AN EFFICIENT BAIRD LADY

Who Is Possessed Of "A Voice With A Smile," And Is Glorified By Her Bosses

"The voice with the smile," says the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, which ought to know what it is talking about, "wins." This much serves to introduce Mrs. Mary Culley, dynamo of the West Texas Utilities Company, wardeness of the Abilene Commercial Department and high priestess of the telephone switchboard in the General Office.

It was back in 1921 that the West Texas Utilities Company met Mrs. Culley. There was trouble at Baird, and it was evening, and it was necessary that the Company's men at Baird get in communication with other Company men at Abilene. Mrs. Culley was an operator for the Home Telephone Company of Baird, and there descended on her a group of nervous, panicky, irritable, worried utility operators, who begged and implored and demanded action. They got it.

Mrs. Culley froze solidly to the Baird-Abilene line and held it until she got the desired parties. She seemed just as anxious as Mr. Fry and Mr. Schroder to iron out the difficulties; she passed out sympathy with service; she serenely took charge of the situation, and she saved—in an accurate manner of speaking—the day.

The West Texas Utilities Company decided, then and there, to fall in love with Mrs. Culley, and it wooed her so ardently that on February 1, 1922, she entered the Company's employ as P. B. X. operator at the Abilene Office, where she once again took charge of the situation. She found time to be loyal to the Company, loyal to the public and loyal to herself, with plenty of opportunities left over to tame Julian McDaniel, Esquire, who, there tofore, had been running hog-wild as a Commercial Man.

Mrs. Culley had been working her voice with telling effect. The office brightened perceptibly; she materially assisted Mr. Thomas by cheering people up as they passed her desk on the way to pay their bills; she utilized her spare moments by selling light globes. Besides, she showed a cordial willingness to do scores of other odd jobs that came up in the day's work. If the Company ever decided to have report cards for employees, the first person to be graded one hundred in efficiency each month will be Mrs. Culley.

Mr. Rudyard Kipling usually writes very truthful poetry. He once said: "Trust me, today's most indispensable, Five hundred men can fill your place or mine."

Mr. Kipling, it will be noted, referred only to men, though he made his statement rather sweeping. If Mr. Kipling were not free-lancing, but was, instead, the poet of the West Texas Utility News, he would know, of course, the West Texas Utilities Company and its employees. And in all future editions of his works he would have this line in big, Concluded on last page

BAIRD MUNICIPAL BAND ENTERTAINS ITS FRIENDS

Mustering a perfectly synchronized assemblage of thirty-five enthusiastic musicians, last Thursday night, in the Tabernacle, the Baird Municipal Band, guided by the vibrant baton of its new Leader-Instructor, Mr. W. W. King, rendered two numbers of nerve-tingling music, such as has not been heard in this city for some time.

There were over a hundred music loving guests present and their enthusiastic applause testified to their appreciation of the entertainment. The Baird Municipal Band is on its way to a technically tuneful triumph and its members are determined to speedily get there.

The band meets regularly for instruction and rehearsal twice a week—Monday and Thursday nights—and it will encourage the boys if you drop in at these rehearsals and "give them a hand" occasionally, to keep up the spirit of enthusiasm that now swells high in the breast of every member.

On Sunday afternoon March 18, the band purposes giving its first public performance on the lawn west of the Court House, where a temporary band stand will be erected and seats provided for the audience, which it is hoped will be a large one.

The Executive Committee, consisting of Messrs. Howard E. Farmer, Ed Chambers and Ed Merrill are working industriously to secure monetary pledges from the citizenry—whose band, in the final analysis, it is—so that the annual income of the organization will at least total $2,000.

With this amount coming in in regular monthly installments, the musical boys will be encouraged to do their tuneful "durstest," and give Baird a band of which it may well be proud. For reasons of economy the management is preparing to uniform each of its members in snowy white. The members purchase their own instruments, devote much of their time to practice and rehearsals and are always cheerfully willing to "oblige."

It seems logically fair, then, that the people of Baird, who will regularly enjoy the band's tuneful concerts, which, after March 19 will be given regularly every Sunday afternoon and can commandeer their free services on every possible occasion, can readily contribute to its upkeep so small a sum as a little over one dollar per capita annually.

The band has never asked pay for its services when required, to give zest to local events of public importance, and the advertising they have given and will hereafter give to the city, will return to you a hundred fold in individual enjoyment and worthwhile civic pride.

At Thursday night's entertainment at the Tabernacle, the audience was appreciatively enthusiastic in a marked degree. Stirring speeches of encouragement and promise were made by Judge Victor B. Gilbert, Rev. Thomas Jefferson Rea, pastor of the Methodist Church and C. Boone Holmes, the latter tentatively promising that the business men of Baird would erect a band stand and see to it that the band's financial wheels were kept well greased, so that the organization would have smooth sailing.

BAD ROADS HURT BAIRD

And Tourists Give This Place The Go-by, Entailing Monetary Loss to Merchants

Ford Driskill, who Wednesday made a tour of the oil fields east and northeast of Baird declares that the roads out of here are almost untravelable—"the worst I ever saw," and added: "All they need is rolling. As it is tourist travel detours at Cisco and Abilene, going around by Albany. There are oil men out in the fields east and northeast of here who would prefer making their headquarters in Baird, and would do so if the roads were fixed up and then, there is the tourist travel, which would be a considerable source of cash income to the merchants, garages, cafes, &c., in Baird, but which bad roads causes them to lose."

This is a matter that ought to be looked into and remedied. The Star suggests that the Executive Committee of the Baird Progressive Club look into this matter and see to it that the complained of roads are put in travelable condition.

The biggest oil sale made recently in Callahan County was made Wednesday in the Colony Field, 18 miles northeast of Baird, when Miller et al sold to Wichita Falls parties, 40 acres and two producing wells for $15,000.

The rains interfered considerably with field work the past two weeks, but the return of Old Sol to regular business has caused things to jazz up a bit.

H. SCHWARTZ'S MORTUARY CHAPEL

Funeral Director H. Schwartz has erected a steel, one-story building, on Eugene Bell Avenue, east of the Mayfield & Hall stores, 32x140 feet, which will be fitted up as a mortuary chapel and casket wareroom.

There are two entrances on the avenue, one to Mr. Schwartz's office and the other to the chapel. In the rear will be an embalming room and a storeroom for caskets.

The general color scheme of the interior will be ivory white, and the building, when finished, will be a commendable and artistic addition to Baird's business structures.

PARCEL POST SALE ENTERTAINMENT

The ladies of the Baptist Church will have a Parcel Post Sale, Tuesday, March 13, at the home of Mrs. H. C. McGowen, from 3 to 6 p. m.

At 7:30 p. m. they will render a musical program for the young people. Refreshments will be served and everybody is invited.

W. HOMER SHANKS IS STRONG FOR THE TECH

Clyde citizens are united in their campaign to secure the West Texas Technological College, and Cashier W. Homer Shanks, of the First Guaranty State Bank, who is also president of that virile organization the Clyde Chamber of Commerce, anent an editorial in The Star of February 23rd, writes as follows to the editor of this paper:

"Dear Mr. Gilliland: We are glad to note that you are for Clyde in the Texas Technological College contest and believe that you can help us a great deal in our getting this school for Callahan County.

"We regret to see that you think it will go to the highest bidder and that for this reason Clyde will likely not get the consideration she deserves.

"We believe the type of men who are on the Board will ignore bonuses, just as the law intended they should, and select the site most suitable from an environment point of view.

"Clyde has natural gas, electric lights, abundance of shallow water, large variety of table delicacies from fruits and vegetables raised at Clyde (this means something to the old boys and girls housed up in dormitories), has a good trunk line of railroad with a schedule.

"Clyde also has within 100 miles of her limits 600,000 people, and in Callahan and adjoining counties there are more than 200,000 people and no other county within the district has that many people. Callahan County can serve as a center for the rich and populous counties of Eastland, Stephens, Brown, Coleman, Runnels, Taylor and Jones.

The Tech College, located at Abilene, would take numbers of students away from their colleges and the college people there are going to 'soft pedal' their activity for the college, most people think.

"Clyde will be nearer the center of population than any other town that has applied, we think.

"As population moves further West and justifies other schools up in the Panhandle, our country will be for the establishment of them there, but, in the meantime, we should have a school in this section, as they have Canyon Normal and the Southwest has Alpine, while we have no State School nearer in this territory.

"We believe if Callahan County will give us one hundred per cent support that we can get this school, and it will be a great boost for our county.

"By support we mean indorsement and speaking favorable words for us among leading citizens of other parts of the State, as we will put up what expense money is necessary to properly put our claims and the claims of Callahan County constantly before the committee until the decision is made, calling attention to the fact that Denton was not a large town when the State Schools were established there. College Station is only a small town. Canyon was not half as large as Clyde when the Normal was established there.

"No State Schools are located in the larger towns of Texas that could have put up enormous amounts of

JUDGE SCORES KU KLUX KLAN

In Charging Grand Jury Investigating Mer Rouge, Louisiana, Horrible Murders

District Judge Fred M. Odom, in charging a Grand Jury at Morehouse, Louisiana, last Monday, drawn to consider evidence in the hooded mob atrocities in Moorehouse Parish, alleged Ku Klux Klan acts, declared that if men are to form themselves into illicit groups and decide on who to punish, there is no need of courts of any kind or organized government.

Further, he told the jurors that if the constituted authorities will not or can not enforce obedience to the laws in such violations, "the day of our doom is upon us and we have seen the end of civilized government."

Even conceding the motive of those who formed themselves into bands to force others to live within the law was sincere, he said, the practice made them lawbreakers and pursues a course which, if put in general practice, will put an end to the laws of the State and set at naught the will of the majority.

"In all these various activities," he continued, "there is no case, as far as I know, where the offender was first presented to the court for correction and punishment, but in each case these parties have constituted themselves alike the accusers, jury and executioners. It can not be said on behalf of these parties that they acted only after the court had failed.

"If these parties have the right to tell you what you must or must not do and punish you for disobedience, they have the right to go to your barn and appropriate to themselves, without compensation, your corn or hay.

"The very thought of such conditions strikes me with horror, for if men may set aside criminal laws they can regulate property rights."

He told the jurors they must arise above sentiment and excitement and not indict any one merely because a set of men demanded it, nor, on the other hand, leave unrepresented any one because another group of men would applaud it.

"The violation of the law to which I have called your special attention," he added, "has been laid to the door of the Ku Klux Klan. Whether that organization is responsible for those outrages or not is a matter which does not concern you. You are not here to unmask Klansmen or to disrupt the Ku Klux Klan as an organization. You are here to indict criminals without regard to their affiliations."

The State seeks the indictment of about fifty persons on crimes ranging from murder in connection with the slaying of T. F. Richard and Watt Daniel, and probably a dozen other lesser crimes, including floggings, kidnaping, deportation and the sending of threatening notes.

H. C. McGowen, Bill and Cora Works, Dr. and Mrs. R. L. Griggs, Mr. and Will Coffman and Melvin Farmer, of Baird, came over Friday to be present at the funeral of Mrs. Coffman last Saturday. — Cross Plains Review.

STILL DREAMING OF HOME

City Man of Small Resources Laments That Country Cannot Gratify His Desires.

I am one of many thousands, city-pent, who for many years have dreamed of a little home somewhere in the hills or within sight of the sea. Every year the urge grows stronger, and every year the little place seems more hopelessly out of sight, says the writer of "The Point of View" in Scribner's. The city is a big place, but the country seems bigger, and where to look and how, ever more perplexing. I have told all my friends that I am looking, and asked them to give me a tip if they hear of any place that they think I might like or can afford to buy; and now and then I hear of the perfect place, to be had for some enticingly modest sum, and of charming homes found by this and that seeker after his haven of peace and quiet. But my little house is ever in the dim beyond and my hope grows fainter with the years. Maybe I am in search of a place that never was on land or sea, that exists only in my dreams.

I read the real-estate advertisements, and look at the little houses illustrated in the magazines devoted to home building, and see many cozy small houses that would quite satisfy my longings, but when I investigate the cost of building even the simplest of them, I pause and wonder if the price does not call for gold bricks as a part of the foundation instead of just ordinary building materials.

So I start again in my search for the abandoned farm that can be bought, with a little old house all ready to be called home, with the expenditure of only a few hundred dollars.

The chimney may be falling down and the roof caving in, the sides full of holes for the winds and snows of winter to come in, but the lines are always "so picturesque," and the big fireplace and Dutch oven are there to recall the days of the real Americans who lived and shivered back in the time when there were plain living and honest thinking.

Far afield have I ventured in the search for my little house, and spent enough good money to put new roofs on most of the tumble-down houses I have looked at from a distance with ever-renewed hope.

Work for Disabled Soldiers.

Today Czechoslovakia is flooding all Europe with quantities of her famous lacquer work wood novelties—mostly the work of soldiers wounded and partially disabled in the World war. The shops in Prague display fans, jewel boxes, trays, brushes, combs and other wooden articles of every description, all brilliantly colored and carved in the distinctively Czechoslovakian style. No set designs are to be found. Each bit of woodwork is made after a new pattern, so that no two pieces are alike. This feature of their work protects their wares in foreign markets, where machine production has introduced many substitutes. The government has leased hundreds of working rooms in various parts of the country, set aside for this particular industry. Trained men instruct recruits in the technique of the work, but the designing and the composition of each particular piece is always left to the idea or whim of the man who makes it. In one part of the room one finds men with no arms toiling with marvelous ingenuity with a stylus between their toes. Fully half of this work today is done with the feet.—Milwaukee Journal.

Sonny Breaks In.

I had just moved into a new neighborhood where folks were inclined to be aloof and I wanted to make a good impression and make friends with the best people.

One day my little boy got wet playing in puddles, so I had to change his clothes before dinner. When half finished with my task I went into the other room to answer the phone.

When I returned my son was nowhere to be seen. I discovered him half a block away, dressed only in shoes and stockings. I started after him, and as he saw me he ran. So about a dozen people appeared and laughed as they saw me in pursuit of this scantily clad child.

Among the onlookers were three of the people I wanted, so hard to make a good impression on.—Chicago Tribune.

Skepticism.

The woman knows a truly devoted husband. She met him the other day and his face showed annoyance. She hoped nothing had happened. It would be too much if ever trouble came between that couple. But at once she was reassured.

"I'm furious," the man told her. "I want to get dolled up, as the wife and I are going to have a party tonight. It is our fifth anniversary. I told the manicurist to do a good job and explained to her why, and she wouldn't believe me. It makes me sick. Even as I was leaving she called after me:

"Come again soon, mister; but don't kid me so much next time."—Exchange.

Absent-Minded Brown.

Jimmy—Mr. Brown has left his umbrella here again! I do believe he would leave his head, if it were loose!

John—I dare say you're right! I heard him say only yesterday that he was going to Switzerland for his lungs!—Wheeler's Magazine.

A. & M. to Show Stock.

College Station.—A. & M. is grooming the fine individuals of its livestock herds in preparation for their exhibition at the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show at Fort Worth. Both the animal husbandry and dairy husbandry departments will show animals. All together the college will send a total of 78 animals, 19 steers, 35 hogs, seven horses, nine sheep and eight dairy cattle.

Decatur as Dairy Section.

Decatur.—County Agent W. M. Love announces the organization of a registered bull association in this section. Several communities are in the organization and the registered males of the association are to rotate among the dairymen of the different section. This movement will mean much to this section which has during the past few years been developed into one of the best dairy counties in the state.

Austin, Texas.—The Senate has passed, by a vote of 19 to 8, the bill by Mr. Thomas to substitute electrocution for hanging in carrying out death sentences under the law in Texas.

Bus Line Bill Passed.

Austin, Texas.—The Senate passed the bill by Mr. Stuart to allow street railway and interurban lines to operate bus lines.

Coal Company Signs Contract.

Pittsburgh, Kan.—The Sheridan Coal Company, the largest company in the coal fields of the Southwest, not in the Southwestern Interstate Coal Operators' Association, has signed a contract with the United Mine Workers of America. The Sheridan company withdrew from the organization during the general strike and operated some of its mines under a cooperative arrangement with some of its miners.

Permission of the Interstate Commerce Commission has been given Southwestern railroads to establish rates on cottonseed cake and meal and ground cottonseed hulls from Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas to New Mexico, which are 50 per cent of the tariff rates, and without observing provisions of the fourth section. The rates were voluntarily put in by some of the lines as a means of relieving the drought in some of the cattle producing sections.

BATTLE BEGINS IN THE PACKER MERGER

Combination of Armour and Morris Is Opposed by Secretary Wallace of Agricultural Department.

Washington.—Another battle has been started by the government against what is claimed would be a monopoly industry when Secretary Wallace of the Agriculture Department took steps to prevent Armour & Co., off Chicago from acquiring the plants and business of Morris & Co., another of the "big five" packers. Consummation of the consolidation would result in the largest meat packing enterprise in the history of the country, with annual sales of more than $1,000,000,000.

F. Edson White, president of Armour & Co., declaring the present administration had proclaimed its belief in "less government in business and more business in government," said a statement made public here and in Chicago that his company heartily subscribed to that slogan and was willing to meet the issue involved speedily and without fear of the result. Before legality of the merger is finally decided several months is expected to elapse and in all probability the case will reach the Supreme Court for determination.

Secretary Wallace, proceeding under authority given him in the packers and stock yards act, served complaints on Armour & Co., J. Ogden Armour and Morris & Co., charging them with violation of the act by entering into a written agreement for the sale of Morris & Co.

IMPORTANT NEWS OF THE ENTIRE WEEK REDUCED FOR BUSY READERS

FOREIGN—

Theophile Delcasse, former Minister of Foreign Affairs, died suddenly at Nice recently.

Former Premier Gaston Doumergue was elected President of the French Senate on the second ballot to succeed Leon Bourgeois, resigned.

The French Foreign Office flatly denied that the Cabinet had decided to reopen negotiations with Soviet Russia, as asserted in recent dispatches.

Probate of the will of Lord Northcliffe has been granted. A sworn statement gave the total of his estate as 3,250,000 pounds, on which a duty of 1,300,000 pounds is payable to the government.

A correspondent quotes a Russian Soviet Government announcement to the effect that Senator Borah has accepted the invitation extended by Maxim Litvinoff to visit Moscow during the Senator's projected European tour.

Citizens of foreign nations enlisted in the Spanish Foreign League are not entitled to pensions in the event of their being wounded, while their relatives possess no right to claim pensions should the legionnaires be killed in battle or die as prisoners of war. This decision is announced.

When questioned in the Dail Eireann in regard to the Ulster Boundary Commission provided for in the Anglo-Irish treaty, the president of the Cabinet, William T. Cosgrave, replied that the matter could not be dealt with under present circumstances.

The city of Warsaw is without motion pictures. The City Council having put a tax of 100 per cent on all tickets, the managers of the cinema theatres declared that it was impossible to conduct business under such conditions and closed their houses.

Prince George will soon be able to tramp the decks of his battleship and trip the light fantastic in Buckingham Palace with perfect ease. The little toe of each foot has been removed in an operation. The son of King George had been suffering with "hammer toes."

Queen Mary has given Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon a sunburst diamond brooch, the stones being set in the form of a rising sun. The gift was presented when the Duke of York and his fiancée visited the King and Queen at Sandringham. Queen Alexandra also presented Lady Elizabeth with a piece of jewelry.

The conference of jurists appointed under the resolutions of the Washington armament conference to study the laws of war have presented their report, containing two proposals, regarding wireless telegraphy and the use of aircraft in time of war to the Governments concerned, which will decide whether it shall eventually be published.

WASHINGTON—

Friends of Attorney General Daugherty, who is recovering from a recent illness, are hopeful that he will be able to return to his desk at the Department of Justice soon, although it is regarded as probable that his physicians will advise against a return to Government duties before leaving with President Harding for a rest in Florida.

In proportion to its total Government expenditures, the United States is spending less on armament than Mexico. Figures compiled for use in the Central American conference just concluded here show that in proportion of military to total Government expenses, the leading nations of the Western Hemisphere rank as follows: Mexico 43.8 per cent, Chile 32.2 per cent, United States 25.4 per cent, Brazil 18 per cent and Argentina 15.66 per cent.

General Pershing has been suggested to President Harding as the logical man to untangle the twisted pile of red tape in the Veterans' Bureau. Among those suggested as successors to Col. Charles R. Forbes, besides Pershing, are Col. Thomas R. Miller, alien property custodian; Hanford MacNider, past national commander of the American Legion, and Col. James Adrain of Washington, D. C.

The Sweet bill which would permit reinstatement of lapsed war risk insurance of many disabled World War veterans has been reported by the House Commerce Committee.

Extensive investigations by immigration authorities to determine how many aliens have been smuggled in to the United States in violation of the seaman's act has been ordered by Secretary Davis.

General credit deflation, increase in high-priced inventories and the Federal Trade Commission in a report submitted to Congress as the causes of the drop in cotton prices which began in April 1930.

A serious food shortage in Germany has been caused by decreased production of both crops and live stock the Department of Agriculture announces. The decreased supply is attributed to reduced acreages, shortage of manpower and decreased use of fertilizers.

Use of naval craft to break up the smuggling of intoxicants, narcotics and aliens into this country is proposed in a bill introduced by Representative Summers (Rep.) of Washington. The vessels so used would be under the supervision and control of the civil officers of the Government charged with the enforcement of the prohibition and customs laws.

The War Department announces completion by the air service of a new type of aerial map expected to prove of great assistance in cross country flying. By use of this map, the announcement said, "the air plane pilot has before him practically all the information he desires regarding the nature of the country he is flying over."

A resolution proposing the temporary admission to the Hawaiian Islands of alien labor, including Chinese, otherwise barred under the immigration laws, was reported by the House Immigration Committee Chairman Johnson, whose home is in Washington, and other members of the committee from Pacific Coast States, as well as Representative Box (Dem.) of Texas, said they would submit minority reports. Charging the proposal as "diabolical," Representative Box in a statement alleged that the sugar interests dominated Hawaii and were responsible for the influx of Orientals for fifty years with a resulting destruction of the Hawaiian race.

DOMESTIC—

Jacob H. Mockler, lawyer, who was shot and killed in St. Louis, while driving his automobile, told police a month previous that in event he were murdered $10,000 of his life insurance would be posted as a reward for the capture of his murderers.

On an offer of "amnesty" thirty two stills used in the manufacture of whiskey have been voluntarily turned in to Bowie County officials. After the alleged operators of the stills had promised not to engage in the traffic again, they were told no bills would be returned by the grand jury.

Trustees of the Juillard Musical Foundation have announced that more than $10,000,000 of the estate of the late Augustus D. Juillard had been turned over to them in the last year and would be expended in the interests of American music in the near future.

Senator-elect Earle Mayfield filed his certificate of election with the Secretary of the Senate and will begin to draw his salary from March 4. The contest of his election will come in December.

E. W. Cole, elected Congressman-at-Large from Texas, presented his certificate of election, signed by Governor Neff, but the Secretary of the Senate refused to accept it on the grounds that no such office existed. Some surprise was expressed at Washington that Governor Neff should give a certificate of election to Cole to an office that had no existence.

Cole was elected because he got his name on the tickets, but that did not make him a Congressman by any means. We do not suppose that even Governor Neff expected him to get a seat in Congress, because he is a lawyer and knows that no such office as "Congressman-at-Large" exists in Texas or in any other State. Then why did he sign the certificate?

Congress adjourned Sunday, March 4th, at 12 M., the term having expired by limitation of law. With the 67th Congress passes out many men who have helped make history in our Government for the past thirty years or more. The most conspicuous figure and best known to the country is Old Uncle Joe Cannon, of Illinois, two or three times Speaker of the House and always an interesting character, voluntarily retires.

The best known man to Texans that went out with the last Congress is Senator Culberson, who was defeated by Earle Mayfield in the primary election last year. Senator Culberson justly ranks among the ablest Senators ever elected by Texas or any other State.

He served four years as Attorney General under Governor James S. Hogg, succeeding the latter as Governor in 1895. After four years he was elected to the United States Senate and, at noon last Sunday, completed his sixth term—24 years in the Senate.

As Attorney General, as Governor of the Imperial State of Texas and as a Senator from this State, the public record of Charley Culberson is brilliant and without a stain or blemish.

The editor, as a member of the 24th Legislature, 1895, served during Governor Culberson's first term and, while not agreeing with him in all things, yet, as we became better acquainted with him and his policies, realized, as never before, that in Governor Culberson Texas had a Governor, a worthy successor of some of the most brilliant men Texas ever produced, Sam Houston, Cole, Roberts, Ireland and Hogg. Until his health failed him, a few years ago, Senator Culberson was always a most tireless worker and all Texas was proud of him.

We did not support Governor Culberson in his first campaign for the Senate; because of personal reasons supported that great statesman Colonel Roger Q. Mills, but Colonel Mills withdrew from the race and Senator Culberson was elected without opposition.

It was with a pang of regret that we saw Colonel Mills, after a long and brilliant career in Congress meet defeat, and we felt the same way about Culberson twenty-four years later, when the Goddess of Fortune decreed the same fate for him.

Had Senator Culberson's health permitted him to come to Texas and take even a moderate part in his campaign, no man in Texas could have defeated him. It is to be regretted that he became a candidate, no doubt influenced by over-zealous friends, who did not realize the drift of public sentiment in Texas. His defeat was not caused by opposition to Senator Culberson personally or opposition to his public record, but was caused by the growing belief that Senator Culberson would, in all probability, be unable to attend to his duties as Senator much longer.

This was unfortunate, but is the true reason why Senator Culberson, once all powerful in Texas politics, failed of reelection. History will account him a place with the great men of Texas, who made Texas what it is today, the greatest State in the Union.

Earle Mayfield, or any other man, will find it no easy task to fill Senator Culberson's place in the Senate. Few men in Texas could do as well and we do not believe any could do better.

GRAND CONCLAVE OF KNIGHTS TEMPLAR AT DALLAS, APRIL 3-5

The Seventieth Annual Grand Conclave of the Grand Commandery Knights Templar of Texas, will be held in Dallas, April 3-5, it has been announced by Acting Grand Commander H. B. Robertson, of Dallas. It is expected that quite a number of Baird's plumed knights will attend. The first day will be taken up with the parade, church service, competitive drills and school of instruction; the second day with the report of the Grand Commander and business session; the third day concluding the business session.

The honor guest will be Leonidas P. Newby, of Knightstown, Indiana, Grand Master of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States.

Entertainment will include lunch for drill team, dinner for the Grand Master and Grand Officers, automobile drive and theatre party for the ladies, reception for all Knights and visitors, and band concerts.

Registration will be at the Scottish Rite Cathedral. Service will be held at the First Baptist Church, corner Ervay and San Jacinto Streets, with music by the choir of the First Presbyterian Church.

Texas is especially honored in the visit of Grand Master Newby, as only two State Conclaves are included in his itinerary for the year. He has signified his intention of remaining the entire three days, and will be accompanied to his next point by Grand Commander Robertson.

Officers of the Grand Commandery are H. B. Robertson, Dallas, Grand Commander; C. L. Alderman, Big Spring, Grand Generalissimo; W. G. Bell, Austin, Grand Captain General; Frank H. Sparrow, Fort Worth, Grand Senior Warden; Phocion S. Park, Bryan, Grand Junior Warden; Rev. Joseph Sherrin, Dallas, Grand Prelate; Austin E. Clarkson, Houston, Grand Treasurer;

J. C. Kidd, Houston, Grand Recorder; George H. Caulfield, Waco, Grand Standard Bearer; George Stapleton, Amarillo, Grand Sword Bearer; Philip L. Sanders, Galveston, Grand Warder; Nathan K. Tracy, San Antonio, Grand Captain of the Guard.

Dallas Commandery No. 6 and Tancred Commandery No. 82 are joint hosts for the Conclave, and have appointed the following joint committee: R. B. Price, Chairman; Lee Richardson, Vice Chairman; Raymond Thomas, Treasurer; H. B. Tuer, Secretary; Joseph Sherrin, B. B. Robertson, Bruce Thomas, John M. Gulic, J. D. Harmon, Stephen Benson, R. E. L. Caner. Sub-committee Chairmen are: Automobile, J. R. Bower; Church Service, Rev. Joseph Sherrin; Decoration, J. P. Bounds; Entertainment, R. E. L. Sauer, James E. Forrest, Mrs. H. B. Robertson; Finance, Sam P. Cochran; Hotels, Thomas B. Hunter; Music, H. B. Criswell, Dr. N. C. Rice; Parade, W. R. Ellis; Program, R. B. Robertson; Printing, G. R. Bryant; Publicity, Z. Starr Armstrong; Railroad Reception, J. E. Ward; Refreshments, J. W. Howerth; Registration, J. L. Stephens; Transportation, Hugh McLaughlin.

Special rates will be given by all railroads and interurbans, and the largest crowd ever attending a Grand Conclave in Texas is expected by the Grand Officers. Interest in the competitive drills has been quickened by the fact that several Texas teams entered the Triennial National Conclave last year at New Orleans and won honors, and will send several strong teams from this State to the next Triennial at Seattle, two years hence.

MONSTER LOCOMOTIVES FOR TEXAS & PACIFIC RAILROAD

According to Traffic Manager John B. Payne, of the Texas & Pacific Railroad Company, that road has just received the first eight of a large number of new locomotives, ordered the latter part of 1922, these eight now being in the Marshall Shops, where they are being given the finishing touches before being placed in service.

Additional engines are leaving the Locomotive Works every few days, and it is expected the entire consignment will be on the line by April 1st, these engines being among the largest and heaviest operated in the Southwest, the freight charges from the Locomotive Works to Texas amounting to approximately $50,000, and only one Eastern line being able to handle them to Saint Louis on account of clearance requirements, due to their enormous size.

According to Mr. Payne, these are all super-heated oil engines, the passenger engines being of the latest Pacific type, with locomotive booster attached to trailer—a recent invention, giving increased starting and accelerating power; these being the first of this kind operated in Texas, and being capable of a speed of 60 miles an hour, with twelve steel Pullmans.

These Pacific type engines are also equipped with locomotive feed-water heaters, the feed-water being heated by a portion of the steam exhaust formerly admitted to the atmosphere, resulting in increased efficiency of the boiler and a saving of the boiler and a saving of fuel, water being supplied to the boiler at a much higher degree of temperature than now obtained by use of injectors.

Total weight of engine and tender is 466,000 pounds; tractive power, with booster, 49,885 pounds; length over all, 82 feet. The tender has a capacity of 9,000 gallons of oil.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH SERVICES

Worship is essential and indispensable to the nature of the soul. Living, with God left out, is hard. The soul needs the development acquired by worship. It is for this purpose we have services on Sunday. If you fail to be present they cannot function to your needs.

We have too many Tomorrow fellows. Tomorrow never comes for them to come to church. Promises avail nothing if they are only made and never kept. The "I will" man, not the "I'll try" man, is to be depended upon.

Services next Sunday. Morning theme: "The Everlasting Love of God" Evening theme: "Why Should We Pray?"

We hope you may see your way clear to come to one or both of these services. All strangers welcome.

Cordially,
Gerald Fitzgerald, Pastor.

IS A VIOLATION OF POSTAL LAWS

As The Baird Star has been compelled in the past to turn down advertising matter containing lottery proposition, there is reproduced below a ruling as published in the Strawn Tribune bearing on the matter. Friends, at times, have considered the publisher of The Star over scrupulous about the matter, but the law is plainly understandable and its violation would deprive this paper the privilege of the United States mails:

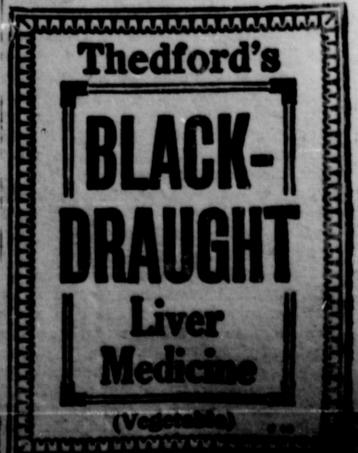

Austin, Texas, Feb. 5, 1923.
Postmaster, Strawn, Texas.

My Dear Sir: Receipt is acknowledged of your letter of the 3rd instant, with which you submitted a circular concerning a proposed Trades Day, at which time tickets will be given with each purchase, of $1.00, which tickets are obviously to be used in a drawing for a prize, consisting of an automobile.

In answer to your request as to whether this circular, or advertisements referring to it, can be published in a newspaper and sent through the mails, I wish to state that it has been held in a number of previous cases that the mailing of such matter constitutes a violation of Section 482, Postal Laws and Regulations, to which your attention is invited.

Also, your attention is invited to Article 30, on page 81, of the Official Guide for July, 1922.

Respectfully yours,
Geo. M. Sutton,
Inspector in Charge.

Wooing in the Dark

By JESSIE DOUGLAS

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Molly began to sing to herself. Across the fields she could hear the tree-toads strumming their guitars, and a little chorus of sleepy birds made her laugh with delight.

It was pure delight. Meadow-sweet in the air and the whisper of grass under her feet and a pall on her arm that was to bring back fresh butter.

She gave a sudden start.

"I can't do it!"

It was almost dark now, but she could see the foot bridge across which she must step to reach the other river bank. There wasn't even a hand-rail. But how could she go back and face Mrs. Bascom and admit that she was just one of "those silly city girls" who was afraid to cross the bridge?

"If there were only some other way to cross," Molly said aloud.

"There isn't."

The voice sounded out of the darkness so close at hand that Molly jumped.

"If you wish," the voice went on, "I'll see that you get across."

"Oh, I do," Molly said breathlessly.

He stepped out ahead of her and she saw by the stars that he was tall and straight, and as he gave her his hand she knew by its pressure that he was strong. She scarcely breathed until she reached the other side.

"Thank you," she sighed.

He walked a little distance apart from her and she saw that he was looking down at her. She was grateful that he could only see the faint blur of her figure in the dusk.

"You have to go back again, I suppose," the voice went on, "and if you'll let me, I'll see that you get back safely. I'm Jim Stevens over at the Haleys'."

It was pleasant talking to a man like this by starlight. Molly forgot all her self-consciousness. She was just like any other girl talking to a young man under a slip of a July moon, just as young, just as charming, just as—pretty.

"If you'll wait here I'll go in and get the butter," she told him as the farmhouse loomed up.

She was grateful that the porch was in darkness, and that when she passed into the lighted kitchen the door closed after her.

He was waiting for her when she came out and she felt her heart beat with a new sense of happiness.

It was the first time a young man ever had waited for her outside a gate; it was the first time she had ever talked serenely unconscious of herself to any man. She drank in all the joy of the moment as they wandered "home" to Mrs. Bascom's. "May I see you again?" Jim Stevens asked her as they came to the white farmhouse. Molly caught her breath. She knew what it would mean if he saw her again.

"But perhaps we—you—might be disappointed next time!" she tried to say lightly.

"Disappointed?" he asked. "I know when I first heard your voice you were pretty? How disappointed?"

She couldn't answer him.

He said suddenly: "If its introductions you're thinking about I'll ask Mr. Haley to come over to Mrs. Bascom's and bring me along and introduce me tomorrow afternoon—"

"Oh, no!" Molly gasped. "But I might meet you tomorrow night down by the bridge." Then she ran into the house.

The first thing she did was to climb breathlessly the steep stairs to her own room, then she lighted the kerosene lamp, and, taking care to pull down the shade, she went over to the crinkly mirror and studied herself. No, she was just the same. Her hair was not gold and curly, it was mouse-colored and very straight. She had nothing in the way of a Greek profile, but an apology of a nose, and her eyes were not large and lustrous, but gray and sweet and unnoticeable altogether. It was not that that troubled her so much, but across one temple was a mark, a delicate blue mark that time would never erase and that her hair would never quite cover.

It was this that made her self-conscious, wretchedly sure that girls were pitying her and men turning away from the sight with disgust. It was this that made her promise to meet Jim Stevens after dusk.

Just once she told herself she should have all the joy of talking to a man and pretending she was pretty. She could pretend.

Next evening she met Jim Stevens down by the bridge. She wore a white dress with some airy ruffles that made her seem some delicate moth as she fluttered down to him. She lifted her face bravely, sure that that tell-tale scar was hidden. They talked and laughed and came singing back along the road to the Bascom's and Jim carried her promise that she would meet him the next night.

"But why this Cinderella business?" he asked her. "I do believe there's something mysterious about you; you won't go canoeing with me, you won't go picnicking with me—have I done something? Is it still that lack of proper introduction?"

He was still so sure of this feeling of hers about an introduction that he dragged Mrs. Haley over to call on Mrs. Bascom next afternoon, but Molly, hiding in her closet, refused to see the wife for her. She waited to come out until she heard the retreating footsteps of the callers.

It was not until she had known him about two weeks that Jim began to tell her about himself. She heard with a new terror clutching at her heart that he was a poster artist.

Molly had almost steeled herself to meeting him in daylight, but this decided her. Her summer idyl should end as it had begun, romantically, charmingly, in darkness.

The night before she was going home Jim kissed her. She knew she would never forget that kiss as long as she lived, and she knew his voice with that inflection would always haunt her. "Lovely little Molly."

It was the end. He had not said he loved her. But it would always be sweet to remember that his voice had been tender and he had thought her lovely.

Next morning she was going back to the city where she worked and lived in the big institution that housed working girls who did not earn over $1,200 a year. She was going back to work and heartache and longing, but always she would have something to remember.

She waved good-by to Mrs. Bascom and saw her train come in and then a young man stepped on the platform and said: "I'm going too, Molly."

Molly stared at Jim Stevens with fear in her eyes and the shamed blood coloring her cheeks. He continued to look down at her endearingly. Ruthlessly she pushed back the hair from the blue-purple scar across her temple and faced him ready for the stab.

He was either blind or oblivious to this thing that had haunted her girlhood.

"You couldn't run away from me like that, Molly," he said. "We're going back together!"

She continued to stare at him unbelievably until he swept her up the steps of the train.

"But don't you see—" she asked. "I do see that when you're Mrs. James Stevens I'll have to take proper care of you."

So Molly awoke to the knowledge that love sees with an inner eye and sees only the things that are lovely.

HAVE NATURAL DREAD OF FIRE

Miners Realize There Is Little Chance of Escape When Their Worst Enemy Appears.

Nothing is so much dreaded by the miner as fire, says a writer in Adventure magazine. When millions of tons of rock begin to settle down he is not frightened. He goes among them when they are being splintered in all directions and are cracking like pistons.

One reason why a fire in a mine is so much dreaded is because there are so few avenues of escape open to the miners. Probably there is but a single shaft—if the mine is connected with no other—and up this, a thousand or fifteen hundred feet, or more, he must go to escape.

In case of a fire there is liable to be a panic. A panic in a church or other building on the surface is a terrible thing; then what must be a panic in a mine where there are 800 or 1,000 men, perhaps, all to go up a single shaft a thousand feet or more, a cage-load at a time? At such times, too, there are explosions of gases which extinguish all of the lights, and the men rushing to and fro are exposed to danger of pitfalls in the shape of chutes, winzes and other excavations.

All these things being often in the miner's mind give him a wonderful delicacy of nostril. He can smell a fire from afar. He knows the smell of burning fuse, of giant powder, of black powder and of everything with which fire ordinarily comes in contact in a mine, and the scent of these is no more noticed than is noticed the air he breathes on the surface of the earth; but let any unusual substance be ignited and, like the hunted stag, his nose is in the air at once.

Suns Squeeze Themselves.

The sun is a great globe, 886,000 miles in diameter; beside it the earth is the merest speck. All the planets combined would hardly do more than ripple the solar surface if they should plunge into it.

The sun shines by its own heat, though not by fire, for fire implies combustion. On the sun elements are far too hot for anything approaching chemical union as we know it to take place. Neither is solar heat generated by friction or contraction.

The sun has not varied its output of energy greatly for many millions of years. Its energy is molecular. Deep in its center there are complex, radio active elements. When the solar system was in the shape of a nebula it absorbed prodigious quantities of light and heat. This energy was stored in the atoms. Now that the sun is condensed into a sphere, it is giving this energy out again, and we feel it as warmth.

Greeley Had Learned Wisdom.

When, after the death of Virginia, there was talk of Poe marrying again, Horace Greeley wrote to a friend:

"Do you know Sarah Helen Whitman? Of course you have heard it rumored that she is to marry Poe. Well, she seemed to me a good girl, and you know what Poe is. Now, I know a widow of doubtful age will marry at most any sort of a white man, but this seems to me a terrible conjunction. Has Mrs. Whitman no friend within your knowledge that can faithfully explain Poe to her?"

"I never attempted this sort of thing but once, and the net result was two enemies and a hastening of the marriage."—From "Poe the Man" in the Mentor.

"Dogmobile" as It Were.

The legless beggar who was haled to court recently when it was discovered that he passed his leisure moments having himself hauled around in a limousine made no more of a sensation than another legless man did at Grand Central terminal the other night as he sped across the polished floor to his train. He was seated on a four-wheeled, carpeted contraption which stood about five inches off the floor. At one side trotted a husky dog, strong chested and thick of haunch, apparently a cross between a pointer and a Scotch collie. The dog wore a stout leather collar from which hung a strap about the dimensions of the old-fashioned elevated car strap. The legless man clutched the strap and the dog trotted. Very simple locomotion and speedy. He steered his dogmobile by spoken word and the animated motor understood every command. The throng choking the concourse cheerfully fell back to make way for the unique traveler, who was hauled through the right gate by the dog to the right suburban train.—New York Sun.

Governments and Economy.

Charles M. Schwab said at a dinner in New York:

"The advocates of government ownership—government-owned railroads and mines and what-not—do not shout so loud since Russia showed the world how the idea has worked there.

"When Sir Eric Geddes was trying to introduce economies into England's government services last year, he often noticed, in a passage in Whitehall, a sentry in uniform. He asked the sentry one day what his duties were. The man said he was there to warn people not to touch the wall. He had been stationed there, issuing that warning, for ten years. Why? He didn't know.

"Well, Sir Eric Geddes investigated the matter, and he found that a war minister's wife had brushed her sleeve against wet paint on that wall 33 years before. A warning sentry stationed there that afternoon, had remained ever since."—Detroit Free Press.

"New" Rembrandt Found.

According to Dutch newspapers, a remarkable Rembrandt painting, the existence of which was previously unsuspected, has recently been discovered in Prague by Doctor Fell, an art critic.

The painting, 50 centimeters in height by 97 in width, is on wood and represents the marriage of Alexander the Great and Roxanna. It is said to be a splendid example of the great painter's wonderful mastery of light and shade.

Rembrandt's signature, a Persian inscription indicating the subject of the work, and the date, 1628, came to light after numerous coats of heavy varnish had been removed from the picture.

The Old Job Again.

Pat—Then what'll ye do, Mike!
Mike—I'll just go back to my former job.

Pat—And what was that?
Mike—Lookin' for work, begorra!—London Answers.

Mine and refinery output of lead in the United States each made a good gain in 1922, and mine and smelter of zinc each increased about 70 per cent over 1921, the Geological Survey reported. Mine production of soft lead totaled 464,000 tons, compared with 409,700 in 1921, Mississippi Valley and Eastern production being about 256,000 tons and Western States' production 208,000 tons.

San Francisco is receiving concerts broadcast at Schenectady, N. Y.

In New York a squad of soldiers was drilled in an armory uptown on the commands of a superior on Governor's Island.

At the Pacific coast seaside resorts, instead of burying themselves in the sand, the young ladies clamp on their ear-pieces and kill time between swims listening to radio music.

Educational experts say that radio will prove of great assistance in the development of the minds of subnormal children. The great obstacle in their education has been inability to arouse interest. It is believed that radio will greatly stimulate such interest.

And now it is the dentists who are profiting by radio. It is a great advantage to keep the mind of a patient off his troubles. When a radio ear-piece is clamped on, what registers on the ears of the sufferer makes him more or less indifferent to what is going on in his mouth. Great possibilities for the soothing talker.

Nervous Break-Down

MRS. ANNIE LANGE, of R. F. D. 1, Burlington, Tex., writes as follows regarding her experience with Cardui: "Some time ago I had a nervous break-down of some kind. . . I was very weak and so nervous. I had fainting spells and suffered a great deal, but more from the weak, trembly, no-account feeling than anything else. I knew I needed a tonic, and needed it badly. I began the use of Cardui to see if I couldn't get some strength, as I knew of other cases that had been helped by its use. I soon saw a great improvement, so I kept it up. I used seven bottles of Cardui, and can say the money was well spent, for I grew well and strong. Am now able to do all my housework and a great deal of work besides."

If you are weak, run-down, nervous and suffer from the ailments peculiar to women, it is very likely that Cardui will help you, in the way it helped Mrs. Lange and has helped thousands of others, during the past 40 years. Ask for, and insist on, Cardui.

CONGRESS CLOSES UP AS END NEARS

BULK OF IMPORTANT LEGISLATION HIGH AND DRY ON EVE OF ADJOURNMENT

RURAL CREDITS ARE SAFE

Administration Proposal for U. S. Representation on World Court Wrecked.

Washington.—Ebbing tide of the Sixty-Seventh Congress, before adjournment, presents a marked contrast to the outgoing of its predecessors.

Most of the important legislation, necessary to adjournment, is high and dry, safely secured either by enactment or in President Harding's hands and only the floatism and jetsam of the two years flood of legislation remains unjettisoned. The number of small legislative derelicts, however, shows no diminution and salvage crews are prepared to work desperately during the closing hours. Late sessions of both Senate and House were held in an effort to save minor bills.

With all of the regular appropriation bills already completed as against the usual pre-adjournment battering at their safety, the two major unfinished measures, the farm credits legislation and the $156,700,000 deficiency appropriation bill, are advanced far beyond the danger line, leaders said. Senate and House conferees reached a unanimous agreement on the farm credits bill. President Harding probably will sign the farm credits bill as it comes to him.

Several changes were made in the bill as passed by the House. Under the agreement the War Finance Corporation would be authorized to function until March 1, 1924, instead of Jan. 31. Privately financed agricultural credit corporations provided by the measure would be permitted to issue debentures, and would be under supervision of the Comptroller of the Currency instead of the Farm Loan Board.

The conferees also agreed on a provision increasing the maximum of farm land loans to $25,000, with a stipulation that preference should be given to loans of $10,000 or under.

The administration proposal for American representation on the world court of the League of Nations, however, is wrecked for this session, despite an eleven-hour effort by President Harding and Secretary Hughes. They sent new letters to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee again urging the court plan, but it was left on the legislative shoals when Republicans on the Senate committee met and reaffirmed their decision that action was impossible.

MUSTAPHA KEMAL PASHA GIVES TURKISH POLICY

Foremost Aim to Strengthen Relations With Sister Nations.

Constantinople.—"The coming year may just as well be one of war as one of peace," declared Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the Nationalist leader, in his anniversary address to the Grand National Assembly at Angora. Kemal said that if peace were attained the Nation would devote itself to reconstruction. The policy of last year, of not seeking foreign loans, would be followed, he said, while the strengthening of relations with sister nations like Afghanistan and Persia.

The foremost aims of the Government, which likewise was committed to sincere relations with Russia.

Economic relations with the Soviet Government were being developed, Kemal declared, and the signing of a consular and economic treaty profitable to both nations are momentarily expected.

There were no differences existing between Turkey and the Balkan States, Kemal announced, while Turkey's relations with the States of the Caucasus was good. He thanked the army and the people behind the lines for the splendid efforts which led to the victory, and added:

"Today we are stronger than ever."

Need of Strong Army in France
Paris.—France must have a peace time army of 600,000 to guarantee her against an attack by Germany and to insure the collection of reparations. M. Maginot, Minister of War, made this declaration in the French Senate when he spoke in support of the eighteen months compulsory military service bill. Maginot charged that Germany, in event she wanted revenge against France, could easily bring 450,000 effectives into the field.

GERMANY UNABLE TO MAINTAIN PEACE

SAYS IMPOSSIBLE TO GUARANTEE PEACE SHOULD PEOPLE START TROUBLE.

HIGH TENSION EXISTING

Atmosphere May at Any Time Lead to Explosions, it Has Been Pointed Out.

Washington.—The German Embassy in a formal statement declares that should the population in the Ruhr, "already severely tried, let itself be led to acts of desperation, the German Government, owing to the paralyzation by the French of the German official apparatus in the Ruhr, will not be in a position to guarantee the maintenance of peace and order in the occupied territory."

An atmosphere of "high tension" has gradually been created throughout the occupied zone, it was stated, which "causes the possibility to be feared that this atmosphere may in the near future lead to explosions."

"Owing to the latest events in the Ruhr territory, especially owing to the evermore numerous and brutal expulsions, draconic sentences by court-martial, pillages, and ill-treatments in the streets, and through the oppressions of entire towns such as Recklinghausen, Gelsenkirchen and Bochum, an atmosphere of high tension has gradually been created in the entire occupied territory which causes the possibility to be feared that this atmosphere may at any time lead to explosions."

"The German Government still maintains a policy of mere passive resistance, as hitherto applied, and in this policy it is backed by the unanimous support of officials and population. Should, however, the population, already severely tried, let itself be led to acts of desperation, the German Government, owing to the paralyzation by the French of the German official apparatus in the Ruhr, will not be in a position to guarantee the maintenance of peace and order in the occupied territory."

FINDS NO EXECUTIONS WITHOUT DUE TRIAL

Senate Committee Holds Charges as to A. E. F. To Be Unfounded.

Washington.—The sensational chapter of Senate history revolving a round a charge by the late Senator Watson (Dem.) Georgia, that American soldiers were executed without trial in France, was closed when the committee appointed to investigate reported unanimously that it had found the charge unfounded.

All of the committee members Senators Brandegee, Connecticut; Willis, Ohio, and Ernst, Kentucky Republicans and Overman, North Carolina, and Shields, Tennessee Democrats, signed the report. In a special report, Senator Ernst also declared unfounded the charge which came before the committee during its hearings that Major H. L. Ople of Virginia had shot his orderly.

Marriage License Bill Passes.

Austin, Texas.—Final passage has been given the Miller bill to provide that marriage licenses shall not be issued in the case of a girl under 18 years old, outside of her county of residence, except with the presence of parents or guardians. The marriage license clerk may demand affidavits of three persons that the girl is 18.

Treasury Is On Cash Basis

Austin.—For the first time since the beginning of the fiscal year Sept. 1, 1922, the State Treasury is on a cash basis. This announcement was made by State Treasurer C. V. Terrell. This applies to the general revenue fund. Announcement was made that the treasury has enough money to meet all outstanding warrants.

House to Adjourn March 10

Austin.—By a vote of 86 to 34 the house voted to adjourn sine die at 10 p. m. March 10. More than an hour of debate was spent before the vote was finally taken. Old members of the House declared the question should not come up at this time but the Legislature should get busy and complete the work before talking of adjournment.

U. S. CONSULATE NOT TO RE-OPEN

The Decision Grows Out of Great Britain's Cancellation of the Exequatur and Recognition of Slater

Washington.—The British government has been notified by Ambassador Harvey in London that the United States had issued orders that its consulate at Newcastle-on-Tyne was not to be reopened and that disposition was to be made of the lease of the consular premises. The decision grows out of Great Britain's cancellation of the exequatur and recognition of Consular Slater and Vice Consul Brooks, who were charged with discriminating against British vessels.

The text, as made public at the state department, follows:

"On behalf of my government, I have the honor to inform your lordship of the receipt of your lordship's note of Dec. 27, 1922, in which you state the decision of the British government with regard to the cancellation of the exequatur and recognition respectively of Mr. Slater and Mr. Brooks, consul and vice consul at Newcastle-on-Tyne.

"In the circumstances, I am instructed to inform your lordship that orders have been issued not to reopen the consulate and to dispose of the lease of the consular premises.

"May I call once more to your attention the fact that a thorough investigation, of which the British government has been fully informed, was made of this case by officers of my government and that the evidence secured convinced my government that the charges preferred cannot be substantiated.

"My government desires me, furthermore, once again to point out that although it has never questioned the right of the British government to cancel the exequatur of an American consul on the ground that he is persona non grata, it considers that when specific charges are advanced it is compelled to make the most thorough investigation in order to clear or discipline the alleged offender. My government must, moreover, call in question the accuracy of the parallel which your lordship found in the cancellation in 1856 by the government of the United States of the exequaturs of the British consuls at New York, Philadelphia and Cincinnati. The evidence against these consuls was developed in judicial proceedings which showed them to be guilty of violating the laws and the sovereign rights of the United States."

CARBON BLACK PLANTS SPRING UP IN THE WEST

Hassell Probably Will Erect First Plant in Breckenridge; Others Will Follow

Breckenridge.—Due to the application for authority to manufacture carbon black from residue gas in Stephens county field by J. W. Hassell, granted by the railroad commission, there are expected to be a number of like plants to be erected in the near future. It also amended the rule prohibiting manufacture of carbon black, to permit the commission to grant authority to manufacture in cases where the gas is being wasted, or from casinghead gas. This means that there is to be erected in this field a number of large plants for the manufacture of carbon black.

It is known that three companies probably will begin immediately the erection of plants, each of which will probably represent an investment of a half million dollars and provide much extra work with a large payroll to be spent in the oil field sections.

The carbon black plants are expected to use the millions of cubic feet of residue gas which is now going to waste at the gasoline plants and are not expected to affect the supply of natural gas for domestic and industrial purposes. There are 27 gasoline plants in Stephens and 34 in Eastland counties and millions of feet of gas now being wasted in the air daily from these plants, it is said.

VOICE WITH A SMILE

black capital letters, printed below the poem quoted:

"Mrs. Mary Culley Is The Exception That Proves The Rule!"—West Texas Utility News for March.

Years and years ago, when the use of the word "Corporation" came into extensive, almost universal, use as the name for large concentrations of vested capital, was an impersonal thing. Some misguided, misanthropic and bilious guy (in all probability a slacker and a clock watcher), saddled these capitalistic aggregations with this epigrammatic appellation: "Corporations have no souls!" It came into general use, and has ever since been quoted by the unthinking and the unknowing as the most truthful of truths.

There are no rules without exceptions, however. The above quoted panegyric, which is from the pen, pencil or typewriter of that dashing business promoter, honey-tongued orator and most facile and pleasing of writers, Dempster O. Murphy, editor (and it is believed sole contributor to) "The West Texas Utility News," who has traveled far, has an optimism that bubbles up spontaneously as though irrigated by the waters of the famed Pierian Spring, who not only believes in and practices Efficiency himself, but is quick to recognize and reward it in others, cannot hug to his soul the fatuous delusion that he is the discoverer of the super-sunny efficiency of Mrs. Mary Culley. Far from it!

The writer knew all about Efficient Mistress Mary Culley long before the West Texas Utilities Company benevolently invaded Baird, and The Star gladly prints this glowing and well deserved tribute to her many excellencies. Incidentally this paragon of efficiency is the daughter of our own Mr. and Mrs. R. D. White, and mother of those very bright and efficient laddies, Kane and Robert Morgan.
