KNOCKOUTS

The term knockout is generally understood to imply that the fighter has been "knocked out" and is unconscious or unable to get up. Sometimes a fighter gets into such a condition from repeated blows while still on his feet. When this occurs it is very easy to render him entirely unconscious. In these circumstances a fighter is so unable to defend himself that a blow would perhaps cause severe injury. When such a condition comes about the fight is generally ended by the referee or the judges, both, declaring a technical knockout.

CONTEMPORARY COMMENT

The Foard County News acknowledges with deep appreciation recent editorial comment of contemporaries regarding the honor won by this paper.

"Home Town Stuff." Vernon Record—It was something of an achievement to be proud when The Foard County News of Crowell was awarded the A. H. Belo cup, which is given annually to the weekly newspaper published in Texas which is decided to be the best all-around publication of its class.

"State Press." Dallas News—The winner of the Belo Cup, given annually to the newspaper judged to be the best all-around weekly in Texas, was won this year by the Foard County News, Crowell.

Baylor County Banner, Seymour—The Foard County News has our congratulations on the fact that it received the A. H. Belo cup at Galveston week before last when this paper was judged the best all-around weekly in Texas.

DON'T SLEEP ON LEFT SIDE—AFFECTS HEART

The BELO CUP

To the right is pictured the Belo Cup which was received last week by The Foard County News from The Dallas Morning News and The Dallas Journal.

Through the Texas Press Association, the Belo Cup is presented annually to the publication that judges select as the "best all-around weekly in Texas."

Announcement of the award was made at the recent annual convention of the Texas Press Association in Galveston.

representatives from that town appear so much in the winning column, but it might be on account of having a progressive paper like The News. A newspaper can't do everything for a town, but it can do a mighty lot.

Wichita Daily Times—Our congratulations to the Foard County News, which was recently announced as the winner of the A. H. Belo & Co. trophy for the best all-around weekly newspaper in Texas.

The DePort Times—The Times extends congratulations to the Foard County News, published at Crowell, winner at the Galveston convention of the Texas Press Association of the Dallas News loving cup for the best weekly newspaper published in Texas.

Progressive Press, Wichita Falls—The Foard County News, Crowell, and the Leader-News, Uvalde, were judged as Texas' outstanding weekly newspapers for 1935 at the annual meeting of the Texas Press Association in Galveston last week.

The Crowell paper was awarded the A. H. Belo cup as Texas' best all-around weekly newspaper.

Sunday's Dallas News carried a special article concerning The Foard County News and its honor, together with pictures of the cup, members of paper's staff, and a portion of a recent front page of this publication.

In commenting on the honor, a columnist of the Denton Record-Chronicle stated: "When Klepper lived in Denton he decided that he wanted to be a newspaperman and soon after leaving here took over The Foard County News." Incidentally, the present publisher has lived right here in what is now Foard County since he was 9 months of age, except for a few years in California, and has never made Denton his home, although some of his relatives live there.

In sending the cup, G. B. Dealey, president of The Dallas News, The Dallas Journal and The Semi-Weekly Farm News, included the following comment in his letter: "We congratulate you and your newspaper on having won The Dallas News and The Dallas Journal cup for 'The best all-around weekly newspaper in Texas.' It is a distinction worthily gained, and highly to be valued. The cup, which is the visible token of victory, has been suitably engraved by Lutz Bros. We hope you will value it and we assure you that we are happy to be the means of presenting it to you. . . . It is known to us that through drouth and difficulty lasting through years, you have gone ahead getting out a good newspaper and refusing to be discouraged. You simply wouldn't take it. That is the way winners are made."

Virgil Bumard, vice president, Taylor Paper Co., Fort Worth writes: "You are to be commended very highly for having won first prize and nothing in praise of your efforts that I could say would be equal to the mere fact that your fellow tradesmen sitting as judges of your work have seen fit to award you first prize in a state having over 500 weekly publications, over sixty of which had entries in the contest. . . . At all times I have observed in your papers that you have the support of your community in their advertising, and either you do a good job of selling them or else they appreciate the fact that you have a good advertising medium; probably both factors entering into the situation."

The News staff appreciates many other letters and verbal messages of congratulation received in this connection. Your interest has inspired us to work harder than ever in making "your" newspaper a good one.

THE NATION'S BIRTHDAY

July 4th this year marks the 150th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, that immortal document which was made effective through the blood of our forefathers, and which was intended to vouchsafe to citizens of this nation the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

After the document had been engrossed on parchment it was signed by the delegates present in Congress on August 2, 1776, and by the absentees on later dates. One delegate, McKean of Delaware, did not sign until 1781.

End of Egypt's Independence Egypt ceased to be an independent kingdom in 525 B. C. the last king of Egypt being Psamtek III, who was deposed at that time, when Egypt was conquered by the Persians. It was later conquered by the Greeks, then the Romans, becoming a Roman province in 30 B. C.

A COLLEGE EXPERIMENT

At little Olivet College in Michigan, with a student body of only 207 at present, an interesting experiment is being tried by Joseph H. Brewer, Jr., its 36-year-old president. It is based on the theory that its students go to college to learn something, and that unless they do really want to learn there is little use in trying to force them to do so.

Attendance at lectures and other sessions for instruction is voluntary. There are no roll calls or penalties for non-attendance. Yet, strange as it may seem, the percentage of attendance is very high. The aim is to make the courses so interesting that students will want to attend because they will miss something valuable if they do not.

The students work largely in research and discussion groups of not more than ten members each. Frequent papers are written by the undergraduates as a basis for discussions and conferences. The instructors confer individually with the students, suggest their reading and subjects for study, and act "as catalytic agents" on the minds of the men, as Dr. Brewer has expressed it.

Forward-looking educators have long realized the futility of much of what passes for education in this increasingly complex civilization of ours. The Olivet experiment is only one of many new approaches to the educational problem, and as such it will be observed with much interest.

BOY SAFETY PATROLS

One of the most effective means yet devised for the protection of school children against traffic accidents is the Schoolboy Patrol, now organized in more than 800 American communities, with a total of more than 150,000 members. The object of patrol members is to guide their schoolmates in crossing dangerous street intersections in safety. It is gratifying to know that as a result of this and other safety movements the fatalities among children pedestrians have decreased 25 per cent in the last four years.

A striking example of the fine work of these "safety scouts" is seen in the fact that in Washington, D. C., not a single child pedestrian has been killed in four years, and only one or two have been slightly hurt in four years in districts guarded by these schoolboy patrols.

Dr. Herbert J. Stack, a nationally known safety authority, declares that these boys not only aid in reducing automobile accidents, but also contribute to the development of personal traits of self-control, mental alertness, courtesy and consideration for others.

Every school, whether in city or country, should have its schoolboy safety patrol, composed of bright youngsters who have a sense of responsibility, and who would take pride in their important duties. This could be had without any expense whatever, and would do much toward eliminating the frightful loss of life and limb among children on our streets and highways.

GEO. WASHINGTON AMONG EARLIEST MULE BREEDERS

The bureau of animal industry says that the earliest mule breeders in the United States were George Washington of Virginia, Henry Clay of Fayette County, Kentucky, and Young & Everett of Montgomery County, Ky. Prior to the importations made by General Washington, a few diminutive jacks had been imported from the West Indies, but these were found undesirable for breeding purposes. In the year 1787 the king of Spain presented General Washington with a jack and a jennet from the royal stud at Madrid. The jack was named the Royal Gift. At about the same time Marquis de Lafayette presented General Washington with a Maltese jack, Knight of Malta. The Spanish jack was of a gray color, 16 hands high, heavily made and of a sluggish disposition. The Maltese jack had "the form of a star and the ferocity of a tiger." The latter was bred to the Catalonian jennet and the offspring known as Com-pound became a famous breeding jack, uniting the Catalonian and Maltese breeds. Both of these importations mentioned reached Mount Vernon in the year 1788.

NOISY CELEBRATION

A corroboree is a ceremonial dance, of a more or less public character, in vogue among the Australian aborigines. It is generally held at night, the men doing the dancing and the women furnishing the music. This dance is the nearest approach to a national institution among these primitive people. It serves also as a peace ratification and as a means of intercommunication. Hence, the term is applied to any noisy or disorderly celebration.

"Re-Hees" with Jean Harlow and William Powell is being shown at the Rialto as its Fourth of July feature and also on Friday night. "It Happened One Night," with Clark Gable and Claudette Colbert will be shown Saturday night only from 7:30 to 11:30 o'clock. This picture is again being shown over the nation after being acclaimed 1934's outstanding production.

Many who have seen it before intend to see it again and scores of those who have not seen it have anxiously looked forward for an opportunity to attend its presentation.

PLATINUM VALUABLE

Osmium, iridium and rhodium are more expensive than gold and platinum. Osmium and iridium are used for tipping fountain pens and for special bearings, and rhodium is used for plating jewelry.

ODD CANCELLATION

From 1870 to 1891 the stamps of Afghanistan were cancelled by having a piece of paper torn or cut out of them. In 1892 Afghanistan adopted the modern method of canceling stamps with ink.
