Crowell's 33 to 9 Victory Over Seymour Cinches District 4 Championship

BIG CROWD SEES TITLE CONTEST AT SEYMOUR FRI.

By defeating Seymour 33 to 9 at Seymour last Friday afternoon the Crowell High School Wildcats practically cinched the championship of District 4, Class B.

A crowd of two thousand people was estimated present for this game. Several hundred from Crowell and Foard County were in attendance to cheer the Wildcats to victory in this important contest.

Crowell is the only undefeated team in the conference race and has only one more game to play, which will be with Burkburnett here on Friday afternoon of this week at 3:00 o'clock.

Richmond returned Todd's kick-off from the 22 to the 44. Failing to gain, Richmond punted out-of-bounds on the 19. Horn, Whitfield and Todd advanced the ball to the 26, from which Todd punted with Forrester returning from his 40 to Crowell's 48.

With Cooper, Howard and Richmond carrying the ball, Seymour launched a series of line plays that took the ball to Crowell's 15.

Two line plays netted only 2 yards and Todd let go of a mighty punt which Forrester took on his own 13, returning to the 23.

Taking the ball on the 8, Crowell gained 9 yards on 3 tries and Todd punted out on Seymour's 42.

Taking the ball on the 20, Whitfield fumbled and lost a yard. Another loss of 2 yards followed and Todd took the ball for a gain of 45 yards before he was rushed out-of-bounds on Seymour's 38.

INFORMATION IS GIVEN IN REGARD TO HOG KILLING

"Hog Killing Days Are Here Again" and naturally everyone is interested in the preparation of their pork and pork products in the best possible form for table use.

A scalding vat is most convenient and it is possible, especially with larger hogs, to do a better job of scalding with a vat instead of a barrel, however, a barrel can be used successfully.

For best results the hog should be stuck and allowed to bleed to death. This insures a good bleed and spoilage is less likely to occur.

To insure the best curing results, the utmost cleanliness should be observed in cleaning and dressing. The carcass should not be allowed to come in contact with dirt after the hog is scalded and hung to be dressed.

The meat should be chilled as rapidly as possible. Hang in a cool place until the following day, when the meat can be cut, trimmed and placed in cure.

Do not cut the meat while it is still warm if possible to avoid it. A sharp knife is important. The following steps will simplify the work:

- 1. Cut off the head at first joint behind the skull. 2. Remove shoulder between the fourth and fifth rib. 3. Bone out neck bones and ribs from shoulder. 4. Divide shoulder into picnic and butt by cutting shoulder at a point where neck bones were removed. 5. Remove ham at a line half way between the rise in the back bone and pelvic bone and at a right angle with shank. 6. Divide side into back and belly. 7. Remove ribs from belly and trim remainder for bacon. 8. Divide back into loin and fat back.

In trimming, avoid exposing the lean, leave half inch covering of fat over the lean. Hams weighing over 20 pounds are more difficult to cure than smaller hams.

Dry Cure: For 100 pounds of meat to be cured use: 8 pounds salt, 2 pounds brown sugar, 2 ounces saltpeter.

A meat show in Crowell, similar to the one held here last March, will be held again in March, 1934, according to Mr. Rennels.

This will be followed by a "Ham and Bacon Show" at Wichita Falls and the winning entries in the local show will be taken to it. Last year a number of Foard farmers won substantial cash prizes at the Wichita show.

Mr. Rennels urges farmers to start now in making arrangements to have hams, hocks and other products at the meat shows next March.

The local group returned to Crowell this morning. Mrs. Spencer accompanied them. While in Austin, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer visited their son, Markham.

Congressman McFarlane Visits; Says Congress Will Follow President

W. D. McFarlane of Graham, representative in the United States Congress from the 13th Texas Congressional district, was a visitor in Crowell last Friday.

As a result of the redistricting measure passed by the Texas Legislature, three new Congressional districts were created and changes made in other districts.

The three new Congressional districts in Texas are on the South Plains, in East Texas, with Nacogdoches about the center, and in the Uvalde section of South Texas.

The old 18th district has been reduced almost in half and now includes Carson, Dallam, Sherman, Hansford, Ochiltree, Lipscomb, Hartley, Moore, Hutchison, Roberts, Hemphill, Oldham, Potter, Gray, Wheeler, Deaf Smith, Randall, Armstrong, Donley, Collingsworth, Farmer, Castro, Hall, Swisher, Briscoe, Childress, Motley and Cottle.

Mr. McFarlane, who was elected Congressman last November to succeed Guinn Williams of Decatur, formerly represented Foard County in the Texas Senate as Senator of the 23rd district.

In commenting on the coming session of Congress beginning Jan. 3, 1934, which will be the first session under the 20th amendment, the lame duck measure—Mr. McFarlane stated: "I believe the next session is going to be very slow to break away from the recommendations of the President, despite predictions of many daily newsmen to the contrary."

Mr. McFarlane added: "The boys that wrecked the country are doing all they possibly can to stir up strife, but in spite of this we can find definite signs of improvement on all sides."

BURKBURNETT AND CROWELL PLAY FRIDAY

The final District 4-B game of the 1933 season and possibly the last home football game this year will take place on the local field Friday afternoon when the Wildcats meet the Burkburnett Bulldogs. The game will begin at 3 o'clock.

A Crowell victory in this contest will give the Wildcats undisputed claim to the championship of District 4-B, an honor that the Olive Cubs have held for the past five years.

While the records of the Crowell and Burkburnett teams indicate that Crowell should have little trouble in winning Friday's game, yet the same case was true when Burkburnett came here two years ago.

At that time it was generally felt that Crowell would win by a large score, but when the game was actually played, the Wildcats were lucky to emerge with their one touchdown victory after being given the scare of their lives by a scrapping bunch of Bulldogs.

If Burk should score an upset and beat the Wildcats Friday, Olney and Crowell would be tied for first place in the district running.

Come out and help the Wildcats win a district football championship for the first time in Crowell history.

TEXAS COMPANY PROJECT TO BE NEAR OIL WELL

The Texas Company had a crew of men start work Monday on clearing the site and breaking the ground for the natural gasoline plant that this company is to erect on its lease in Foard County, about 18 miles air-line distance west of Crowell.

This $150,000.00 gas processing plant will be about 1,000 feet west of the company's L. K. Johnson No. 3 well, from which the plant will secure its gas supply.

Processing of the gas for the manufacture of gasoline will be the first of its kind in this region. Through the method to be used, gasoline will be produced from the gas through the application of pressure in the processing equipment.

It is expected that the new Foard County industry will be in full operation by Feb. 1. Although its use will not be put to capacity, officials at Wichita Falls said that the equipment would produce more than 5,000 gallons of gasoline daily from the L. K. Johnson No. 3 alone.

A single building will be required for the boiler plant. The remainder of the equipment will be in the open.

Announcement of plans to construct the plant were made last Friday at Wichita Falls by J. L. McMahon, manager of the North Texas division of the Texas Company, after authority for the project had been received from the main offices at New York City.

Although the Johnson No. 3 well is a big producer of oil, it is in a highly productive gas territory. It blew in last July 20 and was completed on July 28 at a depth of 3,571 feet, the oil sand having been topped at 3,556 feet. At that time it flowed over 750 barrels daily.

Upon the completion of a four-inch line to the Gulf Production Company's main line, about one-half mile northeast of the well, drilling proceeded six feet deeper and on Oct. 9 the well flowed 2,776 barrels of high gravity oil in 24 hours time.

After that oil men and others regarded the completion of this well as the most important happening in North Texas oil circles since the bringing in of the Fowler well at Burkburnett in the hectic days of 1918-19.

The No. 3 Johnson well was the only one of three expensive tests by the Texas Company to make a commercial oil producer. Two previous tests by the Texas Company on the Johnson ranch gave evidence of oil, but neither produced in paying quantities.

With the No. 3 well producing from a lucrative oil formation and with the gas emanating from the same source, the fumes carry a high percentage of gasoline which is lost to the producers except through the use of such a processing plant as the Texas Company is installing.

Officials at Wichita Falls have announced that no gas will be piped from the well and that the Texas Company does not plan to drill any more wells in this area in the immediate future.

It is considered probable that the new plant will be of sufficient size to process gas from other wells, besides the discovery well, at some time in the future.

A survey for a 3-inch pipeline from the processing plant to Foard City, a distance of about 15 miles, is being completed and construction work on it will likely start soon.

At Foard City a loading rack will be erected next to the Panhandle & Santa Fe tracks for handling the output of the natural gasoline plant.

The Texas Company is now completing construction on a dam on Good Creek, about 3 miles northeast of No. 3 well. When completed the dam will be 604 feet in length and 13 feet in height and will create a lake having about 77 acre-feet of water, although the lake itself would cover about 18 acres of ground. Water from this lake will be available for future developments in this field.

LABOR VS. COMMUNISM

No immediate menace of communism threatens the United States, in the opinion of Congressman Fish of New York, chairman of the House committee which investigated activities of communists in this country.

In a recent speech Mr. Fish took occasion to pay a tribute of praise to American labor leaders and members of labor unions for their stand on communism. He said:

"The most potent force against the extension of revolutionary communism in the United States is the American Federation of Labor, and the patriotic leadership of both Samuel Gompers and William Green has stood boldly against the attempts of communists to undermine the faith of our wage-earners in our form of government and in our free institutions."

POWER PLAN FAULTY

Recently the city of Florence, Alabama, located within two miles of the government power plant at Muscle Shoals, voted to go into the power business, expecting to buy cheap power from the government and distribute it to citizens and industries in the vicinity.

When the city came to negotiate with the Tennessee Valley Authority, the government agency in charge of this power, it was found that it would be impossible to carry out its plans, because the Authority would not permit the city to resell power to domestic consumers at rates which would enable it to break even.

On the other hand, the rate at which the city must sell to industrial consumers was too high to enable it to compete with the Alabama Power Company, which now serves the Muscle Shoals district.

In a statement before a gathering of citizens last week Mayor Lee Glenn of Florence frankly said that it was impossible for the city to buy and distribute Muscle Shoals power without loss, under the terms imposed by the government.

If the nearest city to Muscle Shoals finds the government's plan for power distribution impracticable, it would seem that the great expectations of other less favorably located communities with respect to the benefits of government power may also fail of realization.

OLD FIRMS' NEW LINES

If it be true that politics makes strange bedfellows, it is equally true that something similar may be said of business, in the light of recent happenings.

Manufacturers of various commodities are adding lines apparently unrelated to their original products, some of the new combinations being almost incongruous at first glance. For illustration:

A big automobile manufacturing concern has added refrigerators and radio sets, a yeast company takes on coffee as a companion product, an old sewing machine firm brings out a vacuum cleaner, while two piano manufacturers are also building motorboats.

Perhaps these firms, as well as others making similar departures from their original lines, have an explanation for the new activities mentioned, each logical enough from the standpoint of the company concerned.

The general idea is believed to be that by making two or more products a manufacturer is better enabled to cope with seasonal slumps and in many cases to keep working forces on a more uniform schedule of employment.

Whatever the explanation, the new trend is interesting, and seems likely to spread to many other lines of manufacturing and marketing.

CRIPPLES RESTORED

Among the many humanitarian activities which engage the support of benevolent societies and individuals, the restoring of crippled children to health and happiness is one of the most commendable.

The work of modern surgeons in this connection is effective almost beyond belief. At a recent convention of the International Society for Crippled Children it was stated that "modern science has healed all manner of diseases and we are happy to say today that practically every type of malformation, if taken in early childhood, can be cured."

Among the organizations which have given special attention to crippled children, the Shriners have been particularly active, each member of the order contributing regularly to the maintenance of homes for these unfortunate little ones, who would otherwise go through life with deformed bodies and limbs. Other societies are doing a similar service for humanity.

The hearty encouragement and support of this labor of love should be extended by every person who is in a position to lend a hand.

Rate farmers cast 1,000 pounds of butter into a Wisconsin creek. We have read in the Good Book about casting bread upon the waters, but nothing about its being buttered.

The economist is a fellow who has a new theory whereby he hopes to repeal the stubborn old law of supply and demand.

Racing a train to a crossing is an exciting yet harmless sport—unless the race ends in a tie.

"Rubber dollars" might be desirable if we could stretch them sufficiently to make ends meet.

THE LAST TEMPTATION

See, Jesus rises in his place at the last supper. He speaks, this proud young man who had refused to be a king and now is to die with common thieves. And these are his words:

Let not your heart be troubled . . . I have overcome the world.

There is nothing in history so majestic! Already one of his disciples had slipped away to betray him. That very night the soldiers would take him, bind him, throw him into prison. The priests and Pharisees whom he had taunted would have their turn to taunt him now. He would be harried through the streets like a hunted thing, the butt of every corner loafer's jest. All this he anticipated, and with the vision of it fresh before his mind, he lifted his head and looked beyond, into the far distant ages. "Be of good cheer," he said to them, in tones whose splendor thrills us even now. "I have overcome the world!"

They went out into the garden where so many of their happy hours had been spent. The very air was fragrant with their most sacred confidences. Under this tree they had gathered for worship, while the setting sun gilded the towers of the city; in the waters of that brook they had found refreshment; to left and right of them the very stones cried out in heartrending reminder of the days that were gone. Even at that hour it was not too late for him to have saved his life. Suppose he had said to himself: "I have delivered my message faithfully, and it is no use. Judas has gone already to bring the soldiers; they will be here in half an hour. Why should I stay and die? It is only eighteen miles to Jericho, bright moonlight and down hill all the way. Our friend Zachaeus will be glad to see us. We can reach his house by daylight, rest tomorrow, cross the Jordan and do useful work the rest of our lives. The disciples can fish; I can open a carpenter shop, and teach in a quiet way. I have done everything that could be expected of me. Why not?"

It was all perfectly possible. The rulers in Jerusalem would have been glad to be rid of him on such terms. He might so easily have continued on down the hill to peace and comfortable old age—and oblivion. It was the last great temptation and decisively he dismissed it. He walked a little ahead in silence, followed by the eleven—for Judas was with them no longer—and coming to a quiet place, left them while he went away for his last hour of high communion with his Father, God.

New Cotton Plan of Gov't. Is Explained By Chief C. A. Cobb

College Station.—The new cotton plan to be offered growers who sign Government contracts for 1934-35 provides for total payments of $120,000,000 of which 90 millions are to be paid in the form of land rentals and 30 millions in "parity" payments, according to C. A. Cobb, chief of the Cotton Section of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. In explaining details of the new plan to county farm and home demonstration agents at their annual meeting at A. & M. College last week Mr. Cobb emphasized that the plan is not yet in its final form and may be modified later.

As tentatively set up in the plan, land rentals will be paid on retired cotton acres at the rate of 3 cents per pound for the average five-year production. Land producing an average of 125 pounds of lint per acre for the years 1928-32, for instance, would be entitled to a rental of $3.75 per acre. The minimum payment would be $2.25 per acre for a production of 75 pounds of lint per acre, and the highest would be $14 per acre.

Land rental payments are expected to go to land owners, with landlords making satisfactory arrangements with tenants. In the case of large properties where fewer tenants may be needed next year the Government will probably urge landlords to allow the dismissed tenants to remain in their houses and to work food and feed crops for their living out of the retired acres. For other necessities tenants may be able to work as day laborers for the landlord.

The "parity" payment promised is one cent per pound for 40 per cent of the average five-year production. It may be more. There is expected to be 30 millions of dollars available for these parity payments on 6 million bales of cotton, or $5 per bale. This money is to be divided among the contract signers. The parity payment is expected to be divided between landlord and tenant according to their existing share agreements. A third and fourth tenant, for example, would get three-fourths of this payment or about $3.75 per allotted bale.

Mr. Cobb expressed the belief that full details of the new plan will be available in the counties late in November and asked county agents to complete the sign-up campaign by January 15th.

Excellent Pantry at Home of Mrs. Burrow

The "Big Bad Wolf" will not knock at the home of Mrs. E. W. Burrow, 4-H Pantry Demonstrator for the West Side Home Demonstration Club, this winter. Mrs. Burrow has her pantry well stocked with canned foods, attractively labeled, which, with the addition of meat and lard from hogs to be killed later and milk, butter and eggs always on hand, will enable her to prepare tasty, well-balanced meals for herself and husband with a minimum of labor.

The arrangement of the food on the shelves makes for ease in planning menus, being grouped as starchy, leafy and other vegetables, fruits, meats, pickles and relishes, jellies and preserves, and miscellaneous. Mrs. Burrow has preserved a total of 882 pints valued at $94.75; using the income from pies, she bakes at home and sells, to purchase fruits for canning that cannot be raised at home.

TAX MEETING

Dr. R. E. Main of Thalia announces that a meeting of Foard County taxpayers will be held in the district court room in Crowell at 2:30 o'clock, Saturday afternoon, Dec. 9. He states that everybody is invited to come.

FEDERAL COURT

The following action was taken in Federal court at Wichita Falls Wednesday with respect to Foard County men: Boots Gribble was fined $71.00 on a liquor charge. In his defense he maintained that the evidence showed that he had only three empty kegs when apprehended and insists that these kegs are to be returned to his home. Fred Davis, negro, was fined 35c and Albert (Curly) McCluskey drew a sentence of 25 days, both on liquor charges.

Monthly Banquet of Local Association Held Tuesday Night

The regular monthly banquet of the Farmers and Business Men's Association was held Tuesday night at the Griffith Hotel with about fifty present.

R. R. Magee acted as toastmaster for the program. At the opening of the program he read a message from J. L. McMahon of Wichita Falls, manager of the North Texas Division of the Texas Company, in which he stated an appointment at Amarillo prevented him from accepting the organization's invitation to be present. He also expressed thanks on behalf of the Texas Company for the friendly gestures already shown by the people of Crowell and Foard County.

After a discussion by Mack Boswell of various forms of soliciting schemes, President Fred Rennels, appointed a committee composed of H. K. Edwards, H. E. Ferguson and W. R. Womack to investigate any proposition for which local solicitation is made.

All local business men are asked to co-operate in eliminating unworthy schemes by requesting a solicitor to first produce a letter of endorsement from the committee mentioned above. The purpose of this committee is to distinguish between worthy and unworthy propositions. Proper co-operation on this matter will prevent the loss of many hundreds of dollars during a year's time.

Following this discussion H. E. Ferguson sang a cowboy song. A report from the oil field road committee was given by M. S. Henry, A. Y. Beverly reported for the trades day committee.

N. J. Roberts discussed prospective Civil Works projects. Brief talks were also made by Jesse Owens of Vernon, Dr. J. M. Hill, Dave Sollis, E. V. Halbert, C. T. Schlagal and T. L. Hughston.

Committee members to arrange a program for the December banquet were named as follows: W. F. Kirkpatrick, R. D. Oswalt and L. T. Edwards, Virgil Smith, Dow Miller and John Rasor are the ticket sellers for this occasion. Dave Sollis, H. E.

Ferguson and J. H. Lanier, Jr., were appointed to arrange January Trades Day plans.

A. Y. Beverly, Eli Smith and H. K. Edwards are in charge of Trades Day plans for Monday, Dec. 4.

HOPE FOR EPILEPTICS

Another disease which hitherto has been baffling to physicians seems in a fair way to be conquered. Drs. Helmholtz and Hadow of Rochester, Minn., have made a report of several years of investigation and treatment of epilepsy with most encouraging results.

This report covers the cases of 141 patients treated, of which number 43 were cured, 32 were improved and 66 were not benefited. The treatment consisted of a special diet rich in fats, and was originally worked out by Dr. Russell M. Wilder, formerly of the Mayo clinic.

While the results are by no means uniform, and in some cases were of no benefit to the sufferers, the percentage of patients cured or improved is encouraging. Very little is known about epilepsy, so anything attempted in the way of treatment in the past has been a mere experiment.

It now appears that the scientists are on the right track, and the prospect for a complete mastery of the disease is most promising.

Maytag Announces New Model Washers

Square tub Maytag aluminum washers, recently offered to housewives at lower prices, now have been introduced in new models at the lowest prices in the history of their manufacture.

This announcement was made today by C. V. Ketchersid, local Maytag dealer.

The new Maytags, greatly improved over models that formerly sold for $175, now retail for $139.50 and contain many features never before offered on washers at any price. Included among them are the new four-point tension roller water remover, new reinforced cast aluminum tub, and monoform base. The new models continue to use the gyrotator principle of washing originated by Maytag and retain other Maytag features already familiar to housewives," Mr. Ketchersid said.

"The Maytag factory at Newton, Iowa, the largest washer factory in the world, is at present employing more men and turning out more Maytag washers than at any time in its history. The national re-employment program, which of course has The Maytag Company's hearty support, has made it possible for that company to employ more men than at any time heretofore. This means that their higher production makes it possible to give the housewife more for her money. There is a definite trend toward higher quality washers, not because housewives want to pay more, but because it is the most satisfactory and most economical thing to do."

The new Maytag will be displayed at the local store beginning tomorrow, and the policy of allowing the housewife to have a demonstration in her home, without cost, will be continued.

WHISPERING ROCK

by JOHN LEBAR

Seventh Installment

... Ruth Warren, living in the East, comes into possession of a three-quarter interest in an ranch, left to her in the will of her only brother, reported to be dead on business in Mexico. Her ailing husband and small son, thinking the climate would be beneficial to her weakened lungs. Arriving at the ranch, she learns that the "Dead Lantern", is 85 miles from the desert. Charley Thane, a rancher and rural mail carrier, takes them to "Dead Lantern", which was 5 miles from the house. As they wearily pass a huge overshadowing gulch in coming to the house, a voice whispered "Go back." At the ranch house she is greeted suspiciously by the ranch partner, Snavely and Ann, a herculean woman of negro and Indian blood. It is difficult to understand Ruth takes up the trying to adjust their three ranch and its development. Kenneth, Ruth's husband, in chilling rain contracts pneumonia and passes away before she arrives. Ruth tries to carry on but is not encouraged by Snavely to try and stock the ranch to improve it. She writes to her brother in the East asking him to buy some cattle. He writes no reply. Will Thane comes to visit his father. Ruth meets him. A rancher decides to retire and offers to sell his and Snavely's livestock on Snavely's terms to balk the deal. Ruth buys to the limit of her partner interest in Dead Lantern.

Warren, and in the corral troughs by the spring—
Ruth opened her door and stepped outside, for David had just gone to sleep. "Have you seen Francisco and Alfredo?" They found seven more dead this afternoon—there are buzzards circling all along the foothill gullies. Please start to town early—if any machines pass, you ask them to send out a veterinary as soon as they reach town."
"Mrs. Warren!" Snavely fixed her with narrowed eyes. "I know the medicine will stop the sickness!" The momentary steadiness of his eyes gave way to their customary jerking, and he walked toward his room.
Ruth did not quite know what to do. "Mrs. Warren"—Snavely stopped at his own door and his manner softened—"I know how you're worried an' if I didn't know the danger was over, I'd start for town now. Now listen here—if we find one fresh dead cow after tonight, I'll get your veterinary. I'm saying this 'cause I know the sickness will stop, an' I ain't goin' a-foggin' into town for no veterinary who couldn't do nothin' after he got here.

"There are buzzards circling all along the foothill gullies."

Ruth stood thinking. She was not at that moment so very afraid of Snavely. Still... Anyway, she had his word; one more dead animal. And in three days Old Charley would be going into town. If need be, she could ask him to send out a veterinary.
The following day five more dead animals were found, but none recently dead. Ruth tallied the bulls and found only one, Number Six, missing. She crossed his number from her list. So far she had lost eighteen head, about one thousand dollars. For all she knew, that thousand dollars might mean the failure to meet her note. Certainly, if many more cattle died she could not meet it.
But no more cattle died. For a week every one anxiously watched for buzzards but the great birds had grown more scarce and not a single new death was reported. Ruth's relief was unbounded and Snavely's eyes glinted triumphantly.
The day came when Snavely was setting out for town. Ruth spoke to him just as he was leaving. "I wish you'd take some of that medicine with you and see if you can't get it analyzed—go to a druggist and if he can tell what it is, get some more."
Snavely nodded. "That's a good idea—I'll sure do it. We ain't got much left; but I don't think we'll have any more trouble. I'm just a mite worried about the stock in the north pasture—they feed along the foothills a head an' you know it was foothill feeders that got took bad. We ain't found no sickness down on the meadows. I'll take a little of that powder into town but maybe you'd better put some in the spring troughs—I ain't done that lately. Better put some in tonight—there's a lot of foothill grazers watering at them troughs."
That evening Ruth reached up to the medicine shelf, found the partly filled cardboard box and poured a small amount in a cup. At the troughs she turned the water off so that the medicine would not be diluted during the night, poured in the powder and returned to the barn for her Spanish lesson. She hoped fervently that Snavely could obtain more of the medicine and, if not, decided that she would send a sample to Will—surely some laboratory in Los Angeles would analyze it.
As she and David and Alfredo were leaving the next morning for the day's riding, they chanced to go into the pasture by way of the spring troughs. It was early, and the advance guard of the herd was just coming over a distant hill for their first drink of the day, when the riders reached the troughs.
Only three cows, two calves, and a yearling steer had already watered. The six animals lay within a hundred feet of the troughs. All but the steer were dead.
For the next five hours, Ruth, Ann, and the two Mexicans labored vainly with the dying steer. It is neither easy nor pleasant to treat animals for poisoning; for according to the Breeder's Guide it had been poisoned. When the steer was dead, Ruth went to the medicine shelf. Standing on a sack of rolled barley which lifted her eyes to the level of the shelf, she discovered that there were two Quaker Oats boxes, each containing a whitish powder. On the outside of one box was scrawled in pencil, "for liver fever;" the other box had a noisome label "Cyanide." Ruth held a box in each hand, looking from one to the other—for the life of her, she could not tell which she had taken from the shelf the evening before.

Old Charley sat upon his horse, leaning slightly forward, his belligerent eyes on a thin thread of smoke which came from a clump of oak and mesquite, half a mile beyond the eastern boundary of his ranch. He had just noticed that thread of smoke. The old man rode to the top of a small hill, over which the fence passed, dismounted and, kicking off his spurs, studied a mesquite tree which served as a post in the fence. Then, with much grunting and many scandalous remarks regarding thorns he hauled his heavy body part way up the tree. From his new position he could see the origin of the smoke. One look told him much and his remarks increased in volume and temperature as he descended.
The land from which the thread of smoke arose, was free land—government homestead land. It joined the Thane ranch on the west and the Dead Lantern property on the north, extending eastward as far as the highway. Since Will had been a boy, Old Charley had planned for him to use his homestead rights to acquire this excellent piece of property. It would make a wonderful pasture—deep in grass and shade and having several natural sites for watering places. But when Will had come of age he was in college. And when he finished college he went into business—never did Will have six continuous months during which he could live on this property, make the required improvements, and so become owner of it.
And now it appeared that some confounded foreigner was intent on taking this property away from Will! Old Charley dropped his horse's reins over a post and crawled through the fence. He was going to pay his would-be neighbor a call.
He stopped about fifty feet from the shack. The setting sun threw deep shadows under the oak trees. The single window was open, but the old man could see nothing within. From the crazy chimney of stove pipe on the roof came a thin column of smoke. Near the door stood a box holding a washbasin. There was a splash of water on the side of the box.
"Hello, neighbor!" called Old Charley.
A frying pan dropped to the floor with a clatter, but no other response came from the house. Then, as he was about to call again, a cloth curtain dropped behind the window, as though released by the jerk of a string.
Old Charley frowned and went toward the shack.
He banged on the door. "Say, in

There are buzzards circling all along the foothill gullies."

there, I've got a message for you—from a friend."
"I ain't got no friend sendin' me no messages!" The voice behind the door rasped roughly. "What d'yuh want, stranger?"
Old Charley almost abandoned the moonshiner hypothesis—moonshiners are more inquisitive about messages from friends. However, he tried again.
The old man frowned. "My name's Thane—I own the ranch, here, and I thought I'd see who's living in this shack."
"Like hell you own this land! I'm ownin' it myself, come another five months! I done paid my visit to the land office, Mister, and I don't feel like openin' no door. Don't like to talk nowadays—fat people don't agree with me."
"What! Why, you low—"
"Yeah," interrupted the voice, "and, besides, I'm gettin' my supper so why don't you be a nice little fat man an' get th' hell off my property—huh?"
Old Charley's face was the color of a well-done ham. He hit the door with a tremendous blow of his fist. "Open this!"

Why Liquid Laxatives Do You No Harm

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can be controlled. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.
The right liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement, and with no discomfort at the time, or afterward.
The wrong cathartic may keep you constipated as long as you keep on using it!
An approved liquid laxative (one which is most widely used for both adults and children) is syrup pepsin. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescription, and is perfectly safe. Its laxative action is based on senna—a natural laxative. The bowels will not become dependent on this form of help, as they do in the case of cathartics containing mineral drugs. Ask your druggist for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Member N. R. A.
