Order for Bond Election Issued by Commissioners

The Commissioners met Thursday afternoon of last week, and, upon the petition for an election for road bonds signed by about 65 citizens in the county, ordered a road bond election for January 4th, 1927.

The bond election is for the surfacing of Lee Highway across the county a distance of about 40 miles. This highway runs from the Wilbarger County line on the east to the Cottle County line on the west. The election calls for a bond issue of $300,000 to defray the cost of hard-surfacing the road.

It has been estimated that Foard County can hard-surface this highway across the county by using crushed rock, gravel and asphalt at a cost of approximately $300,000 and the rate per hundred dollars in taxes to property owners will be 42 cents figured on a basis of $5,000,000 valuation in the county. The valuations are a little above that and will be greater from year to year. The amount of $300,000 is only half what is estimated would be sufficient to do this work. State and federal aid is to supply the other half. It is a practical certainty that this amount will be received from the state and federal governments and there is a probability that the county would get even more than half.

The other counties in the Panhandle to the west of us are undertaking the same thing, as is also Wilbarger county on the east. Should all the counties vote bonds to pave this will give us connection both east and west with the other counties and build a connected stretch of paved highway clear across the state and would complete a gap in the Lee Highway that would go far towards opening up the entire road as one that could be traveled every day in the year. If any of the counties do not vote bonds that means that a gap will be left and the result would be that they would lose the traffic they would otherwise get.

This week's issue carries the order for the election which is to be held on January 4th, 1927, all the counties co-operating and holding the election on the same date.

Cottle County Editor Thinks It's Time to Pave

Following is a portion of an editorial by the Paducah Post and hits the nail on the head pretty well. Read it:

The day has come when we must quit thinking about roads as we have in the past. We say that our fathers, twenty-five years ago, got along lovely without paved or hard surfaced roads. So they did. But our dads traveled in wagons mostly. If they were unusually well fixed financially for their day they had a two-horse buggy or an old mountain hack. Our grandfathers traveled in ox carts. They got along to be sure, but it would be impossible for this generation to go back to those days—which are sometimes misinterpreted as "good old days." We are living in an age of life and action. The automobile has taken the place of the ox cart, the wagon and the buggy. Our lives are now such that it will not conform to anything but fast transportation. No one wants to trade his automobile for a cart. Everyone wants a good road to travel on when he is driving it. There is only one way to have it, and that is to put up the money—but in this case it happens to be just a part of the money.

Each year we are assessed a tax for road purposes. This tax goes into the State and National fund. The counties who build such roads as the two governments want are given assistance. The counties do not have to go long in the same old ruts, but they are paying money that goes to some other county or section of the State. If we are to get our part we must take advantage of our opportunities. The opportunity is now knocking at our door. Nine counties in Texas are involved in the movement. If all of them put the proposition over it will be the first paved highway to have crossed the State of Texas. What shall we do about it?

Father of Crowell Woman Died Last Week Near Afton

The message came early last Tuesday morning to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Greening that Mrs. Greening's father, J. Donovan, of near Afton, Dickens County, had suddenly died.

Mr. Donovan had taken cotton to the gin on Saturday before and went back Monday morning to see if it had been ginned. Finding that it had not been ginned he is supposed to have decided to enter the cotton patch and go to picking, since he was found dead in the field with a sack in his hand Tuesday morning after an all night search. It is supposed that he died of heart failure.

The deceased and his family resided in Foard County for some years prior to his going to Dickens County and is survived by his wife and five children, three girls and two boys. These are: Mrs. Aaron Biggerstaff, Sherman, Texas; Mrs. Lon Henderson, Levelland; Miss Vida Donovan, Lubbock; Elzie Donovan, whose address is not known; Earl Donovan, Afton, and Mrs. Frank Greening, Crowell. All were present at the funeral services except Mrs. Biggerstaff and Elzie Donovan.

Wilbarger County Launches Big Road Building Program

Wilbarger County sees the need of building highways, if the bond issue of a million dollars called for means anything. According to the Record the program includes not only Wilbarger's portion of the Lee Highway but several others in the county. Following is what the Record had to say in its issue of Friday:

A proposed bond issue of $1,000,000 for improving and paving roads in Wilbarger County will be submitted to the voters of the county at an election January 4, according to an order issued by the court in session here today.

A new petition bearing more than 250 names was presented the commissioners Friday after it was learned that the petition presented Thursday, while complying with the old law, was not signed by enough property owners to meet the requirements laid down in changes enacted at the recent special session of the Legislature.

Approximately 49 miles of roads will be paved in the county, and several roads will be hard-surfaced. The paving program as outlined by leaders in the movement asking for the election includes:

Seven miles on Highway No. 5 from Oklaunion to Harrold, five miles on Highway No. 28 from Oklaunion north, six and one-half miles on Highway No. 5 from the end of the present pavement to the Hardeman County line, twelve and a half miles on Highway No. 28 extending from Vernon to the Foard County line, five miles south on the oil field road extending from the end of the present pavement, approximately twelve and a half miles north and northwest from the end of the present pavement extending north.

Construction of hard-surfaced road from Fargo to the proposed concrete road, and from the end of the concrete road to Odell was included in the petition.

In addition, it is planned to construct a gravelled road from the Wichita County line to Guyer, and another from Oklaunion to Elliott.

No Good Cows To Be Bought Says W. L. Ricks

W. L. Ricks, one of the local dairymen, says he has been trying to buy some more good cows and that he is unable to find them. The fact is there are no good ones for sale and few good ones that are not for sale. Just now when cotton is at the bottom and not worth picking it would be a fine thing if a lot of the farmers had some good cows not only for sale but to supply their own needs. It seldom occurs that there is not a good demand for that kind of property.

A good cow is worth about as much as a cheap automobile, and nearly everybody is able to afford one of them.

Moisture Comes at Good Time to Help Wheat Crop

While the wheat crop had not suffered to amount to anything, it was really needing rain, some of it at least, when the rain fell Monday.

The wheat men are optimistic over the wheat outlook in the county, for it has always proven to be a good wheat year following plenty of rain in the fall. When they start into the winter with plenty of season there is no need for worry. Not only is the outlook good for a crop next year, but the probability is that throughout the winter the wheat will afford good pasturage for stock.

Joe Parven Body Finally Recovered From Deep Lake

Memphis, Dec. 6.—After a two weeks search, rescue workers on Sunday recovered the body of Joe Parven, 18, who was drowned while duck hunting on Deep Lake, near here, Nov. 21. A party of men, who were assisting in the search by the use of a heavy drag, made of steel, to which several heavy grab hooks were fastened, and pulled by a motor boat, hooked the clothing of the drowned man within a few feet of where Parven went down.

Jim Parven, brother of the drowned man, caught the body first with a grab pole and hook but was unable to bring it to the surface. The party returned to the spot and again hooked and easily rescued the body, which was lying on the bottom under about eight feet of water. Examining physicians were amazed at its excellent preservation. This condition, it is thought, was due to the excessive amount of clothing worn by the drowned man and the extremely low temperature of the lake waters.

The body carried no marks of violence and the clothing contained the $65 in currency, which amount the young man took with him on the trip. The body was shipped to McKinney tonight, accompanied by R. H. Parven, father of the victim.

Officials Inspect New Water Plans

Austin, Texas, Dec. 6 (Sp).—A. H. Dunlap of the State Board of Water Engineers left Monday for Karnes city and later will go to Laredo, while C. S. Clark of the board will go to Quanah and Crowell on a third large irrigation project.

The movements of the members of the water board indicate the interest taken in irrigation plans under the major plan of reclamation and conservation in Texas.

A site is to be surveyed on Pease River preliminary to making topographic maps of the reservoir area and dam location. This investigation is to be made under the direction of Mr. Clark. If his report is favorable, which it is said it will be, the United States Geological Survey in connection with the Texas water board will have the topographic maps made. A large section of Hardeman and Foard Counties will be irrigated by storage on the Pease River if the project goes through.

INSTALL DUCO MACHINE

Self Motor Company this week installed a ducol machine for painting cars. Joe Ward is operator of the machine and when he is thoroughly familiar with its operation, it is expected that he will turn out as good a paint job as can be done at the factory.

of school until we are out for Christmas Holidays, that is, school will let out on the afternoon of December 23rd and will resume work on Monday, Jan. 3, 1927, at which time our compulsory term will begin and extend the remainder of the session. The law requires that all children between the ages of eight and sixteen be required to attend school five months each year, so we shall expect all children who live within the bounds of the Crowell Independent District to be on hand at the school building at 8:50 Jan. 3, 1927, ready for school.

Remember the next lyceum number comes Thursday evening, December 30, 1926. Be there.

Year's Rainfall Is Increased to 35.00 Inches

The rainfall for the year is certain to be not far from that of 1919 and 1923. For the former it was 39.49 inches and for the latter 37.97. For this year we have already had 35.00 inches, the rain this week being about two inches.

With no more rain between now and the first of the year this will be the third best for the last thirteen years, being surpassed by the two above mentioned years only. And since there are yet three weeks of this year there is a chance that this may become second best and a possibility that it will take first place. But regardless of whether we have any more rain or not this year, the small grain crops over the county are about as good as they were ever known to be at this time of the year, so the outlook at this time for a big wheat crop next year is about as good as it can be.

Two Birthdays Celebrated Saturday

The 78th birthday of H. Hunt and the 60th birthday of his wife came on Saturday, Dec. 4th, and according to the custom of several years, the event was celebrated at the Hunt home, east of Margaret Saturday.

A 28-lb. turkey had been prepared by Mrs. Hunt, one of her own flock she had raised, and dressing, cakes, pies, salads and all the other trimmings that accompany a turkey dinner were bountifully supplied by the assistance of relatives and friends who found unbounded joy in making the occasion one of great pleasure to the aged couple and their guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunt are comfortably and happily situated on their little farm. Although Mr. Hunt has been practically blind for a few months, he is in a healthful condition and is reasonably strong. He says he enjoys his three square meals each day and expects to do so as long as it is the good Lord's will that he may. He is good-natured and pleasant and enjoys his friends' visits to the fullest extent. His wife is able to take care of the home with its chores and spares no efforts to make Mr. Hunt comfortable and happy in his affliction of blindness. One will find no couple of their years more delighted to have their friends visit them. Their great and noble lives have been a benediction and a blessing to all whose good fortune it has been to become acquainted with them.

Mr. Hunt helped to pioneer some of local historical achievements of his home county in Georgia when he was in the vigor of his manhood, one of which was the building of Young Harris College. He relates with a degree of pride that he fell the second tree for the lumber that was to go into the building of that institution and was one of the few men who had a vision more than 35 years ago of what that institution was to become. He feels himself fully recompensed by the fact that it developed into a school of even greater proportions than he had dreamed and that he contributed in a measure to its possibility. He felt that he has an interest in the thousands of graduates that have gone from the doors of that institution out into life to bless the world. Another was the assistance he gave in establishing the first Methodist church in Towns County, Ga. Mr. Hunt came to this county about 35 years ago and has been one of the dependable citizens of the county. He and his good faithful wife number their friends by the entire circle of their acquaintance.

Besides Mr. and Mrs. Hunt there were 32 present to enjoy the splendid occasion Saturday, whose names are as follows: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hukill, Mr. and Mrs. T. D. White, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Ray, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ayers, Rev. T. M. Johnston, Mrs. Allen Sanders and baby, Mrs. M. E. Cherry, Miss Irene Hunter, Mrs. Roy Ayers, Mrs. M. E. Ayers, Mrs. John L. Hunter, Mrs. John L. Hunter, Jr., W. Hunt, Mrs. J. W. Bell, Miss Lola Bell, Mrs. Dr. Wrenn, Mrs. Valmer Bell, Mr. and Mrs. Tom White, Lindsey White, Miss Johnnie White, Mrs. S. E. Hembree, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Kinsey and son, James Henry.

PERRY JOHNSON DEAD

A message came Tuesday morning from Levelland to A. L. Johnson stating that his brother, Perry Johnson, had just died. He had been operated on for appendicitis, but having waited too long before the operation, the chances were against his recovery.

Mr. Johnson and his mother left Tuesday to attend the funeral services but had not returned when the News went to press yesterday, so that we can give very little of the particulars.

HUNTING ACCIDENTS

Every hunting season is accompanied by its appalling list of casualties and fatalities. They do not seem alarming to the individual until a distressing accident takes place in the locality in which he lives.

But hunting accidents continue to grow. Careless hunters still drag guns with muzzle foremost over the fence or through the brush, and carry loaded guns in improper positions.

A little "horse sense" is all that is required. Precaution in the use of firearms should be the first essential of every hunter, because he endangers not alone his own life but those of his companions by the careless use of firearms.

Hunting accidents are not always fatal. Lacerated wounds and scratches call for prompt and competent attention. Hunters will do well to think of the misfortune which may befall them, or their fellow hunters, before starting on a hunt, all the while remembering that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

The turkey gobbler is proud and pride always comes before the ax.

In the old days we knew "personality" as plain "brass."

FARMERS WOES

Congress soon meets and foremost among the questions pressing for attention is so-called relief for agriculture. The school of thinking still holds to the view that agriculture will never be helped by legislation. Another school of thought centers about the idea that farming can not lift itself by its own bootstraps, but must have federal aid.

The result has been a babble of suggestions and so many cooks have been stirring the broth that the kettle may be upset, at any moment. The prospect for any sort of farm legislation is exceedingly remote. This brings cheers from one crowd of rooters and dark looks from the other crowd.

This confusion produces indecision rather than action. One substantial gain has been made, however, in that people who live in brick houses on paved streets, far from the furrows and cattle barns, are being educated on the woes of the farmers.

The city dweller has always known bread came from wheat, but he knew nothing about wheat, wore wool clothing and had only a dim recollection of what sheep looked like, and ate choice steaks with little or no knowledge of the cattle they came from.

Recently the Academy of Political Science held a farm conference and experts presented their view of the question. Some of the large industrialists of the country have been talking of a high grade commission to make a study of farm conditions with a view of devising a way to close the gulf between the farm and industry.

At least, it may be said that the industrial east is not indifferent to the troubles of the farmer, and some good for all concerned is very likely to come out of the agitation for the improvement of agriculture.

Headache dizziness

"I HAVE headache once in a while, usually coming from constipation or torpid liver," says Mr. L. A. Morphis, of Pottsville, Ark., "and the very best remedy I have found to correct this condition is Theford's Black-Draught. It acts quickly and easily, and it just can't be beat."

"Black-Draught is the very best laxative I have found. I always feel so much better after taking it. My wife takes Black-Draught, too. For dizziness, costiveness and any little stomach disorder, we find it most satisfactory, and consider Black-Draught a family medicine."

Constipation, with an inactive liver, locks up poisons in the body and allows them to do their dangerous work.

Being purely vegetable and containing no harmful drugs, Black-Draught acts gently, helping the system get rid of impurities and preventing serious sickness. Get a package today. Sold everywhere. 25 cents.

WEST TEXAS NEWS (By West Texas C. of C.)

Stamford—West Texas scores again. West Texas Chamber of Commerce agricultural exhibit at the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition in Philadelphia has been awarded the gold medal in competition with practically every state in the union. The display won on the basis of scope and variety of products, and ingenuity of arrangement, according to a letter received from Sesqui officials. The silver medal of award went to North Carolina and Ohio. Arkansas won the bronze medal.

Memphis—L. M. Thompson, County Agent, is conducting an exchange list for the purpose of getting native blooded gilts placed with farmers in this section who need them. He is attempting to supply the demand with local swine as a precautionary measure against infected northern stock.

Quannah—Numbering of Quannah's business houses and residences is in progress here as a preparatory step to getting out a city directory. The work is sponsored by the city, the chamber of commerce, and the Retail Merchants' Association.

Plainview—The New Harvest Queen Mill recently began operations in this place with a daily capacity of about 800 barrels of flour. Products of this mill, wheat and corn meal flours made from Plains grains, are to be known as Everlite. The mill cost $150,000.

Artesia—A highway from this place to Las Cruces, N. M., will be opened according to present plans. Work on the Y O road has already begun.

O'Donnell—O'Donnell is the proven garden spot of Texas according to a local farmer. J. J. Hodnett, residing near the high school building, lives entirely at home, through truck gardening on a 140x150 foot plot of ground. This year he raised almost every kind of vegetable, all kinds of flowers, and shrubbery and started a young orchard.

Bledsoe—Work on a temporary school building to relieve congestion in the Bledsoe schools is nearing completion here.

Hale Center—A contract calling for the expenditure of $37,919 has been awarded for the installation of a complete system of waterworks for Hale Center.

Amherst—A new grain company has located at Amherst, promising to pay the highest market price for grain and to deal in all commodities connected with this line of work.

Anson—B. M. Whiteker, Exhibit Manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and Manager Homer D. Wade of that organization were guests of the Luncheon Club here December 1, at which time Whiteker made an address on agricultural problems to members and farmers of the community who were special guests. Similar lectures are given by Whiteker in any section calling upon the West Texas Chamber of Commerce for a service man to assist farmers and stockmen in various communities.

RIGHTS IN THE AIR

A Chicago judge has upheld the contention of a radio broadcasting station that property rights to the air must be recognized just as property rights on the earth are protected by law.

The new principle set up by the decision is that priority of time in the use of wave lengths, the building of property on this basis, and the education of the receiving public to a certain wave length create a superiority right in that particular part of the ether.

All radio users will applaud this decision. The continual babble of stations within the same wave lengths is annoying. The only trouble is that the decision is purely local and that broadcasting stations all over the United States will not be affected by it.

This is clearly a problem that will have to be settled by legislation nationwide in character because it is admittedly one that the several states can not deal with unless they go to great expense and set up extensive machinery for regulation.

Confidential Papers of Presidents at Washington.

The vaults of the Library of Congress contain several valuable collections of confidential papers besides the Lincoln letters, which are to be made public after 21 years under the will of the martyred President's son, the late Robert Todd Lincoln.

Locked in steel compartments of the library's manuscript department are the Presidential papers of Cleveland, Roosevelt and Taft. They are kept in privacy, not for any specific period, but until further orders are given by those having them in charge. The widows of Presidents Cleveland and Roosevelt may bestow the right of access to these collections, and this permission has been given occasionally for biographical or scientific research.

Chief Justice Taft placed his communications as President in the library for safekeeping some years ago. No part of them may be seen without an order from him in writing. The collection of Charles J. Bonaparte, attorney general under Roosevelt, also is held pending further instructions.

These statements belong to the present generation, or were so close to it that they or their executors felt that publication should be delayed until political animosities had faded and personal misunderstandings forgotten. Custodians of the papers say there is little or nothing in them that would cause diplomatic embarrassment, but might reopen old wounds or revive slumbering controversies. These difficulties will be smoothed out with the years, and there will be no reason to withhold publicity.

No such inhibitions surround the writings of the early Presidents. The manuscripts of George Washington are bound in large volumes, and may be studied in intimate detail by the historian. Similar access is permitted to the writings of the succeeding Presidents—John Adams, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, John Quincy Adams and Andrew Jackson.

Those who enter the reading room of original manuscripts, however, must come recommended by a university or some other organization or individual known to the library authorities.

In the outer room, open to the public, are framed examples of the handwriting of all the Presidents, as well as of cabinet officers, diplomats, soldiers and others concerned importantly in the development of the country.

Official Mace Carrier

The appointment of Clifford Longden in succession to Sir Walter Gibson as one of his majesty's four sergeants-at-arms draws attention to this interesting and ancient office, remarks the London News.

For all the military sound of his name, a sergeant-at-arms has now no connection with the army, but is purely a court functionary. It is at levees, state balls and concerts that he comes into his own as an attendant on his majesty. Even here, however, he wears no special uniform, but is distinguished simply by a special silver collar of office.

One special charge, further, he has the bearing of one of the gold maces of the regalia at a coronation ceremony. As this mace weighs 34 pounds, he is likely to be decidedly thankful when coronation day is over.

Value of Copper Skewers

Roasts run through with skewers made of copper are not only juicier, tenderer and more appetizing than those baked in the ordinary way, but they require 30 per cent less time for cooking.

Such are the findings of experts of the home economics department of the University of California. This culinary discovery is explained on the ground that the copper serves to carry heat into the interior of the roast evenly and rapidly, while meat fiber alone has a very low heat conductivity. The experimenters assert that the more copper they used the less the meat lost weight during baking, thus giving an obvious economy of meat shrinkage as well as time and fuel.

Marriage Insurance

Marriage Insurance is the latest form of investment in the Holy Land. A "bureau for brides and grooms" has just been opened in Jerusalem, and mothers in humble circumstances need no longer fear that their daughters will be condemned to spinsterhood owing to lack of dowry. Saving up for a dowry begins when a girl is born, or in her early childhood. When she reaches a certain age her name is entered on a "waiting list," and she is thus assured of suitors when she reaches marriageable age. The marriage bureau, which is conducted in accordance with Jewish rites, will prove to what extent romance can be placed upon a sound matrimonial basis.

A Word With the Old Folks

Elderly People Are Learning Importance of Good Elimination.

IN the later years of life there is apt to be a slowing up of the bodily functions. Good elimination, however, is just as essential to the old as to the young. Many old folks have learned the value of Doan's Pills when a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys is required. Scanty or burning passages of kidney secretions are often signs of improper kidney function. In most every community are scores of users and endorsers who acclaim the merit of Doan's. Many Sleep in Subways
There are just two short of 1,000 hotels in New York, where one may live comfortably at from $1.50 to $20 a day, according to Capper's Weekly. It is possible to find shelter in a subway for the price of a nickel or in a discarded elevated car for nothing—provided a guard doesn't catch you at it.
The all-night rider, by the way, is by no means rare in the elevated or the subways. He pays his nickel and boards a train. By getting off at the proper place he changes to another and, in this way, rides uptown and downtown, keeping warm and getting some sleep.

Each Age of Mankind Had Its Collectors
It is always a matter of surprise to find what type of collector is interested in a particular subject. Whatever may be a man's profession, his hobby indicates his real self, says The Market for Exchange. A hobby should afford a complete change from one's workaday environment. For example, Lord Kitchener collected blue and white Chinese Kang-Ho porcelain. J. Pierpont Morgan essayed in vain to be as great an authority on mosque lamps as he was on railroad shares. The prince of Monaco, who derives his income from the green tables of Monte Carlo, expends it on deep-sea scientific research. That famous old character and king of collectors, Horace Walpole, turned his home, Strawberry Hill, into a museum that was the envy of museums.

But collectors are not the product of a recent age. They asserted themselves early in the history of mankind. It is to the collecting habits of certain ancients that we owe much of our knowledge of antiquity. Petrarch for instance, to whom each scrap of writing was as precious as a pearl, was an inveterate collector of classical writings. Domitius Tullius had such a collection of antique statues that a friend once said he bought a garden and was able to furnish it complete in one day from his store of treasures.

Petronius, of Nero's court, amassed treasures that Nero longed to possess. There is a story that Petronius, before his execution by the command of Nero, broke into bits a precious goblet from which he drank in order that, upon his death, Nero might not have the pleasure of possessing it. Lorenzo de Medici immortalized himself as a collector; and to Cosimo, his grandfather, are due these priceless classical and Oriental manuscripts which form the nucleus of the Laurentian library in Florence.

Out of Bounds
Marcel Knecht, French delegate to the Philadelphia convention of the Advertising Clubs of the World, said in his excellent English to an interviewer:
"Success in all lines means resourcefulness. Your successful man is your resourceful man. Yet, there is such a thing as being too resourceful—overstepping the bounds, you know."
"Tom Jones was too resourceful. He said to his partner, John Brown: 'Times are terrible. We'll bust in a week unless we have a—well a burglary.'"
"A burglary? said Jack Brown. 'Why not the customary fire?'"
"No, no," said Jones. "A burglary's best. You see, if we have a burglary and the insurance people don't pay up, why, anyhow, we don't lose nothing."

Bandit Bee Never Reforms
Bees have everything except hospitals and jails, says Mrs. Hamilton, bee-woman, according to Capper's Weekly. They have no hospitals because illness is a crime punishable by immediate execution. There are bandit bees, but bee policemen guard the hive entrance and drive the robbers away. A bandit bee, says Mrs. Hamilton, never reforms—like some human bandits we know. Bees have storage houses, water plants and nurseries, where bee babies are fed on a special mixture of honey and water. Bumble bees, or other aliens that invade a hive, are immediately killed and the bodies thrown out. A mouse is stung to death, but being too large to eject is sealed in a tomb more enduring than King Tut's. Honey is not sweet, says Mrs. Hamilton. "It is an acid that seems sweet."

Marvelous Accuracy
Amazing records of accuracy in timekeeping are revealed in the Longines watch exhibit in the Palace of Foreign Exhibits at the Sesqui-centennial International exposition, now being held in Philadelphia. The display is that of A. Wittnauer, of Switzerland.
The exhibit includes a desk watch which was accorded official government honors at the Teddington observatory, England; the Neuchatel observatory, Switzerland, and Geneva observatory, Switzerland. In each test the timepiece was awarded first prize. The error in compensation after six weeks of observation was less than four one-hundredths of a second.

True to Form
"Do you act toward your wife as you did before you married her?" asked one married man of another.
"I'll say I do. Exact. I remember how I used to act when I first met her and fell in love. I used to hang over the fence in front of her house and gaze at her shadow on the curtains, afraid to go in. And I act just the same way now when I get home late after a poker game."

Moore's Famous Poem Sold Before Written

The full quotation runs: "The trail of the serpent is over them all," and means, "They are all tarred with the same brush," or "They are birds of a feather." The line is from Tom Moore's poem, "Lalla Rookh."
"Lalla Rookh" is little read today. Moore's fame resting solidly and lastingly on his "Irish Melodies." But Moore was immensely popular in his lifetime, and got a substantial sum for every song he wrote.

Mr. Stephen Gwynne, in his "Life of Moore," tells us that John Murray offered two thousand guineas ($10,500) for the copyright of "Lalla Rookh" before it was written. Moore's friends thought he should have more, and, going to Longman, the rival publishing house, they claimed Mr. Moore should receive the highest price ever paid for a poem.
"That," said Longman, "was £5,000 ($15,000) paid to Scott for 'Rokeby.'" Longman was inclined to stipulate for a preliminary perusal. Moore, however, refused, and the agreement was finally worded: "That upon giving into our hands a poem of the length of 'Rokeby' you shall receive from us a sum of £5,000." It is probable that the publisher did not regret his bargain, for the poem had a tremendous sale.

Dual Set of Manners Sign of Boorishness

Many a man is crabbed, moody and stingy in his home and among his family and servants. But let the door-bell ring! Let a visitor call! As if by magic this man becomes suave and generous. He puts on his company manners.
A story is told of a capable executive who lost an opportunity for promotion because his manners among his business associates were not carried over into his home. The president of the concern, who learned in time the dual code of the man, decided not to trust him in a post where instinctive good manners were a prime requisite. The bear had come home, unaware that his superior had preceded him with the offer of advancement, and, before his neck wife could break the news, had growled out his true nature.
The acid test of good manners is not applied on the street or in the office, where expediency holds the whip and commands prudence. The real test is in the home, with children, among servants and all who may be called inferior; among those who cannot or will not retaliate for a harsh word or a despicable act.
Here the invisible apparel of good manners proclaims the gentleman.—Rochester Times-Union.

Early History of Books
Through the Dark ages the church carefully guarded its literary treasures. Books were considered necessary to mitigate the austerities of monastic life. They were borrowed and exchanged for copying, and frequently were read for generations in the same monastery in which they had been written. Following the rule of St. Benedict, many monks read a required number of hours a day. The works accessible were kept in cupboards or presses and were studied or copied in the carols of the cloister, even during the coldest weather. Great value was set upon them. Thomas a Kempis passionately compares a monastery without books to a "kitchen without stewpans" or a "river without fish."—The Independent.

"Touch Wood"

To one who boasts continued good luck the reply is often made "touch wood." Has this phrase come down to us from our tree-worshipping ancestors? The primitive belief was that spirits resided in trees. Without this basic idea being entirely lost there came the period of the sacred groves and the Druids' oaks, and then the dedication of certain sorts of trees to the earliest and simplest form of superstition. We touch wood to call the attention of the tree spirit to the fact that we recognize his influence in the good luck of which we boast, and in order that he may not feel slighted and change our good fortune into bad; at least, that is why our ancestors touched wood.

The Egotist

I have been denied a certain joy many know. There are persons who regard themselves as perfect, and find pleasure in the habit; in criticism of those not equally blessed with conceit.
I have often wondered what the attitude of the really great is toward themselves. Was Michelangelo satisfied with himself? Or did his constant hard work indicate he was unable to do his best? If this was the case, what a wonder is the palpably inferior man who, contemplating himself, falls on his knees in worship.—E. W. Howe's Weekly.

Million Stars in Cluster

Astronomers count the great cluster of Hercules as one of the most interesting of globular systems. It appears to the naked eye as a small star, but under the heavy glasses is found to contain no fewer than 35,000 stars and they can be photographed today with the improved aids for star study, and astronomers claim that it is entirely possible that Hercules, to the naked eye a star of the sixth magnitude, may have at least a million stars in the cluster, all casting their rays forth together.

Cuckoo Kept Busy

There is a curious legend in Dutch folklore: when the cuckoo's note is first heard in the woods the country girls kiss their hands, and ask the bird, "Cuckoo, cuckoo, when shall I be married?" And the old folk, crippled with age and illness, inquire "Cuckoo, when shall I be released from this world's cares?" The bird answers by calling "cuckoo" as many times as years will pass before the object of their wish is attained. But as many girls never marry, and some old people live to a great age, the poor bird is so overworked answering the numerous questions put to her that the spring passes before she has time to build a nest, and so she lays her eggs in the nest of another bird.

Postal Equality Sought

Without prejudice to their claim to votes and general equality with men before the law, some married French women have decided to select a few special, if apparently minor, points on which they intend to secure equal treatment. Among the rights desired immediately is the equality of postal privileges.
A French wife went to the post office and asked for a box as near her husband's as possible.
"Are you in business on your own account, madame?" asked the postmaster. "No." "Then you need your husband's authorization to rent a box!"
The reply started the movement for postal equality.

A Beggar's Warning

A kindly old lady stooped over a reclining beggar and produced a penny. The beggar eyed it disdainfully. "Ma'am," he began, "Dad ye read in de paper about de beggar dat died and left a million dollars to a lady dat give him a quarter?"
"I seem to remember something of the sort," replied the old lady, "but—"
"Well, dat guy was me brother, Dat's de kind of a family we are!"—Exchange.

Violin Work of Engineer

The violin has a number of defects, but they can all be remedied. They present problems for the engineer, not for the musician. Put the violin into the hands of an able engineer—one capable of designing a suspension bridge—furnish him with a moderate amount of fundamental information about sound, tell him to improve the instrument, and in a year or so he will turn out such an instrument as Stradivarius dreamed of all his life but never succeeded in building. If this be blasphemy, make the most of it!—John Redfield in the American Mercury.

Volta's Centenary

It is now nearly 100 years since the death of Volta, the father of every volt, voltage, and voltmeter in existence. There is a proposal to celebrate the centenary by an international exhibition and congress to be held at Como, Italy, some time between May and October, 1927. Wireless, undreamed of by the great scientist, is to be well represented.

STORY TELLING CONTEST

The following stories will be used in the story telling division of the Interscholastic League:

1. The man and the Acorn.
2. Billy Goat and the Wolf.
3. The Three Pigs.
4. The Brave and Wise Gander.
5. The Three Bears.
6. Punchinello.
7. The Lion and the Mouse.
8. The Race.
9. The Little Hero of Haarlem.
10. How Brother Rabbit Fooled the Whale and the Elephant.
11. The Rabbit and the Wolf.
12. Why the Cat Washes After Eating.

The story telling is limited for contest to the first, second and third grades. I have tried to choose subjects within the range of these grades and have used the familiar stories found in the various readers. I hope that every school will enter in this work. It takes no extra expense. It is not a new work and the contest is merely a plan toward systematized county work. Each school may use any plan it chooses for determining the contestant to be its representative at the meet.

VIRGIE BORCHARDT,
Director of Story Telling.

P. T. A. Met December 7

President, Mrs. Self, presiding. The business was disposed of. We are selling sandwiches every Wednesday at the school building.

We are starting a membership drive and we are very anxious to have all the fathers and mothers become members. There are two sides and the side that has the most members by December 17, will be given a prize. A box supper will be given at the school building on Friday night, December 17, under the auspices of the P. T. A. Everybody is urged to come with a box, the money to buy a box, or both. Below the sixth grade boxes will be sold at small prices, so the children may buy boxes. The other boxes will be auctioned with a limit set on the price at which they will sell.

There will be a program which will add to the interest of the evening. It is hoped by the P. T. A. that the whole community will give its support in making the box supper a success in both a social and financial way. There will be a contest. A prize will be given to the prettiest girl and the ugliest boy.

We enjoyed a very interesting program given by the 5th grade and a talk by Mrs. Kincaid, "Why every mother and father should be a member of the P. T. A."—Reporter.

STAPLE GROCERIES

We always try to sell groceries at prices fair to the customer as well as to us. We don't want to overcharge, neither do we want to undercharge, so you may expect us to make such prices as are reasonable at all times.

We also try to handle a class of goods as good as the best, allowing you to be the judge, and when it comes to service we allow nobody to surpass us.

It is wise for one to select a good dependable grocery store at which to do his trading. Hundreds of our customers have done this and they are well pleased with the results. We should like to add you to that growing list, if you are not already one.

Columbian Club

Members of the Columbian Club met Wednesday afternoon, November 24th, at the home of Mrs. Marion L. Hughston.

"Marching Through Georgie—Sixty Years After," was the subject of an enjoyable article from the Geographic Magazine, that was given by Mrs. Bryan O'Connell.

Mrs. T. L. Hughston, who was delegate to the state meeting, gave a very vivid and pleasing description of the events that transpired at the convention. Mrs. R. L. Kincaid discussed the most intensely interesting points that were stressed in the lectures given at the state meeting.

The hostess served a delightful salad plate to twenty-five club members and Meses. T. M. Beverly and Thomas Hughston.—Reporter.

Christmas Sale

We are now making it worth while for our customers and the general public to make their purchases at this store. Your buying here will be like Santa Claus handing merchandise out to you for nothing. Of course we are not giving our merchandise away but we are selling at a heavy reduction. We want to reduce our stock before the first of the year and in order to do that we must make big reductions. In many instances our profits will be reduced to practically nothing and in some there will be real losses, but you are getting the benefits and we are reducing so that the first of the year will not find us with a big stock. This will help the farmer to offset to some degree the low price of cotton.

This is a genuine reduction sale, everything in the store will be marked down and it will go at the marked price.

We are going to give a prize in merchandise of $1.00 each day as long as the sale lasts to the one who makes the heaviest daily purchase, and on December 24th, we will give $10.00 in merchandise to the one who has bought the most goods during the entire sale.

Come and take advantage of the big reductions we are giving and supply your needs for Christmas and the entire winter with dependable merchandise.

We are here quoting you just a few prices to give you an idea as to the saving that will be effected in buying here during the sale.

A DISTRESSING DISASTER

Six Southern states have been visited by a series of cyclones that took more than eighty lives, injured scores of people and caused a property loss of one and a half million dollars.

Hundreds who were fortunate enough to escape with their lives awoke to find themselves penniless, the savings of a lifetime wiped out in a few seconds.

There is something inexorable about a cyclone that makes it more distressing than any catastrophe befalling a people. It comes without warning; there is no chance to escape its unrelenting fury.

Following the devastation of cyclonic winds, the mercy appeal for help is forthcoming, and the people of America are never slow to answer the cry of the unfortunate.

The response in this instance should be quick and decisive. The Red Cross was early on the scene and in its practical way cared for the injured and homeless.

Through the Red Cross, hundreds of thousands of Americans can feel that they are being well represented in every disaster of moment. Reading of the notable achievements of the Red Cross in times of distress should make every roll call for memberships feel proud that they did not dodge their duty.

It is said that the best citizens, as a rule, do not vote. But are they the best citizens?
