

United Way Campaign Needs Another $3,000 to Reach Goal

The 1986 Garza County United Way campaign is approximately $3,000 short of the $17,160 goal.

As of Monday contributions totaled $13,815.75.

"Very few of the pledge cards that were mailed to Garza County businesses have been returned," drive chairman Wes Burnett comments.

"We know that most businesses will want to participate and are hopeful that the delay is more a result of the holiday rush than anything else," he adds.

Those individuals and businesses who have not yet submitted their contributions may do so by mailing to

Garza County United Way
P.O. Box 10
Post, Texas 79356
or by making a direct deposit to the account at the First National Bank in Post.

"By the end of January we will have to make some decisions about how much to cut each of the participating agencies if we don't reach the goal," Burnett continues.

Monies from the United Way are used to support the following local organizations:

Red Cross, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, Little League and Babe Ruth baseball, Salvation Army, Garza County Mental Health and the Garza County Child Welfare Board.

City Council Applies for TEXCEL Program

by Wes Burnett

A crowded agenda Monday night kept the Post City Council busy until midnight, with the decision to make application to the state for certification in the TEXCEL program highlighting the meeting.

The council accepted Lewis Earl's offer to prepare the application, and passed a resolution supporting the concept.

The application is due by the end of the month and if Post is selected as one of the 25 cities to participate this year, a comprehensive economic development plan will be developed.

"This will put us in a much better position to attract industries," Earl told the council, "and places Post in the forefront of the industrial recruiting efforts by the state."

The Post Economic Development Corp. and the Post Chamber of Commerce are joining the council in the TEXCEL application procedures, but only the city may apply for the program.

"It has to be a community-wide effort," Earl added, "and everyone has to be working together to accomplish the goals."

The council also voted to approve the contract with Garza County to provide services for alcohol and chemical abuse treatment through the City County Alcohol Chemical Abuse Program.

Council member Weaver McKamie, continuing her objection to funding of the program with city taxes, cast the dissenting vote.

Master plumber David Murphy asked the council to make a decision about enforcement of the new state law which requires all heating and air conditioning contractors and service repairmen to take and maintain a state license.

He pointed out that the current city ordinances requiring plumbing work to be inspected and that plumbing work be done by master plumbers is not being enforced.

"Carpenters and contractors here do not have to maintain the same standards, and I need to know if this new state law is not going to be enforced, then there is no need for me to go to the expense and trouble of getting the license," Murphy pointed out.

He emphasized that the ordinances should be enforced uniformly.

Mayor Giles McCrary referred the matter to the city attorney for review.

Garza Appraisal District director Jean Westfall informed the council that there is a possibility city-owned land and oil wells could be put on the tax rolls of the school county.

She explained that the county has been taxing Shelby County School District land near Southland, and that precedent makes it likely that the county would also have to tax Post ISD school land near Justiceburg.

"If they tax school property, then they will also have to tax city property that is not used for public purposes," Westfall added.

She also said that the city could add to its tax roll property owned by the school and county which is not used for public purposes.

Repairs to the structure and other problems at the community center were approved, with the city sharing one half of the $8,463 cost with the county.

Post Notes

by Wes Burnett

I heard a disturbing rumor Monday which deserves airing.

I don't normally discuss rumors, but in this case, I think you need to know the facts...just in case you hear the same silly rumor.

It seems that someone has put out the word that City Judge Louise Greene's job is on the line because "she is publishing the public records."

Let's get one thing absolutely clear...Judge Greene has nothing to do with the publishing of the records of the court she presides over.

The decision to publish the official records rests squarely on my shoulders...and in fact, if it were up to Judge Greene I wouldn't have access to the records. She really doesn't like the idea of the Dispatch publishing records from the municipal court.

But let's get it straight...the availability of court records is a basic part of our freedom and is clearly protected by state and federal law.

The state law requires that all public records be open for inspection and especially is this true for the news media...which have historically served the purpose of keeping the public informed.

It is essential to our freedom that we have access to public records...there should be no doubt in anyone's mind that public business is just that...public business.

Now, to the simple-minded person who is reported to have said "I'm going to run for city council and make sure that Louise Greene gets fired," let me say this...surely you would not stoop so low as to run for public office with such a vindictive idea...

And possibly violate the state law at the same

Sara Ault Named Artist

The Post Art Guild Inc selected Sara Ault to be Artist of the Month and her paintings will be displayed at the First National Bank of Post during January 1986.

Sara grew up in Shawmut, Ala. She started painting at an early age with the guidance of Mrs Gillespie from Georgia.

She had seven years of oil painting.

After moving to Post in 1953 she had little time for painting, then retiring from Burlington Mills in 1983 she joined the Post Art Guild.

Encouraged by husband Jack, she began taking lessons and workshops.

She has studied under Glenda Morrow, Jean Green and Bob Chennault with advice and help from the members of the Post Art Guild.

SARA AULT is named Artist of the Month by the Post Art Guild. Her art will be on display at the First National Bank.

 time? Anyway, the issue is not who is city judge...no matter who sits in that chair, the records of that court will be published in the interest of the public. Let me add one more thing to this subject... frankly, I think the city is served well by Judge Greene. You who have been found guilty or pleaded guilty in her court know from experience that she is fair and I have personally witnessed her compassion to those who have trouble coming up with the money to pay fines. This person who plans to run Louise Greene out of her job because of the publishing of the court records is sadly mistaken about two things...first, Mrs Greene is not responsible for the publication of the record and second, the public record will be published no matter who is city judge. You may not like having your name printed when found guilty of an offense... take your gripe to the fellow who is responsible. Now, maybe we shouldn't publish the public record... that is a legitimate subject for debate. I feel it is our burden to tackle this controversial issue because of the important role we play in this community. Knowing what is going on in the courts is just one more part of our system, that left undisclosed, leads to distrust and aids the "rumor mill." Our job at the Dispatch is to deliver facts so that you can make up your own mind as to the truth or value to the rumors. I welcome debate on this matter.

Council Approves Community Center Repairs

occupied the council, with council member Mills and committee member James Dye explaining various changes.

The election will fill three seats, those currently filled by Charles Wallace, Weaver McKamie and Lewis Holly.

The revisions will be prepared for consideration next month.

McKamie suggested that the ballot include a referendum for the voters to decide about major water line improvements.

The ordinance changes are designed, according to Mills, to bring common sense to the ordinance.

The total cost of replacing worn out water lines in Post is estimated at $1.4 million, McKamie's suggestion was to set aside $165,000 per year, with an assessment to each water meter to pay for the work.

The first reading of the junk car ordinance passed, which will bring the city's ordinance in line with the state law.

No decision was made on the suggestion, with city manager Bill Pool requested to provide the council with estimates of the actual cost and what work would be done the first year.

The ordinance will be enforced by citation and fines.

Walter Finch was awarded the lease for the city-owned property around the old city water wells. Finch submitted a bid of $80 per month for three years. The only other bid was from N.R. King for $800 per year.

The vending machine ordinance passed on its second reading.

A. Arthur Davis presented the annual audit and gave the city a good report. Discussion about changes to the animal ordinance

Attending the meeting were council members Wallace, McKamie, Maxine Earl, Mayor Giles McCrary, Earl, Mills, city manager Pool and city secretary Wanda Wilkerson.

STEVE HAMILTON grabs a rebound during the Frenship game last Friday.

Daisy Troop 131 News

by Kathy Hubble

Our kindergarten Daisy Troop 131 got off to a roaring start this year with girls and 4 adults registered.

This is a fantastic turn out considering the Daisy program was added to Girl Scouts only last year.

We started our year on September 17th with a troop birthday party and earned our promise and some new songs and games.

We have continued by starting our scrapbook, discussing our laws, having an alphabet hike, and plenty of outdoor games.

We had our investiture ceremony October 15th with Mom's and Dad's attending the event.

The girls received their beginning certificates and their Daisy pins.

For Halloween we made masks to go into our scrapbook.

October 29th saw us at an all troops hayride at the Sanderson Ranch.

We had hot dogs and S'mores, a traditional Girl Scout treat.

All nine troops in Post were represented with about 100 girls and 35 adult attending.

A special thanks goes out the Arnold and Patsy Sanderson, Delbert Rudd, Nathan Hubble, Sammy Palmer, Neal Francis, Ray Morris, and all the wonderful mom's for their help.

In November we learned how to make emergency phone calls, how Thanksgiving got it's start, had a turkey hunt, and learned the many things Punchinello can do in the form of a game.

In December we made Santa Claus hand puppets and the girls decorated their own Christmas cards using temper paint and potatoes.

We all enjoyed our Christmas party, Dec 17th. We had all kinds of goodies and sang Christmas carols.

The girls registered with our troop are: Torrie Foster, Jennifer Hubble, Sasha Mason, Tamara Mason, Jamie Hodges, Kendra Sims, Arimya Gradine, Bobby Jo Davis, Marisa Huffman, Carolina Benavidez, Laurie Johnson, Meagan Moreman, Sharline Hynes, Mandee Murphy, Jessica McDougle, Misty Bryan and Tracie Petty.

The leaders are: Kathie Hubble, Cynthia Morris and Darla Davis with Jenie Huffman as a registered mom.

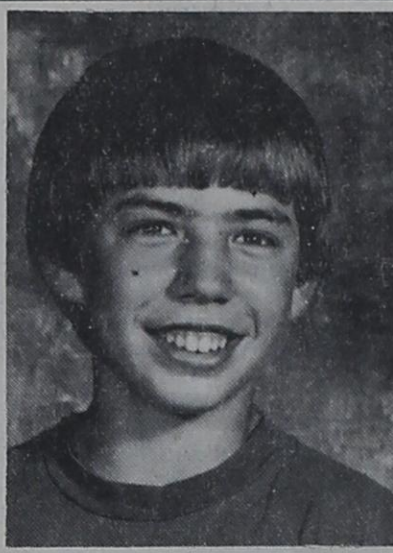

ANGIE HOLLEMAN moves in for two points during last Friday's varsity contest with Frenship here.

Robert's Hints for the Service Minded

A common problem this time of year for many folks is the cooling system in their vehicles.

The reason cooling system problems show up during winter particularly is a result of the change in temperature and the breaking down of the anti-freeze.

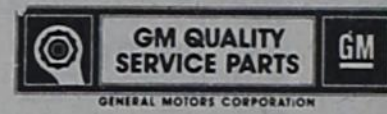

It's really a good idea to flush your vehicle's entire cooling system at least once a year...especially in this part of the country where the water has such high mineral contents.

The minerals begin to eat away at gasgets and create build-up inside the radiator and can cause serious problems if not corrected.

You can save yourself a lot of worry and money by scheduling a complete cooling system flush and service about every 12 months.

Call me and I'll help you get your vehicle serviced.

Lucky Clover 4-H Club News

by Janell Jones
December brought a time for Christmas carols and carolers. That was just what the Lucky Clover 4-H Club did. When the meeting began each member brought a can good to give to the Post Cares for the needy families. After the cans were received twenty-three members and five guests enjoyed singing to the citizens of Post as well as a hayride. After wishing the citizens of Post a very happy holiday, the members and guests gathered back at the First Christian Church Fellowship Hall for punch and goodies which were brought by many 4-H members and the leaders Sue and Steve Traw and Ruby and Darrell Jones. The five guests there to help in the singing were Angela Norman, Shannon Scott, Brandon and Russ Byrd and our little guest Emily Smith. After refreshments were served the meeting was adjourned.

The next monthly meeting will be January 13 at 7 p.m..
