit, a distance of approximately three hundred miles, in these days of rapid transportation.

An airplane is a very common sight because it has penetrated the most inaccessible places. The whirl of the motor scarcely draws us into the open for a look into the skies, so ordinary has become flying.

Yet, when we reflect that a decade ago the flying machine seemed to be of no practical value, and no one dreamed that a young man in any small community might fly hundreds of miles to a large metropolis between breakfast and lunch and have time to spare, we are left dizzy trying to imagine what the next decade will bring in the realm of commercial aviation.

A young mother was lamenting the tendency of the times for speed and jazz and said she lived in the hope that conditions would change for the better before her daughter grew to be a young lady. A consoling neighbor, hearing the remark, commented that she saw no chance of such improvement, for when the daughter had grown up, mother would anxiously ask whenever she went out, "Honey, be sure and don't forget your parachute."

This may be extreme, but it gives some ground for thinking. No one desiring to foster a reputation as a prophet would dare forecast what the next decade will bring in the field of aviation.

Being a good sport consists in shutting off the loud speaker at midnight so the neighbors can get a little rest.

The real problem of this world court they are arguing about is, "Who'll be the policeman?"

IT ISN'T A HOME WITHOUT A TELEPHONE

How in the world can a young person expect to become "popular"

—unless there is a Telephone in the home?

We don't say it can't be done. It might. But it's doubtful.

WEST TEXAS NEWS

(By West Texas C. of C.)

Graham—The chamber of commerce of this city recently sponsored the building of a new road on Slater Hill about six miles north of here, raising over $250 to apply to its improvement.

Bowie—Brick work on the new municipal auditorium of Bowie was completed more than a week ago, and roofing is underway which will finish exterior work of the structure. The new civic building is one of the handsomest and most commodious structures ever erected in Bowie.

Stamford—Manager Homer D. Wade of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce has written to various chambers of commerce in West Texas and has appealed to federal and state authorities to resist flagrant violations reported against rules and regulations of the Livestock Sanitary Board in regard to movement of hogs. Reports have come to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce office here telling of this new form of "bootlegging" in which hogs are imported from border towns of Oklahoma and New Mexico and introduced to Texas farms without dipping, vaccination, inspection and proper certification required to be done under the supervision of the Livestock Sanitary Board. Infractions of these regulations will be resisted to the extent of serving injunction against hog importations made in violation of regulations.

Decatur—Farm diversification in poultry and the dairy industry of Wise County were shown and explained here recently to a delegation of Collin County citizens who desire to introduce similar diversity methods in their section.

Brady—Brady's third annual Turkey Trot Day, announced to be the greatest and most unique celebration undertaken in the Heart of Texas section, was staged here November 6. Co-operation of traveling men who united in the entertainment with the Peddlers' Jubilee made possible a number of stunts and features. The purpose of the day was to advertise Turkey as king of the Heart of Texas. Motion pictures of the parade were taken during the day.

San Saba—Number 8, volume 5, of the "Pioneer Pecan Press," the only magazine in the world devoted exclusively to pecan culture and questions related to the industry, has been released from the press here. The issue contains 24 pages of reading and advertising matter, 21 pages being devoted exclusively to discussions of "Texas' native nut. Celebration of "Pecan Coronation, King of Nuts" was held in San Saba November 8. Officials of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and prominent men of the state were invited to attend.

Stamford—As a part of their program in the reduction of cotton acreage, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce is advocating more wheat and oats and other grains for West Texas farmers. Reports to headquarters office here indicate that conditions are ideal and that a mammoth grain crop can be harvested in 1927. Forage and feed crops, and grain sorghums are also advocated.

Decatur—More dairy and poultry produce of this place will be handled by Dallas consumers upon construction of the Northwest Highway from Dallas to Rhome, according to word of John Boswell, executive manager of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce development bureau who visited here recently.

Paducah—The Cook Hotel, Paducah's new home for traveling men has thrown open its doors here. The new hostelry is rated as one of the prettiest buildings in this part of the country and is equipped with all modern fixtures.

If traffic congestion costs the country $10,000,000 a day, who gets the money?

THE ORAL BOOSTER

"I'll tell the world," was once a slang phrase in good standing. It has lost caste through too much use, but even yet it is expressive, and it fits the purpose of the booster who really is sincere about his regard for his home community.

There are two classes of boosters and one of knockers. Of the former, one class is silent and the other never loses a chance to praise his home town. The silent booster, the man who is at heart sincere but never says so, could be of much better service if he would voice his sentiments now and then.

He is a desirable citizen and a much valued citizen. He believes in his community to the extent that it is the best place in the world for him, but he never lets anyone know about it; he is never an aggressive force for the upbuilding of the place which he regards very highly.

The booster who possesses all these traits and in addition never hesitates to "tell the world" at every opportunity that he is proud to live in Foard County, is the man who is of most value to the community. This type of citizen believes that, regardless of what small grievances we have among ourselves, no one should be ashamed to speak up for home whenever the occasion presents itself.

He minimizes the shortcomings of the community, instead of magnifying them as the knocker does, and tries to correct them with some constructive effort. All the while he is repeating to the lukewarm citizen and the kicker encouraging things about his home that in time may open their eyes.

No place ever improved or grew by hiding its light under a bushel. The community that wishes to thrive must advertise itself and the boosting citizen is the most valuable citizen in this role.

Everyone who is convinced that he would rather live in Foard County than any place else he has ever been, is little short of disloyal to home if the word is not spread among those who might appreciate the worth of the community.

Every citizen who makes Foard County his home should be loyal enough to help make it a better place, and he can accomplish this goal in no better way than by everlastingly calling attention to the community's good qualities.

We Do Not Sell Cheap Footwear

And now let us hasten to explain that what we regard as cheap footwear is never really cheap. Our prices are moderate, but every pair of shoes in our store is made of good leathers, in good style, by honest workmen. We could secure shoes that look every bit as smart, all them at lower prices than we ask and make more profit. But we couldn't sell more than one pair to you, so we prefer to sell the kind of footwear that will bring you back next week, next season, next year—forever!

WINTER IS HERE

The first touch of winter was felt Tuesday night when the thermometer went to 32. No harm was done so far as we have learned, only the tips of the leaves were pinched by the big white frost that greeted the eye early Wednesday morning.

Bilious dull feeling

"MY old stand-by is Thedford's Black-Draught—I have used it off and on for about 20 years," says Mr. W. S. Reynolds, of R. F. D. 2, Arcadia, La.

"I get bilious and have a bad taste in my mouth. My head gets around and doing my work. I know it isn't laziness, but biliousness."

"So I take a few doses of Black-Draught and when it acts well, I get up feeling like new—full of pep and ready for any kind of work."

"I can certainly recommend it." In case of biliousness and other disagreeable conditions due to an inactive liver, Black-Draught helps to drive the poisonous impurities out of the system and tends to leave the organs in a state of normal, healthy activity. Black-Draught is made entirely of pure medicinal roots and herbs, and contains no dangerous or harmful mineral drugs. It can be safely taken by everyone. Sold everywhere. Price 25c.
