

The Post Dispatch

Post, Garza County, Texas Thursday, July 8, 1971 Number 6

We were rushing around in the back shop yesterday afternoon making up the sports page — because Corby Ammons is on his vacation this week — when the phone rang and it was "Washington calling."

It never fails to surprise us a bit to get a phone call from the capital. This time it was Congressman George Mahon who said he was bringing up some papers over the weekend and ran into some clippings of some nice things we had written about him and he just decided to call and "see how things are going."

George inquired about the drought, stock water, cotton crop, and general business outlook here in Post.

We gave him the answers as we were able. Always plain spoken, George said, "I figure it's going to be a tough year." It already is a tough year at The Dispatch and we agreed.

George said as how he hated to leave Garza County out of his district, but commented we would like to see Omar Burleson.

Then he made it quite plain that he still is Garza's congressman after next year's election as he is the time the new re-districting of the Texas congressional districts will take effect.

He told George if he got the time when he was home to give a call because we wanted him to come back to Garza County and give another speech or two before he left.

He promised that he would.

We've known George Mahon ever since Post's Golden Jubilee in 1917, only a few months after we were in Post. We admire him as a hard-working, conscientious lawmaker who tends to the nation's needs and gets it done the best way possible. It is difficult as it always is to figure out how to get enough criticism from constituents who "enjoy" complaining. They demand all the home support they can get, we figure.

When we lived in Western Kansas we knew a congressman a little like George. His name was Cliff Hope and he was chairman of the House Agricultural Committee whenever the Republicans were voted into congressional office. He knew more about the farm problem than any man I ever knew. We used to sit around and talk about it for hours whenever he came home. But Cliff is dead now. He retired from Congress after the "Eisenhower era" and died not so long ago in Garden Grove, California. His roses were always famous.

Post's Well Baby Clinic opens Wednesday night

Post's Well Baby Clinic opened its one-night-a-week operation in the former Post Day Care Center at 802 Pine St. last night with 20 youngsters checked and some immunizations begun.

Two Post physicians, Dr. William C. Wilson and Dr. Charles G. Tubbs, have volunteered their services for the clinic and both were busy last night in individual examining rooms.

Assisting them, all on a volunteer basis, were Mrs. Bessie Strawn and Mrs. Margaret Price, both registered nurses. Mrs. Virginia Young is the volunteer records keeper.

Mrs. Maxine Marks of the sponsoring Women's Division of the Post Chamber of Commerce also was on hand last night to help get things started smoothly.

Mrs. Marks said the organization is hopeful of federal funding to take care of the cost of vaccines for the clinic with the effort made through the area Community Action organization.

The Well Baby Clinic is scheduled for 7 to 8:30 p. m. each Wednesday night at the present location. It is for children of economically deprived parents.

A new state law requires complete immunization against a number of childhood diseases this year. Before individual immunization programs can be begun, however, children must be examined and a history made of their childhood diseases.

Appointments at the clinic can be made through the Garza County Community Action office at the same location.

Post entries sought for rodeo parade here

Moving family 'loses all' in unique trailer fire

Sandra Broyles, who was moving from near Ralls to Texas last almost the entire possessions of her family Saturday when her car, a 1965 Pontiac, was struck by a U-Haul trailer caught fire in Green Tank, southeast of Post.

The family was moving to Texas City and formerly had lived in California. Mrs. Broyles' husband was in Texas City at his new job when the fire occurred.

Mayor Giles C. McCrary took one of the boys in the family group to relatives near Ralls where a pick truck was secured to come to Post and pick up the family and what few possessions were salvaged by local firemen after they arrived.

City must take up water lines

With a major paving project in Mill Village coming up next month, the city council Tuesday night voted to get the city's old two-inch water lines out from beneath the streets of the Postex Plant housing area at a cost of approximately $5,500.

New four-inch lines will replace the present street lines in the village and will be laid in the parking so that line repairs can be made when necessary without digging up newly paved streets.

City director of public works Pete Maddox pointed out that the old water lines already are causing trouble and replacing with new lines over the long run will save the city considerable costly repair work which will partially offset the cost of the new lines.

Mayor Giles C. McCrary said only approximately 1,100 feet of new water lines will be needed to replace some 2,700 feet of line now under the streets in the housing area near the sheeting plant.

He said the four-inch lines will be "big enough for any conceivable need" to the area involved.

The digging up of the old lines and replacing them with new lines will be a contract job with water department employees tapping in the various home connections.

The water and sewer department can "handle" the expense without the necessity for city warrants, Mayor McCrary told the council.

He said the paving contractor will be back in Post for additional paving around Aug. 1, which leaves only about three weeks to get the water lines from beneath the streets.

The council voted to make a formal request to the state highway department for another state traffic survey of the Main Street and Avenue F intersection, which The Dispatch has nicknamed "Calamity Corner" because of many traffic accidents there.

There have been 17 accidents at the intersection in the last five years, but only one each in 1970 and 1971 to date.

The council for several years has sought state approval to install a blinker light at the intersection or increase the warning system in some other way so motorists using the farm market road that a stop is upcoming at the junction with

The Tower Theatre has gone from a seven-day to a five-day a week schedule, manager C. L. Elkins announces.

City dads to seek phone hike advice

Post's city council agreed Tuesday night to seek some expert advice on General Telephone's proposed city phone rate boost to finance rural line improvements in the area.

The city also intends to ask as many of the 128 rural subscribers involved as it can reach their reaction to the phone rate increase they also will be charged for the changes in rural service.

Mayor Giles C. McCrary said he told General Telephone officials there was no need for them to attend the July meeting of the council and that the city would try to make a decision on the rate request by the August meeting, or before.

"I don't think any of us are capable of analyzing the rate proposals intelligently," the mayor commented at the opening of the rate discussion in suggesting that if the council had no objection he would seek some advice from somebody familiar with the utility rate structure.

It was pointed out that 1,200 city subscribers to the phone service are being asked to pay about $10,000 a year to help finance im-

Dr. Charles Tubbs happy to begin Post practice

Dr. Charles G. Tubbs "returned home" Thursday, July 1, to become associated with the Medical Center and Laboratory in general family practice.

The son of Dr. Harry A. Tubbs and the late Joan Tubbs of the Medical Center and Laboratory, young Dr. Tubbs recently completed his year's internship at Memorial Baptist Hospital in Houston.

He and his wife, Ann, and their five-month-old daughter, Karen, are residing at 311 West 6th St.

Ann Tubbs, who is a registered nurse, will also be associated with the Medical Center and Laboratory, but Dr. Tubbs told The Dispatch Saturday that it is not certain just when his wife will start full-time work at the center. She has spent the last year working toward a master's degree in public health, on which she is hopeful of completing work by the end of this year, Dr. Tubbs said.

"I have looked forward to coming back to where it is easy to feel at home to begin my practice, and Ann is enthused about being a part of Post," the young doctor said.

Following his graduation from high school, Dr. Tubbs served two years in the Army before enrolling in the University of Texas and graduating early last year from the University's medical branch at Galveston.

PAYMENT RECEIVED FOR 'PRICE FIXING'

Post library wins $34 in litigation

The Post Public Library has won its case against "price fixing" by publishers of children's books—all $34.49 worth so far.

Probably it would be more accurate to say that Texas Attorney General Crawford C. Martin won in settlement funds achieved thus far in his children's books antitrust litigation case.

To date $494,929.20 has been received in the initial distribution in settlement of the case.

The Post library's share was only $34.59 because the library had only been open for a year and only one children's book order was involved when the suit was filed by Martin.

Volunteer Librarian George L. Miller received the check from Martin this week along with a letter from the attorney general that read in part:

"As your attorney general, I filed a treble damage antitrust class suit on behalf of the public school districts and public libraries of the state of Texas alleging a price-fixing conspiracy by certain publishers and distributors of children's library books with publisher's bindings.

"Pursuant to court order, this initial distribution amounts to a total of $494,929.20 to the participant-

Can't all be done this year

Burlington Industries has approved the expenditure of $14,300 this year for paving and curb and guttering in Mill Village, its housing project for workers near the plant.

Vic Slater told The Dispatch yesterday that due to the raised level of East 7th Street into the various plan parking lots, almost all of this money will be spent in lowering 7th and repaving it all the way through the village and constructing curb and gutter along its length.

If this wasn't done, the Postex Plant general manager said, rains would produce a serious flooding problem in the housing area because Seventh street would block normal drainage.

Slater estimated it will cost approximately $9,000 more to finish the paving of all the streets in Mill Village and put in curb and gutter.

Burlington is paying the normal charges for the paving as would any other taxpayer.

This year's work will be done when the paving contractor returns his paving crew here early in August.

Slater said Burlington is hopeful of completing its paving of Mill Village in the city's next paving project, which probably will come in 1972.

Slater said Postex wants to beautify the housing project and paving the streets are the first step. Next will come planting the parkings to grass, etc.

Heat wave 'breaks' after 105 top

Post's torrid heat wave was "broken" yesterday when the mercury climbed to only 98 degrees, after hitting a blistering 105 degrees for the 1971 high on Monday.

The area got three straight 100-degree days, starting on Sunday when it was 103. It dropped to a high of 101 Tuesday.

What's that? You thought it was hot for the Fourth of July celebration last Saturday afternoon. It wasn't—it only got up to 99.

We anticipate the court will order an additional distribution of the balance of the settlement in 1972. In addition, negotiations are in progress with the remaining 14 defendants which should substantially augment the amounts available for refunds at that time. We hope that trial will

VFW wins state honors for year

John Miller Post 6797 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars here saw its busy year of community activity pay off at the recent VFW convention when its community service scrapbook? was judged among the "top ten in Texas" in the VFW competition.

The scrapbook also won the fourth division competition as well as taking state honors. The VFW has six divisions in Texas.

Dave Cheshire, commander of the post during the last year, and Mrs. Pauline O. Cheshire, who were co-chairmen of the VFW's community efforts for the year, termed "all the work involved in last year's community activities well worth it."

Over 100 community service books were entered in the state competition.

"Considering the small membership of our post, it was quite an honor to be among the top ten winners," Cheshire said.

Mrs. Cheshire was installed as historian for the VFW's Department of Texas at the recent state convention in San Antonio.

THURSDAY, JULY 8, 1971

Little rain in west Texas never hurts

Post got two Fourth of July celebrations, some welcome moisture, and some natural pyrotechnics which had far more noise and flashing light than the fireworks over the weekend.

All in all, it was a good "old-fashioned Fourth" and all the folks who turned out obviously enjoyed it.

One problem of course was the Sunday holiday which brought an early decision to move the celebration up to Saturday, rather than back to Monday. Then local merchants for the most part decided to stay open Saturday and try to salvage some extra dollars from the holiday crowd.

That shorted some of the help at the park, because they had to work instead of having a holiday. It also left some "holes" in the entertainment groups.

But that only happens once every seven

An hour-long downpour which hit just 15 minutes before the big barbecue didn't stop the "eats." When the rain quit the chow lines were quickly set up and the big crowd came back out of their cars and houses and other shelters.

For a lot of folks that was their only "trip to the park" of the summer—and they found it in excellent condition. They discovered with the shower that it has excellent drainage, too.

There's nothing like a little rain in West Texas to bring smiles and a lift of the spirit. So it could be said that the two thunderstorms which visited the Fourth of July celebration Saturday evening actually added to the festivities.

We can't remember such a pleasant coolness for a holiday barbecue.—JC

Our flag problem needs solving

It looks as if the Post Chamber of Commerce will be discussing an American Flag project at their next directors meeting.

When the Boy Scout troop sponsored for 25 years or so by the Post Rotary Club was shut down this spring, it left the "downtown flag situation" in turmoil.

The troop had been putting up and taking down the big flags in front of the stores each patriotic holiday for years as a troop fund raising project. Merchants were to pay $5 annual charge or a buck per holiday.

The business men originally put up the money to buy the flags, too.

Now Flag Day and the Fourth of July have passed with very few flags—individual efforts—showing on Post's Main Street.

A new flag plan needs to be worked out. And if somebody is to step into this patriotic breach it looks like the Chamber of Commerce is the proper organization.

Incidentally, one merchant reported having his flag literally stolen on Flag Day by somebody who simply took it off its staff in broad daylight.

Then there is the problem of home display of flags. Flag selling in recent years has become big business across the nation, but merchants haven't stocked many of them here, probably with the feeling that selling flags is a good project for a youth or veterans' organization.

But a good home flag set is great to have. It gives one a deep sense of pride to unfurl the flag on one's front porch. We hope that Post soon will get reorganized with its "flag efforts"—a new system for downtown display and a plentiful supply of flags for homeowners.

Come to think of it, a fitting flag ceremony at next year's Fourth of July celebration might add just the patriotic note to Post's big event, which has been more or less lacking up to now.—JC

Pentagon Papers only proved obvious

Several folks have asked our reactions to all the "hullabaloo" over publication of the so-called Pentagon Papers.

First, of course, we had the feeling maybe if we wired our senator or congressman maybe we could get a set and become the first weekly in West Texas to publish them. But we are in the process of "changing congressmen" for Garza County, so we figured such a request would be poorly timed.

What has actually surprised us has been the general lack of public interest in the content of these papers. It has actually surprised us even more about our own lack of interest in them because we have always reacted in news situations like a good newsman should.

Do you, kind reader, know what was in those millions of words comprising the Pentagon Papers?

They show the late President Jack Kennedy was involved in war escalation and that President Johnson was also involved in stepping up the fire-power and manpower considered essential to gain a victory in Southeast Asia.

Everyone already knew this. All we got were a few added details.

The "papers" proved again what we knew all along—that the nation's leaders, in or out of the Pentagon, are not the best forecasters of future events. They made a lot of mistakes—just like all leaders do in all wars.

Year-round school not far off—maybe

A "sleeper" bill signed into Texas law in June may have far-reaching effects on Texas education. The law paves the way for year-round operation of public schools by establishing a four-quarter system for each year instead of the present two semesters and three months off for the summer.

By the 1973-74 school year (and that's only two years away) Texas schools are required to be operating on a quarterly basis.

A student attending three quarters would cover the same curriculum now covered in the two-semester year. Each student would be required to attend only three quarters.

School systems will have the option to operate the fourth quarter if they so desire, but the fourth quarter won't be mandatory.

One of the three sponsors of the bill was Delwin L. Jones of Lubbock, Garza County's new state representative following recent redistricting by the legislature.

Among major advantages provided by the four-quarter system are more economical use of existing buildings and elimination of many requirements for new buildings; potential for a more varied curriculum; spreading of part-time student labor force from summer to year-round; and making possible a fourth quarter enrichment program for interested students.

One of the bill's two other sponsors said that in Fulton County, Ga., where the four-quarter system has been in use for two years, the drop-out rate has decreased by 75 per cent and vandalism of school property has dropped 80 per cent.

For the last couple of years, schools have been authorized to use the quarter system on a pilot basis, but so far no Texas school has done so.

The Texas Tourist Development Agency eventually foresees the four-quarter system as permitting year-round vacation times in industry because parents in some instances will have their children out of school in other months than summer.

It's rather obvious that too much hasn't been heard on the "four quarter plan" from school administrators, schools boards, and teachers.

What stand administrators will take on "perpetual school" is one thing, and how teachers will accept it is another. Of course offering a teacher three more months of work might change a lot of minds brought up on the summer vacation plan. One could add to the advantages that it could reduce any painful teaching shortage, too (though presently there isn't any).

Of course this means adding air-conditioning to the schools—no small cost in itself—and adding baseball to the high school sports program for the major fourth quarter sport.—JC

SHADES OF RED, white and blue! That all-American bird, the turkey, tops the U. S. Department of Agriculture's plentiful foods list for July. We got the word from the Texas Agricultural Extension Service just two days ahead of Independence Day.

Well, I wasn't expecting the turkey to be nominated for the honor this early in the year, but, even so, I'm glad it wasn't the bald eagle.

SOMEONE KIDDING me about the editorial The Dispatch recently ran against the eagle and in favor of the turkey as the national bird asked what I thought of the fact that the newly inaugurated U. S. Postal Service had adopted the eagle as its symbol. I think almost as much of it as I do the campaign in Wyoming to protect the bald eagle—which is what brought on the editorial in the first place.

Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes has announced cancellation of the trip of 1,300 Texans to Paris, Stockholm and Moscow to plead for release of American prisoners of war in Indochina, since there was little hope of the trip's success.

THAT WAS MY line of thinking from the first—that there was a little hope of such a trip meeting with any success. The Communists are using the prisoners of war as pawns in their negotiations for a settlement that will be all to their advantage, and have already shown that such appeals as the 1,300 Texans would have made is as water off a duck's back.

Where our prisoners of war are concerned, however, none of us want to come out flatly and say what will and what won't do any good, for as long as there is a glimmer of hope in any move that might obtain their release, no one wants to take a positive stand against it.

I ALSO DOUBT that many of the 1,300 Texans selected to make the trip, including Bob Collier, Giles C. McCrary and J. B. Potts, all of Post, ever thought that the journey would do any good toward gaining release of the POWs.

Lutherans plan to restore old church building

The proposed restoration and renovation of the church building purchased from the First Presbyterian Church for use as the Faith Lutheran Church was discussed at a meeting of officers of the Faith Lutheran Church recently.

The discussion came at a meeting of the church offices with the Rev. Eugene Gruell, director of missions for the Texas District of the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod.

The church building is a historical landmark and every effort will be made to restore it, unless the building proves to be basically unsound, according to a spokesman for the local Lutheran congregation.

Representing the Faith congregation at the meeting were Troy Gilmore, Harold Strofer, Raymond Bagby, Rufus Gerner of Spur and the Rev. Fred Neumann.

The Rev. Mr. Gruell, representing the Texas District office, toured Post and expressed a positive attitude toward further Lutheran

WELCOME HOME

DR. CHARLES G. TUBBS

This is a time when most towns our size find it next to impossible to attract physicians into their communities. So it is indeed gratifying to all of us to have you—a young man who grew up here in Post—return to us as a doctor to enter general practice.

We believe there is a great deal of good living in small town life—especially today when the torment of the cities has become one of this nation's problems. We believe you will enjoy establishing and building your medical practice here.

We have worked and fought as a community to maintain and operate Garza Memorial Hospital as good, small hospital. It has not been easy. Your return to Post will make its chances of survival brighter.

Again, we want you to know how pleased we are that you came back to us. We also want to welcome your wife, Ann, a registered nurse, to our community. If we can be of service to either of you in any way, just let us know.

Sincerely Yours . . .

EARLY DAYS RECALLED

Dear Editor: Reading about past days of July 4th celebrations brings back memories of the first one I ever attended with my family, the late J. V. Dyer family, and two sons-in-laws and families, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Shepherd and children and Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Manly and children, who were visiting from Clarendon. Their daughter, Ruth, now Mrs. Ira Lee Duckworth, won the prize for the prettiest baby in the baby show. That night we slept on pallets and Willella Shepherd, now Mrs. Bill Edwards of Scottsdale, Ariz., wandered away from the family pallet. She was picked up on the courthouse steps and carried until her family was located. Other things remembered from "way back yonder" are in the fall of 1905, my daddy took his binder to Graham Chapel Community to cut feed for some families. Some of which were the McMabons, the Maxeys, the Rogers, Wilburns and Harpers. When the town of Post started, people came from near and far looking for work. Many people soon began to wander west and always made it to our house for a night's lodging — the latch string always hung on the outside in "them days." One of the oddest characters, I remember, came straggling up on foot and spent the night. The next day, he rode into Tahoka with us school kids. He told us he knew where Noah's Ark was located and he was going to discover it, then he would give us all free passes to see it. We never did see the Ark, but we did see Post grow into a nice little town. I lived on a Post farm all my married life, until 1963, when we sold the farm and moved into Slaton.

PAY BILLS To Enjoy Continued CREDIT

The credit bureau's message to the consumer is simple. Pay promptly. Spelling it out clearly — never let an account go fast due without payment or immediate contact with the creditor. Never allow an account to become an item charged off to profit and loss. This means that the merchant has given up hopes of collecting and has changed your account from an asset to an expense item. The item is automatically recorded in the files of the credit bureau. There it cannot be changed — altered unless subsequent dealings with the same firm results in a better record. Never allow an account to be listed in the collection department of the credit bureau. Payment in full will result in better credit reports, but the item must remain on file for many years to come — perhaps for the rest of your life. Your credit record is a picture of your character and has been found to be an extremely accurate guide to your future actions, particularly pertaining to whether you will pay future contracts and debts. Keep your picture bright and shining and enjoy all the conveniences of the machine age. You can cut off the advantages of credit buying by disregarding or ignoring warnings of your merchant friends.

Post Library has busy June

Summer reading, for young and old alike, continues to grow in Garza County, according to the June report of the Post Public Library.

A total of 936 books, one of the biggest monthly totals on record, was the library's circulation for the month. This included 456 adult books and 480 juvenile books.

The June total brought circulation for the first six months of 1971 to 4,039.

Volunteer Librarian George L. Miller reported 82 new titles and a total of 85 new books added to the library's shelves during June. This brings acquisitions for 1971 to 357 volumes.

Overdue book files totaled $11.95 for the month raising the fine total for six months to $81.80. No books were lost or discarded during the month.

Miller said during the month 202 adult fiction books were checked out, 90 mysteries, 30 young adult books, seven westerns, 264 easy books for the smaller readers and 164 juvenile books.

Adults read 114 non-fiction books, the juveniles 52, young adults 8, and adult beginners 5.

Last year, all John Benson saved was $54.32.

This year, he joined the Payroll Savings Plan.

Poor John. Money just seemed to slip right through his fingers. Every time he planned to stash something away, there wasn't anything left.

Then John decided to join the Payroll Savings Plan where he works. Now, an amount he specifies is automatically set aside from his check before he gets it. And invested in U.S. Savings Bonds.

Because John has become such a systematic saver, he's almost forgotten about it. When he gets around to remembering, he's going to have quite a nest egg laid away.

And now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds—for E Bonds, 5 1/2% when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). That extra 1/2%, payable as a bonus at maturity, applies to all Bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older Bonds.

If you keep forgetting to save something out of your check, join the Payroll Savings Plan and let somebody else do the remembering for you.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proved way to save.

Take stock in America. Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

Total United States exports of agricultural products in the year ending June 30 should approach the $7.3 billion level, with Texas farmers seeing bright spots in cotton, grain sorghum and wheat.

Texas accounted for $422 million or about 15 per cent of the cash receipts from marketings of U. S. farm products in fiscal 1970, according to Charles K. Baker, Extension marketing specialist.

The state ranked fourth among agricultural exporting states, but it led in cotton with 29 per cent of the total and ranked second in rice with 24 per cent.

Baker points out that U. S. cotton exports for July-March 1970-71 were at 2.6 million bales — substantially above the two million bales shipped during the same period a year earlier.

Grain sorghum exports reached

153 million bushels, up from 102 million during the same period a year earlier. Wheat shipments increased to 513 million bushels, while rice exports dropped 11 per cent.

U. S. farm products exported in 1970 reached $7.2 billion, 21 per cent higher than in 1969. Commercial exports reached a record level while shipments under government programs continued to take a smaller portion of the total. Baker notes that Japan became the first billion dollar customer for U. S. farm products.

"The impact of foreign markets on economic stability in Texas agriculture is evident when we note that export sales equaled 79.5 per cent of farm cash receipts for rice, 50 per cent for wheat, 44.5 per cent for feed grains, and 33.5 per cent for cotton," he adds.

Scurry County due to get kites next month

SNYDER — At least 300 rare and endangered Mississippi kites have used a site near Snyder in Scurry County for several years as a nest area and bird watchers are hoping the "gray hawks" will come back again this year.

Birders in the area are periodically checking the nesting site. The birds, if they appear, will likely arrive sometime from mid-May to as late as July.

During fiscal 1970, U. S. agricultural imports reached $5.5 billion, showing an increase of 11 per cent over the previous year. Baker explained that there are two types of imported commodities — competitive and non-competitive.

Non-competitive items such as coffee and cocoa rose 13 per cent, while competitive items increased 10 per cent.

Imports of beef and veal totaled 1,318 million pounds and $646 million in fiscal 1970.

Baker indicated that even though lint cotton imports showed a decrease, competition was still heavy from cotton equivalents which include synthetic fibers and textiles.

LEWIS

Lewis is a predominantly Welsh surname, although it is also one of the most common family names in England, where, in most instances, it has a different origin than in Wales. In both countries, however, Lewis is a popular baptismal name used unaltered as a surname.

In Wales, Lewis is a shortened form of that most famous of all Welsh names, Llewellyn, which meant "lion-hearted." In England the name originated, in most instances, from the French personal name Louis, which evolved from the Teutonic Ludwig, meaning "famed warrior." Ludwig was a popular Teutonic given name, but with the Normans it became Louis and, when introduced into England, Lewis.

The names Lewis and Mac-Lewis, meaning "son of or descendant of Lewis," are also widespread in Scotland. The Lewises and MacLewises of that country were affiliated with the MacLeod and Stewart clans.

The name is also found in Ireland, mainly in North Ireland, where it was introduced by the Anglo-Normans and Scots. John Lewis, who was born in Ireland in 1678, emigrated to America and was the first white settler of Augusta County, Virginia.

Francis Lewis, born in Wales in 1712, was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence and a founder of the "Sons of Liberty." Other prominent Americans of the name were John L. Lewis, labor leader, and Sinclair Lewis, novelist.

Lewis is the 19th commonest surname in the United States, where it is the name of an estimated 458,000 persons, according to available records.

There are towns named Lewis in Iowa, Indiana and Kansas and counties of the name in six states, nearly all named for Meriwether Lewis, American explorer, who with William Clark headed the famous Lewis and Clark Expedition in 1803.

Tech plans swine short course

LUBBOCK — A market hog show and gilt selection contest, lectures on the latest advancements in swine production and tours of Texas Tech University's recently opened swine teaching and research facilities will highlight activities of the 19th annual Swine Short Course expected to attract more than 200 persons to the Tech campus July 8-9.

The short course, co-sponsored by Texas Tech and the Texas Pork Producers Association, will also feature something for the ladies — a "Make It Yourself With Pig Suede" workshop under sponsorship of the Texas Porkettes on July 8.

Weighing in of market hogs will get the short course under way at 8:30 a.m. Thursday (July 8), to be followed immediately by judging. Entry deadline for the market hog show is July 5, and producers are

Career plan for Texas schools

DALLAS — A two-year project which will find new ways to make the skill and dignity of the "world of work" an integral part of learning in today's "world of school" for 2.7 million young Texans was approved recently by the State Board of Education at its meeting in Dallas.

The project, "A Design for the Development of Occupational-Career Orientation," will be directed by a citizen advisory committee to include business and professional men and women as well as educators.

Texas Education Agency specialists in guidance and counseling, vocational education, and the academic areas will work directly with the citizen group to develop curriculum guidelines for all the grades, kindergarten through 12.

Work will begin in September, with a tentative program to be pilot tested in selected schools during the 1972 spring semester. Necessary changes will be made during the summer of 1972. The first complete version will be available to all schools at the beginning of the 1972-73 term.

limited to one entry each ranging in weight from 200 to 240 pounds. Date of farrow will be required.

FOR SPEAKER

State Rep. Price Daniel Jr. has announced his candidacy for Speaker of the House for the next session of the Texas Legislature. Daniel, 30, a moderate Democrat and two-term member of the House of Representatives, is the son of Price Daniel Sr., a former U. S. Senator, Governor and, presently, a Justice on the Texas Supreme Court.

Lincoln was assassinated at Ford's theatre while attending a play entitled "Our American Cousin."

Area Scouts, Explorers will attend Jamboree

LUBBOCK — Jack Baker, Lubbock city councilman and advertising executive, will head a delegation of 12 area Scouts and Explorers to the 13th World Scout Jamboree in Japan this summer.

The group from the 20-county area South Plains Council will be among 7,000 Scouts from throughout the United States attending the international event. World Jamborees, held once every four years, bring together delegations from all of the free countries of the world. Many friendships are made and new understandings created in the eight day encampment. A World Jamboree has been referred to as a "United Nations in short pants." The Panama Canal is 300 feet wide and 45 feet deep.

System of dams seen for the upper Brazos

LUBBOCK — Verbera Canyon in Garza County is one of the possible sites of a system of dams which the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers proposes to erect along the upper Brazos River, in the area sometimes referred to as the "Gypsum Province," to hold back the tons of gypsum which cause natural pollution of the river.

The Brazos River Basin of more than 44,000 square miles, or 15 per cent of the land area of Texas, is the largest intrastate watershed in the nation, and its value is limited by poor water quality.

The system of dams proposed by Army engineers would cut to a minimum the 1,250 tons salt which now flow daily out of the Possum Kingdom Reservoir near Mineral Wells and down the Brazos to its mouth near Freeport.

A Texas Tech University study team has completed an environmental impact analysis of the proposed salt water retention structures.

Their conclusion is that the environmental impact of the project on the six-county affected area "will not be great." The researchers pointed out, however, that the adverse effects of the project will be on the upstream counties while the principal benefits will be downstream.

Geological and aesthetic problems suggested some modifications to the 11-man research team, and the researchers reported that ecological changes created by the dams might be offset in part by future uses of the reservoirs.

The impoundments would be limited primarily to the sparsely settled Kent, Stonewall and King counties, Dickens, Garza and Fisher counties might also be affected.

Six different solutions were proposed by the Corps of Engineers, each comprising a different system of dams. The research team studied the environmental impact of each solution. Possible dam sites were located on the Salt Fork of the Brazos River, in Verbera Canyon in Garza County and along McDonald, Salt, Croton, Salt Croton, Stinking, Red Mud, Duck and North Croton creeks.

"Looking at the problem from a basin-wide viewpoint," the report said, "it would appear that the sacrifice of a small fraction of the water and a much smaller fraction of the land in the basin for the benefit of the rest of the basin would be a reasonable tradeoff—unless there are serious intangible adverse effects associated with the tradeoff."

In the final report, the researchers said there "are few, if any, adverse environmental effects that cannot be avoided should the proposal be implemented." The research was carried out under the direction of the Texas Tech University Water Resources Center with the support of the Corps of Engineers.

The shift of one dam was proposed to preserve the scenic quality of Stinking Creek, named for the flavor of its brackish water and without regard for its canyon beauty.

Where impoundment would cause rapid leakage and heavy silt ing because of geographic location and local geology, it was proposed that low level dams be constructed and water transferred from Croton and Salt Croton creeks to a more stable area.

While alternative solutions may possess greater potential in the future, the researchers said from an environmental impact standpoint the proposed combination of the low flow and total impoundment reservoirs is the best course of action.

They recommend as little disturbance as possible of grasses and other ground cover in the area and continued surveillance of water quality in the reservoirs to protect against pollution from runoff from chemically treated farmlands or from bacteria which would harm waterfowl.

The recreational potential of the proposed impoundments is limited the report said, because of the brackish quality of the water. There would be limited opportunities, however, for the husbandry of game birds and some game animals for public and private recreational hunting. In addition, pleasant hiking and riding trails might be established in the vicinity of the reservoirs. Some boating might be encouraged although heavy waves hitting against red, silty soil banks could cause heavy erosion. Some "second home" sites at some distance from the unstable shorelines could be developed.

No endangered species of wild-life live in the area, and although the area lies within the center of a region known as the Comanch Culture Area, no significant historical or archaeological sites would be undisturbed by the reservoirs.

Among those working on the environmental study was graduate student Robert D. Webster, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Roy Webster, Star Rt., Post.

AUTO FACTS

It's the Law . . .

UNION GOOF

When Mike was fired from his job as a mechanic, the company cited "incompetence" as the reason. But Mike thought the real reason was prejudice. At his request, the union started the grievance machinery in motion.

Eventually, the arbitrator ruled against him. But Mike, still not satisfied, decided to file a damage suit against the union itself.

"They just didn't try hard enough," he argued in court. "At the arbitration hearing, the union representatives didn't even know the facts of my case. Furthermore, they forgot to tell me the date of the hearing, so I wasn't even there. They also forgot to keep record of proceedings."

The court decided that the union had indeed fallen down on its job and would have to pay damages to Mike. The judge said a union must show reasonable diligence in standing up for the rights of its members.

Most courts agree. However, that does not mean a union is liable every time a member's grievance is turned down. As a practical matter, the law gives a union considerable leeway in deciding how to handle a particular grievance.

In another case, involving a discharged welder, the union flatly refused to ask for arbitration at all. When the man took the matter to court, the union pointed out that he had repeatedly failed to show up for work.

Thereupon, the court held that the union was exercising a legitimate discretion in not putting up a fight. A union that pushes weak grievances, said the court, would soon lose its effectiveness in pushing strong grievances.

Furthermore, a union may even be justified in favoring one group of members at the expense of another. Thus:

Two companies merged, raising the question of job seniority among their respective employees. Negotiating with management, the union worked out a compromise that left some men out of work. Could these men hold the union liable for "failing to represent" their interests?

No, said a court, so long as the union had acted in good faith. The judge said:

"The complete satisfaction of all who are represented is hardly to be expected."

Medicare deduct hiked 30 cents

Monthly social security checks for beneficiaries 65 and over who have signed up for Medicare's doctor bill insurance will be increased by 30 cents in July, John G. Hutton, social security manager in Lubbock, said today.

The checks scheduled for delivery on July 3 will have $5.60 deducted for each beneficiary to pay the increased monthly voluntary medical insurance premium. The rate for the past year was $5.30 for each beneficiary, Hutton said.

The increase was announced by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in December in accordance with a requirement in the Medicare law that makes an annual review of the costs of the medical insurance program mandatory. The law requires that the monthly premium rate be set at a point estimated to be sufficient to cover all expenses incurred during each premium period, with an allowance for contingencies.

Hutton said that the medical insurance program supplements the basic hospital insurance part of Medicare by helping to pay doctor bills and a wide variety of other medical expenses in and out of the hospital. About 19.5 million people 65 and over have enrolled for this supplementary medical insurance protection. Their monthly premiums cover half the cost of their protection. The other half comes from general Federal revenues.

Getting the most from irrigation water, especially where the supply is limited, should be the goal of every producer. In Garza County, this is being accomplished on several cotton farms, and increased profits are the result.

Applying irrigation water in the furrow between rows of skip-row cotton has boosted yields 10 to 20 per cent per acre, reports from Leon New of Lubbock, area irrigation specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. New, along with Syd Conner, Garza agricultural agent, has conducted irrigation studies the past two years on the Travis Lancaster farm and also had a test on the Virgil Bilbo farm in 1970.

Yields ranged from 24 to 82 more pounds of lint per acre where irrigation water was applied between the two rows of cotton compared to application in the skipped row in a two-in, one-out planting pattern, says New. Yield differences of 82 and 64 pounds occurred on the Lancaster farm while a 24-pound difference was noted on the Bilbo farm.

Irrigations were the same for the two water placement procedures. Either one or two irrigations of the same quantity were applied. Timely rainfall last July and August on the Bilbo farm probably minimized the yield differences from the "Between-the-cotton" irrigation.

Verticillium wilt entered into the picture as expected but did not influence yield as much as did the extra boost from having the water closer to the plants. Cotton watered between the rows had 7 to 15 per cent more wilt infected plants but yields were still higher than where water was applied in the skipped row. Cotton varieties in the tests were Paymaster 202 and Coker 4104. Similar tests are planned with more wilt tolerant varieties.

Cotton yields were boosted with limited irrigation by placing the water where more plant roots could take advantage of it, contends New. Also, plant shading reduced surface evaporation.

Irrigation water must be managed efficiently to obtain the greatest profit per acre-inch, he emphasizes. These tests show a profit of $5 to $18 more per acre by watering between the cotton rows.

Police give 14 traffic tickets during June

City police gave 13 traffic tickets during June, issued 17 additional warning tickets and worked six accidents, according to the monthly written police report made by Police Chief Otis G. Shepherd Jr. to the City Council Tuesday night.

Four tickets were written for charges of no driver licenses, two for disregarding a stop sign, five for failure to grant right-of-way to vehicle, one for driving without lights when needed, and one for not being accompanied by licensed driver in front seat.

STRETCHING IRRIGATION WATER

Syd Conner, left, Garza County agricultural agent, and Travis Lancaster discuss preplant irrigation on the Lancaster farm near Post. Conner and Lancaster have conducted a cotton irrigation demonstration the last two years that has shown increased yields of 10 to 20 per cent per acre by applying irrigation water in the furrow between rows of cotton planted in a two-in, one-out pattern. Yields were 82 and 64 pounds more per acre with the same amount of water compared to irrigating in the skipped row.

City Council—

In other actions Tuesday night, the council:

Decided to urge George Tracy to use only that portion of his property at the site of the former Alger Hotel in the 300 block East Main which is outside the city's primary fire zone, for use as a trailer park. The fire zone extends to the alley on either side of Main, and Tracy could use the half block in the fire zone for a park or entrance, it was pointed out. It was emphasized that amending the primary fire zone ordinance to permit a trailer park insurance rates for all business properties within the zone.

Passed over consideration of the city's 1971-72 budget until City Auditor Bud Davis of Lubbock has the opportunity to study it.

Passed over adoption of two ordinances closing the paving hearing pending clarification of some wording in one of the ordinances.

Voted to condemn two houses on East 5th and East 6th streets that are owned by Mrs. A. H. Moyer as fire hazards.

Voted to have several "junk cars" removed, but gave Oliver Bilberry an additional 30 days to determine what he will do with two vehicles on his property. Bilberry attended the meeting to protest.

Decided to look into the possibility of making city approval necessary before banners can be hung over city streets. The Chamber's banner on South Broadway "blew down" in Saturday night's thunderstorm. The questions of city liability and state highway regulations also were raised. The council is considering action requiring approval for such banners in the future by the council with the city putting them up and charging a fee for doing so.

Approved $500 expenses and use of a city car to send four members of the Post Volunteer Fire Department to fire school at Texas A&M. The city has been paying the expense for such training for a number of years and the council expressed itself as highly pleased with the professional ability of local firemen.

Showers—

rainfall was considerably heavier at the park and downtown.

The rainfall also was considerably heavier in much of the rural area too with an inch or more reported above the Cap and with .70 recorded at Justiceburg.

The first shower made for a delightful evening with the temperature dropping from the 100 mark down to the low 80s in a matter of minutes.

The park drains so well into the lake that the shower caused very little inconvenience except for those who got soaked before deciding to take cover.

Church pastors were called Saturday night after the second of the storms moved back in and forced cancellation of the fireworks display just shortly before it was to have started.

Announcements were made from the church pulpits at Sunday services concerning the plan for the Sunday evening fireworks and the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal was also notified.

So a good crowd was on hand—almost as big as the ones which stay after the barbecue—to see the fireworks set off over the lake by Post Jayces.

The crowd didn't gather as early, due to the later planned serving of the barbecue, but two or three hundred spent the afternoon in the park enjoying the free entertainment from a "three-truck stage" arranged by Bill McBride. The game booths, and the kids had a lot of fun with water polo as provided by fire department hoses.

Babe Ruth All-Stars picked for district tourney

Josey, Dudley, Redman are trophy winners

The 15-player Post Babe Ruth League all-star squad, announced last week to represent Post in the district tournament at Brownfield, Texas, July 19, was about as strong as is possible for only teams.

The Cubs, Braves, and White Sox each placed four players on the squad and the Indians three. Other Cub and another White Sox player were chosen as alternates.

The all-star squad is comprised of Jay Pollard, David Conoly, Tony Sappington and Macky Sappington of the league champion Cubs; Steve Duren, Mark Terrell and Garland Dudley of the White Sox; and John Redman, Joe Perez, Richard Dudley, Tom Owen and Tommy Garza of the Indians.

The two alternates are Ronnie Adams of the White Sox and Abraham of the Cubs.

The all-star squad will be managed by Nick Pantoja, who guided the Cubs to the championship. Ed Valdez, manager of the runner-up Braves, will be the coach.

At the awards presentation ceremony last week, Ted Williams, the league's best sportsman trophy to Randy Josey of the Indians and the trophy for the best all-around 13-year-old tournament at Lamesa beginning Monday.

John Redman was the league batting champion with an even .500 batting average for the season.

Williams also presented the championship team trophy to the Cubs.

He announced that the 13-year-old players in the league (the youngest age bracket) are eligible for the Posts quad which will compete in a district Babe Ruth 13-year-old tournament at Lamesa, beginning Monday.

Robert Fagin, White Sox manager, will manage this team and will be assisted by John Redman, manager of the Indians.

The special tourney for 13-year-olds is being held this year because so few of the first year Babe Ruth league players develop fast enough to make various all-star squads in competition with older boys.

Cubs win Babe Ruth loop flag

The Cubs won the Babe Ruth League championship for 1971 by sweeping a pair of makeup games from the cellar-dwelling Indians, 16 to 3 and 7 to 0, last Thursday and Friday nights.

The two games completed the league's schedule.

Although he failed to get a hit in either game, Pitcher-catcher John Redman of the Indians wound up with the league's batting crown with an even .500 average — which means he got a hit every two times he went to the plate this season.

The Cubs came up with an 11-run fourth inning in the first of the makeup games. They put together seven hits in the big explosion, including a homerun by shortstop David Conoly, with four walks.

All told the Cubs banged out 12 hits with Macky Sappington coasting home for the win, giving up only four hits to the Indians. Jackie Blacklock took the loss.

Ray Martinez got three hits in four trips for the winners, and Conoly, Jay Pollard, Noah Abraham, and Joe Clary all got two hits each.

In the clincher Friday night, Conoly and Martinez divided the mound duties for the Cubs, permitting only one hit between them — a single by Wesley Redman in the second. Conoly started and was the winner.

The Cubs sacked up the title with a five-run burst in the second when pitcher John Redman walked the first five batters he faced. A double by Pollard and a single by Sappington, and another walk figured in the scoring before Steve Hays got the side out after relieving Redman.

The Indians managed only three hits off the offerings of Redman, Hays and Randy Josey.

Grass one of best pollution control devices, Bailey Mayo of SCS reports

Grass is one of the most effective pollution control and air conditioning devices that nature has to offer. One acre of grass releases about 100 gallons of water on a summer day through evaporation and transpiration," according to Bailey Mayo, head of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service office in Post. "This much evaporation equals the cooling effect of a 70-ton air conditioner. And grass is ideal for erosion control, beautification and animal forage."

Mayo said grasses vary widely within individual species. There may be dozens of strains of side-oats grama, for example, growing within an area of only a few counties. These variations are caused by differences in climate, soils, elevation and other factors.

SCS conducts a constant search for superior strains of grasses and other plants, Mayo said. "What we're looking for are strains of grasses that will help solve some specific environmental problems," Mayo explained. "In Texas, we need grasses that will thrive on several drouthy soils; cool season plants that will extend the grazing season; and plants that will provide forage for livestock while also providing better food and cover for more kinds of wildlife."

Mayo added that conservationists also need salt tolerant grasses that will grow on a wide variety of problem sites, forbs and woody plants useful to wildlife and livestock that can be planted in range seeding mixtures, and water-tolerant plants that will curb wave action on earthen dams.

To help coordinate the search for better plants, SCS operates 20 plant materials centers in the United States. One is located in Texas at Knox City. Scientists at these centers grow and evaluate plants from all over the world to help find strains that will solve specific problems.

The most recent grass selected and put into use by SCS plant materials work in Texas is Selection 75 Kleingrass. Released in 1966 the plant is a leafy, highly palatable grass that is now being grown
