THE UNKNOWN SCOUT

The recent organization of a Boy Scout troop in Crowell and also the recent 25th anniversary of the Boy Scout movement in America makes it timely to again relate the incident which caused the introduction of scouting into this country. This, briefly, is the story:

A little more than a quarter of a century ago, William D. Boyce, a Chicago publisher, on a European trip, lost his way in a London fog. A young English lad observing the stranger's embarrassment, approached him, and briskly saluting said: "May I be of service to you?"

Mr. Boyce inquired the way to his destination, and the lad accompanied him there, whereupon the publisher offered his young guide a shilling for his service, but the boy said: "I am a Scout, and Scouts do not accept tips for courtesies."

Mr. Boyce was interested and impressed. He asked about the Scouts. His young friend took him to the office of Sir Robert Baden-Powell, founder of the movement, and as a result when Mr. Boyce later sailed for home he brought a trunk full of literature pertaining to scouting. Then he started the Boy Scout movement in America, with the aid of others who recognized the value of such training as it affords. A medal awarded to "The Unknown Scout," who befriended Mr. Boyce and thus caused the spread of scouting to America, was presented to the International Scout Bureau in London, where it will be kept as a permanent memorial. It is inscribed as follows: "To the Unknown Scout, whose faithfulness in the performance of the daily good turn brought the Scout movement to the United States of America."

Perhaps never has a simple act of kindness brought forth greater or more beneficial results than that performed by this unknown London Boy Scout.

FUNNY BREAKS

Some of the funniest things in print are not those produced by writers who try to be humorous, but are the result of accident, through careless writing and proof-reading.

The following paragraphs are samples, all of which actually appeared in various American newspapers and magazines:

"Drury and John Lacey wish to announce that the Lacey caught at Lida is no relation of theirs. They claim none of their folks has ever been caught."

"Dozens of hens gave their all to satisfy the appetites of the town people."

"The family was made ill by pantomime poisoning."

"To trade, $60 lady's plush coat; also girls for load of hay."

"Farmer boy, aged 40, wants position on small, slender widow's ranch."

"Preaching by Rev. Ewing has been very forceful and cutting. The subject Friday night is 'Breaking Through!'"

"Mrs. May C. Davis and Mrs. C. H. Powell have treated themselves to nice tombstones in memory of their husbands."

"Found, fountain pen by woman, half full of blue ink."

"Why kill your wife? Let electricity do it. We'll help. Electric Supply and Fixture Company."

THE ALLEN COMPANY

The New Farmall 20 Tractor Is Ready Now

McCormick-Deering

HERE we are with the New McCormick-Deering Farmall 20 Tractor. This model has practically the same physical dimensions as the regular Farmall—but it has a good 10 per cent more power, 4 forward speeds, enclosed steering gears, and enclosed steering brakes.

The advantages of the additional power and extra speeds which make the Farmall 20 more flexible are appreciated when it comes to pulling 2 plow bottoms and the heavier tillage tools in tough going, operating 4-row cultivators, 2-row Farmall corn pickers, 2-row potato diggers, and all drawbar, belt, and power take-off jobs. Farmall 20 speeds are 2 1/2, 3 1/2, and 3 3/4 miles per hour.

You will admire the Farmall 20 when you see it at work. It has all the features that have made the regular Farmall famous. Ask us about it now.

VIRTUE OF PATIENCE

One of the greatest aids to worth-while accomplishment is the quality of patience. This applies to laying the foundation for a successful career in any profession or business. The person who depends upon short cuts and quick-action devices frequently meets with bitter disappointment, if not disgrace.

This is particularly true with respect to the accumulation of wealth, as many misguided individuals now behind prison bars can regretfully testify. Many men who go wrong through speculation with other people's money do not set out deliberately to be criminals, but they think they see an opportunity to make a "killing" and take the chance. They intend to replace the appropriated funds if they win, but they usually lose in the end. Some instances are related by a recent writer on this subject:

One man used money not his own in what he considered a sure thing real estate deal. The venture failed and one more was added to the suicide roll. Another lost in playing the market, then stole from his firm, lost again and went to prison. Innumerable cases like these might be cited.

On the other hand, the patient plodder, who builds upon a sound and honest foundation, frequently achieves success which is denied to the spectacular plunger. In fact, patience is generally one of the surest aids in the accomplishment of any worthy purpose.

Big Seven—

(Continued from Page One) they suffered in the Big Seven race, the Hornets winning an extra period game at Harrold on Jan. 22 by the score of 36 to 29. Crowell's only other conference loss was to Vernon on Feb. 5 by the score of 25 to 17.

Crowell remained in the lead throughout the Harrold game, however, the Hornets seriously threatened to overtake it in the third quarter. Crowell led 7 to 3 at the end of the first quarter and 14 to 4 at the half, the Crowell defense holding the visitors to a lone field goal in the first half.

A scoring spree led by Gwinn, Hornet forward, netted nine points for Harrold after the second half opened before Crowell started scoring and put the score at 14 to 13 in favor of Crowell. The drive was halted when Capt. Bill Dunn called time-out. When play was resumed, Russell accounted for a field goal, a Middlebrook free toss to make the score 17 to 14 in favor of the Wildcats as the quarter ended.

Despite the fact that the last quarter was unusually fast, neither team registered a field goal, Crowell making two points on free tosses by Taylor and Middlebrook and Harrold gaining three on charity throws by F. Gooch and Gwinn. The defensive work on the part of both teams was brilliant, all players performing in true championship style.

VERNON LIONS DEFEATED BY CROWELL HIGH

The Crowell-Vernon basketball series for 1935 was won by Crowell Tuesday night when the Wildcats defeated the visiting Lions 32 to 24 on the local court. In two previous Big Seven official contests, the two clubs had divided honors and the extra unofficial tilt was carded to settle the issue.

Lance Middlebrook was the outstanding player of the game, his floor work contributing much to the Wildcat victory. Clyde Russell, Crowell center, led the scoring with 13 points. Crowell was in the lead throughout the game.

Crowell's common third-quarter weakness asserted itself again in this game, with the visitors seriously threatening to tie the score, making 12 points to Crowell's 4 in this period.

WARM WEATHER MAKES SKYSCRAPER GROW

Fort Worth.—Fort Worth has a building in its downtown section that grows, on warm days, as much as half an inch.

Recently a surveyor of the county regional plan survey was doing some "triangulation" observation from the top of the 19-story Fair building here. As the day progressed and the sun grew hotter the engineer found he was forced to make repeated adjustments in his instruments.

Investigation revealed that the sun had caused the south wall of the building to expand, while the north wall, receiving no sun, remained the same.

Rambling 'Round New York With HUGH KENNY

There are 8600 licensed street vendors in New York City, and the police estimate that there must be about twice as many altogether, for many of those who are "run in" for traffic violations have no licenses at all.

Whenever a vendor is arrested for violation of traffic ordinances in New York, he goes before a magistrate who rarely fines him at all, and even more rarely fines him more than a dollar.

In addition to the licensed vendors on the streets of New York, the city has licensed over one hundred itinerant musicians and hand-organ operators.

I've never seen a city where more men talk to themselves on the street than New York. The pressure is too great for some nervous types.

Plans for rebuilding 51-year-old Brooklyn Bridge are being considered by the City of New York. The proposal is to make it a double deck bridge, multiplying the present capacity more than six times. Anchorages and cables of the old bridge, says a famous engineer, are still good for five hundred years.

A dining table hinged to the wall and supported at the outer end by decorative cords is being shown by a department store for small New York apartments. When not in use it is pulled up against the wall as a decorative panel.

A lending library reports that since the start of the Hauptmann trial, circulation of mystery stories has dropped almost to nothing. The newspapers are evidently enough for the mystery addicts.

Suburban highways are profitable markets for ice cream sandwich men in summer. And in winter, they drive their refrigerator trucks south, taking up their southern stands each year. Rather an attractive business to a cold New Yorker in mid-winter! Many New York windows are filled with straw hats and linen suits in mid-winter. Humble office workers pass them by. The south-bound well-to-do make up the only market.

Crowell High Takes Foard Class A Cage Title in Game Here

The Crowell Wildcats won the Class A championship of Foard County last Thursday night by defeating Thalia's Tigers, 42 to 15 on the local court.

Except for the last quarter, the game was a very one-sided affair. Thalia had the edge in the last period, scoring 6 points on three field goals by Jake Wisdom, while holding Crowell to only two points, resulting from a field goal by J. M. Brown.

This was the second and final game of the county Class A series. Crowell won the first game 27 to 11 on Feb. 6.

JUDGE STOKES SPEAKS AT ROTARY LUNCHEON

The program at the luncheon of the Rotary Club Wednesday consisted of readings by Frances Henry Johnson and a talk by W. N. Stokes of Vernon, district judge. M. S. Henry was in charge of the program and briefly discussed Rotary's 30th anniversary which comes on Feb. 23.

After discussing the history of legal procedure, Judge Stokes launched into an attack on the evils of technicalities in Texas court procedure. "In Texas 53 criminal cases out of 100 that are appealed are reversed, while in Federal cases, only 3 out of 100 are reversed and in England there are less than that," he stated. He cited a number of instances in which minor errors in procedure had resulted in reversals by the Court of Criminal Appeals. Judge Stokes stated that one of the main reasons for lack of law enforcement was because courts were greatly handicapped by technicality evils, which should be removed by the Legislature.

Dan Junell, Rotarian, and Dan Castle of Abilene were visitors at the luncheon.

The WOMAN'S ANGLE

by NANCY HART

There's a new mascara on the market that comes in stick form, and works very much like a lipstick, except that you wet the stick before applying to the lashes. It may also be used as an eyebrow pencil when it is dry.

In China last year, General Chiang Kai-shek ruled that women's sleeves must be no shorter than elbow length, dresses must not be above the ankles and legs may not be exposed—eliminating the slit skirt. Hair must be combed backward and must not be longer than the neck.

A punch that is stimulating and delicious is made with the rind of half a lemon, crushed with half a cup of sugar, a quart of cider, the juice of one lemon and a cup of sherry. When cold, pour over ice in a punch bowl and add three lemons of a cup of brandy.

Women are wearing more and more veils on their hats both formal and informal. For the informal hats, the veil seems to be the veil without any design, but in stiff material and large mesh.

A new note in make-up for the very gay masquerade shades the eyes with gold or silver. For, exotic as it may sound, there are actually artificial eyelashes on the market in gold and silver.

The next time you open a can of peas, heat them in their own liquor from the can and add a bit of onion or celery. Try this with string beans, too.

If you happen to be a size 36 or under, you'll be interested in the new foundation garments in white latex with white pique in diamond shapes for control of the diaphragm and wherever else you need it. They're made to look like lingerie, and they're easily washable and light as can be.

CARD OF THANKS

We want to thank the American Legion for furnishing us a place and fixing it up for us to have our meetings, and for helping us many other ways. We also want to thank the business people, the churches, schools and everyone that has helped us in any way to make it possible for us to carry on our work.

When a Merchant Is Fooling Himself

The merchant who is not advertising and who observes that his competitor is not advertising either, is fooling himself if he believes that competitive advertising is not hurting him.

Daily newspapers from neighboring towns come into his town every day. Some of his potential customers read them, and note the advertising messages they carry. Unless the home merchant is meeting this competition with similar advertising, he is losing business that he ought to have. If he doesn't think so, he is kidding himself, and the longer he kids himself the more business he will lose.

A certain amount of business will come to a town regardless of the efforts put forth by merchants. But there isn't enough business of this kind to make any town a good business town. It is the business that may come to a town or go to a competing town, depending upon the type of merchandising in the two towns, that keeps a business institution out of the red.

Business recovery for one town may mean business recession for a neighboring town. Which kind of town are you, Mr. Merchant, going to do business in in the future?

Christian Science Services
"Mind" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, February 24.
The Golden Text is: "Behold, the fear of the Lord, that is wisdom; and to depart from evil is understanding." (Job 28:28.)
Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Thine, O Lord, is the greatness, and the power, and the glory, and the victory, and the majesty; for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is thine; thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and thou art exalted as head above all. (1 Chronicles 29:11.)

The Lesson-Sermon includes also the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God is Mind, and God is infinite; hence all is Mind. On this statement rests the Science of being, and the Principle of this Science is divine, demonstrating harmony and immortality." (page 492.)

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Charles E. Dunn

Peter Heals a Lame Man.

Lesson for Feb. 24, Acts 3:1-10.

Golden Text: Acts 3:6.

There is something very appealing about "the Beautiful Gate of the Temple" where the cripple of our lesson begged for alms. It is a symbol of the highly important fact that one of the surest paths to God is beauty. To be sure, there are other equally significant avenues to the divine life. There is, for example, the highway of truth. There is also that exacting course we call righteousness.

But the approach to God through beauty must not be ignored. Consider nature. How lovely is this fair world! No wonder the author of the first chapter of the Bible wrote that "God saw everything that he has made, and, behold, it was very good." Think of art. The world's greatest music, its finest paintings, its most inspired poetry are saturated with a sense of divine radiance. Remember man himself. Is he not, at his best, united to his Creator in what the psalmist calls "the beauty of holiness?"

The lame beggar, too, is suggestive. He represents the sickness, the frustration, the poverty of which the world is so full. Despite all that organized science and philanthropy have done to mitigate the hard lot of humanity, it still remains true that this world is "a vale of tears" for many handicapped lives. And now that we are in the grip of severe depression the sufferings of men have assumed fresh vitality.

But the major emphasis of the lesson is to be found in our Golden Text, "I have no silver or gold," said Peter, "but I will give you what I have." Peter was poor in what the world calls wealth, but he was rich in soul-force. He had such extraordinary healing ability that folk brought their sick into the streets that at least his shadow might fall upon them. (see Acts 5:15.)

And note that Peter attributes his success not only to the power of God but to the faith of the cripple. (vs. 16) Every physician knows how indispensable is faith. If he can arouse the confidence of his patient he can achieve wonders.

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

PRESIDENTIAL HURDLES
Washington, Feb. 20 (Autocaster)—There are three major differences between the President and influential groups in both houses of Congress, without counting the Bonus legislation which has not yet come to a head.

These major matters which are going to call for all the tact, political skill and firmness which the President possesses, do not include the numerous minor and unorganized expressions of discontent. Those may all be swept aside and forgotten if the outcome of the major items discussed that Mr. Roosevelt still retains control of the Federal Government in most of its branches. If his program and his policies in respect to any one of the disputed matters should be overturned, his prestige would be somewhat impaired.

That is why the President has called upon the most vigorous and respected Democrat in either house, Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, to come to his aid in this crisis. Senator Glass has been more open in criticism of the New Deal than any other Democrat, almost as vigorous as any Republican.

Senator Glass scoffed at NRA when it was instituted, refused to sign the Newspaper Code on behalf of his two Lynchburg papers, or to fly the Blue Eagle. Mr. Roosevelt's request to become Secretary of the Treasury, the post he held in the latter years of the Wilson Administration, because he could not see eye to eye with the President on financial policies. He has been outspoken in opposition to numerous Administration projects, in the last Congress as well as in this one.

Appeal To Glass
It came as a surprise to Washington, therefore, when news leaked out that the President had personally telephoned to Senator Glass for aid in getting the "work relief" out of committee in the precise form in which it went in. That is the $4,880,000,000 bill to take all employable persons off the dole and put them on public works at an average wage of $50 a month. Harry Hopkins reports that about 2 1/2 millions of men have already been so shifted. A fairly complete program to do the same for another 5 million is said to be ready to start on whenever Congress acts.

The opposition on Capitol Hill is to the $50 wage. The President's view is that the whole scheme would be scuttled if the demand for the "prevailing rate of wages" were complied with. Arranged against him are the influence of organized labor and of the business organizations who are opposed to any extension of public works, but think the straight dole is preferable. The appeal to Senator Glass was an appeal to save the entire project.

Pensions and Banking
Next in the President's mind, is the complicated Old-Age-Pension, Unemployment-Insurance measure. It is hardly expected that he can count on Senator Glass' help in this. The whole thing is conceded to be a muddle. The plan as presented to Congress is regarded as half-baked and it looks now as if all the influence the President can bring to bear will not get it through Congress in anything like its present form, if at all.

Nobody on Capitol Hill understands the pension bill yet, and few at the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue. The reason for its hasty introduction, it now becomes clear, was to head off what seemed like even wilder proposals, such as the Townsend Plan; but Congress has refused to be stampeded into hasty action on this measure.

Of even greater consequence is the new Banking Bill, drawn up by Secretary Morgenthau, Governor Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board, and the President himself. It is another and vigorous attempt to place all banking and credit control in the hands of a single Federal agency, the Federal Reserve system, with the Secretary of the Treasury directly in command. The purpose is to enable the central bank thus formed to issue orders to all banks as to what they may lend and on what security, thus making credit inflation possible on an almost unlimited scale. Instead of the liquidity, which has been the aim of all bankers since the crash of 1929, when their "frozen loans" got them into trouble, this bill would permit and encourage commercial banks to lend on long-term mortgages, to industries and businesses for long-term working capital—precisely the opposite practice that has been urged on them the past three years.

Down the Stretch

Senator Glass, who as the principal author of the Federal Reserve Act and as former Secretary of the Treasury, is held by many Democrats to be the best authority in America on banking matters, has already come out outspokenly against the new banking bill. He is prepared to wage the fight of his career against the Administration's plan, and the betting is at least even, if not slightly better, that he will win out. The fight will be between a veteran Senator of proved fighting qualities and a President of whose stamina in pitched battle neither Congress or the nation has had any experience as yet.

There isn't any question that a great many Congressmen and a larger proportion of Senators have been stung by the criticisms directed against Capitol Hill as a whole, and are ready to seize any substantial pretext for displaying their independence.

There is no special significance in the removal of Jerome Frank and his followers from the AAA. Secretary Wallace has learned how to run his own department and he and Chester Davis, AAA administrator, are pulling together as never before. Mr. Wallace, moreover, has learned a lot about Congressional politics and how to play them.

Bargain Rates End SATURDAY MARCH 2

The Annual Bargain Rate of $1.50 per year on The Foard County News will come to a close Saturday, March 2. We are anxious for all of our readers to take advantage of this rate, so if you know that your time has expired or will expire soon, please call at this office and renew your subscription for another year. If it is not convenient for you to come in, a check mailed to us will receive prompt attention.

A large per cent of our subscribers have already renewed their subscriptions for the coming year which we deeply appreciate and we hope to have our subscription list paid up 100 per cent by March 2. It will materially aid the management of the paper to make more progress with any plans that might be inaugurated to give Crowell and Foard County a better newspaper. One of our chief aims is to make the home paper of real value to its readers, advertisers and other patrons at all times. With this aim in view we are constantly on the alert for new features that will help accomplish this end.

The figures on your paper indicate the month and year your subscription expires, the first figure indicates the month which is the first day of the month, the second is the year. For instance, if your paper has 1-35, it means that your subscription expired Jan. 1, 1935.

"Figured it was a line shot you come from that coast," said the accordion player.

"I'd take you to be from the Northwest," he ventured, uncertainly. "Your eye's good, Bud," replied the musician with a twinkle, as he improvised a series of chords. "But I been up and down a few. Ever hear this . . ." and he began, after a deep intake of the accordion, the chesty ballad of Jack Donahue the Highwayman. Then it drifted into music un- familiar to him: half-barbaric and half-devotional melodies of the Western ranges, such as "Bill Roy" and "Montana Kid."

In the midst of this repertory the piping cry of a newsboy who came down the wharf shouting: "Try!! Buck Solo Makes His Last Stand!! Posse Surrounds Bandit in Mountain Pass! Extra!" The accordion player lifted his head but did not pause in his playing, though the newsy's cry echoed a story which had been as keenly argued in the West that month as the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight. An unidentified gunman on a buckskin horse had ridden into a Nevada mining camp at night, trailing a man whom he seemed to have mistaken for some enemy. The mistake had caused a blazing gun battle in the dark street, from which he escaped. Not long afterwards the buckskin reappeared on the Deer's Lodge trail in Montana, where its rider had stopped a stage to search the passengers. Strange to say, no money had been taken, but an express messenger, trying to catch him off guard, had been shot. Dodging a posse of marshals and heading west, he had earned the sobriquet of "Solo" in a camp on the Montana border, having halted there long enough to show a grifted group of Solo players some unclaimed but there was a sheltered space under a lifeboat aft of the main cabin, where the steward hid his burden. Noticing that his companion still kept the blankets on his shoulder, he pushed his stuff aside to make more room. The other considered him soberly.

"You listen to me like a good gun, Bud, in spite of them stern ideas about the law," he said. "Ever hit a boggy crossin' I'll stand by ye. My name's Speed Malone." And he held out his hand. "Mine's Ed Maitland," the boy answered, somewhat puzzled at his earnestness.

Dropping his light pack in the cleared space, the man rolled a cigarette, and while crimping the edge of the paper, took a roving look along the deck. Then he made a back-rest of the blankets, and stretched himself comfortably, relax- ing as from a long physical strain while he smoked and watch- ed the crowd through half-closed eyes—still somehow as observant as ever of each approach.

A deep shudder ran through the ship, as the gates rattled shut. Hawkers, thrown from the bits, splashed into the gloomy chasm between ship and wharf, and the side-wheeler cast off in a ponderous churning of white water, dropping a veil between herself and the pier with a swiftness that owed less to her pick-up than to the opaqueness of the fog.

As if the uncertainties of the venture were not high enough, she was no sooner in the channel than the click of dice, chips and coins began to rattle a careless measure above the voices of the mist. Embarked for the realms of gold, the miners were "shooting" their money with an easy mind.

The Westerner shifted his at- tention from the rotted stay lines of the lifeboat, and sat up to roll a fresh cigarette. Maitland noticed that two men, a little to their right, had turned a tarpaulined bale into a card table. One of them looked his way, with an invitation to join the game. When he declined, the man called over to Speed, "Play a hand of cards, neighbor? Those oddly broadened vowels were as clear as a state boundary, Utah.

"What kind of cards," asked Speed, with mild interest. "We figure they's only one kind. If you kin play Solo, the tune is whur you want to set it." A faint reserve which had shown in Speed's face at mention of the game, vanished in a smile. "I on'y play that game by ear," he said. "Didn't aim to scare yo none," was the condescending answer.

"Which you gets me wrong," amended Speed, in the present tense of polite discourse. "What I shrink from is exposin' your gifted Mormon dues to the cold air without its pants, coat and vest."

"Stim'lated a heap," rejoined the man from Utah, "we stoffes ever' scrape and stawrts the play. Stack 'em up, Bill. Gent allows he's a Solo player." On the point of rising, Speed said to Maitland in an undertone, "Stake me ten dollars, Bud."

Ten dollars happened to be half the boy's cash, and the idea that the fan called Speed had turned north with neither outfit nor money was almost incredible. But the request was made so candidly that after a moment's hesitation he shook a gold piece from his limp purse. With a curious pause before accept- ing it, the Westerner asked, "You figure these shorthorns can outplay me?" "I was only thinking," Maitland said, "that gambling is a loser's game."

His companion grinned. "If you wasn't a natural-born gambler, Bud, you wouldn't be on this ship. Watch us lose." The sweet singers preluded their harmony with a considerate warn- ing. "Removin' gold mines from gamblers is our daily routine, stranger. We'll set a quarter point, unless you feel hankerin's for ruin in a bigger way."

"Quarter suits me," said Speed modestly, and made a precarious club bid which they passed with becoming gravity. On the completion of the final trick, however, their attention became more ex- act.

HOSTESSES SURPRISED AT WEST SIDE CLUB MEETING

Family food budget for the year should be planned early, urged Miss Holman, county demonstra- tion agent, at a meeting with Mrs. E. W. Burrow and Mrs. F. A. Davis of the West Side Club, Wednes- day, Feb. 13.

The budget plans for a suffi- cient supply of food for the non- productive months, explained Miss Holman. For an average family she would be 120 containers of leafy, 100 of starchy and 150 of fruit and 125 of tomatoes.

For the social hour the club members had arranged a delight- ful surprise for their hostesses, who were celebrating their birth- day Wednesday, Mrs. Jasper Jit- ters, in the person of Mrs. Roy Steele entered pushing a doll car- riage containing the Pushbottom twins and in a distressed voice she said that it had become neces- sary for her to find homes for the twins and having heard that the women of West Side were good housewives she had decided to find homes there. She then rolled the buggy to Mrs. Burrow and Mrs. Davis, who discovered when picking the twins up that they were well filled handkerchief bags and in the buggy were other beautiful and useful gifts. This discovery was accompanied by "Happy Birth- day to You" from the members.

Favors from the refreshment plates were small candles which contained the fortune of each member. A large candle was given to the club president, Mrs. Charlie Bryson, read the fortune of the club, which predicted many oil wells in the locality.

Fifteen members and four vis- itors, Mesdames J. N. Bryson, E. A. Dunagan, Arnold Rucker and Marion Crowell were present. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Roy Steele.

VIVIAN 4-H CLUB

The Vivian 4-H Club met at the Vivian school on Feb. 11 with 10 members, 3 visitors and Miss Holman present. After a song, Miss Holman gave a demonstration on gardening. The meeting ended with a game.

The club will meet again on Feb. 28 at 10:15 a. m. at the school house.

VIVIAN H. D. CLUB

A wide variety of garden seed was exhibited by Miss Holman at the Vivian H. D. Club meeting in the home of Mrs. Arthur Sandlin last Thursday.

Between 40 and 50 different kinds of seed that were thought to be practical for this county were shown. After helping mem- bers to make their food budget, Miss Holman advised them to try to grow some food to fill the budgets planned.

Fourteen members, three new members, Mrs. Ike Everson and two daughters, Meta and Lois; seven visitors, Mesdames Marr and daughter, Rashery, Mulkey, Lawhorn, Grandma Rutledge and Catherine Blair were present.

During the social hour each one present received a valentine and also found their fortune tied in a small sack suspended from a string, provided they could hit same with a small ball.

The next meeting will be on Feb. 25 at the home of Mrs. J. H. Myers. This will be an all-day affair and a quilting will be held in connection with it. Members are asked to bring needle, thim- ble and covered dish. Visitors are always welcome.

WEST RAYLAND H. D. CLUB

The West Rayland H. D. Club met at the home of Mrs. Herman Gloyna Feb. 12. Miss Holman spoke on vegetables in the diet and also discussed how to plan a garden and the most suitable kinds of seed to plant.

Fourteen members, one visitor, Mrs. Jess Gregg, and Miss Hol- man were present. Two new members, Mrs. Frank Butler and Mrs. Iva Ruth Cribbs, were re- ceived.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. John Ray on Feb. 26.

AYERSVILLE 4-H CLUB

The Ayersville 4-H girls club met in regular session Feb. 6, at which time Miss Holman gave a demonstration on "gardening." The next meeting is on Feb. 20.

WEST RAYLAND H. D. CLUB

The West Rayland Home Dem- onstration Club met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Herman Gloyna with 14 members, two new mem- bers, Mrs. F. W. Butler and Mrs. Iva Ruth Cribbs, and one visitor, Mrs. Jess Gregg, present. Miss Holman gave a demonstration on making the food budget and selection on seed. The club will meet with Mrs. J. S. Ray, Febru- ary 26.

pected phases of that game. When the posse rode in, an hour behind him, the gamblers he had entertained were sketchy in their description. As he had changed horses the marshals had little to guide them, but they suspected him of being a wide-ranging gam- bler and outlaw known of in the Northwest as "Buck Tracy." His trail, lost at Clark's Fork, had been picked up again crossing the Coeur D'Alenes through Idaho, and the interest excited by the long and desperate chase began to close a net around him.

The boy bought a paper and read the news bulletin. "They've got him cornered in the Okanagan country," he said to the man with the accordion. "He won't escape now."

"Kind of hope he don't?" asked the other, without looking up from his playing.

"I hope he gets the full penalty of the law," was the boy's uncompromising answer. "He deserves it."

The Westerner glanced at him quaintly. "Full penalty of the law, Bud, would leave ye kind of short of lawyers, if you rammed it home. Not that this maverick is worth a cuss. But neither is the outfit that's doggin' him, and neither is the express rider he down- ed. I ain't so dead set on seein' him hanged. Hope he dies shoot- in'."

The fog had lightened a little, and a gangplank now lumbered down from the steamer's boat deck. As the boy was assembling his dunnage bags, he found him- self under the scrutiny of an of- ficial-looking person who had ap- peared abruptly out of the mist, and stood framed in it, a few yards away. The officer's eyes grew less sharp on meeting his, and turned in a more casual way on his companion, who had closed the accordion case and was leaning over to fasten it.

"You two together?" The boy nodded. It seemed un- necessary to explain that he and the accordion player were only chance acquaintances. Some of- ficial for the shipping company, he thought, was making a check- up of passengers.

With another glance at the man with the accordion, the officer passed on.

The Westerner threw a roll of blankets over his arm put his ac- cordion under it and lifting one of the boy's packs with his free hand wedged through the crowd way. They found the cabin and covered parts of the deck already
