Crowell's Game at Seymour Friday May Decide District 4 Championship

WILDCATS ONLY UNBEATEN TEAM IN TITLE RACE

Crowell will play Seymour at Seymour Friday afternoon in a football game that will either give the Wildcats the championship of District 4-B or else throw Olney, Crowell and Seymour into a three-way tie for the leadership.

Crowell is the only undefeated team in the district and a victory or a tie will give the Wildcats their first district football championship. Seymour is determined to stay in the race by defeating the Wildcats and all indications point to the fact that Crowell will face one of the toughest tests of the season when they clash with the Panthers on their home field Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Realizing that the Wildcats have the greatest opportunity in their history to win the district football championship, hundreds of Crowell fans are planning to be present for this all-important game.

If the Wildcats win this game, then only one more conference game will have to be played and that will be with Burk Burnett on the local field on Friday, Nov. 24. While Burk has made a fair showing this year, the Bulldogs have not displayed enough power to indicate that they would have much chance to stop the Wildcats' march to the district throne.

Crowell and Seymour are about evenly matched in weight, although the Panthers average about a pound heavier to the player. Coach Grady Graves of the Wildcats states that Seymour is much stronger than the score of the Olney-Seymour game indicates and now that they will be playing on their home grounds and with a victory absolutely necessary to remain in the race for the championship, the Panthers can be counted upon to give a much better account of themselves than they did against Olney last week when they suffered their first defeat of the season.

Mrs. T. M. Gafford Taken by Death Sat. At Sulphur Springs

Chas. Gafford returned Monday from Sulphur Springs, where he attended funeral services Sunday afternoon for his mother, Mrs. T. M. Gafford, 85, who died Saturday morning at the home of her son, Ellis Gafford, of Sulphur Springs.

The deceased was a former resident of Foard County, having lived near Crowell for ten years. She and her husband left here in 1910. T. M. Gafford died in Sulphur Springs on Dec. 29, 1927.

Mrs. Gafford was born in Mississippi on March 29, 1848. At the age of 10 she came with her family to Hopkins County, Texas, and had since lived there, except for the time spent near Crowell and two years at Altus, Okla.

She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Docia Lindley of Sulphur Springs, Mrs. Lula Ramey of Wichita Falls, Mrs. Susie Jackson of Afton, Texas, and Mrs. Lizzie Baulcom of Altus, Okla., and four sons, Bill Gafford of Duncan, Okla., Ellis Gafford of Sulphur Springs, Gordie Gafford of Electra, and Chas. Gafford, who lives north of Crowell.

Mrs. Gafford's death came following illness of about one week. Funeral services were held in a funeral home at Sulphur Springs with the Methodist pastor of that city officiating. She was buried in a grave beside that of her husband. All of her children were present for the funeral with the exception of a son at Duncan, Okla.

Fall at Gin Injures Arnold Rucker Thurs.

Arnold Rucker, engineer at the Farmers Gin, No. 1, received a severe break on the wrist of his left arm at about 8:30 o'clock this morning when he fell from the distributor box of a stand in the No. 1 gin to the concrete floor eight feet below. The loose top of the distributor box, causing his fall, also fell on him.

In climbing up the gin stand to assist Audie Brown in lacing a belt, the top of the distributor box slipped when he caught hold of it while climbing.

Other bruises and a slight back injury were received. He was taken to his home immediately after the accident.

The gin was not in operation at the time of the accident.

Annual Red Cross Roll Call Started In Foard Saturday

The annual Red Cross Roll Call, which opened in Foard County on Saturday, Nov. 11, has met with considerable success thus far, according to local officials.

They report one hundred per cent subscriptions for memberships at the office of B. K. Garrett, resident engineer for the State Highway Department, and at the Crowell State Bank. Six men are employed in the engineer's office and four at the bank.

The roll call is scheduled to end on Nov. 30, however, it is hoped that Foard County's quota will be subscribed before that time.

Vernon Pyle, roll call chairman, and Mrs. H. Schindler, chairman of the Foard County chapter of the National Red Cross, urge all team captains to complete their work as soon as possible.

Foard County Relief Projects to Furnish Work for Unemployed

Every effort will be made to see that Foard County fully shares in projects for unemployment relief that are being made possible over the nation through the civil works administration, according to Leo Spencer, Federal administrator for Foard County.

A large number of unemployed men will be given 130 hours of work each month this winter at the rate of 30c per hour. Those who have been supported by government relief funds are being transferred to civil works projects as rapidly as possible.

MUCH WORK ON HIGHWAY 28 IN PAST 5 YEARS

An extensive development program has taken place on State Highway No. 28 during the past five years, 145 miles having been paved with concrete or hard-surfaced with other material during this time. Distances have been shortened and large numbers of dangerous turns and curves have been eliminated to make travel much safer and faster over this highway now, compared to what it was five years ago, where there were 28 square turns between Crowell and Vernon alone.

The latest improvement project is in Floyd County, where grade and drainage construction work is being rushed to completion from the Motley County line to Floydada.

As a result of the recent completion of hard-surfacing the highway from the Cottle County line to Matador, a tourist may start at the beginning of Highway 28 at Red River, northeast of Vernon, and proceed through Vernon, Crowell, Paducah and to Matador on one continuous stretch (112 miles) of hard-surfaced highway, all of which has been completed since the spring of 1928.

From Matador a new grade to the Floyd County line has been completed for a number of years and is awaiting a paving contract. Work is now progressing on the grade from the Motley line to Floydada and the right-of-way for a new grade from Floydada to the Hale County line is being secured.

Highway 28 is paved with concrete entirely across Hale County to a point about 20 miles west of Plainview. When paving of the gaps in Floyd and Motley counties is completed, there will be a continuous stretch of almost exactly 200 miles of pavement on Highway 28.

Beginning at Red River, northeast of Vernon, Highway 28 extends through Wilbarger, Foard, Cottle, Motley, Floyd, Hale, Lamb and to Muleshoe in Bailey County, where it connects with Texas No. 7 into Clovis.

U. S. Highway No. 70
United States Highway No. 70 traverses all of Texas Highway No. 28 with the exception of the 14-mile stretch from Vernon to Red River. From Vernon No. 70 goes to Wichita Falls and from there to Oklahoma and on through Hot Springs, Little Rock, Memphis, Nashville, Knoxville, Asheville, Raleigh and ending on the Atlantic coast at Beaufort, N. C. Westward from Crowell, U. S. No. 70 proceeds through Clovis, Socorro and ends at Holbrook, Arizona, where it joins No. 66 into Los Angeles.

In years to come U. S. Highway No. 70 may become one of the most popular routes across the nation.

Only Few Cotton Checks Due Here

Only eleven cotton checks are now due the farmers of Foard County for their part in the government's cotton acreage reduction program. A total of 558 checks, aggregating $139,670.00, have been received here to the present time.

A consignment of 13 checks, with a total value of $4,398.00, reached here Tuesday.

With the arrival of the other checks, to-wit with the benefits from option sales, Foard County's total from the reduction program is expected to reach $189,000.00.

START SURVEY TO FOARD CITY FOR PIPELINE

With plans to erect a natural gasoline plant near its L. K. Johnson No. 3 oil well, The Texas Company had four of its engineers to start a survey Monday on a 3-inch pipeline from the proposed plant's location to Foard City, where a loading rack on the Panhandle & Santa Fe Railroad is planned to handle the output of the natural gasoline plant.

No definite announcement has been made regarding plans for construction of this plant in Foard County, 18 miles airline distance west of Crowell, however, officials of the North Texas Division of the Texas Company were in Crowell this week to confer with local county officials and committees to ask their cooperation in building a permanent road to the new oil field.

Officials stated that improvements of around one million dollars were actually planned in Foard County and that to make these improvements that would add greatly to the county's permanent taxable valuations, a substantial road was needed since extra heavy material would have to be hauled to the field.

Should the proposed natural gasoline plant be built, around six or seven houses will be constructed near its site to house workers. Several hundred thousand dollars have already been spent by oil companies in search for oil in the vicinity of the Texas Company's well and now that this area promises to be one of North Texas' best producing oil fields in the future, the matter of making it possible to develop this field through proper road facilities is extremely important to the people of Foard County as a whole.

Hearing Postponed

The oil hearing that was to have been held at Austin last week has been postponed. The oil allowable for the new Foard County field was scheduled to come up for discussion at that time. The present allowable is five hundred barrels daily.

Construction is now being completed by the Texas Company on a dam on Good Creek, about 3 miles northeast of the Johnson well. The dam will create a lake having about 77 acre-feet of water. The lake would actually cover about 18 acres of land.

When completed the dam will be 604 feet in length and 18 feet in height. A hearing on the application of the Texas Company for a permit to appropriate the unappropriated waters from Good Creek, a tributary of the Wichita River, for use in development of its oil field property, will be held by the State Board of Water Engineers at Austin on Monday, Dec. 18. A notice of this hearing appears on page 6 of this issue of The News.

Lee Allen Beverly and Elmer Garlinghouse, local boys, have real wireless stations in Crowell now and can send messages to each other without wires. Some months ago they purchased instruments, got the standard wireless code and learned it.

The News wishes the boys unlimited success. May they continue their study until they have become great scientists. Somebody must take the place of the great Edison some of these days.

BIRDS OUR PROTECTORS

Although some varieties of birds are considered a great nuisance by farmers and others, it is doubtful that any of these feathered tribes are more destructive than useful.

Birds are the natural enemies of insects, and insects are the greatest enemies of mankind. Scientists have declared that without continued research and the employment of improved means of combating insect pests they would overrun the world and destroy all other life, including man.

The rapidity with which certain insects multiply is beyond the imagination. For example, a pair of pucerons, a species of flea, will in a year produce more than 441 quadrillion young.

With this ever present menace of insects to combat, we can hardly have too many birds. Not only out of humane sentiment, but as an actual protection to civilization, the birds should be spared.

PROPHETS OF DOOM

Luckily for humanity, it still maintains a saving sense of humor. Were this not so, the wallings of the pessimists would drive us all crazy.

Each long-faced brother solemnly assures us that unless his particular panacea for saving the race shall be speedily adopted there is no hope. Modernism, flapperism, automobiles, hootch, movies, dancing, bridge and cigarettes, singly or in combination, constitute the outstanding menace, according to the viewpoint of the particular alarmist who happens to have the floor.

Thus, after listening to these apostles of doom, with a more or less pronounced feeling of boredom, unregenerate humanity turns to the funny page and smiles at the varying fortunes of Jiggs and Andy Gump.

This does not mean that the average person is indifferent to the evil in the world. It means that sensible people recognize the inherent weakness and folly of humanity, and refuse to become unduly excited about it.

Jewelers recommend that every man carry two watches. But the bold-up man would get them both.

The nudists seem determined not to let their neighbors get a thing on them.

It takes a lot of will power to match some wives' won't power.

CROWELL LEADS IN DISTRICT 4 FOOTBALL RACE

Crowell is now the only undefeated team in District 4-B as a result of Olney's surprising 37 to 0 victory over the unbeaten Seymour Panthers at Olney last Friday.

By defeating Seymour this week, the Crowell Wildcats will practically have the district championship won, since Burk Burnett is the only district team that will be met after that.

Crowell's game with Seymour heads the district schedule this week. Burk Burnett plays at Olney and Megargel at Archer City.

Acme High Loses to Crowell's "B" Team

The Crowell High School "B" football team maintained its undefeated record with a 12 to 0 victory over Acme High School at Acme last Thursday afternoon.

Raymond Gibson went over right tackle for 6 yards and Crowell's first touchdown in the first quarter after Mark Saunders had blocked a punt on the 15-yard line.

Crowell's other touchdown came in the second half when Melvin Joy took Bill Dunagan's pass across the goal line. Crowell had the ball within six inches of a touchdown when the game ended.

Instead of trying to get ahead, many people waste time trying to get even.

STANDING ALONE

For just a moment, in the next spring, there seemed to be a renewed popular interest. The crowds flocked around Jesus in the old familiar way; the disciples noted it joyously.

Was it necessary to be so harsh with the Pharisees? Why should he have ridiculed them out of his company? Why tell people that their precious ritual was less acceptable to God than the cry for mercy of an untaught publican?

The one week of his life which everybody knows is the last week. Hence we pass over it in these articles. It began with the triumphant shouts of "hosanna;" it ended with the bloodthirsty cries of "crucify."

It is the final supper on that cool, quiet Thursday night. He knew that he should never meet with the disciples around the table again.

And this was the end. His relatives had turned their backs on him; his home town had scorned his advances, his best friend had died doubting; the people had turned away, and his enemies were about to triumph—

Christian Science Churches

"Soul and Body" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 19.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "The life is more than meat, and the body is more than raiment" (Luke 12:23).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Question.—What are body and soul? Answer.—Identity is the reflection of Spirit, the reflection in multifarious forms of the living Principle, Love. Soul is the substance, Life, and intelligence of man, which is individualized, but not in matter. Soul can never reflect anything inferior to Spirit. Man is the expression of Soul" (page 477).

SERMONETTE

MAN'S GIFT TO MAN

By Arthur B. Rhinow.

In a sermon I recently read the statement that the richest gift any one can make another is to trust him; not in the sense of selling him a bill of goods with the understanding that he is to pay at his convenience, but in the sense of confiding in him, believing that he will never fail you or betray the trust.

That is, indeed, a finer gift than money can buy or blandishments can wheedle out of us. To be able to unburden your soul to a friend with the assurance that he will try to understand and will never prove unfaithful, is a precious comfort and at the same time the highest compliment you can pay him. To say to a man, "You are good-looking, or bright, or talented, or clever," can hardly be compared with saying, "I know I can trust you."

For that means he is worthy of being trusted, and that worth is deeper than surface loyalty. The confidence of friendship is not strained by just a verbal agreement with dramatic handclasp, rolling of eyes, and artificial rassion in the voice. You cannot really be a good friend unless you are a good man; not good-looking, but good in the sense of being a man of principle. You cannot trust me if my life is swayed by selfishness. Sooner or later I shall fail you.

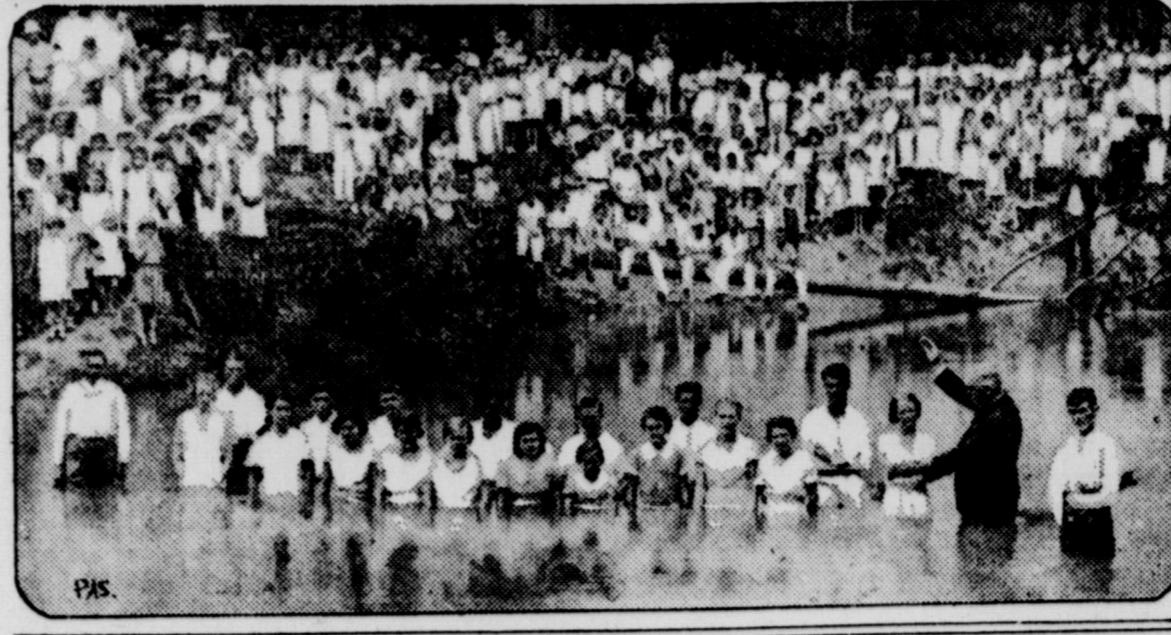

Who wants to lean against a post, however nicely nixed, that is just a foot in the ground? Who wants to confide in a man whose life is not rooted in righteousness and love of fellowman? Brother, I cannot trust in you unless you trust in God.

Detective Smith climbed 350 feet to the top of the Delaware river bridge to arrest a riveter wanted for non-support of his family.

Near Detroit when his bicycle was struck by an automobile, James Ferguson turned a somersault and landed in the car.

Mrs. E. T. Allen of London had her husband arrested for wrecking her auto because he was jealous over her taking another man for a ride.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Charles E. Dunn

PAUL IN ATHENS

Lesson for November 19th.

Acts 17: 16-34.

Golden Text: Acts 17:28

Athens, at the time of Paul's visit, was not an important political center, for the capital of the district was Corinth. But Athens was still the queen of the intellectual world. Her schools of philosophy were famous, and she had impressive temples adorned with precious art treasures. But the city was so full of idols that it seemed as if gods were more numerous than men. This idolatry was naturally a shock to Paul's monotheistic faith.

Rev. Chas. E. Dunn

The lesson contains the sermon Paul preached as he stood on the Areopagus, the splendor of the city in full view, with an audience before him of Epicureans, Stoics, and idlers. Note the tact with which he begins. Instead of denouncing them for their idolatry, he says they are unusually religious. This he conciliates them, and secures a courteous hearing. The art of appreciation here exemplified ought to be practiced far more zealously. We usually accomplish more by praise than by rebuke. William Lyon Phelps tells of how he criticized severely a short story submitted by a student to a college magazine. Later the young man, who was subject to attacks of low spirits, committed suicide. It is not a source of satisfaction to him, says Prof. Phelps, that he contributed to the poor fellow's suffering.

Paul then goes on to define that unknown God whom the Athenians worshipped in ignorance. An unseen Spirit, He is the Lord of Heaven and earth, who created all men, His children, to love and serve Him as one united family. The apostle then stresses repentance, and concludes with a brief reference to Jesus and the resurrection. The response to this prepared, polite homily was not flattering. The Athenians were too frivolous and conceited to embrace the gospel with genuine sincerity. Some jeered, some desired further light, and a few believed. The total impression was negligible. No church was founded in Athens, and no letter was written to the Athenians. So far as we know, Paul never went there again. Discouraged, he proceeded to Corinth, where his reception was much more favorable.

MEDICAL ADVICE

If you want to
... keep the bowel action regular and comfortable
... make constipated spells as rare as colds
... avoid danger of bowel strain
—use a liquid laxative

Can constipation be overcome? "Yes!" say medical men. "Yes!" declare thousands who have followed their advice and know.

You are not apt to cure your constipation with salts, pills and tablets, or any habit-forming cathartic. But you can overcome this condition just by gentle regulation with a suitable liquid laxative.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the average person's bowels just as regular as clockwork in a few weeks' time.

Why Hospitals use a liquid laxative

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can be controlled. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Will not irritate kidneys.

The right liquid laxative will bring a perfect movement, with no discomfort at the time, or afterward.

The wrong cathartic may keep you constipated as long as you keep on using it!

In buying any laxative, read the label. If it contains a doubtful drug, don't take it. If you don't know what is in it, don't chance it. The contents of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is stated plainly on the label; fresh herbs, pure pepsin, active senna.

Its very taste tells you syrup pepsin is wholesome. A delightful taste, and delightful action. Safe for expectant mothers, and children. Drugstores have it, ready for use, in big bottles.

WHISPERING ROCK

by JOHN LEBAR

Tenth Installment

Ruth Warren, living in the East, comes into possession of a three-quarter interest in an old ranch, left to her in the will of her brother, reported to her on business in Mexico.

Her ailing husband and small son goes to Arizona to take the ranch, thinking the climate would be beneficial to her weakened lungs. Arriving at the town, she learns that the "Dead Lantern", is 85 miles from the desert. Charley Thane, a rancher and rural mail carrier, offers to take them to "Dead Lantern", which was 5 miles from the house. As they wearily travel, she notices a large overhanging rock in a gulch in coming to the house, a voice whispered "Go back."

At the ranch house, she is greeted suspiciously by the rancher partner, Snavely and Ann, a herculean woman of negro and Indian blood. It is difficult to understand her, Ruth takes up the ranch and its development. Kenneth, Ruth's husband, in a chilling rain contracts pneumonia and passes away before she arrives. Ruth tries to carry on, but is not encouraged by Snavely to try and stock the ranch to improve it. She writes to her father in the East asking for help which to buy some cattle. She receives no reply. Will Thane comes to visit his father. Ruth meets him. A rancher decides to retire and offers to sell Snavely tries to balk the deal but buys to the limit of her partner interest in Dead Lantern.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

"see," explained Will, "the water falls between the top of the range and the dike sinks to the ground and goes down to the bottom. But it can't get past the dike and is impounded under the dike. Where the wall crosses this dike is the lowest point, and it's here the water seeps out. I found wet sand last year. It came up to the dike. Fifty feet above the arroyo bed it rose. It was a great sandy hole. The water of this hole was damp. I could hardly conceal her disquiet—she had pictured a little pool, and the bottom of the hole looked as though it had spilled half a pail of water there, twenty minutes before. I was boyishly enthusiastic. She is! Believe me, when she saw a damp place in this weather she thought of something doing."

Alfredo and Don Francisco with the shovels, Will directed in excellent Spanish to dig the damp spot toward the wall. More than a half hour there was water at the bottom of the hole.

Will returned to the barn to pack drill and a sledge—the water to drill through the dike and water beyond.

Alfredo and Don Francisco took turns at the sledge, while Don Francisco drilled, giving it a quarter turn at each stroke. The drill went steadily; at every blow a little water trickled around the hole. At last a gush of water came. Snavely, and the Mexican woman came to see. Hours after they had begun, the water began to bubble. "It's coming! We're through!" Will's voice was filled with excitement as he swung the sledge. A few more strokes, and the water shot in six inches at one point. He made a sound. Will dropped the sledge. Every eye was on Francisco. With both hands he slowly pulled it out and as the drill up and down to loosen the water spouted around it in increasing volume. The drill was a muddy spout of water and the sand three feet away from the hole.

One, from David to old Don Francisco, made some kind of noise. He discovered it was Snavely. Snavely shook hands all around. The old running water was too much for the old cattleman. They slept that night. They had a fire going for its light and around watching the spout of water. Every now and then, some one took a drink, and although the water was still quite muddy, declared it was probably the purest water ever. With the proper troughs and water every head of stock could be watered. The Dead Lantern could ever carry water. Snavely, although Ruth did not expect it, the value of the ranch had increased by some thousands of dollars since that last blow from the sledge.

A daylight temporary dam had been thrown across the arroyo for the cattle until the water was piped to a permanent pond. It had actually helped to build the dam. But when the cattle had been driven up the arroyo and the water was going back to the ranch for breakfast, Ruth sensed that she was rapidly returning to the midday meal Ruth and Alfredo accompanied Will to the mail to meet Old Charley. Before they left, however, Will had to take a last look at the pond. Not a single cow was at the pond; they had all had their water and now were scattered over the pasture.

On the way to the mail box the three friends talked incessantly. David rode with Will.

It was when Old Charley's car appeared far down the highway that Will said, "I'm planning a little joke on Dad. He is always kidding me about leaving the ranch for the city—I know that he hopes some day I'll come home for good and help him raise cattle. There's a piece of homestead property which joins our place on the east and yours on the south—he's always hinting that I ought to take it up before any one else does. He watches that section like a hawk. Well, here's the point. I'm not saying anything to Dad, but this trip I'm going to pull stakes at Los Angeles and come home for good. I expect to get back about a month before the round-up and I'm not going to say a word to Dad but just sneak out to that homestead and put up a shack and live there. It'll be a kick when he discovers somebody squatting on that choice section of his."

Alfredo always picked up his guitar and stood near the door, his eye on the fresco outside.

The girl laughed. "Be careful—he doesn't take a shot at you before he discovers who it is."

Old Charley honked the horn as he sighted the three by the mail box. Ruth turned to Will. "It seems dreadfully inadequate to say 'thank you'—I—"

"Good Lord! I've had the time of my life!"

Ruth looked at his feet. "I shall remember that the Dead Lantern owes you a pair of shoes, not to mention trousers—why didn't I think to lend you some overalls?"

He laughed, as Old Charley turned from the road. "All right, Ruth, but I'll be needing boots instead of shoes the next time you see me."

Within a week after the development of the water the summer rains had begun. Almost every afternoon brought a brief shower; great, cold, pelting drops making the desert sparkle, redolent with the perfume of greasewood. Usually, after these showers, the sun shone for a time before it slipped behind the mountains—as though to remind the desert that it still was master. There had been two severe storms which turned the arroyos and gullies into angry little rivers. All the deepened ponds were full to overflowing and water lay in small natural pools in many of the deeper canons.

The cattle were everywhere—there was so much water that they could go where the feed was choicest and they made good use of the opportunity. The remains of the cottonseed meal was stored in the barn and the band of bottle-fed calves was scattered. Already, every animal on the place seemed two-thirds fat.

The Mexicans worked on their house—Ruth knew that they were happy and would stay indefinitely. Every evening for an hour after supper she and the girl, Magda, had lessons in Spanish and English. When the hour was up Ruth went back to the ranch house, for, as the end of the lesson approached, Alfredo always picked up his guitar and stood near the door, his eye on the fresco outside.

Snavely seemed to have changed subtly since the discovery of the water. Ruth sensed that he had begun to regard her in a different way; it was as if she had proved that she was not to be frightened, she could no longer be treated as a child. She had shown him that she knew something about ranching; and, since the drought was safely past, that she stood a chance of meeting her note. But the girl knew that Snavely was far from becoming reconciled to her presence on the ranch; he hated her and he hated the Mexicans.

Another thing about this strange man had come to her notice; he seemed to be looking at the old well whenever he was near the ranch house. Ruth had never seen him go there since he had built the board fence around it; but many times she had watched him coming up the path from the barn with his narrowed eyes on the clump of bushes by the woodpile.

There was much riding to do, as Ruth was so busy that she still had five books to read of the half dozen Will had sent her. Each morning she rode out with Don Francisco and Alfredo, often accompanied by David. Every fifth day she carried a slip of paper with numbers from one to twenty-two and rode until she had checked all of the bulls. The white numbers on their sides were still glaringly conspicuous—sometimes she could check six or seven animals all within a mile as she looked carefully from a hilltop. She still considered her system of marking very fine.

The summer rains, having been unusually generous had gradually ceased except for an occasional thunderstorm which hurried over the San Jorge Valley. On the Dead Lantern the natural surface water in ravine and canon was fast disappearing and the cattle were drifting to the neighborhood of the ponds.

Late one afternoon Ruth and Alfredo were returning from the south pasture driving a poor-grade heifer. The heifer was to be butchered and it is axiomatic among cattle owners that only the off-color, the dish-faced, the knock-kneed, and the sway-backed shall be served at the family board.

When they were crossing the last deep ravine before reaching the ranch house, Ruth rode toward the mountains, leaving Alfredo to bring in the heifer alone. There had been water in a pool farther up the ravine the week before and Ruth wished to look at the cattle which would remain in the vicinity as long as the water lasted. She met few cattle in the ravine and upon arriving at the pool found it empty. As she rode out of the ravine along the side of an entering gully and neared the upper level, her eye caught a white object hidden among the undergrowth in the gully bottom farther ahead. Presently she saw that the object was a numeral six painted upon the red-brown side of a bull. The animal appeared to be lying stretched out, (and even though she could see little distinctly through the clumps of catclaw and ocotillo, Ruth felt with a quick tightening at her throat that the bull's position was unnatural. Dismounting, she half walked, half slid, to the bottom of the gully and nickered her way toward the bull. As she approached, half a dozen great buzzards flapped into the air on reluctant wings.

The next morning she and the two Mexicans returned to discover if possible why Number Six had died. Don Francisco and Alfredo held a long consultation together but could come to no definite conclusion—some sickness such as comes to the strongest of things. As the three companions rode on, the black buzzards slowly circled into the gully.

Suddenly Alfredo pointed southward. A group of buzzards were wheeling low above an oak tree which rose from the entrance of a gully in the opposite bank of the ravine.

By noon, five more dead animals had been found within a radius of a

A HIGH SCHOOL EDUCATION PAYS

By common usage, any education beyond the years of high school is called "higher" education. But were it not for the efficient work done in the high schools very few, if any, would ever succeed in the schools of higher learning. We should, therefore, feel proud of the work done in our high schools. They really lay the solid foundation on mile. Ruth, half sick with anxiety, rode back to the ranch house for Snavely who had remained at the corral. She had to say, then shrugged, rails shoeing horses.

The old cattleman listened to what "You're liable to find a dead cow or two most any time—too bad about the bulls, but they'll die just the same as anything else."

"But we've found six altogether—six recently dead!"

Snavely grew more attentive. "Six—five besides the bull?"

"Yes."

"Well, now, that don't look so good. Here, I'll just saddle up an' have a look."

He shook his head after he had studied the carcass of Number Six. The buzzards had eaten very little, but they did not so far away. "I don't know just what to make of it—may be if we could find a fresher one. Still, it ain't black leg, anybody could tell that. Don't look like he'd been hurt in no fight, neither."

"Mr. Snavely," said Ruth, as they rode toward the oak tree where several buzzards stood or walked about, "you will have to be going into town for supplies soon anyway—why not go tomorrow and send out a doctor—a veterinary?"

which to build. In a well ordered high school, every boy and girl seems to be going somewhere. Full of enthusiasm and energy—they are on their way.

If they could keep up this direct effort, keep driving ahead right on through life, they would all get somewhere.

There is one branch of higher education in which the earnest endeavor of the students is maintained. We refer to business training institutions. Tyler Commercial College and School of Business Administration is an outstanding example.

Boys and girls have to keep looking steadfastly ahead—they have to keep earnestly striving—or they cannot stay at Tyler, because schools like Tyler are selling results that are measured in dollars and cents for their students. When they fail to deliver results they do not survive.

How young people have been getting results for the last thirty years at Tyler Commercial College and School of Business Administration—actual results that are measured by greater earning capacities—is interestingly told in a booklet entitled "Achieving Success in Business," which is mailed free upon request by the school at Tyler. We suggest that our readers write for a free copy, addressing Tyler Commercial College and School of Business Administration, Tyler, Texas. Just fill out the coupon below.

Better Lighting Will Ease Your Budget Worries

There are budgets that really will work . . . budgets that will show how to bring expenses within income! But they weren't created at a dark and gloomy desk . . . they were the result of calm and intelligent analysis under the cheering atmosphere of good light.

It's surprising what a difference adequate lighting makes! . . . Troubles take on a less terrifying aspect when subjected to the clear, eye-soothing brilliance of the modern electric light. It's not only much easier to work, but the absence of eye-strain keeps your mind clear and alert.

Next time you sit down to plot out the month's expenses, or to write a letter, be sure your light is adequate. You'll find the difference amazing!

A trained employee will be happy to inspect your home-lighting arrangements. There's no obligation, of course . . . and chances are that a simple rearrangement of your present fixtures, or adjustments giving you adequate sized lamps where they're needed, will be all that's necessary.

Do you know that your increased use of Electric Service is billed on a surprisingly low rate schedule . . . and adds only a small amount to your total bill?

P. T. A. Executive Board Is Host to Faculty Members

A social event with the Thanksgiving atmosphere was a delightful dinner on Tuesday evening with the Executive Board of the Crowell P. T. A. as hostesses and the entire faculty of the Crowell schools as honor guests.

The party was had in the basement of the Methodist Church and the dinner was served buffet style, at individual tables. Partners for the evening were found by small red turkeys which were numbered in pairs and pinned on the guests as they entered. These were the work of the school pupils. A Thanksgiving menu from baked turkey to pumpkin pie, was enjoyed.

The hospitality committee, under the chairmanship of Mrs. J. E. Harwell, was responsible for the plans for the party.

A program was rendered throughout the serving of the dinner, the first number of which was a vocal solo by L. T. Edwards, accompanied by Mrs. S. T. Crews. Mary Katherine McMillan gave two readings. Camille Graves read a poem. Helen Harwell read two numbers. T. B. Klepper accompanied by Mrs. Klepper played a violin solo, and Miss Louise Ball gave a humorous reading. The program was interspersed with jokes told by various ones and by songs led by Miss Lottie Woods and by A. Y. Beverly. An air of informality reigned throughout the evening. The closing number of the program was a good night song, by candle-light, with Helen Harwell and Camille Graves, clad in pajamas, holding the candles.

Besides the members of the facul-

Grafters, etc.

Fake solicitors, illegitimate promoters and grafters in general have descended upon Crowell and West Texas in greater numbers this fall than in many years. This is always the case when good crops are made and when money is flowing more freely than usual. Regrettably as the case may be, we have had too many of these visitors already and we can expect a lot more for it seems that these grafters have passed the word around that Crowell is on the "sucker list" and that the town is a fine hunting ground or fishing pond for their type of work.

In Crowell as elsewhere, men of supposedly good business judgment consistently contribute to the support of nearly every grafter that comes along.

Why Not Stop It?

Why can't Crowell do the same as many other cities have done in putting a stop to a great part of this despicable work? All that is necessary is to have a committee of local men to investigate various charitable and advertising schemes for which local solicitation is to be made. Then the next step is for all local business men to simply ask a solicitor this question: "Have you a letter of endorsement from our local committee on this proposition?"

If not, then no further consideration should be given the solicitor. If he or she has a letter of endorsement from the local committee (not one from a mayor or committee in some distant city), this simply means that the proposition is worthy of consideration and that the local business man can do as he pleases in contributing to it.

About 90 per cent of the solicitors who find that no one will contribute to them or patronize their schemes unless they have a local letter of endorsement, will promptly leave town for usually their propositions will not stand up under a proper investigation.

Many of these grafters know better than to do their own soliciting and will secure the services of some local person with a good reputation to do their work. A large number of local business interests will then pay a high price for a square inch of advertising space on a calendar, that very few would have hanging around their home or business place, with the idea that they were helping some local cause, when as a matter of fact the promoter is the only one who really benefits—and boy! they sure leave town with a lot of other people's hard-earned dollars.

Plenty of Schemes

It seems that there are hundreds of propositions for which "advertising spaces" (bardon the insult to advertising) are sold by these promoters. There are also scores of "maternity," "rescue," and "orphans' homes" for which donations are often asked. Some of these do not even exist; some solicitors are not even connected with the worthy homes in whose names they seek contributions: some of the homes are so far away that they have no business asking local subscriptions, and of course a few are perfectly justified in seeking local support.

Don't get the idea that we are saying that all propositions for which local money is sought, are bad or unworthy. But we do say that there ought to be a local method of separating the good from the bad and the plan mentioned above has worked successfully in saving many towns thousands of dollars yearly—why not here?

Did You Know That—??

Crowell has a real scarcity of vacant rent houses? A few new families have had trouble, and some still are, in finding suitable locations. Now that our new oil field promises to bring some new families to this area, Crowell may lose them because of inadequate housing facilities.

The biggest honor of last week was pulled by the Quannah Tribune-Chief when it had the following headline stretched entirely across its front page: "Contract Let For Paving Highway 16 In Foard County?" Might be a good idea to save that headline for a few months, maybe a year or more, when actual facts justify it.

Guy Whitfield, Wildcat halfback, is an expert baker of cakes? However, he is not serving any of his delicious sweets to his teammates until after the football season is over.

A number of well known young people of Foard County were listed in the birth announcements at this time 20 years ago in The News? Just take a look at the 20-years ago column.
