Muleshoe Sewing Plant To Relocate Yard Watering Ban Invoked By City Move To Result In Larger Operation

"Please stop watering your yards NOW, until further notice," Mayor Alex Williams said in an emergency statement Saturday morning.

"We have enough water to keep household water supplied, and will have, as long as people will cooperate by not watering their yards during this critical situation of water shortage."

City officers investigated a report of marital dispute in which the wife was hit by a car driven by her husband. The accident took place at 8:15 p.m. Friday night. The pregnant woman was taken by ambulance to the local hospital for observation. The husband was released from jail Saturday morning with a fine of $52.50.

The Texas Society of Certified Public Accountants held their state wide meeting Sunday, Monday and Tuesday of this past week in Houston. Those attending from Muleshoe were Mr. and Mrs. Alex Williams, Mr. and Mrs. David Sudduth and Mr. and Mrs. Creston Faver.

Mrs. Vowery Dodd fell at the Dodd's swimming pool dislocating her shoulder. She spent one night in the hospital and is now staying with her parents.

When out for a drive around downtown Muleshoe, note the newly painted Sante Fe depot at the end of Main Street. It was painted Monday and Tuesday this week.

A horticultural and vegetable disease and insect clinic will be held at the city water storage tank.

June Wheat Harvest Below Average Yield

The good news of the highest wheat prices in history that brightened the 1973 bumper crop is being tempered this year for Bailey County and the Muleshoe wheat farmers.

Adding a good hunk in Texas decreased wheat production from a record 98.6 million bushels in 1973 to an expected 63 million bushels, experts add that this "just wasn't meant to be a wheat crop year - either in production or quality wheat."

Most of the decrease is due to the failure of the dryland wheat crop on the Texas High Plains because of the drought conditions, USDA statistics report. Area farmers realize those conditions, and even the irrigated wheat is producing much less.

ASCS Office Signs 608 Cotton Aid

The Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation office received 608 applications from cotton operators for federal disaster payment assistance by deadline time late Thursday, June 20, ASCS manager John Fuston told the Journal.

The 608 requests from people who did not get to plant cotton the first time -- "got no seed in the ground" -- compare with the approximately 900 operators of cotton acreage. The majority of the 608 were from south of the sandhills, Fuston added.

"The cotton situation is bad, maybe not quite as bad as the wheat," Fuston said.

Approximately 90,000 acres were planted in cotton in 1973, with only 40,000 actually planted was operating out of the lower bottom of the tank on Friday afternoon, though the stand pipes were full, Major Williams said the decision had to be made to cut water consumption. Gardens may be watered a minimum amount, but the council would appreciate not watering flower beds and yards until notified that the water supply is ample.

"We have, and have had, water supply on storage sufficient for the city usage and emergencies, and we intend to keep it that way," the mayor commented.

Some days the water consumption doubled with a 100 percent increase, comparing the month of June 1973 and 1974, Councilman Clarence Christian said Friday.

The months of June 1972 and 1973 consumption was one and one half million gallons per day, while the past several weeks in June 1974 water consumption has averaged 3 million gallons per day.

Break-In Reported At Parts Store

A. V. Wood, owner of Muleshoe Auto Parts, reported Thursday morning that the business was broken into sometime Wednesday night. Approximately $1,500 in merchandise was taken.

Entry had been gained by removing a window pane at the back of the building leaving a hole large enough for a medium size man to crawl through. The back door could then be unlocked from the inside. A vehicle probably was backed up to the back door.

Wood reported "no finger prints or clues had been found of yet."

Taken were home and automobile stereo equipment and

Junk Car Assistance Requested By Police

Notice to owners of abandoned or junked vehicles within the city limits of Muleshoe was given by the Chief of Police Claude A. (Buddy) Black.

These vehicles must be removed or disposed of within ten days after notification as they are in violation of the City Code's Health, Safety and Nuisance section. They are also in violation of state law.

The Chief of Police asks the cooperation of all persons, firms or corporations when officers check on such abandoned or junked vehicles.

"We have a job to do in enforcing the ordinance and we surely need and will appreciate the cooperation of all concerned," Chief Black emphasized. Black said there were approximately 200 such vehicles within the city limits. Persons desiring the police department to remove the vehicles will be assisted in pick up and disposal immediately if the owner will supply the department title of ownership.

Any person violating any provisions of the city code in regard to abandoned and junked motor vehicles is guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction in municipal court, can be fined up to $200.

Also to be observed and checked by officers will be old and abandoned refrigerators, freezers and iceboxes that can be sealed up. Prosecution under city ordinance requiring their removal and disposal is the same as with the vehicles, with a one dollar to $200 fine for non-removal and non-disposal.

Definition of an abandoned vehicle is a motor vehicle that is inoperable and over eight years old which is left unattended on public property for more than 48 hours, or a motor vehicle that has remained on private property without the consent of the owner, or person in control of the property without the consent of the owner or person in control of the property for more than 48 hours.

Directors Stress Hospital Board Open Meetings

The board of directors of the West Plains Memorial Hospital has announced that all regular meetings of the board will be open to the public. Not only are they open to the public, but interested persons are invited to attend.

Because of the interest in hospital facilities and planning in the Muleshoe area, it is a sound policy, both for the hospital and the persons interested in hospital development.

The regular meetings will be held on the second and fourth Monday of each month at 8 p.m.

Eight Cars Derailed In Train Accident

"It looked like a big ball of fire," Lucky Spurlock, manager of Protein Processors, Inc., said as he described his observations of the derailment of eight freight cars late Wednesday night near the company's plant on Highway 84.

Referred to was one of the wheels which had a burned "hotbox" on one of the freight cars involved in the Sante Fe train accident which took place approximately three miles east of Muleshoe.

Horace Holt, Sante Fe agent, said that the "hotbox" was due to a wheel which was oil dry. When the oil burned off, the axle burned into also, then it dropped to the ground and caused derailment of the car. This caused one derailment and seven more freight cars then jumped the tracks, Holt speculated.

The east-bound freight's plight was reported, luckily by passing fireman from Muleshoe. Sparks set off three or four grass fires in the vicinity of the derailment.

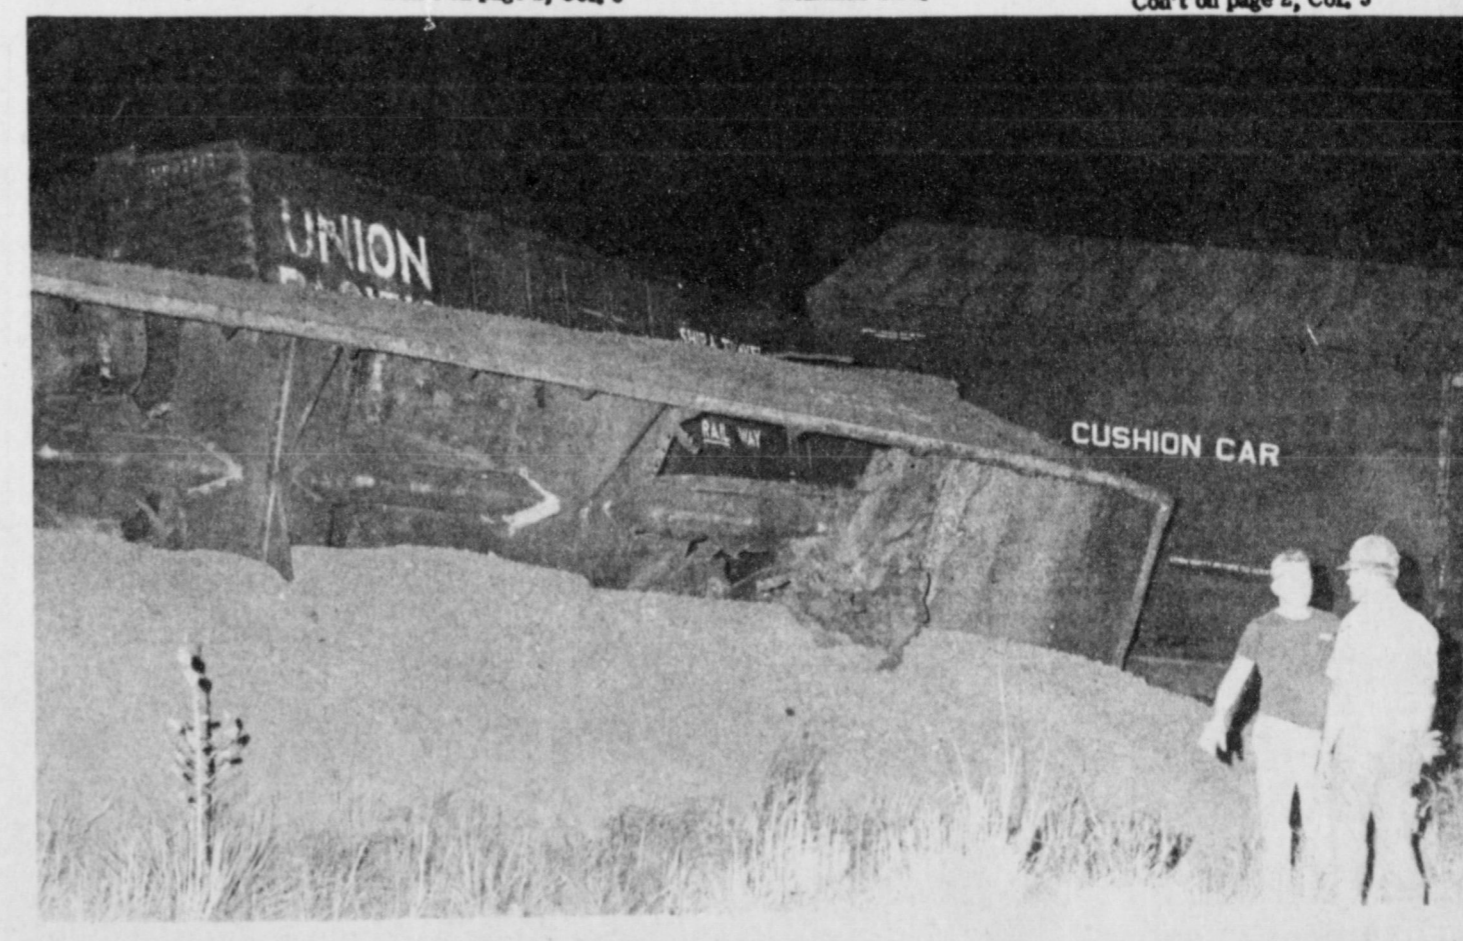

Among the cars derailed was a Dow Chemical tank car, which furnished local firemen their first experience with a deadly chemical being involved in a fire, Chief Earl Ladd told the Journal.

An emergency long distance call was made to Houston by the fire department and within 20 minutes firemen were notified that the tank car, now safely empty, had contained the chemical product styrene which is used in insulation and is a producer of extreme heat.

Three cars, none broken in the derailment, contained respectively, wine, tires and cement aggregate ore. Other cars were empty. J.E. McDowell, special agent for the Sante Fe Railroad, Amarillo district office, was investigator of the accident. A Sante Fe wrecker and derrick crane crews from Amarillo and Clovis, N.M., did pick-up and attended to clearing the track on Thursday morning with operations "all clear"

Announcement was made this week by local manager Leroy Spring that the Muleshoe garment factory of Hensley, Russell, Inc. of Dallas, will double its operations here.

Spring said that an August move to larger quarters will facilitate enlarged production and necessitate doubling the number of employees.

To close from August 5 to August 19, the factory will move into the building formerly occupied by Johnson Furniture, and Williams Office Supply, in the 300 block of Main Street. Size of new quarters is approximately 8,000 square feet, compared to the factory's present 3,700 square feet.

The doubled space will allow 40 more operators, increasing the total operators to 80, Spring said.

New machinery including sewing machines, button holers and sewers, seemers, hemmers, pressers will be installed. Remodeling will include airconditioning, rewiring and relighting, for the sewing factory divisions, with loading docks to be built, as well as offices and lounges.

Production will double here for the Dallas office firm which has another factory in Cameron, Texas. Charles Wickersham, manager of the Cameron plant, was in Muleshoe this week to assist in planning the move to new quarters.

The garment production factory opened in Muleshoe Sept. 5, 1972, with nine machine operators on hand for the first day. Wickersham was in charge of the opening here with several supervisors from the Cameron plant also here to help put production underway.

The factory manufacturers "Suzanne of Dallas" line of children's clothing, which are retailed through Sears, Roebuck & Co., J.C. Penny Co., Montgomery Ward and other stores,

Secret Witness

Reward $300

The Secret Witness -- or witnesses -- to the vandalism of Muleshoe schools and some 25 Muleshoe businesses on May 8 can reap an increased reward, $300, for information leading to arrest and conviction of those guilty.

On May 12, concerned Muleshoe businessmen offered a reward of $250. This amount has been increased by $50, for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the guilty parties or party responsible for the willful destructions.

BB guns or air rifles were used to shoot out some 65 windows on that Wednesday night last month. The businesses and schools' windows were the targets.

Damage was estimated to be approximately $8,000.

In submitting information, names will be held confidential.

Any person having information in regard to this Secret Witness case is asked to contact the Law Enforcement Center of telephone 272-4268, in Muleshoe.

Commissioners Special Session Set June 24

A special session of the Bailey County commissioner's court has been called for Monday, June 24 at 10 a.m.

The purpose of the special called meeting is to consider the proposals that have been submitted by the land appraisal companies for the re-evaluation of county taxes, County Judge Williams said.

Hospital Drive Needs Volunteers

A door-to-door drive to raise $300,000 for the West Plains Memorial Hospital Action Fund has been announced for Monday, July 1. Ivan Woodard, minister, 6th and Avenue D, Church of Christ, will head the campaign for the Hospital Citizens' Committee.

Kickoff will be from a meeting to be held at the Corral Restaurant at 7:30 p.m. July 1, with the assignments and lists distributed before the volunteer workers make the drive that evening.

Volunteers - women, men or teenagers - are needed and are asked to contact Mr. Woodard at 272-4664.

Muleshoe and area clubs are being asked to participate in the fund-raising project, Mrs. J.E. McVicker, president of the Muleshoe Nursing Home and Hospital Auxiliary, said.

Preliminary plans and details for a new hospital and improvements of existing facilities are to be announced in the near future. Announcement of an architect is also expected to be made at a later date.

erage irrigated wheat yield is running in the 20-30 bushel per acre vicinity with a few top yields of the fortunate ranging as high as 40 bushels. Last year's irrigated yields were ranging 60, and above, bushels per acre on irrigated land.

In dryland farming areas yield last year were in the 20 bushel vicinity. This year top yield is running only 10 bushels to zero per acre on non-irrigated land. And some irrigated land is producing less than 10-13 bushels per acre the elevator operators say.

County ASCS office manager John Fuston told the Journal this week that there were 300,000 acres seeded to wheat last September in Bailey County. The office estimates that only 5,000 acres is producing or is fit for harvesting.

Fuston said that yields were down from 40 to 60 per cent from last year's bumper crops. Nationally, winter wheat production is estimated 1.5 billion bushels, a five percent drop from May figures.

"The county will probably be declared a disaster area,"

Fuston said, Appraisals determine wheat acreage's complete failure or low yield in order to qualify under the government crop disaster program.

"The drought conditions due to lack of moisture during the growing period, no snow or refilling of underground water reserves this season, the hot, dry weather and winds, plus an onslaught by greenbugs on some fields last fall after planting, are the reasons listed by Farmer's Cooperative Elevator Manager Lonnie White. Disappointing yields and generally light weight in quality were his evaluation of the 1973 wheat harvest.

In regard to wheat quality, Ben Yeager at Texas Sesame Growers, Inc., said that the light test weight is ranging from number two to four, down to some sample grades this year. Some number one wheat is being received, he added.

Wheat was quoted by local elevators around $4.00 Friday afternoon compared with last year's record of near $6.00. Price quotes before harvest was around $3.00, elevator operators added.

The good price being paid for the commodity is of little consolation to the farmer whose crop raising and harvesting expenses have risen drastically since last year.

The lack of fall, winter and spring rains and snow largely is responsible for loss of the wheat crop, severe damage was done by wheat streak mosaic virus, a disease that cut yields in many places, and the greenbugs which had to be sprayed to save the crop.

Mid-May's hot weather and dry winds literally helped cook the emerging wheat grains and helped destroy much of the crop, especially in the dryland areas.

Worry Free

... is a great description for people who own electric water heaters. They don't worry about things like waiting for hot water when they want to do the laundry, or wash the dishes or things like that, because they know their electric water heater is fast recovery. They don't worry about service either, because they know we have over 100 trained people to provide any service that may be needed. Why don't you find out how great it is to be worry-free and how you can own an ELECTRIC water heater!

I read these verses in a memorial service and think we should also apply them to our lives and thoughts. "God has not promised skies always blue, flower strewn pathways all our life through; God has not promised sun without rain, joy without sorrow, peace without pain. But God has promised, strength for the day, rest for the labor, light for the way, grace for the trails, help from above unfailing sympathy undying love"

John Tower United States Senate

As most of you know, I am dedicated to the principle that a strong national defense by this country is the best guarantee for peace throughout the world. Because of this, I am pleased with the speed and statesmanship shown this week when the Senate passed the authorization bill for the defense budget for the coming year. Because of the success in keeping the main sections of the bill intact on the Senate floor, I believe we are in far better position than in recent years as the Senate and House meet to work out differences in the two versions of the bill.

Of major interest to Texans is the provision in the Senate bill for $220.5 million for the procurement of twelve F-111F aircraft even though it was not requested by the Air Force. These aircraft will be used to maintain the strength of warfare aircraft. Additionally, keeping this production line open will give this country an option should the B-1 strategic bomber fail to live up to expectations, or should it become too costly. Included in the F-111 authorization is $15 million for long lead time items in anticipation of another aircraft buy next year.

Another Texas-produced aircraft, the A-7D, was included for possible funding by the Senate. The A-7 is a close air support aircraft in competition against a new plane under development, the A-10.

While both the A-7 and A-10

drop bombs in support of troops on the ground, they do the job differently because of their different designs. It has been the feeling of Congress for the past few years that there should be a fly-off between the established aircraft -- that is, the A-7 -- and the newcomer, the A-10. The Air Force has conducted that contest and will report to Congress later this month.

The Senate version of the defense bill authorizes about $190 million to buy whichever aircraft wins the competition. However, the House version provides money for the A-10 plus funds to buy twenty-four A-7D's to modernize the Air National Guard. Therefore, this will be an item the Senate and House conferees will have to discuss when they meet to resolve their differences.

In other action the Senate defeated attempts to force re-development of U.S. troops from overseas. I am particularly pleased that these efforts were voted down, because I feel that it would be dangerous to unilaterally withdraw our forces from overseas stations. The United States currently is engaged in talks with the Russians on mutual reduction of forces in Europe. It is hardly wise for us, prior to an agreement, to withdraw any forces on our own. The Soviets then would have no reason to negotiate. And clearly, as far as Asia is concerned, U.S. withdrawal without negotiated agreements with potential aggressors would be ill-advised. Another amendment that would have posed some danger to our ability to defend ourselves would have halted funding of research and development on improved nuclear weapons for our minuteman missiles. These improved missile warheads would have profound effects on nuclear strategy, for they would significantly reduce collateral civilian casualties. Additionally, these warheads when developed permit the United States to maintain approximate parity with the Soviet Union.

The Russians currently are modernizing their strategic nuclear forces with four new nuclear missiles and multiple independently -- targetable re-entry vehicles, known as MIRV's. If we are unable to reach an agreement in SALT II, it will be essential for us to have on-going modernization programs such as this one for improved missile warheads.

Senator Kennedy sponsored amendments that would have curtailed American aid to Vietnam. I opposed this action because continuation of this aid is important in that country. I cannot understand how one could contemplate casting aside the sacrifice of over 50,000 American lives and billions of dollars now that communist aggression is being successfully met by the South Vietnamese themselves. To deprive them of the means to resist continued communist pressure is to me unconscionable.

I am convinced the Senate-passed defense bill will give the United States a good chance to develop and procure the kinds of modern weapon systems essential to meet any treat in the world today. Even though it is essential that we keep and maintain a modern weapons system, it is important to remember that such a system is only as good as the men behind it. I am pleased with the progress that has been made in recruiting for the all-volunteer force. I believe that we are getting the quality men we need in the service and recent increases in enlistments convince me that we will come close to our yearly recruiting goals.

No Authority On Cigarettes

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission today said it lacks authority and jurisdiction to set mandatory tar levels for cigarettes.

On February 1, 1974, the Commission received a petition from the American Public Health Association and Senator Frank E. Moss (D., Utah).

The petition requested that the Commission promulgate a rule which bans from sale interstate commerce cigarettes as a "banned hazardous substance" as that term is defined in Section two (a) (1) (B) of the Federal Hazardous Substances Act.

At its Executive Session, May 16, 1974, the Commission, by majority vote, decided that it lacks jurisdiction and authority to take the action requested in the petition.

And the Commission said no further action on the petition will be taken. The decision was based on a number of materials including the Commission's General Counsel's analysis of the Hazardous Substances Act, the Consumer Product Safety Act and their legislative histories; and analysis by the General Accounting office; and others. All of those materials are available in the CPSC Office of the Secretary.

A THIRSTY LAND

Men have a thirst and a longing for goodness and righteousness. Even the most parched soul is touched by acts of kindness, forgiveness, and love. Jesus said, "Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life."

May all who are thirsty for a oneness with man and with God find satisfaction and fulfillment by attending church

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Farmers May Battle Banks Grass Mites

LUBBOCK-- A much-feared pest of corn and sorghum has made an unusually early appearance this 1974 crop season, and entomologists predict that farmers may have a battle on their hands.

The pest is the Banks grass mite, which damages corn and sorghum by sucking plant juices, causing general desiccation (drying out) of the plant. This year, according to Dr. Robert McIntyre, Lubbock-based entomologist, all conditions are highly favorable for development of mite populations - hot, dry windy weather.

A member of the spider family, the mite is invisible without magnification and first signs of its presence are drying leaves with wedging.

McIntyre, who is an area specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says that during the past two weeks reports of the Banks grass mite or spider mite infestations on seedling corn and sorghum adjacent to maturing wheat, he added.

Surveys conducted by Extension and Texas Agricultural Experiment Station entomologists indicate that this situation exists primarily in the major corn producing counties which include Deaf Smith, Palmer, Castro, Bailey, Lamb and Hale.

"Development of the problem is apparently tied to drought conditions of the past nine months and to an overlap in growing seasons of corn, sorghum and wheat," McIntyre explains.

"Corn and sorghum are the primary hosts of the spider mite in affected areas. Mites normally infest these crops in late June and are present in greatest numbers during August and September. Generally wheat is planted in September, and it appears that the mites transferred to the wheat at about this time last fall. Mite populations have maintained themselves through the winter and have increased significantly on wheat this spring.

"Now that the wheat has begun to mature, the mites are transferring to the corn and sorghum," he says.

The entomologist warns that if drought-like conditions continue, the mites will only get worse, possibly posing a serious threat to both corn and sorghum crops.

McIntyre emphasizes that climatic conditions and stage of wheat growth primarily influence mite infestations.

As long as high temperatures and hot dry, winds continue, mites will be on the increase, moving from their current host plant, wheat, to corn and sorghum. Wheat is still two to three weeks from maturity which gives the mites that much longer to migrate.

"The climatic event which could help turn this developing problem around would be rain showers; the specialist hopes, "Rain is very destructive to mite populations on seedling plants."

Factors which influence the control of the Banks grass mite are complex, McIntyre says. Among them are condition of plants, past history of mite problems in the area, past success in chemically controlling mite populations, and the effect of early season insecticidal control applications on later season applications.

"Because of this, a simple recommendation to treat or not to treat just isn't possible," the entomologist says.

Insecticides for two or three years have been losing their effectiveness against the mite due to the development of mite resistant strains.

Aerial applicators have increasingly reported difficulty in controlling mites with registered materials. Because of the strong possibility that resistant strains exist in his fields, a producer cannot be sure of control.

An important factor in dealing with mites which are developing resistance is the effect of early insecticidal control on future applications. If this is the situation, the specialist cautions, the loss of a few rows to mites now might be a better choice than application which would likely increase their level of insecticide resistance. It may be more practical to apply insecticidal control later in the growing season when plants are larger.

Another point to consider is difficulty in getting control on seedling plants, McIntyre advises. The problem here is that usually most insecticide is applied to the soil rather than the plant. Historically, controlling insects in seedling crops with foliar applications has been extremely difficult. This problem should be seriously considered before a producer attempts control.

Plant conditions and cultural practices are other important factors. Plants that are growing well can be expected to tolerate more mites than stressed plants, he notes. However, stressed plants which also are mite infested would benefit from irrigation and/or fertilization. In cases where producers are sure they are dealing with resistant mite strains, this may be their only course of action.

"We have observed no fields in which producers were close to losing an entire stand," McIntyre emphasizes. "However, should a producer encounter a field where plants are dying because of the mite, he may decide to attempt control measures."

"Currently registered insecticides for control of mites on corn are Di-syston, Thimet, and Meta Systox R. Those registered for control of mites on sorghum are Di-syston, Thimet, Diazinon, Parathion, Ethion, and Trithion. TAES research entomologists report that Thimet has been more consistent than other materials and should be applied just before or after irrigation.

"If liquids are applied, ground rig is the preferred method since they are capable of applying a large total volume per acre (10 gal. or more/acre). Where aerial application is used, total volume per acre should be in the range of 3-5 gals."

Action For Beef Producers

Events this week demonstrate an increasing awareness in the Congress of the severe financial problems being faced by cattle producers and feeders who have experienced a ten-month slump in market prices. I sent a personal letter to president Nixon containing the signatures of over fifty members of the House of Representatives from both political parties calling on the President to rescind his Executive Order issued last year lifting restrictions on all raw beef imports to the United States and returning to the import quotas established in the 1964 Beef Import Act. If we are to assure the American Public of a dependable supply of nutritious beef and restore stability to the cattle market, positive action must be taken to remove the United States as the world's dumping ground for surplus beef producing foreign nations.

In a related action, the Chairman of the House Agriculture Committee announced that three days of public hearings, June 18, 19 and 20, will be conducted on the problems facing the livestock industry. These hearings will cover such matters as cattle prices and beef imports. I was further encouraged by the announcement that hearing will be held on June 25 and 26 on legislation I have introduced to establish a three billion dollar revolving loan fund to assist financially distressed cattle producers and feeders. The fund would be administered by the Farmers Home Administration.

OIL DEPLETION ALLOWANCE. On Tuesday I submitted testimony to the Senate Finance Committee which is presently holding hearings on proposed legislation to abolish the oil depletion allowance. In the 18th District of Texas, where 88% of all drilling is done by independent producers, enactment of this legislation would dry up the supply of outside risk capital, without which these producers could not operate. It would make no sense for the Congress to destroy the incentive for those who are providing our energy needs, and I shall continue to oppose this type of reckless legislation.

FEDERAL LAND USE BILL DEFEATED. On Wednesday I joined with a majority in defeating by a vote of 211 to 204 consideration of a Federal land use bill. Enactment of this legislation would only lead to a further increase in the power of the Federal Government at the expense of the States and the people, who I believe are more properly qualified to develop and implement land use programs.

FLAG DAY, 1974. One hundred ninety-eight years ago was born a new Nation carved out of the wilderness and dedicated to the revolutionary idea that government should be the servant rather than the master of its citizens.

Today, more than ever before, Old Glory symbolizes the hopes of mankind to live in and share the blessings of freedom. On June 14 we again pause to honor our Flag and to give thanks to those Americans of past and present generations whose great sacrifices have established and preserved our Constitutional system of government.

CONGRESSMAN

Bob Price
18th Congressional District

This week the U.S. House of Representatives passes this year's Public Works Appropriations Bill containing funds for various flood control and water development projects. It was through similar legislation passed in prior years that the recently-dedicated Lake Dam and Spillway Reconstruction, 25 miles upstream for Wichita Falls on the Wichita River, was funded.

This year's bill contains $50, 000 for general investigation a proposal for increased flood protection on Holliday Creek near Lake Wichita, just south of Wichita Falls. With these funds, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will make a study to determine the requirements for flood protection and devise a general concept for providing such protection.

The bill also contains $1.3 million for continued planning of various coordinated facilities designed to reduce the chloride content of the Arkansas and Red River Basins. This is a large project covering a vast area, but integral in these plans are the headwaters of the Red and Wichita Rivers in Texas.

In a previous bill, the Congress authorized actual construction to begin for the first of a series of brine collection ponds in this area which would trap chloride salts and thus improve water quality downstream. Eventually, this water should become sufficiently free of salts to be usable for agricultural, industrial and municipal uses and thus increase local water supplies.

But the Congressional authorization for this first pond--to be located near Guthrie in King County at what the Corps of Engineers calls Salt Area VIII came too late for inclusion in this year's budget request.

I am also pleased to report that $4.5 million is included in the Atomic Energy Commission section of this bill for the Pantex Ordnance Plant near Amarillo. This will enable final consolidation of assembly plants, means a continuation of jobs and job opportunities, and will enable work at pantex to remain on schedule.

THE CONTROVERSIAL LAND USE BILL is scheduled for final House action this week.
I shall continue to oppose this legislation. This bill would encourage the states to establish state-wide land use programs and would reduce federal assistance to states for those which did not comply. But we can't be sure how far the states might effect private land owners.
For these reasons, I do not plan to support this bill.

THE INFLATION we are experiencing is due in considerable measure to excessive government spending. Two points are worth noting in this regard.
First, since 1969, the Congress has vetoed 23 bills passed by the president. Second, since 1971, the President has vetoed 23 bills passed by the Congress which would have increased federal spending by another $30.6 billion. It is easy to see where the country is headed if those seeding a veto-proof Congress are successful. We shall be headed toward more government spending and more bureaucracy.

ments in Brazil.

Butz Charged With "Little Understanding" By Farmer's Union Head

In a statement released from the Waco office, Texas Farmers Union President Jay Naman charged that Secretary of Agriculture Butz "has little understanding of the severity of the livestock price situation," which Naman says is a direct result of government policy.

"Since the depression which has struck the livestock industry was set into motion by government policy, it is the responsibility of government to correct the situation," Naman said.

The head of the Waco based general farm organization charged the Nixon administration with starting the long down-trend of livestock prices by imposing price controls on beef and suspending the import quotas.

"Secretary Butz's program to talk the chain stores into reducing red meat prices along with a token purchase program will have little more than a temporary effect on livestock prices, if any," according to the farm leader.

"If Butz wants to help livestock producers, he must convince the President to rescind the order suspending import quotas until livestock markets begin to react. He must then show his determination to help the producer with a meat purchase program by requiring the processors who contract with the government to supply the meat to pay a fair price to producers for the live animals. A massive meat purchase program without a guarantee that the processors will pay a fair price will provide windfall profits to the packers and not help the producer."

"The Administration should support the proposals in Congress to provide low-cost disaster loans to the cattle feeders, stocker and feeder cattle are going begging because the feedyards have lost confidence in the future and are in such a serious financial predicament that they are unable to move back into market to refill feedlots. A loan program that is designed to provide incentive for livestock feeders to continue their operations would go a long way toward bolstering the prices on stocker and feeder cattle that are being moved from drought stricken pastures in the south-west," the state farm leader said.

Naman said that he felt that it was time for the Administration to move decisively and without delay to correct the situation for which it is in part to blame. He pointed out that today's livestock market conditions parallel very closely what happened when Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson was in office.

"The situation today is worse than in the early '50's when Secretary Benson and then assistant, Earl Butz, stood idly by while livestock prices declined 100 percent in a matter of a few months. I hope that Secretary Butz has learned something since then, and will do something other than preside over the bankruptcy of thousands of livestock producers," Naman said.

Her Brother's Keeper?

When Kate's brother became a widower, she moved in with him and took over the care of his household. Three years later, he too passed away. At the probate of his estate, Kate put in a claim for "services rendered."

"Although my brother and I never discussed money," she told the court, "I just took it for granted that eventually I would be paid for my work. After all, I didn't have to do it. I was not my brother's keeper."

But the court disagreed and rejected her claim. The court said the natural presumption was that Kate had helped her brother for reasons of affection, not money. If she expected payment, added the court, she should have made that clear from the start.

Questions of this kind arise often in probate proceedings, when claims for services rendered to the deceased must be dealt with. As a rule, the closer the relationship between the claimant and the deceased, the more likely the court is to say that the services were given free.

But the individual circumstances can make a big difference. In another case, a man sought payment for carpentry, painting, and cement work he had done on the house of his late brother.

This time, the brothers had been living separately, with their own separate families. In this situation, the court decided that the claimant could reasonably have expected to be paid, even without any agreement to that effect.

The extent of the services, too, may be a factor. A sister who took over the management of her brother's home also took over the burdensome task of nursing him. He was seriously ill, and needed almost constant attention.

After his death, a judge ruled that the sister was indeed entitled to wages for her efforts. The judge said that even for a loving sister, this was an extraordinary amount of service.

Jungle Rot Fungus Hottest Discovery In 50 Years

suddenly a fungus, isolated by government research scientists seeking an answer to the nagging problem of jungle rot, has become the hottest discovery of the past 50 years. The super-fungus (trichoderma viride) will grow in any substance containing cellulose. After five to 10 days, the solids are filtered out and the resulting liquid or residue will turn cellulose into glucose in 48 hours. The glucose can then be converted to food or fuel.

The scientists have converted old newspapers, cardboard cartons and even manure into yeast and ethanol. The ethanol can be blended with gasoline on a 90% gasoline to 10% ethanol mixture. Some chemist have successfully run automobiles on a 80-20-mixture.

The potential of the super-fungus is mind-boggling. It means that 1,000 lbs. of city trash can be converted into 500-700 lbs. of glucose per month in the laboratory. Scientists estimate that three-million tons of city and farm trash will convert into enough ethanol to offset a shortage of five-million barrels of oil per day.

Although ethanol (grain alcohol) is more expensive than gasoline today, the super-fungus process will make it competitive with gasoline.

Scientists are even more enthusiastic about the food possibilities of the super-fungus. Asian countries with large quantities of rice hulls (rich in cellulose) are anxious to begin converting these into protein, using the super-fungus process, which will produce a single-cell yeast, suitable for livestock today, and hopefully for humans tomorrow.

A pilot plant is in operation now and economic feasibility tests are underway. A key problem is preparing the raw waste for mixing with the enzyme solution. Two methods of grinding up trash are being used and researchers are studying other methods.

The super-fungus process is already competitive in price with glucose produced from corn starch treated with acids. Experts believe that super-fungus glucose will be much less expensive than the corn starch product when produced in large volume.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN--Many people who plan to move do so in the summer. If you're one of those who will be packing up and heading for new territory soon, be sure you select a reliable moving company to transport your belongings.

Because whether it's a cut-glass punch bowl or a well-used tricycle, your household goods probably would be hard to replace.

Attorneys in our Consumer Protection Division warn that some hot haulers, or illegal moving companies, are in operation and that dealing with them could result in some problems.

For one thing, many of the illegal movers cannot or do not offer proper insurance for your goods.

For another thing, consumers who unwittingly deal with a bootleg moving company could possibly be liable for prosecution under the Motor Carrier Act, enforced by the Texas Department of Public Safety.

There are three classes of moving companies: (1) unregulated ones that can move goods from their base city to another; (2) companies licensed by the Texas Railroad Commission to move goods any where within the state; and (3) companies licensed by the Interstate Commerce Commission to move goods between states.

Spokesmen for the Railroad Commission say that many interstate movers have Texas representatives who are also licensed as intrastate movers themselves.

If you plan to move from Wichita Falls to El Paso, for example, you will need a company licensed by the Railroad Commission as an intrastate carrier. Picking a company from the telephone book, as many people do, is no guarantee that you'll get a properly licensed mover.

The best way is to check with the Railroad Commission to see if the movers you are interested in are listed as certified companies or as designated agents for such companies.

In order for a company to be granted by the Railroad Commission.

Specialized carriers holding certificates or permits for the transportation of household goods must adhere to certain requirements.

If a mover says off handedly, "I'll move you to Dallas for $200, beware. He's not a licensed mover. If he were, he would take a look at your goods, given you a written estimate of the moving cost, weight his truck both before and after loading your goods, and check the weight against a fixed tariff rate to determine the actual cost.

He would also have to notify you if the cost exceeded the original estimate by 10 per cent or $25.00, whichever is greater. And, in addition, he would have to inventory all of your belongings and give you a copy of the inventory.

Certified intrastate moving companies must also be bonded, carry insurance, pay a licensing fee, and pay transportation taxes. Individuals employing such movers can also take out additional insurance on their goods, if desired.

If you want to lease a truck and move your own goods, be sure you choose a reputable company for that, too. There are statutes that prohibit the leasing of a truck by one individual to another for a move if requirements regarding such things as proper insurance have not been met.

Any questions about regulations involving a moving company can be answered by the Railroad Commission, the Department of Public Safety, or the Attorney General's Transportation Division. For assistance with other consumer problems, call our Consumer Protection Division, your district or county attorney, or your local Better Business Bureau.
