BUY Your NEXT CAR ON THE BASIS OF THE RIDE THE ECONOMY THE PRICE $465 MANY people find it a good plan, when buying a car, to consider first what it does to make motoring more enjoyable; next, what it costs to operate; and last, its price. Proceeding thus, you find that Chevrolet alone combines Knee-Action, Body by Fisher, a valve-in-head engine, and cable-controlled brakes—definite additions to motoring pleasure. Further investigation reveals that owners say a Chevrolet saves on gas, oil, and upkeep. If you now consider price you discover that the Chevrolet is priced extremely low. To the Citizens of Foard County: The big majority you gave me for State Senator in the primary election August 25th made me very happy. This heavy vote was specially gratifying, coming to me as it did after the unfair campaign made against me. I shall ever be grateful to the fine citizenship of Foard County who refused to be misled, and instead, endorsed my record of service in the Senate by this great majority. No man ever had more loyal friends, nor friends who more unselfishly stood by him. As I cannot see or reach all of you personally, I take this method of thanking you from the depth of my heart. In return for this fine endorsement, I pledge you the same conscientious, faithful, and honest service I have heretofore given you. BEN G. ONEAL

Sunday School at 9:45.
Reading Room open Monday, Thursday and Saturday 2 to 5 p.
Wednesday evening service at 8 o'clock.
The public is cordially invited.

Christian Church
Next Sunday will be a special day for us as it is Bro. Merrill's preaching day and also we are to be visited by Bro. and Sister John G. Clark and their two boys. It has been almost exactly five years since Bro. Clark finished his work among us to go to Iran, Texas. Let's give him a fine welcome.
Some time during Rev. Merrill's visit this time we are to have a board meeting, which will be announced Sunday morning. We want all board members to attend, without fail.
Don't forget to think about, pray about, talk about, and do something about our Sunday school. Let's make our Bible school a mighty force for Christ in this community.
C. V. ALLEN, Elder.

Christian Science Services
"Christ Jesus" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, September 2.
Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "But thou, Bethlehem . . . out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel; whose goings forth have been from of old, from everlasting" (Micah 5:2.)
The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Christ expresses God's spiritual, eternal nature. The name is synonymous with Messiah, and alludes to the spirituality which is taught, illustrated and demonstrated in the life of which Christ Jesus was the embodiment" (page 333.)
Otto Pfandich of Munich, mistaken in the dark for an unpopular resident, was ducked in a brook five times and badly beaten before the mistake was discovered.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Charles E. Dunn
Micah Champions the Oppressed.
Lesson for September 2nd. Micah 6 and 7.
Golden Text: Micah 6:8.

Our Golden Text was, it is said, the favorite Bible verse of President Washington. It was also close to the heart of Theodore Roosevelt. Rather than concern itself with the root activities of the human pilgrimage. No doubt we need certainly we must have enthusiasm. And President Eliot, of Harvard, made much of it.
Religion, insists Micah, is not primarily ritual. Neither is it, at bottom, ecstasy. But of much more importance are the justice, mercy, and humility of every day living.
The need for justice today is obvious. Too long has man given full rein to his predatory impulses. Our present competitive profit system places a premium upon the exploitation of one group by another. Moreover it is subversive of human values through its philosophy of strife leading inevitably to international war and industrial conflict the fruits of which are insecurity, unemployment, and untold misery. What is needed is a planned social economy, thoroughly Christian in its implications. Charity is no longer sufficient. The times call loudly for genuine justice.
But mercy is as important as justice. The Church has always given a royal status to the virtue of kindness.
Finally, the sovereign grace of humility must be stressed. A discouraging defect of human nature is the deadly sin of pride. Other fruits are fussiness, jealousy, snobbishness. All of these common vices can be cured by a rigorous self-examination leading to a realistic appreciation of our littleness.
Most of all do we need humility in our religion. This is made clear by Jesus' striking parable of the Pharisee and the tax-gatherer. "For every one who uplifts himself will be humbled, but he who humbles himself will be uplifted."

MEDICINE MAN A PEST
Among certain Indian tribes the traditional medicine man not only fails to do his patients any good, but makes it difficult for white physicians to treat them satisfactorily, according to the director of public health nursing among Wisconsin tribes.
Reports from nurses on duty among the Indians of that state indicate that the tribal medicine men still hold a superstitious power over their people and are jealous of the white man's methods. As a result the white doctors and nurses are not called in many cases until after the medicine man has done his worst. Under such circumstances the white doctor is at a serious disadvantage and the patient often dies through lack of proper early treatment.
When this happens the native medicine man points to the white physician's failure as proof of his own superiority. And it is sometimes difficult, if not impossible, to convince the redskins that their medicine man is wrong. In fact, it is not best to criticize him much, as that would stir up racial feeling and make matters worse.
The policy of the white doctors and nurses is to try to gradually win the Indians over from superstition to scientific measures, in this steady progress is being made. But the native medicine man is still a pest to be reckoned with, and a long campaign of education will be required to destroy his influence among the more backward members of the tribes.

The Centennial will not Cost... IT WILL PAY

The Texas Centennial Commission has said that it contemplates a self-liquidating celebration. It has given positive assurance to the people of Texas that it will not involve any increased taxation. The Centennial is the biggest job proposed for Texans since wresting its liberty from foreign despotism. Texans in all the past have liked big jobs. The Commission is relying upon that old Texas spirit as enunciated by Col. Travis, "Victory or Death," to make sentiment unanimous for celebration of its historic birthday in 1936. Every Texan now is challenged. For a century of trial and triumph every Texan has stood in solid phalanx. Every challenge has been accepted. No greater work was ever presented a Texan, native-born or adopted, than that presented by the plan for the Texas Centennial.

SYNOPSIS
Three weeks after a cream colored roadster had been found in the sea at the foot of a cliff, a girl appears at the desert town where she was brought, sight of a ranch located thirty miles away. Barry Duane, her neighbor and his man, procure a reliable car for her and in Barry's car, they travel down with supplies, they go across the desert. In Marston, a ranch where Barry and Anne become acquainted has aroused suspicion. Barry and Anne become more than neighbors, and when Barry is lost in the hills and rescued by Barry, each realizes that something more than friendship exists between them.

Cleo seemed to have a great deal to show Anne. A dress. Then she called Cleo. After that there must have been a brief call on Cleo's mother. Cleo was still something else, a case of the Ming dynasty. "I had will want to show it to you, so you might as well be forewarned. He's crazy about it, but I don't like it," said Cleo frankly. "Now, darling, I'll take you out. Wait here for me just a minute. I forgot to put those shoes away."
She whisked out of sight, and Anne looked at her. "Is Kennedy there?" she asked. "Bring your car around now, Kennedy. I'll go to the Chinese room and Mrs. Duane that I've been deceived and will be down in ten minutes."
Out in front of the garage building which in itself was a smaller castle, Kennedy scowled and entered back to his car. "Wonder why she didn't give me a message to one of the flunkies? Too damn lazy to ring twice, she... Oh, well, it's O. K. by me."
Mrs. Pendleton wishes me to go that she will join Mrs. Duane in ten minutes."
Anne whirled about to see Kennedy. "So we meet again! You're acting like a million, Nancy. I suppose you were the last time, but she's got much of a look beyond passed out. Nice little party, isn't it?"
"It was ghastly! Jim, how can you talk like that?"
"I could talk a lot, if I got a word."
"You could talk yourself into anything," she flashed angrily. "There's a penalty for blackmail." "It would never get that far, though." He twisted a scornful smile. "It would take too much explaining. There's that pleasant scene at the beach bungalow, and a sweet mix-up afterward."
"Oh yes, I've figured that out. It was just too bad that I came back."
"Hush!" She looked around nervously. "Your own part was going to be proud of. What are you doing here? In Granleigh?"
"Any reason why I shouldn't be here?" He grinned at her mockingly. "You've done pretty well for yourself, after all. Picked a man and landed soft. Does anyone happen to know—"
"Please, Jim."
"No, he doesn't know! How did I tell him? I left all of the life behind me, on that night of May. I never meant to come back, either, but I had to risk it to lose everything."
Her voice broke, Kennedy looked at her curiously. "You're a queer kid, Nancy. How did you do it for? ... Oh, you know what I mean. I know you were something phoney about that accident. I went to a library and hunted up the papers—afterward I believed you'd taken the car, until I came here and saw through a window one night."
"Why did you come?" she cried. "It's money you want, there's enough that I can do. My husband isn't rich at all. Can't you have a little mercy and go away?"
"You let me alone, Nancy, and I won't bother you. Get that?" Kennedy gave her a brief, tight smile. "I'm after money, big money. And if you should get any notion about horning in on the game, don't overlook the fact that I hold the high cards."
"But Jim—"
He bowed stiffly from the door, and strolled jauntily out to his car. Anne stood for a moment staring blankly at the empty doorway.
Back of her a curtain moved, and a pair of childlike blue eyes peeped out before it dropped. A moment later she heard her voice calling her from the "I'm not looking forward to that interview, I nearly told him to go to blazes the last time. But I'm going to keep at him. I ought to take you with me and see if you can hypnotize the old pachyderm."

Anne said "Oh!" in a rather snail voice. "Then it's this Mr. Gage that you're trying to interest in the Junipero?"
"That's the idea."
"But Barry"—she was desperately in earnest—"why do you have to deal with him at all? There must be plenty of other men. Why, the only reason that he owns the Duane Mills is because the first plan failed! He'd be prejudiced from the start!"
"You can bet he's prejudiced," said Barry grimly. "and that is just the reason I've got to win him over. Gage is more than just money in this scheme. He's the man who owns the other side of the spur that I must tunnel through. It's part of what he took over in payment of my uncle's debts. I don't know why."
He was silent for a moment. "He has held out now for four years. Says it's damn nonsense. So you see, unless I can persuade him to sell pretty soon, I'd better give up my large schemes."
She laughed shakily. "Oh, well, there's time yet. Hurry into your flannels, and we'll be off."
"Right! I'll be ready in ten minutes."
Anne huddled down in a chair, her hands clenching into tight little fists. John Gage again. Everywhere she turned. She must either face him or run away.
"He's building here!" she thought.
"That's why Jim is here! I must see him again—somehow."
She jumped up from her chair, listened to the sounds from the next room, and went lightly over to her desk. ... Her pen raced. When Barry came back, a few moments later, the envelope addressed to Jim Kennedy was safely hidden in her bag.

"I suppose this is very silly," Cleo raised appealing eyes toward the large impressive man. "I wouldn't want anything to come of it to hurt the man's reputation, but he came to us without any references. I just wanted to be sure that he didn't have a criminal record. I was sure you could find that out for me without any publicity."
"If he has one, we'll find it. What name does he give?"
"James Kennedy. And I have a snapshot of him. I took it when he wasn't looking."
The man at the desk looked at the small picture with interest. "Yes, that's Jim Kennedy," he said briefly.
"Oh! You do know him?"
"I've seen him. He may be going straight enough, but he's no chauffeur. He's a gambler, and he had a gambling house and speak-easy up in the Forties at one time, and it was raided once too often, and he was out of sight for a while, and he was mixed up in some shooting business last spring and had a close call."
"No, he isn't a gunman. Not his type. Oh, Willard?" This to the young man who had entered. "Find out when the Kennedy shooting happened. And anything else we may have."
In less than five minutes the young man called Willard was back. "All right, Willard. M'm. Kennedy was shot on the night of May second, last. He was found lying beside a road in the outskirts of Ventura, California. Police inclined to credit it to a bootlegger's war. He pulled through but refused to name his assailant. Discharged from hospital in three weeks. That's all."
"There's no actual police record, outside of the raid on the Forty-ninth Street house. I'd advise you to let me send an operative down to watch him."
"I don't think I want to go as far as that."
A brief movement of his head said that it was her business. He arose and opened the door for her. "Please send the bill direct to me, in a plain envelope. I shouldn't want anyone to know that I've been inquiring. Thank you."
The man went back to his desk with a dry grin on his face. "So that's old Ambrose's daughter. I'll bet she's a handful."

Cleo was already on her way to the public library. "It probably wouldn't be in the New York papers," she reflected, "but I'll look here first." M'm. May second—say the third."
A sheet crackled as she bent suddenly forward. On the page in front of her was a picture of Anne Duane.
"I knew it! I was sure I had seen her somewhere! Nancy Curtis, as she appeared in Gypsy Love." Her eyes flicked on the news account.
"John Gage! Now I wonder ... She frowned and went back to reading.
"She wasn't drowned at all. She just disappeared. ... And her car went over the cliff the same night that Kennedy was shot, and she's afraid of him. Those two stories ought to connect somewhere. ... Maybe I'd better get the California papers."

"He married, then?"
"Yes. Married a Follies girl." "The tone was slightly disproved for the building of farmers' markets, rural parks and playgrounds, subsistence or farm homestead colonies, roadside markets, the terracing of farm lands and other rural projects. He said he expected to have 25 to 50 work centers under construction within the next 30 to 60 days.

Stanford estimated it required roughly $250 to repair a vacant house, but the requisite capital goods and get a family off toward a self-sustaining basis. This is not a gift but is repaid in work on one of the rural projects.
To date, 31 rural supervisors, whose territories include 107 counties, have been placed in the field to work with the families arrested for rural rehabilitation projects; however, it is expected that this force will have to be increased shortly to around 75 men.
The department's allotment for August is $250,000, all from federal sources. This is expected to be gradually increased.

Many Families Are in Rehabilitation Program for Texas
Austin, Texas.—Thirty thousand Texas families will be included in the rural rehabilitation program by the end of the year, it was estimated by J. E. Stanford, head of the Texas Relief Commission Rural Rehabilitation Department.
The estimate was based on a survey in progress since April which also revealed that the department will be able eventually to secure approximately 15,000 vacant farm houses, premises and sustenance plots which will be made tenable for families approved for the rural rehabilitation lists. Of these houses, about 80 per cent will be in approximately 100 counties located in the eastern half of the state.
Leasing of these houses, together with sufficient tillable land in each case to produce the major food and feed requirements of the families occupying them now is under way and hundreds of executed leases, contracts of tenure for selected clients, and applications for capital goods are being received daily, Stanford said. Repair work actually has been started on several hundred of these leased houses and a small number of selected families have already been moved from towns to improved rural homes.
As soon as clients are placed in the repaired houses, the relief agency furnishes them with such capital goods as milk cows, laying hens, meat hogs, brood sows, seed and supplementary feed for livestock. It is estimated that some 35,000 to 40,000 dairy cows will be needed for families in the process of rehabilitation between now and the end of the year, while approximately 50,000 meat hogs and brood sows and around 400,000 laying hens will be required.
The department already has approved four rural work centers, the Friendship community in Houston county, the Tennessee colony in Anderson county, a center at Rio Grande City, Starr County, and an emergency center in Cochran County.
Additional work centers in several South Texas counties suffering from the effects of last week's storm, were expected to be finally approved shortly. Stanford explained that projects will be ap-
