

All school races into runoff, Alexander onto council

Three school trustee races will be decided in the runoff election ever on Saturday, April 15, after a primary of 540 voters Saturday to give a majority their votes to any candidate in the field of 11.

The runoff will match the top two Saturday vote-getters in each of the three races. That lineup is as follows:

Place 1: Charles Morris vs. Andrea Willard.
Place 6: Royce Hart vs. Ronnie Dunn.

Place 7: John Boren vs. Mike Flanigan.
Voting totals Saturday in the three races were as follows:

Place 1: Charles Morris, 212, Andrea Willard 129, Jimmy Kennedy 116, and Marilyn Williams 75.

Place 6: Royce Hart 262, Ronnie Dunn, 156, and Delwin Fluitt 111.

Place 7: John Boren 206, Mike Flanigan 186, Jim Bob Shults 96, and Robert Sanchez 46.

In the city council election Saturday, Jack Alexander was elected to a council seat and Dr. William Wilson and Jim Jackson were reelected to two-year terms.

Alexander will replace Lewis Holly at the council table. Holly ran fourth in the four-man race.

Alexander was the top vote getter with 247, followed by Wilson 229, Jackson 200, and Holly 179. A total of 317 city voters went to the polls, about an average voting turnout.

The city's retirement plan for employees was approved by better than a 3 to 1 margin despite no electioneering on the issue. A total of 194 voted yes to the retirement proposition to only 63 who opposed.

In the Garza hospital district election, 262 voters reelected Gene Moore and Charlie Brown to new terms on the board of directors. Moore received 229 votes and Brown 226 in the uncontested election.

The reason Post schools have never held a runoff election before is that school trustees voted only in March (See Elections, Page 12)

Plant manager Smith reported some good news" this week when we were talking to him at one of the many "political coffees."

For the first time in the history of the greige mill, the plant is running regularly on a six-day week. Some of the other plant operations also are running on a six-day basis too, including the flat sheet mill.

Not only is the payroll up, but more hours worked, and more new employees have been added to the plant and are in training, Smith reported.

What makes the six-day operation so unusual is that at this time of the year is the "soft season" for selling sales—and thus production.

Smith says the only way he knows about the six-day operation is that "we're selling more sheets." As to the sheet sales are up, Don Smith shakes his head with a "That's not my department," he said.

It appears to be good news for this community which has seen production often reduced to four operations here over the several years for short runs, and then saw the sewing room permanently closed in early 1977.

Mail boxes blocked over

The sheriff's department is working on an investigation of a major crime which has flared here blocking down rural mail boxes.

Somebody, reportedly driving a pickup truck, knocked down just about every mail box between the road and Taboka on US-360 Monday night.

He was at work just west of the town knocking down and burning over a half mile of mail boxes.

Interfering with the U.S. mail delivery, the offense is a misdemeanor but may, in other words, you can be sent to prison for it. Garza County officers were on Monday conferring on the Sheriff Jim Pippin in the Dispatch yesterday morning. "We're working on

Athletes honored at all sports banquet

Some 200 adult fans turned out Monday night in the Post Community Center to honor 105 Post High athletes for their 1977-78 contributions and hear West Texas University football coach Bill Yung enthusiastically speak for almost an hour on the inspirational aspect of commitment in sports.

The occasion was the Antelope Booster Club's annual All-Sports Banquet and before everybody went home Booster club president Jim Redman saw to it that everybody who had helped Post school sports in any manner was properly thanked.

Yung, speaking so rapidly that his words almost tumbled over each other, kept the crowd laughing and listening as he related how his Grand Prairie high school football squad of many seasons ago — the band-aid kids — took their coaches word, "put a commitment to it—and made things happen."

75-bed nursing home still due for Post

The official rejection of Hank Huntley's request for a certificate of need to build a 90-bed nursing home in Post by the Texas Health Facilities Commission in Austin—as carried in the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal news columns last Thursday—doesn't really mean what it appears to say.

That's Huntley's appraisal of the story.

The Dispatch reported two weeks ago that Huntley had received approval to build a 75-bed nursing home as a result of his recent re-hearing before the commission.

Huntley reports that The Dispatch story is true—and hasn't changed.

So why the vast difference in the two stories? This is the way Huntley explains it after a recheck with his attorney.

The former Post man was turned down by the state commission to build a 90-bed nursing home. But the commission agreed at the end of the hearing to approve Huntley's application for a 75-bed nursing home instead.

Low bid on center is within city's range

Action due Monday

Post got a low enough bid last Thursday afternoon for the city to afford construction of phases 2 and 3 of the Post Community Center, which includes a separate teen room for youth activities.

Pharr and Pharr Enterprises was the low bidder from three Lubbock construction firms with a base bid of $112,000.

Selection of four alternate bids will enable the city council to reduce this base bid by a total of $10,271 which would bring construction costs exceedingly close to the architect's estimate of $100,000.

The council will not take action on letting the construction contract until its regular April meeting which has been postponed a week to Monday night, April 10.

Other bidders was Mattison Construction with a base bid of $116,116 and Wardrup & Associates with a $119,591 bid.

The base bid and six alternates were received with four of the alternates designed to reduce overall cost of the project if necessary. Another was the addition of insulation to a block wall as a possible energy saver in operations.

Whitaker of the Lubbock architectural firm of Whitaker and Hall told the four council members and others present for the bid opening See Center bids, Page 12

Awards presented at FFA chapter banquet

Using the theme of "A Golden Past, A Brighter Future", the local FFA Chapter held its banquet in the Post schools lunchroom Friday night with a crowd of 100 attending.

Using the format of the FFA Creed, Speaker Homer Jones of Wellman spoke to the crowd on "I Believe." Jones has been an ag instructor for 30 years and is also the minister for the Graham Church of Christ.

A barbeque supper was served to parents and guests attending and the entertainment was provided by the District 2 Wellman FFA Chapter band, which included two banjos, two guitars and drums.

Her husband, Jerrel, dazed in the wreck but only bruised became mixed up in directions and walked all the way into Gail seeking help for his wife.

The Babe Ruth baseball league will hold its organizational meeting for the 1978 season at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the bank community room, David Nichols, league president, announced this week.

Everyone interested in helping with any phase of the league's operation is urged to attend the meeting so plans can be made without any organizational delays.

"Everybody come out so we can get started right," Nichols urged.

On not cutting corners

Best news of this past week for this community came last Thursday afternoon when the low bid on completion of construction on the Post Community Center came within range of the city's ability to pay.

If the bid had been beyond reach of available finances it might have ended all chances to complete the needed phase two and three of the center's development.

Although the city council won't act on the bid before their Monday night meeting it appears assured that the new teen room will be built as well as an expanded entrance with additional restrooms and a manager's office.

Several alternates were bid in case the total bid came in slightly out of reach of the city's available funds.

The Dispatch, for one, hopes the council doesn't try to "save money" on taking the options, two of which would leave the center without the outside beauty it deserves.

The biggest savings would come in not building three pillars at the new entrance similar to those at the present entrance. To our way of thinking, to leave off the pillars would be to strip the center of the beauty in its architectural design and leave passers-by with the distinct impression that it looks just a whole lot like a converted super market.

The $20,000 Mr. and Mrs. John Lott contributed to the project is just about the amount of money the city could have saved in spiraling construction costs by building the entire project at the time it opted for phase one only.

Putting off construction is no longer economical. It's just downright expensive. Let's finish the job right this go-around.

Too close to call

The chances for the American Agriculture Movement to win area cotton farmers some price relief this year probably will be determined in crucial votes in both houses of congress next week.

The house-senate conference committee on emergency farm legislation reportedly agreed Tuesday on the details of the new farm bill and were set to vote on it Wednesday. News sources in Washington say congress will vote next week on the legislation in its final form.

Although President Carter has indirectly promised a veto because of what he terms inflationary pressures to retail food prices, it appears likely the bill will pass both houses of congress.

If those margins are big enough to suggest that Carter's veto can be overridden, the President might decide not to risk the veto if it couldn't be sustained. But history is on his side. No farm bill veto has ever been overridden by congress.

That's why next week's vote in both houses is so important.

Farmers are close now not to winning all they want but a fair chance at least escape the tightening cost squeeze. They also are close to planting time — at least to getting the land ready to plant and that means the application of expensive fertilizer, one of the major planting costs.

Some farmers have their fertilizer in. Others haven't fertilized, preferring to watch Washington and the weather for the present.

Most area farmers are pretty close mouthed as to their planting intentions. Many say they will cut back 20 percent, some say they will plant only half as the AAM proposes. Others say if it doesn't rain, they aren't going to plant anything.

So as most political horse races go, this one is going down to the wire in a tight finish.

The farmer has done a remarkable job of selling his case to most Americans during the past three months. But up to now he has failed to budge a farmer president. And that has to be the strangest turn of all.

It will be interesting to see what happens next. Nobody is sure just what the house will do with the compromise emergency legislation which will be good for one year only as now proposed.

As the news commentators say of the tough ones on election night — even with computers at their sides — this one is "too close to call."

No Dispatch commitments

Although almost inundated by candidates — especially for congressional and state senate seats — The Dispatch at present remains uncommitted to anybody on editorial support.

We don't like the idea of Governor Briscoe serving a total of 10 years, which virtually leaves Texas standing still for a decade. We don't think, and the polls agree, that Preston Smith has any kind of a chance at all to be governor again. We have the feeling that Attorney General John Hill is starting to come to the front although some of our conservative editorial brethren have in the last 10 days come out for Briscoe, more in apprehension of Hill trying to do too much than in Briscoe doing anything at all.

Hill's wife and son have both campaigned for John in Post, but we've told them both that he won't win West Texas unless he comes out here himself and spends some time. West Texans simply don't know him — and he's a city lawyer too, isn't he?

In the crowded congressional race several candidates look better to us than the man they are trying to succeed, but not one of them as yet has really convinced us that he is "it". But there's plenty of time left. We look for this contest to really catch fire.

The state senate race is a five-way contest and take your pick. It's got a bunch of good men in it too.

Now city and school elections are out of the way, we look for some real political campaigning in the closing weeks before the all-important May primary. Readers should give everybody a good look before making up their minds.

E.L. Short running on his experience

E.L. Short, experienced state legislator from Tahoka who is making a bid for the state senate this year, told Garza Countians at a coffee in his honor here Friday afternoon that he is running "on my experience."

He declared there were no real issues in the state senate race, at least none that have surfaced to date.

Short said all his campaign planning has been completed and he is "out seeing the people."

"In fact," he added, "I've already seen more people than any of my opponents." (Short's opponents in the 13-county senatorial district are four Lubbock candidates, three democrats and one Republican.)

"I believe I'm the leading candidate in the race," Short said in a short talk in the bank community room after everybody had been served cookies and coffee.

He pointed out he already has represented seven of the 13 counties in the district during his eight years in the lower house of the Texas Legislature.

"I feel I have a good, conservative record and I'm running on my experience," he said, pointing out if elected he will be the second ranking member of the legislature from West Texas as far as years of service goes in either house. Only House Speaker Bill Clayton would rank ahead of him.

Short said he thinks the state senatorial district race is "too big" for the calling Lubbock home to be a serious issue in the race. "I think we've overcome already the contention that one has to live in Lubbock to be elected in this district," Short added.

Short also declared himself to be "the only real farmer in the race although some others claim to be farmers."

He said he would have his first press conference since his announcement of entering the race Monday night at the Hilton Inn in Lubbock and at that time would have a statement about senior citizens and would release a list of names of '60 to '70 coop gin

Workman warns of new school tax push

Don Workman of Lubbock, a candidate for the state senate, warned a Post group that turned out to meet him at a coffee Tuesday afternoon in the bank community room that an attempt will be made early in the next legislative session to redistribute all school taxes across the state.

He said he opposes such a move and favors the retaining of school direction within the local school districts. The former Lubbock banker who resigned to make the campaign said he also opposes a state income tax. He also is a farmer and rancher.

Workman, turning to oil and gas matters, said he favors the sale of all oil and gas produced from beneath state-owned lands within the state of Texas. He would forbid its sale outside of Texas.

"If you elect me, I think I can go to work for you effectively from the start," Workman said.

He pointed out he has served six years on the Texas Youth Council which handles the state's juvenile problems and four years on the Texas Tech University

Billie Martinez Jr.

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends for your many visits and telephone calls and words of comfort, but most of all your prayers. They meant so much to us during Patsy's surgery and stay in the hospital in Temple. It's wonderful to have friends like you. May God's richest blessings be with everyone of you.

Spanish shipwreck exhibit to Lubbock

LUBBOCK — Treasure in silver and gold and priceless artifacts recovered from the 1554 wreck of three Spanish ships off the southern coast of Texas will go on exhibit at The Museum of Texas Tech University Sunday afternoon.

The West Texas Museum Association, sponsor of the exhibit, called "Treasure, People, Ships and Dreams," will be the host for a reception opening the exhibit. During the reception, from 2:30 to 4 p.m., there will be two showings of a film, "Graveyard of the Gulf." Film times are 2:30 and 3:30 p.m.

On April 29, the WTMA's Junior Program, given at 10 a.m., and repeated at 11 a.m., will give children from the fourth through the ninth grades special background for understanding the exhibit.

The treasure was recovered and the historical data compiled by the Texas Antiquities Committee which was created in 1969.

The exhibit opens on the 424th anniversary, to the day, when the ships sailed from San Juan de Ulua, the port for Vera Cruz, Mex., to Spain. Boarding the original fleet of four ships were 410 persons. About 300 of them perished. Those who survived the shipwreck were attacked by Indians as well as confronted by natural hazards for which they were not prepared.

One priest finally made the trek to Tampico, reaching there in July following the April wreck.

Although Spanish authorities in Mexico did recover some of the treasure from the sunken ships, 20th century teams have recovered more: gold and silver bullion, coins, crosses, cannon and other armament, ships' instruments and tools. These are among the treasures that will be on display at The Museum through June 4.

Special group tours can be arranged through the museum's program office by calling Program Director Judy Hunter, area code 806: 742-2456.

Plants to be exchanged

A plant exchange will be held in the Post Community Center Monday, April 10 from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m., sponsored by the Garza Home Demonstration Expansion Committee and Home Demonstration Clubs.

Bring house, yard, or garden plants you would like to exchange with others. Do not bring plants in pots unless you are willing to exchange the pot along with the plant. If you don't have any plants to exchange, come anyway and enjoy the fun.

BANQUETHOLD
The Girl Scout Father-Daughter Banquet which was to have been in February but cancelled due to bad weather will be held Friday night, April 7 at 7 p.m. in the community center.

Honeymoon postponed for politics

Jesse T. George of Lubbock, who was campaigning in Post Monday as a Democrat for the state senate seat in this 13-county area, told The Dispatch he see water importation as the biggest problem for West Texas.

Serving two terms in the lower house of the legislature beginning in 1964 as the youngest member ever elected to that body, George thinks he is familiar with the legislative process and if elected will serve as a salesman to other state legislators on selling West Texas legislative solutions.

The most unusual thing about this candidate is that he and his wife have postponed their honeymoon until after George's state senate campaign. They

Tune in to Morrow

By DAVID MORROW

The drama department at PHS has held what is probably the most consistent "winning streak" of any group involved in interschool competition. One-act plays from Post have taken top district honors for the past three years. Last year's production advanced to regional contest, further than any other play in recent PHS history. Certainly the students and faculty, as well as townspeople, need to be justifiably proud of both students and director.

Since certain points involved in producing a contest play may be a trifle unclear to the general public, I will try to clarify them, from my own experience and the rules and guidelines laid down by UIL.

First, a play must be chosen from an approved list of publishers. Directors have the option of choosing either a play written as a one-act (for example, "Impromptu," last year's play) or cutting a longer play to fit the 40 minute time limit. Plays must be in good taste and contain no vulgarity, profanity, or be offending to the moral standards of the school and community.

After the play is chosen and cast, careful rehearsal begins. Since the judges are qualified drama instructors and or performers, careful attention is given to diction (getting rid of the "West Texas drawl") characterization and stage movement.

When a play is presented at contest, the cast and crew are given ten minutes prior to curtain time to set up the props. Then the play is performed. A production that runs over the allotted 40 minutes is automatically disqualified. The members have ten minutes after the final curtain to strike, or take down, the set. After all schools have presented their plays awards are given.

Trophies are presented to the Best Actor, Best Actress and the two winning plays.

Then a select group of outstanding performers are named as the All-Star cast and awarded medals. After presentation of awards, the critic judge gives each cast an oral critique on the good and bad points of each play. The two winning plays are then given the right to advance to area competition.

This year's cast and crew, as well as Miss Tice, have worked extremely long and hard to prepare their play. They surely deserve commendation for their efforts, as well as heartiest best wishes. The play goes to contest today at 1 p. m. at Wolfforth.

All-Sports banquet-- JW assembly

(Continued From Page One) cruited" at Baylor through determination inspired the Baylor Bears to its first Southwest Conference football crown in 50 years and led the conference in rushing in that never-to-be-forgotten season.

"Poise," he said, "was important."

At the end he related his football to his religion. "God," Coach Yung told the big audience simply, "is the guy who gave me my playbook."

Redman, serving as master of ceremonies, gave the welcome and FCA Huddle Group Captain, Chuck Bass the invocation.

The barbecued dinner was catered by Jackson's and served by 20 freshman athletes.

Coach John Alexander, Antelope basketball coach, told the crowd that although the Lope team did not have a winning season he enjoyed coaching this past winter more than in any other season in his 15-year career. He said this was because of the "eight fine young men" who comprised the varsity squad.

John Morrow, girls cage coach, pointed out his team is losing nine fine seniors this spring.

Coaches Lane Tannehill and Chili Black introduced the boys and girls track squads still two weeks away from the district meets and Coach Greg Eubank introduced the tennis team.

The introducing of players wound up with Coach Brown introducing his big football squad with individual praise for the players contributions and recognition for those who received all-district honors.

Evans Heaton gave the benediction to close the banquet. David Morrow played piano dinner music during the serving of the meal. Nancy Macy was credited for banquet decorations which included the familiar words, "Post Pride" hung along the wall facing the speaker's table.

Tom Burns has been appointed chief deputy by Sheriff Jim Pippin this week following the resignation of Ken Gilbreath to accept a position with a cotton gin in the Levelland area.

PAYMASTER 266 is just one reason why.

PAYMASTER 266 proved that it is in a class by itself in the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, Verticillium Wilt Tolerance Test at Lubbock. Over a 6 year period, from 1971-1976, PAYMASTER 266 yielded more lint pound per acre than any other competitive variety tested.

Because of its tolerance to Verticillium Wilt, PAYMASTER 266 has been acclaimed by researchers as being one of the best available varieties of upland cotton. PAYMASTER 266 is a Plains type variety with all the characteristics necessary to make it one of the BEST MONEY MAKING varieties you can plant.

JIM SNOWDEN
Statement for Voters

Jim Snowden of Tye, Democratic candidate for U.S. Representative, District 17, has authorized this newspaper to publish this statement to the voters.

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE 17TH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT:

Basically, I believe that government should be the embodiment of equality and an instrument through which special and individual advantage can be gained.

I believe our government determined to pauperize a segment of our society through maladministration welfare programs.

I believe in the supreme worth of the individual and the right to pursue life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

I believe every right implies a responsibility; every opportunity, an obligation; every possession, a duty.

I believe that the law was made for man and not man for the law; that the government is the servant of the people and not their master.

I believe in the dignity of man, whether with head or tail; that the world owes no man a living but that it owes every man an opportunity to earn a living.

I believe that thrift is essential to well-ordered government and that economy is a necessary requisite of a sound financial structure, whether in government, business or personal affairs.

I believe that truth and justice are fundamental to enduring nation.

I believe in the sacredness of a promise, that a man's word should be as good as his bond; that character-not wealth or power or position-is the supreme worth.

I believe that the rendering of useful service is the common duty of mankind and that only in the crucible of sacrifice is the dross of selfishness consumed and the greatness of the human soul set free.

I believe in the all-wise and all-loving God, named whatever name, and that individuals highest fulfillment, greatest happiness and widest usefulness are to be found in living in harmony with his will.

I believe that love is the greatest thing in the world; that it alone can overcome hate; that right can and will triumph over might.

Sincerely yours,
Jim Snowden

Ad. paid by Committee to elect Jim Snowden, c/o Inman, treasurer, P.O. Box 206, Tye, Texas 79563.

FFA banquet-

The awards presentations were given by Shorty Bilberry, vice president, who first recognized E.A. Howard and Larry Crowover for their work with the local chapter.

Honorary FFA Member certificates were presented to Noel White and Jimmy Bartlett for their work on the annual livestock show and other activities held by the club during the year.

Other awards went to the Star Greenhand of the Year, this year a tie between Benny Jackson and Steve Kitchens; The Star Chapter Farmer Award to Lynn Simpson; Ornamental Horticulture Pins went to Virginia Fuentes and Eric Howard; a scholarship award presented to annually to the person maintaining the highest grade average through the year went to Lisa Coudrey and for exceptional leadership the award went to Eric Howard.

Street lights-

Rather than have the business section in darkness, the utility firm has left the lights burning around the clock until repairs can be made.

Necessary materials for the repair job have been ordered, and are expected to arrive at any time. A firm has been contracted to bore under the street to permit splicing around the damaged section of the cable.

Burning the lights all day is not using up a whole lot of wattage, Barley reports. Each street light uses the wattage of about four 100 watt bulbs.

Barley said the damaged cable "did not show up for a while" because moisture had to seep into it to cause the present problem.

So hang in there, public! There's a good reason why Post's street lights are burning all the time these days.

Postings-

The Willsons made their last A-J delivery here last Friday, March 31, completing six years of delivering the daily paper before most folks roll out of bed.

Right now the A-J is being delivered here by Bill Wolfe, A-J circulation supervisor from Lubbock who drives down to make the route each morning while he tries to find a local replacement for the Willsons.

Georgie told us yesterday that they decided that six years "was enough". "That's about as long as any of them last," he explained. He added that he and his wife had been out of town together only once in six years — and that was a medical emergency. Other than that one or both of them have been on that route every day. And as we added them up that means about 2,112 times they've climbed out of bed early to deliver the paper.

For example, the base bid included column supports in the teen room similar to those in the present assembly room of the center. The first alternate called for removing the supports to provide a teen room without obstructions.

Though desirable, the architects figured this would cost more. Surprise! Pharr & Pharr bid this alternate as a minus $505 which meant a ceiling without support columns would reduce the base bid by $505 instead of increasing it.

Whitaker shook his head on that one, explaining that the higher cost of labor in today's construction work upset architect's calculations by more than offsetting higher material costs.

Mattison Construction bid this alternate as an increase of $750 and Wardrup & Associates bid no difference in cost to build the teen room with or without column supports.

The other alternate which was a big surprise was on air conditioning. The base bid included refrigerated air, but an alternate was included for "washed air" as a cost saver if the base bid proved out of reach.

Pharr & Pharr bid the "washed air" (evaporative coolers) as an increase of $415 to the base bid rather than a reduction. In other words evaporative cooling would cost $415 more than refrigerated air. Mattison Construction bid this alternate as a $475 addition and Wardrup & Associates bid it as making no cost difference between the two types of air conditioning.

Construction cost reductions in the other alternates included: $1,692 for painting a concrete block wall in the teen room without plastering it; $6,184 for leaving out the three columns at the center's entrance which would provide the same exterior look as the present center with its three columns at the entrance; and $1,890 for leaving out some of the "site work" or development of the ground remaining on the east side of the center.

Nursing home

(Continued From Page One) a new application for the 75-bed size. This Huntley's attorney is in the process of doing. It will require another week or 10 days.

Then Huntley expects quick action, without a new hearing, to give him approval in writing for the 75-bed size nursing home.

When he gets it in writing, Huntley will come to Post and proceed with site negotiations, etc.

He had intended to come last week but his son wanted a few days off from the nursing home they are now operating in Luling, Tex., so Hank had to stay in Luling.

At least, this is the way Hank's brother, Sexton, reported the story to The Dispatch after talking to Hank about it.

Post woman-

They were en route back to Post from Big Spring where Mr. Truelock, a dirt contractor, had been working on a construction job.

It was reported that one motorist had stopped at the wreck scene shortly after the crash, covered Mrs. Truelock, and promised to drive into Post and report the accident. But he never reported it.

Elections-

(Continued From Page One) 1976, to require a majority vote for all elected trustees. The state law provides that no runoffs are necessary in spring elections unless the school district decides to require a majority vote.

The school district vote Saturday was much larger than usual, but no where near the record turnout of 847 voters two years ago when an athletic policy controversy stirred up the voters.

The record municipal election turnout was 761 voters in 1961, although in 1976, 655 city voters went to the polls and 641 in the hospital district.

Hart came within six votes of winning a majority Saturday in his place 7 race, polling 49.53 percent of the 529 votes cast for the position. Dunn received 29.49 percent, leaving the 20.98 percent of the votes that went to Fluitt up for grabs.

In the place 1 race, Morris polled 39.85 percent of the vote to Williard's 24.25 percent. In the place 7 race, Boren garnered 38.58 percent of the vote and Flanigan 34.83 percent Saturday in the tightest contest of the three.

It is expected that the outstanding program being planned by the A.P.O. will attract 400 to 500 boys for a weekend of fun and training in scouting skills. A special award will be presented to the troop with the highest percentage of its members in attendance.

The purpose of the 1978 district camporee is to provide an opportunity for the boys to learn about sportsmanship, dedication and teamwork as well as have a good time.

District Camporee chairman is Ken Broda and the A.P.O. camporee chairman is Kevin Hart.

At a special meeting Monday afternoon, Post school trustees officially canvassed election results and called the runoff election for Saturday, April 15.
