

CONSTANTINOPLE MAY CHANGE NAME

City by the Bosphorus Known by Many Titles.

Washington.—The suggestion has been made in Turkey that Constantinople be renamed for Kemal Pasha, president of the republic.

Constantinople has had many names at various times, says a bulletin of the National Geographic society from its Washington headquarters.

"Not for 400 years has Constantinople been Constantinople to the Turks. It is Stamboul to them. Some geographical title experts hold that Stamboul has been abbreviated by the Turks from Constantinople just as they abbreviated Thessalonica (Salonica) to Selanik. There are two other contentions. One is that Stamboul is a corruption of a phrase which the Turkish invaders heard the Greeks say, 'ees teen poleen,' literally 'to the city.' Another supposition is that 'Islam,' meaning 'true believing,' and 'bul,' meaning 'copious,' have been welded together by the Turks into Stamboul, 'abounding in the true Moslem faith.'

"Emperor Constantine, for whom Constantinople is named, did not himself give it that name. On May 11, 330 A. D., Constantine called together a mass meeting in the newly completed hippodrome. It was a ceremony of rejoicing. A new city had been built, destined to succeed Rome as capital of the Roman empire for 11 centuries. At the high point of the hippodrome pagent Constantine dedicated the city to Christianity and named it Nova Roma.

"It was the Greeks who called it Constantinopolis and finally it became Constantinople. The patriarch of the Greek church still signs his title 'bishop of Constantinople, New Rome,' but Nova Roma was forgotten. So was the original name, Byzantium for King Byzas, a local ruler, who first built a town on the Golden Horn peninsula.

"Turks have had other affectionate names for Constantinople just as Americans call New York, Father Knickerbocker. Sometimes the Turks call it Oumoudunia, 'The Mother of the World,' and sometimes Islambol, 'the City of Islam.' Another name is Der el Sandet, 'the City of Felicity.' Arabs call it by a name which is significant, El Farruch, 'the Earth Divider.'

Government Railroad

Reports $1,116,000 Loss

Washington.—While the railroads throughout the United States are enjoying their greatest period of prosperity, the only government-owned line—the Alaskan railroad—sustained a loss of $1,116,000 for the year, its general manager reported to the secretary of the interior recently.

Revenues of the road increased by $206,274 during the year, while operating expenses were cut $208,000.

Plans for the completion of the road and purchase of modern equipment call for an expenditure of approximately $12,000,000 during the next few years.

Here Are New Words,

Take 'Em or Leave 'Em

London.—Mayfair has developed two new slang words which are now being worked overtime.

"Marabout" is one and it is used to describe anything old-fashioned or dowdy. It is a very elastic word, however, and at the Kit Cat club it was heard applied to everything from one's enemies to a drink of which someone did not approve. It is a noun.

The other word is a synonym of "marabout" and is used both as a noun and an adjective. It is "can mag," a variation is "cagmaggy."

Sand Heralds Knell of Artificial Lighting

Darrington, Wash.—Here's a mighty interesting incident, if true, vouchered for by George Van Cleve which heralds the knell of artificial lighting. Recently Van Cleve plastered his basement, using material from a sand vein found near here. At all times the walls radiate light, the sand possessing radioactive properties. Samples of the sand vein are being analyzed by the geologists at the state university.

Anatomy of Hindu Lad
Seems to Be All Wrong

Bombay.—Medical science is baffled by the strange case of a Hindu lad of thirteen who has just been admitted to the Osmania general hospital at Hyderabad, suffering from a knee joint complaint.

Outwardly nothing is wrong with the boy, but during a routine examination it was discovered that the organs of his chest are completely transposed, the liver being on the left side, heart on the right side, spleen opposite its normal position, while his stomach is in an inverse direction. His intestines lay coiled in the opposite direction.

The boy is healthy, and the phenomena is believed to have been due to twisting during the early weeks of his embryonic life.

SO MANY ALIASES, FORGOT OWN NAME

Crook Apparently Puzzled for Some Time.

New York.—A criminal of many aliases was being interrogated by detectives. Most crooks are satisfied with one or two, but this particular crook found it convenient to have six or seven fictitious names ready to use. And on different occasions he "had traveled," as the police say, under each of his names. In one city he assumed the name of Jim Jones and in another the name of Tom Smith.

His captors were fairly familiar with his numerous aliases, and the mention of any one of them recalled the picture of a short, thick fellow with a long nose and a pair of small, fishy eyes. A detective had written the aliases on a piece of paper. After studying them a moment he turned to the prisoner and asked gruffly: "Which of these names is your right one?"

The crook examined the list intently and appeared puzzled. "Blest if I know," he replied with a smile. "You see," he added apologetically, "I've been travelin' under these here names so long that I've clean forgot my right name. But it will come to me after a bit," and sure enough he soon recalled it. The name, however, was not among the aliases.

Would Like to Forget.

"I think this fellow," said a detective, "was just pretending he did not remember his name. Indeed, he would like to forget it if he could, because he has been tried and convicted under that name for more offenses than he can remember. He is, like most experienced crooks, a masquerader. All crooks are masqueraders, in a sense, and go through life wearing a mask."

"After being initiated into the criminal fraternity the crook resolves to cast aside his own name and take some other one. His main reason for doing this is quite obvious; he desires to conceal his identity as much as possible. Only a fool, he argues, would use his own name in criminal operations. What a sweet thing it would be for the cops if every criminal used his right name when he went adventuring! Likewise, he has other reasons for not traveling under his own name. Though he may have fallen from grace, he has qualms about using a faulty name that heretofore has not been dragged in the mud. He does not care for himself, but he does not want to bring disgrace on his father and mother, who are poor but respectable. Why drag them into his troubles?"

"He decides to take a name, and while he is a criminal that name will suffice for his purpose. If he is caught no one will associate John Doe with John Smith. He will be arrested as John Doe, tried as John Doe and, if convicted and sentenced, he will go to the pen as John Doe, and no great harm will be done to anyone except to himself.

Sure to Find Him Out.

"He does not pause to consider that no matter how artfully he may try to conceal his real identity, the police will find him out. They will investigate his past, and when they once begin such an investigation they will be pretty sure to dig up a lot of knowledge concerning himself and his antecedents.

"After being in the game a while the crook finds that having only one alias is insufficient. He discovers the name he has been using is becoming entirely too familiar—especially to his enemies, the cops. If you are a crook it does not pay to advertise; accordingly, he assumes another name and lays aside the first alias until people begin to forget it. In time the second alias outlives its purpose and it becomes necessary to take a third name. And this explains why criminals frequently have several aliases.

"All of these aliases he finds useful. It may not be convenient to use the name of Jim Jones in New York, but the name may do very well in another city in which he is unknown. He would prefer, many times, not to have a name at all, but since everybody must follow the custom and have a name, he must have one. Therefore he carries in his head several aliases, any one of which he may assume at a moment's notice. These names mean a lot to him. Some of them recall pleasant memories; others recall scenes that he would much prefer to forget. He remembers what Shakespeare said about calling a rose by any other name and it would smell as sweet. Though he would like to believe this, he knows the cops have a long memory for names. No matter how frequently he changes his name, the cops seem to be able to discover him and drag him from obscurity."

Freak Chickens Subject of Study by Zoologist

Philadelphia.—Chickens with two wings and four legs and even with four wings and four legs, and a duck-like equally strangely constituted, were studied by Dr. F. E. Childster, professor of zoology at West Virginia university, who described observations to the American Society of Zoology, meeting here.

The freakish external features of the birds were found to be coupled with odd internal structures. Four kidneys were found in some of the birds, double cloaca in all of them, and frequent variations in some of the digestive tubes. The gizzard, however, remained single, nor was there any evidence of duplicity in the heart or respiratory apparatus.

INDIAN VS. INDIAN,
OLD RECORDS SHOW

Nez Perce Were Militia in Territorial Days.

Washington.—Romantic stories hidden in 65-year-old muster rolls of the early National Guard of the state of Washington were uncovered recently at the adjutant general's office at Camp Lewis when Mrs. Lydia Taylor Orstrand of Bridal Veil, Ore., wrote to Brig. Gen. Maurice Thompson, the adjutant general, in search of information relative to the service of her father in the Washington-Oregon Indian wars of 1855. Lieut. Ralph H. Windsor, reporting the incidents to the United States Army Recruiting News, says that the muster rolls showed that one company of the Washington Territory volunteers who were brought into service by the government to assist in subduing the warring tribes was composed wholly of friendly Nez Perce Indians. Such names as Seven Days Whipping, Red Grizzly, Duck and Fish Coyuse and Palusa tribes, who were dissatisfied with various land treaties which were consummated by the Indian agents of the territories. The first alarming indication that war was imminent was the massacre of settlers who were camped on the site of the present-day Auburn.

"Two expeditions into the country east of the Cascades resulted in the decisive defeat of one and the hasty retreat of the other. The commanding general of the Pacific department at that time was Maj. Gen. John E. Wool, who personally disliked Governor Stevens of Washington and refused any federal troops other than the garrisons stationed in the territory.

Short of Ammunition.
A second decisive defeat by the Indians east of the mountains caused Acting Governor Mason of Washington to call into service two companies of Washington Territory volunteers, one organized at Olympia under Capt. Gilmore Hays and the other at Vancouver under Capt. William Strong. By December ten companies of volunteers had been organized, but the need for arms and ammunition was seriously felt. The commanding officers of the sloop of war Decatur and revolution cutter Jefferson Davis, which were in Seattle harbor, offered their extra arms and ammunition to the settlers, who were hastily organizing their volunteer companies. The cutter Jefferson Davis immediately proceeded to the fort at Steilacoom and sent 20 jacks ashore to assist the small regular garrison there to protect the settlers' wives and children who had sought refuge.

"Late October the following year the war was successfully brought to a conclusion with the assistance of additional regular troops from the East. The volunteers were mustered out of service gradually as their enlistments expired. In all of the campaign the company of Nez Perce Indians had done very effective work, but their recompense was minute.

"The pay and allowances of the Nez Perce Indian company which did such effective work was set at $2 per day for each warrior and $2 for his horse. Congress later cut this amount to $3.41 for the 36-day campaign in which they were engaged for both warrior and his mount. Spotted Eagle, the war chief of the company however, received $95.33 for his services."

INDIAN VS. INDIAN,
OLD RECORDS SHOW

Nez Perce Were Militia in Territorial Days.

Some appeared on the rolls of this year organization. The captain was called a war chief and answered to the name of Spotted Eagle. Lieutenant Windsor says:

"There were no sergeants or privates in this outfit, and outside of the one head the other fighters were merely known as warriors. What stern discipline was used by the war chief of this company of 60 picked fighters that needed no lieutenants or noncommissioned officers? It is not said, even in this civilized age, to imagine the red warrior of half a century ago, silently slipping through the forests that grew where cities now stand, stalking his red brother who had questioned the authority of the White Father in Washington. The badge of authority of the stalker and his uniform to show he was a United States soldier was an army rifle and a belt of ammunition. But for this rifle, and the color of his paint, the line of demarcation was slight.

Plaintiffs alleges and say that they have good and perfect right and title to the land hereinabove described, and that they have had and held peaceable and adverse possession thereof, using or enjoying the same and paying the taxes thereon and claiming under said law of inheritance for a period of more than five years after defendants' cause of action accrued, before the commencement of this suit.

Plaintiffs further allege and say that they have had exclusive, peaceable and adverse possession of said land, cultivating, using or enjoying the same and paying the taxes thereon, continuously from the sovereignty of the soil, for a period of more than twenty five years after defendants' cause of action accrued before the commencement of this suit.

Plaintiffs therefore plead the five, ten and twenty five year statutes of limitation as against these defendants, and all other persons claiming said land and premises or any part thereof.

Plaintiffs further allege that said A. J. J. Berry and his children by his deceased wife, Rhoda Berry, these defendants has been recognized as final and complete for more than thirty five years. That some time after said settlement and partition of the estate of A. J. Berry with the children of his deceased wife, Rhoda Berry, to-wit, on or about the 31st day of July 1899, A. J. Herein Fail Not, but have before said Court, at its aforesaid next regular term, this writ with your return thereon, showing how you have executed the same.

Keep Eliminative System Active

Good Health Requires Good Elimination

ONE can't feel well when there is a retention of poisonous waste in the blood. This is called a toxic condition, and is apt to make one tired, dull and languid. Other symptoms are sometimes toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by scanty or burning passage of secretions. Many people have learned the value of Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, when the kidneys seem functionally inactive. Everywhere one finds enthusiastic Doan's users. Ask your neighbor!
