No Halloween prank

Halloween rural vandalism around Post continues to be a serious problem.

The thousand dollar loss of a storage shed filled with cottonseed, parts, and equipment early Monday morning could easily have spread and nearby fuel tanks caught fire.

Fire bombing in the countryside is no kid prank. It is a felony offense which has a prison sentence for a penalty.

The "outhouse burning on West Main" has grown from a local Halloween tradition into an evil rural menace.

Empty homes and barns have been fired in recent years. But usually they are not empty but are used for storage and valuable property is uselessly destroyed.

It's time to stop it now before it gets out of hand and some difficult decisions have to be made.

We think the kids involved can understand this. Surely, they must understand that there is no percentage in becoming a criminal for a bit of "halloween fun."

A tragedy could easily occur any Halloween if so-called "pranksters" happened upon guarded property. It's the kind of an ugly confrontation any community wishes to avoid.

Community action project

Garza County's 1977 United Fund drive to raise $10,675 for 10 participating agencies moved into full swing this week with the hope that folks will dig into their pockets and get the fund raising completed before Thanksgiving.

The "all in one" drive here isn't a long planned effort with an army of workers, regular "reporting dinners" and a lot of expense involved.

The Garza United Fund has budgeted $50 for expenses, but probably won't spend that. Just about 25 workers will do the asking with the pledge cards.

The drive works just about the same way year after year. Some community areas — most of them really — give excellent response. The ones which don't are those which need far greater organization and effort to achieve a suitable response.

The United Fund does its screening job well too. And that's important.

The budget committee receives the requests of each participating agency, interviews the representatives of that agency on the needs involved, and then decided from an overall standpoint how much to give to whom.

The United Fund organization, though it consists really only of a board of directors of community spirited folks who have to be talked into accepting the assignment, tries to respond to community needs and to listen to the wishes of the community.

That probably has had a lot to do with the past success of the United Fund here.

For the last seven years it has gone "over the top" of its annual goal and paid participating agencies 100 percent of their approved amounts.

It always has a little money left in the bank. And it even offers that to any organization which needs it on an emergency basis any time during the year.

An application to fund directors for such emergency funds will bring a called meeting and a decision. Several times in recent years fund directors have acted in what they consider "community interest" and thus saved an emergency fund-raising of one kind or another from cropping up.

Many smaller communities don't have such a good United Fund record. They can't make their fund goals and the whole operation falls apart because participating organizations must be funded one way or another.

Garza owes its good fund record to a group of community minded folks who respond year after year with either board participation or regular fund raising assignments — or in many instances both.

The only problem with United Funding is to be sure one doesn't miss, doesn't fall short of the goal, and start to slip. That's why making the $10,675 goal this year is every bit as important as making that goal last year.

There are many in the community the United effort does not reach simply because the effort here is concentrated upon reaching them on the job, and for many this is a difficult assignment.

That is why each year the appeal is made for those who believe in the United Fund as an essential community effort, and who are not contacted to volunteer their contributions.

That is why each year those who raise their contributions voluntarily are so appreciated. Fund workers do not really attempt to tell the giver what his or her share is. That is up to the individual.

We do point out that 10 different organizations will divide your contribution into slices. So a dollar donation if divided evenly although the budget doesn't work this way, would mean only 10 cents per agency.

There are some firms whose employees are 100 percent givers. These are really appreciated because an obvious all-out effort to cooperate has been made in these instances.

The United Way is the way any community puts it all together. It's United giving time again — and just before Thanksgiving, the time for us to put our dollars into a single pot for 10 different agencies which reach into this community and touch our lives and especially the lives of our children again and again.

LETTERS To the Editor

ANIMAL NEGLECT

Dear Editor:

I would like to comment on the way some of the FFA boys neglect their animals at the FFA barns. I'm sure that everyone that knows about and has seen this situation agrees that if a boy can't, or just won't take care of their FFA animals, or whatever else the reasons may be, then get rid of them. These animals are penned and have no means of getting to food or water.

This is not the first boy that has neglected his animals however. Another boy badly neglected his animals a couple of months ago to the point you could see the pigs ribs, hip bones and back bone. Now how many people ever see that happen when an animal is fed and watered properly? The purpose of these animals, is to have a project, and to learn how to take on the responsibility of taking care of what belongs to you. I have, and I am sure others have, fed these starving pigs to keep from seeing them beg.

But regardless of how I feel, or others feel about the needs of animals, you are in FFA, and you are old enough to realize that these are your pigs, and you have enough money for a car and gasoline, and it seems you have enough time to run around, so I am sure that neither time or money is the problem here. Numerous complaints are coming in to the Ag teachers concerning this problem, and I understand that appeals to the boy and parents have been to no avail. I am appealing to the parents of these boys, and also to the boys themselves to take a little time out of each day and check your animals for feed and water, or if you don't have the time, I'm sure that if you bought the feed, someone else would be glad to help out in feeding them for you at times when you are unable to do so.

But for others to have to feed them and water them on an almost regular basis if they are to get fed or watered, is ridiculous since you are old enough to know better. Please, parents, check and see if your sons are tending to their animals, and if not, help teach them to do this, or see that they sell their animal to someone that will take care of them.

The Fellowship Hall was decorated with harvest orange and several jack-o-lanterns "smiled" upon the scene with their candle light. The youngsters joined in a pin-the-tail-on-the-donkey contest; Kim and Odom and Lisa Holly tied in the older group.

Everyone had sandwiches, chips, Halloween-decorated cookies and hot chocolate.

Adults of the church provided the food and treats. Those present were Edgar L. Fox, minister, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Crane, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Wartes, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Hudman, Mrs. Doll Haire, Mrs. L. C. Eilenberger, Mrs. Levi Williams and Mrs. Bea Dodson.

Fashion showing set for Nov. 23

Are you interested in home sewing and current fashion trends? Then Tuesday, Nov. 23, 2:30 p. m. Reddy Room should be marked on your calendar. The latest fashion silhouettes, fabrics and colors for women will be the main topic.

This year, fashion is up to you. The designers have come up with collections of fashions that give you many options. There's no one look, there are many. And each look is easily changed, because fashions are so versatile this year. You can be dressed in a classic one day, a peasant dress the next. You can mix parts at will, and come up with an entirely different look. Yes, fashion this year is up to you.

And what is even better news is that this year, more than ever, all fashion is available to the woman who sews. There are fabrics and notions that were never before sold over the counter, and there are new patterns and sewing methods developed that make sewing these fashions more easy and better. That's what this program is about — showing the fashion choices you have, and how to sew the fashions you choose for you and your family.

The Vogue-Butterick Fashion Showing is sponsored by the Garza County Family Living Committee under the direction of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Everyone is invited to attend. There will be no charge for attending.

President's award to three

Coach Giddens health classes and the girls P.E. classes took the President's physical fitness test last week.

Each student had to compete in the shuttle run, pull-ups, sit-ups, the 60 yard run, the fifty yard dash, and the standing broad jump. The students were graded with percentages for their age.

Those receiving a president's award with an 85 percent or above were: Alice Harper, Raymona Taylor, and Jodine Tipton.

Those receiving a merit award which is 75 percent or better were: Gloria Espinoza, Carita Wood, Bernice Perez, Olga Hernandez, Brenda Weaver and Randall Wyatt.

A fifty percent or better will win a standard award for these people: Rita Varela, Penny Shedd, Gloria Greathouse, Terri Taylor, Beth Elliott, Donna Simecek, Bobbie Thompson, Wade McDougal, Matt Allison, and Vickie Gannon.

Halloween Eve has goblins

Ghosts and goblins were spooking around in the old Algieria Hotel Saturday night. The spooks came out on Halloween Eve this year, and made a lot of people's hair stand on end.

The real truth is that the Explorer's club worked hard all last week getting the Algieria back in working order. There were a few holes here and there, but the club patched them up.

Admission to the club spookhouse was 50 cents, and from the size of the crowd the group must have done quite well.

The cast in the spook house included: witches, a man without a body, Count Dracula, vampires, a gypsy fortune teller, zombies, a hanged man, and several just spooky-looking characters.

Coach Greg Eubanks is the Explorer club sponsor, and was the brain behind the spook house.

News from Post High School

LOPES FIRED UP — Where is the heater? This was a question that a lot of fans asked at the last pep rally. The Antelope team wasn't cold at all, but was ready to beat the fire out of Denver City. — (High School Photo)

Youthoughts
BY TRACY McALISTER

Well, Halloween came and went Sunday and along with it came a lot of trick or treaters. The kids came dressed like everything you can imagine. At my door, came a bunny, a fairy princess, Casper, Popeye, a hobo, a goblin, etc. Halloween is the only time of year, when I wish that I was six again.

If anyone of you parents have a picture or a story on a Post High graduating senior and would like to see it in The Post Dispatch please contact me at the Dispatch or at my home. My name and number are in the phone book.

The Drama Club has gone to great lengths to put on its presentation of 'Life with Father'.

All in all, the money the club has spent is around $200. The club had to buy paint to fix the flats, lumber to brace the walls, and things like make-up, food, material for costumes, and dishes.

AND NOW THE BIG PRODUCTION GOES ON!!!!

For the Drama Club to make any money off of this play, we must have a full house.

Cold pep rally warms spirit up

Everyone was standing out in the cold drizzling rain to wish the Antelopes to do well at last week's clash with Denver City. The excitement took place in the bank parking lot.

A fire-engine escorted the Antelope buses to the parking lot while everyone was cheering them on.

The band played the fight song as the team got off the buses. Then the cheerleaders did a couple of yells to get the spirit going. The band then played the school song while everyone began to sing. At the end of the pep rally, everyone's adrenal was flowing so fast that no one was cold at all, and everyone only thought about an Antelope victory Friday night.

The play is based on a factual novel by Clarence Day, and recollections of his early life with his family. The play has laughs all the way through it as Father and Vinnie take to their battle stations.

So remember tomorrow night at 8:00, we are expecting YOU to be at the primary auditorium.

work has gone into this play, and we want you to see our work.

There are members of the cast who had to have a costume made, and so if a relative couldn't sew for them, they had to find someone who could.

The cast has been learning blocking and lines for about six weeks.

AND NOW THE BIG PRODUCTION GOES ON!!!!

For the Drama Club to make any money off of this play, we must have a full house.

Ricky thinks HECE job rewarding

Ricky Sanchez is working at Western Auto on the HECE program this year and really enjoys it. "I enjoy my job because I get a chance to be around other people and I don't have to work in a factory type situation," says Ricky.

Ricky says that he really hasn't decided what he will do when he graduates from high school. He does say that he is thinking about going to a technical school, and if he does the job that he is learning now, it can help him in that field.

Ricky says, "This training will also aid me in finding a job, to help put me through school, because I will have experience in stocking, taking care of equipment, and waiting on customers."

Ricky thinks the HECE program is worthwhile because it enables students to make some money while in school and lets the student get job experience.

Irish visitors—

returned to Post Nov. 1. They toured New Mexico, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, California, Arizona, and Texas.

They were particularly overwhelmed by Disneyland and Miss O'Connor said "San Francisco was everything that I thought it would be."

On their trip they took a picture of a sign that said "Last chance, 107 miles to next stop." "People back home just won't believe it without the proof," one said, adding, "in Ireland, five miles is the greatest distance to the next town."

"The people are all so friendly and really sincere about it," Miss O'Connor said. "It's really fantastic."

Another thing that really impressed them was the portions of food served in America. "They're so much larger than in Ireland. But the steak and potatoes, which are bigger here than Ireland, are just scrumptious."

Anyone talking to these two visitors could tell they were so impressed and excited and anxious to return again.

Miss O'Connor is a telephonist (telephone operator) for the Department of State and Tierney is a fruit and vegetable salesman.

The two were only sorry that they didn't have more time to spend in Post. Especially they wanted to visit a ranch. They always thought the cowboys went out with the 1890's and were just awed to see some walking down the street. They also had never seen cotton fields.

The first morning they were here, Tierney was looking out the back door of Father Jim's home and saw this big black monster going up and down and said "What the blazes is that?" It turned out to be an oil well.

Tony Rosas in 'Kangaroo II'

Navy Operations Specialist Third Class Antonio Rosas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Antonio N. Rosas Jr. of 318 North Ave. H. Post, Tex., is participating in Exercise "Kangaroo II", the largest peacetime training operation ever held in Australia.

He is a crew member aboard the amphibious command ship USS Blue Ridge, homeported in San Diego.

He is one of more than 32,000 sailors, Marines, soldiers and airmen from the U. S., Australia and New Zealand (ANZUS) taking part in the three-week exercise. The trination exercise, involving more than 40 ships and nearly 250 aircraft, is designed to test and evaluate plans for combined ANZUS operations in a simulated combat environment.

"Kangaroo II" is being conducted in the Tasman and Coral Seas and along the eastern Australian coast. It centers on a major amphibious landing by U. S. forces and a subsequent link-up of the assault units with Australian and New Zealand ground forces for follow on, combined land operations.
