

Rodeo opens tonight

The 40th annual Post Stampede Rodeo is all set for a three-night stand here with the rodeo parade kicking off rodeo festivities at 5:30 this afternoon.

Several of the rodeo divisions were expected to be filled by entries and closed by Wednesday afternoon.

Two new events this year will be a wild steer race, which is a special feature, and a county team roping event.

The wild steer race involves three-man teams which must saddle a wild steer with one member of the team riding it across the finish line.

The county team roping event is open to all Garza residents and all members of the Post Riding Club.

Each team will rope two head after the show Thursday night with the top four teams advancing to the Saturday night finals which will be on the regular rodeo program.

Tonight's grand entry is slated for 7:45 p.m. with the show starting at 8 p.m.

Terry Walls of Stephenville again is the rodeo producer.

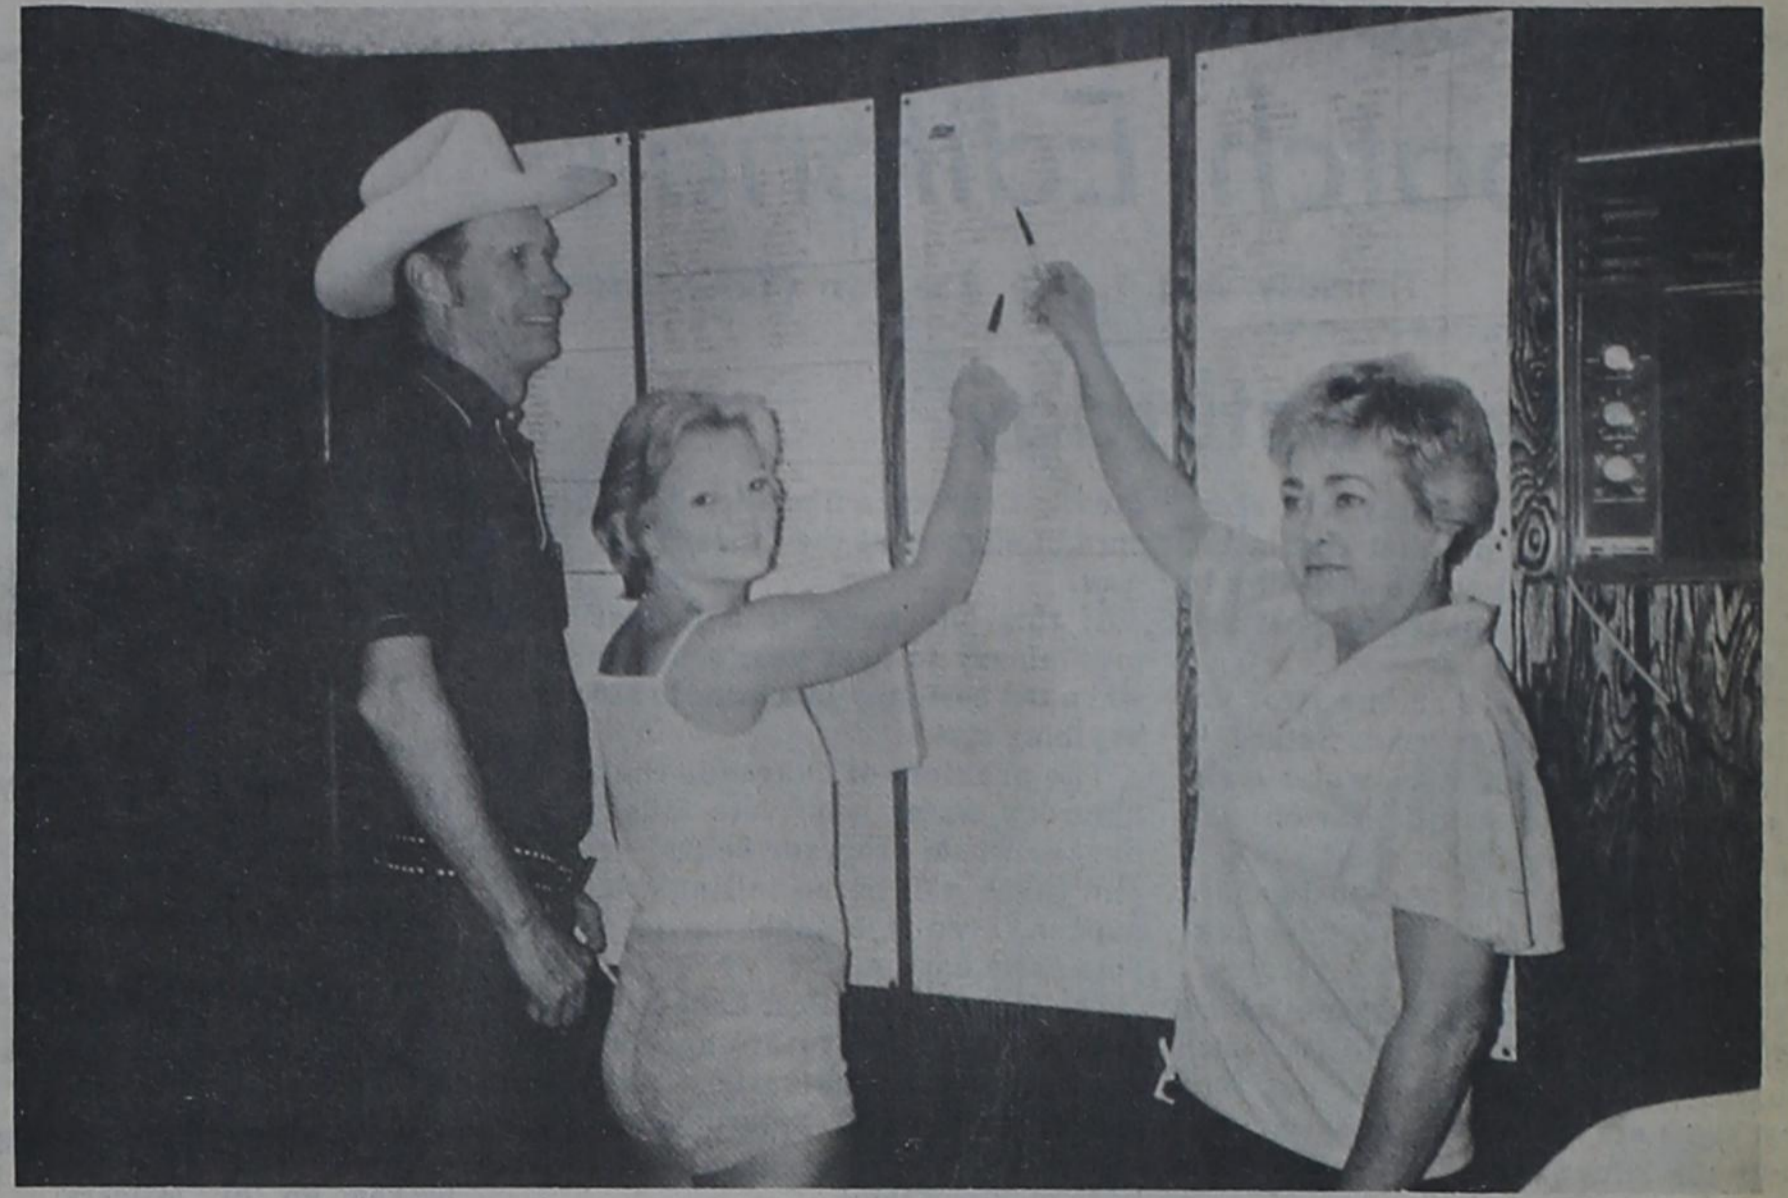

Six riding clubs, several floats, and a lot of horses and riders are included in the rodeo parade this afternoon.

The Chamber of Commerce which helps sponsor the parade has worked hard this week to line up entries, but has found that today's high cost of gasoline is cutting down on participation in such events more than ever before.

Cash prizes in the float division are $200, $100 and $50 with the top three in the decorated bicycle division winning $25, $15, and $10 respectively.

A rodeo dance is planned on the covered slab after each night's rodeo program with Weldon Reed and Solid Country of Post providing the music.

City budgets $10,000 for part-time 'coordinator'

The city council Monday night prior to adopting the new city budget added $1,000 for a part-time community development coordinator and earmarked $45,000 already in the budget toward the purchase of another 420,000 gallon water tank.

The community development coordinator basically would prepare applications for government aid programs. The $10,000 would be for salary on a half-time basis with the idea being to possibly share such an employe with Slaton or Tahoka.

Such a coordinator probably would have had some association with SPAG in Lubbock to have the knowhow to interpret government guidelines and do the necessary legwork to put the complicated grant applications together.

One is needed now on the park project and various other suggestions have been made for others.

This was to have been one of the major responsibilities for the proposed new city manager before that was dropped in the face of public opposition in July.

A fourth 420,000 gallon water tank for the city's water system would cost $80,000 today.

The council's thought in earmarking the $45,000 toward its purchase is that it could be obtained in another year and would help ease future water emergencies when the White River water line breaks.

The water tank addition was brought up by Bill Pool who pointed out that when the city ran out of water recently after a water line break, it had no water supply in case of fire.

The city now has three such storage tanks.

The council also agreed to set up a new city policy to be followed in case of future water breaks to see that all essential water users and the public are promptly advised of the problem so that water could be conserved.

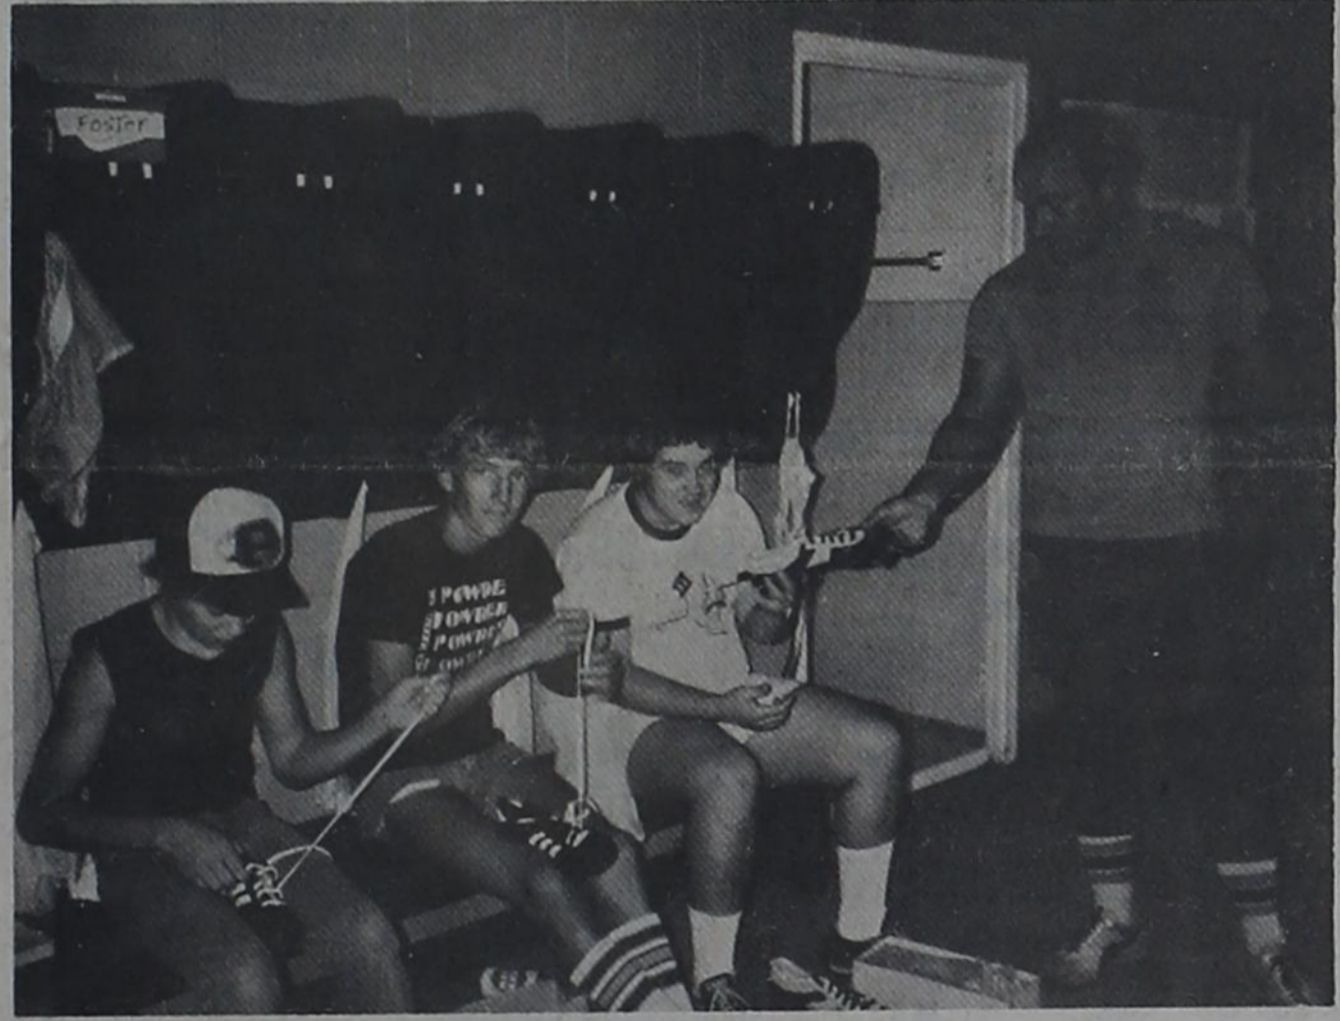

The council unanimously adopted the new budget with the two additions.

The council also ratified Mayor Giles McCrary's declaration of emergency last week to purchase 233 tons of hot mix from Jones Brothers Construction Co. which is handling the US-84 highway repair job for filling in the low spots on the main city-county airport runway. The work was completed last week.

City Councilman Jim Wells reported he had made a weekend survey and found 18 mobile homes not skirted and in compliance with the city ordinance, plus 15 junk cars, and a list of abandoned houses which needed to be torn down. (See City budget, Page 12)

Holdup pair scared off

Jim Gizikis, operator of the Boston Super Dog, frightened off two men who tried to hold him up at gunpoint at his residence on West Main Sunday night.

Alex Lappin and Gary Hair, both of Post, were in the county jail here Wednesday unable to make $10,000 bonds on charges of attempted aggravated robbery in connection with the case.

Sheriff Jim Pippin said Gizikis told the pair who tried to hold him up at his front door that he didn't have any money and shouted at them so loudly in Greek and then in English that he frightened them away empty-handed. The sheriff said Gizikis then came to the sheriff's office and filed a complaint against Lappin and Hair.

Steven Dwayne Fielder of Post was released on $2,000 bail bond after being charged July 30 with theft in what Sheriff Pippin said amounted to twice cashing the same pay check.

According to Pippin, Fielder is alleged to have cashed the check for $512.90 at Allsup's and when the clerk turned to wait on another customer he took the check and cashed it again at the bank here.

Lyda J. Odom was released on $3,500 bond after being arrested here for car theft on a warrant from Fort Stockton on complaint filed by his former wife. Deputies won a foot race with Charles Richards of Big Spring Saturday and arrested him after a four block chase in the Lincoln (See Pair scared, Page 12)

Lightning causes damage during 'Bank shower' here

Post and Garza County received a "bank shower" early Tuesday — two of them in fact for town — along with some of the most violent lightning in these parts in years.

It was the first moisture recorded here since early June, except for the small shower two weeks before.

Moisture measurements varied over the county, ranging from .20 at the county line west of Post to up to .80 to the north and northeast.

The official measurement in Post was .64 of an inch. Some gauges showed .80. The moisture wasn't enough to do dryland cotton much if any good, but should have helped the irrigated cotton.

Lightning bolts knocked out two transformers in the city, plus many fuses and cutouts.

It caused the loss of a number of TV sets and several electrical generators.

The moisture is noted as "a bank shower" because the First National Bank took out a half page rain ad in last week's Dispatch.

July was one of hottest months

July was one of the hottest months on record for Post with an average daily high of 99.9 degrees. The average minimum for the month was 72.0 degrees. Post had a total of 18 100-degree days in July and only the .23 inches of moisture showed .80. The moisture wasn't enough to do dryland cotton much if any good, but should have helped the irrigated cotton.

ROBERT L. SEABORN

New soil technician

Robert L. Seaborn took over duties as Soil Conservation Technician at the local SCS office here in Post last week.

He moves to Post with his wife, Verna, from Kountze, Tx., north of Beaumont.

Seaborn farmed and ranched in central Oklahoma and ran a 4,000-acre pecan farm and raised cattle and small grains and hay.

He has attended Oklahoma State University.

113 register here for draft

A total of 113 young men, 19 and 20 years old, registered for the draft at the Post postoffice during the last two weeks, Postmaster A. J. McAlister reports.

These included 53 20-year-olds and 60 19-year-olds. McAlister said about 10 or 12 of the signees were from out of the county.

POSTINGS . . .

By Jim Cornish

In case The Dispatch looks a little strange to you today, it's because our photo type-setting machine broke down Tuesday and we had to set a lot of our type at the Snyder Daily News, our good neighbor to the south.

—O—
We find the preliminary census figure of 3,807 for Post open to serious question. Percy R. Millard, regional census director in Dallas, advised in a letter announcing the preliminary figures that local officials wanting to protest the count should concentrate on the number of housing units, not the number of people.

—O—
So that's exactly what we did Sunday afternoon. We drove around town for some five hours plus counting houses. For the purpose of making the census here, the city was divided into three sections. One is all the west side over to Avenue O. Then you split the rest of the town from O east down the middle Main street to get the other two.

—O—
What we carefully counted were the western third and the northeastern third. In the western section, the census takers counted 609 housing units. We counted 619. That is pretty close.

—O—
But in the northeastern part of town we counted 533 housing units and the (See Postings, Page 12)

Rabbits take care of lawn

Jimmy Mitchell doesn't have to cut his grass at his home in Cedar Hills just west of Post anymore.

He claims the rabbits are grazing it down. He found six rabbits eating on his lawn when he went to work Monday morning. He says the drought even has the rabbits hungry.

TO VISIT POST — Rotary District Governor W. P. Sturdivant of Amarillo will pay his official visit to the Post Rotary Club next Monday and Tuesday, speaking to the club at their Tuesday luncheon after meeting Monday night with club officers and directors. Sturdivant is an attorney.

Graham plans homecoming

Labor Day weekend, August 30 and 31 has been set for the Graham Chapel Community Homecoming. Anyone who has ever lived in the Community is invited to attend, especially those who attended the Gossett-Graham Chapel and later Graham Schools.

The schedule of events include an ice cream supper on Saturday, August 30 at 7:30 p.m. and again Sunday, August 31 at 2 p.m. when the program for that afternoon begins. All activities will be held in the Graham Community Center.

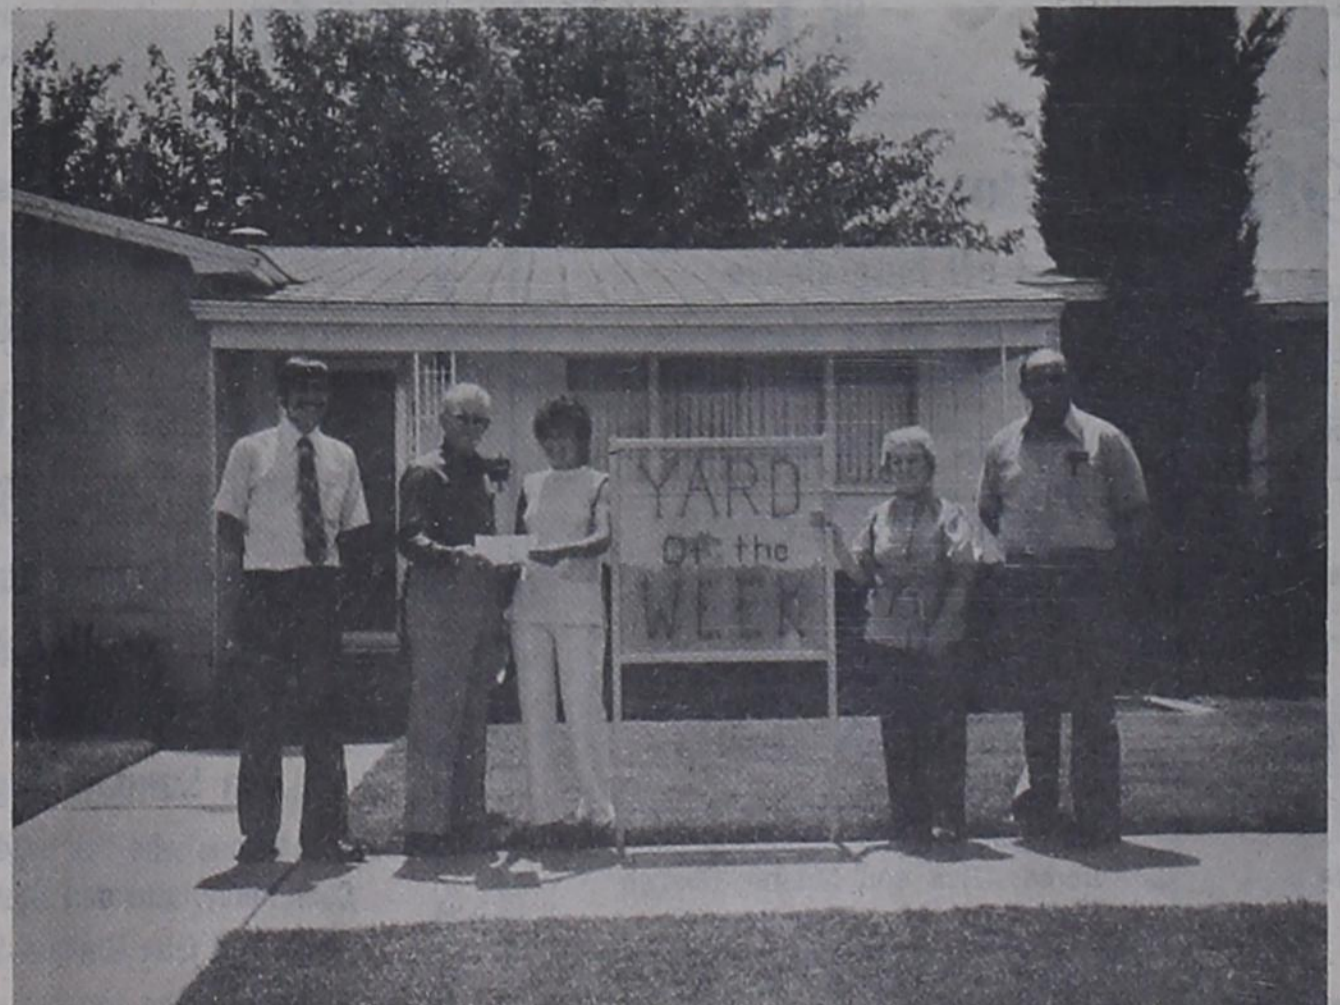

A lot of visiting and remembering is planned and the event is sponsored by the Graham Extension Homemakers club.

Anyone with pictures or mementoes are asked to bring them and invite others who should attend.

He had to catch ride downtown

After the electrical storm early Tuesday, James Mitchell had to have his son come get him and take him to work.

James couldn't get his car out of his garage. He has an electric door-opener and a lightning bolt had smashed a transformer behind the Mitchell house and knocked off all the electricity in the neighborhood.

First test Saturday

Lubbock voters Saturday will start deciding whether or not that city in the next few years will spend millions to finance water supply lakes at Post and Justiceburg.

They will only vote on the first $21 million dollars in water bonds Saturday, which will go to drill more water wells, and to enlarge a pump station and expand a water treatment plant.

The vote on the Post and Justiceburg reservoirs will come probably next year, if the Saturday vote is favorable.

The problem is that Lubbock hasn't really started to "hurt" with its water situation yet. It isn't running out. The first signs are low water pressure.

But the situation is far from desperate. So Lubbock authorities can't be too sure of support at the citizen level right now.

If this one goes, it will just be a preliminary to next year's big decision when the cost may be closer to $200 than anything else.

The problem of course is that if the Saturday water bond vote fails, it will put the whole program behind schedule and there will be no telling what will happen, even if brought up to another vote early next year.

The future of the Post Lake is going to be up to Lubbock voters not Saturday but next year at the earliest. One thing in the bonds favor Saturday though is the current drought. It makes everybody stop and think.

Best tax year ever

Just about everybody expects the Post school trustees to cut school district taxes next week. That would make the tax cuts unanimous for the four local taxing districts.

So far, the city, county and hospital district all have increased their budgets in sizable amounts but cut their tax levies at the same time.

All can do this because the big jump in the gasoline price at the pump has made all the oil in Garza ground so much more valuable.

But behind all this, there is another thought.

It is all going to change next year. That's because next year the county will have one set of taxable property valuations — all brand new ones to be made late this year and early next.

The valuations on virtually every home will double, some maybe triple, or even quadruple.

That doesn't mean that the homeowners are going to pay double, triple, or four times their present taxes. The tax rates will come away down, but they will end up paying some more because their properties in relation to oil valuations will be increased which means they will pay a bigger share.

Now what does that mean to the budget makers?

It means they have this year to get ready for next year when folks will get a real mad on about paying taxes. They won't understand it and there is almost sure to be a gigantic ruckus.

Nobody showed up at any of the public hearings on the budgets this year. It was no problem to increase those budgets to take care of some things that couldn't be afforded before — like the county's new road grading equipment.

Nobody complained.

But next year, budget increases will meet a whole lot more resistance. If taxes are going up, the taxpayers are going to watch those budgets very closely. There probably will still be an inflation on, but nonetheless the taxpayers are going to be a whole lot tougher in accepting bigger budgets.

That's why there probably will never be another tax year around here like this year.

The only thing which would prevent trouble at budget making time next year would be for gasoline to climb on up to $2 a gallon at the pump.

This would jack up local oil property valuations another time — a big jump too. And all the other taxpayers might not have to pay any more tax dollars than they are paying this year.

Which once you look at it closely, totals up to only about 20 cents on each tax dollar taken in.

New legal problem

Along with most individuals, communities are becoming more "sue-able" these days.

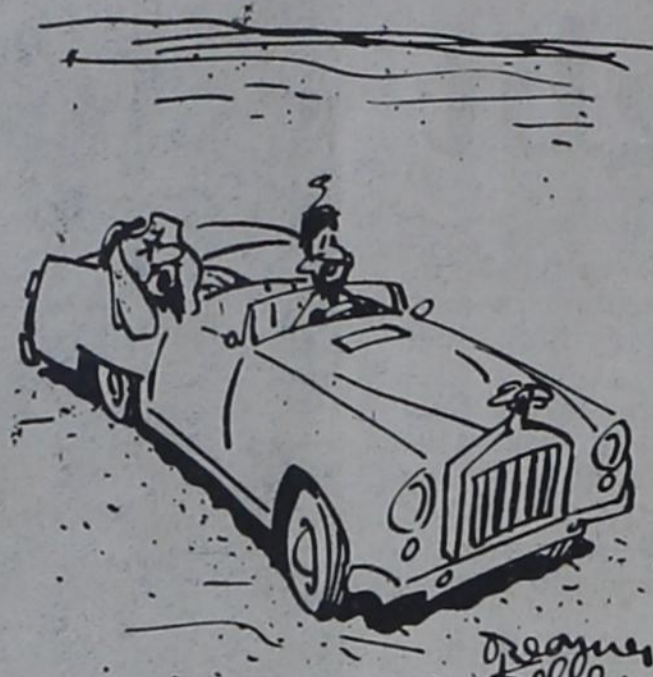

It wasn't so many years ago that an individual couldn't sue any unit of government. But that's all changed.

The Texas Supreme Court in a Midland case last week ruled that Midland was liable and upheld a $975,000 damage suit against the city because trees and brush blocked motorists' view at an intersection and resulted in a collision which left one driver with permanent brain damage.

The supreme court noted in this landmark case that cities have been held responsible for many years for maintaining streets in a safe condition.

"A street is not any safer when the obstruction on the right-of-way is visual and not physical," the court's opinion said.

"What do you mean, we're out of gas?"

Salary offers to college grads boosted for 1980

LUBBOCK — Data compiled by the College Placement Center (CPC) show average salary offers to many of this year's college graduates are higher than those extended to last year's graduates, according to Texas Tech University career planning and placement officials.

Career Planning and Placement Service Director Truman T. Bell said that despite current economic downturn, all 24 curricula surveyed at the bachelor's level realized increases in starting salary offers over those reported by CPC a year ago.

Texas Tech University is a participating institution in the national survey.

Highest salary offers were to engineering graduates. Students majoring in petroleum engineering continued to attract top offers at the bachelor's level, $23,844 annually, 10.8 percent above the July 1979 figures. Second-ranked chemical engineering, at $21,612, experienced a 9.7 percent gain. Increases in engineering salary offers ranged from about 8 percent to 12 percent over last year's.

Job offers to engineering graduates continued to dominate the CPC survey, accounting for 63 percent of the bachelor's offers reported in the survey, Bell said.

The business disciplines accounted for 25 percent of the bachelor's offers. Percentage increases in average salary offers over last year ranged from 7.2 percent for accounting major to 10.5 percent for business-general. These gains brought the average offer for these disciplines to $15,516 and $14,616 per year, respectively.

The seven scientific disciplines accounted for 8 percent of the volume. Computer science offers dominated this category, both in number of offers, comprising about one-half of the offers reported, and in dollar value of offers. The average offer of $18,696 is more than an 11 percent increase over the July 1979 average.

The humanities and social sciences group, with 4 percent of the volume, experienced increases ranging from 9 percent to 11 percent, Bell said. Data are submitted throughout the year by 186 placement offices at 164 colleges and universities through the U.S. Formal reports are issued survey.

Of the 19 programs surveyed at the master's level, MBA candidates with a technical undergraduate degree recorded the highest average salary offer. At $23,652, this group jumped 12.8 percent over last July's closing figure. Chemical engineering, which had held the top spot for several years, slipped to second place with an average offer of $23,364, up 9.4 percent since last year.

The CPC salary survey data are based on offers, not acceptances, made to college students in selected curricula and graduate programs, Bell said. Data are submitted throughout the year by 186 placement offices at 164 colleges and universities through the U.S. Formal reports are issued in January, March and July. A preliminary report is published in December and a summer supplement in October.

The July 1980 survey is based on offers reported

our community

At least 80 percent of the drinking water produced by most American communities is not used for drinking at all. Instead, it's used in industry and irrigation, washing cars and cleaning floors. In a recent report, the experts at the American Chemical Society, a leading scientific organization, pointed out that highly treated wastewater could be an alternative supply for these needs, doing away with a lot of water wasting. This cannot, however, be put into effect very easily under our existing water control system.

Trustees to tackle budget

The greatest temperature range on earth was from -76°F to +113°F—a 189° spread—in Siberia.

Post school trustees will hold a work session on the 1980-81 school district budget at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the high school library.

The public budget hearing will follow on Thursday night.

Indications are that the school district will be able to cut its tax levy as have all other local units of government because of greatly increased oil valuations.

TEEN SCENE By Norm

I hope everyone has noticed that I've been gone for the last two weeks. I've actually only been gone a week, but the column has been missing for some time. Anyway, here goes another futile attempt.

Congratulations to Tammy and Kelly Mason and Trisha and Mike Hair on their recent weddings. Hope both couples have a long and happy life together.

Anticipation was at its highest this morn at the field house when footballers showed up to check out their shoes. You could feel it in the air they are so anxious to get started on their two-a-days.

Congratulations are also in order to Cheetah Mason for her sparkling new diamond. A gift from Randy!!!

NOTICE: Band practice begins Monday for members of the seventh grade through the 12th. Practice begins at 8 p. m. in the band hall. BE THERE!

And the Lady Lope basketball camp gets underway next Monday also.

Pat Mitchell has to be one of the luckiest people I know. He went to San Angelo a week ago Saturday to register for Angelo State and happened to be in the right place at the right time and was introduced to the HOUSTON OILERS. He even hobnobbed with Kenny Stabler all Saturday afternoon at the college Lake House. They presented him an Oiler cap. Needless to say, he's now a great Oiler supporter.

Karron Hays underwent surgery in the DeLeon Hospital last weekend to repair torn ligaments in her ankle following a softball accident. Hope she has a speedy recovery.

Charlie Dalby and Rance Adkins accompanied by Charlie's parents visited in Ruidoso last week.

Donna, Jerri and Pam Baker of Idalou and myself were in Angelo last week to register for classes. BUT I DIDN'T GET TO HOBNOB WITH THE OILERS!

Mark Hauser who has been living in Post for the summer is leaving this weekend. He has made a MULTITUDE of friends and they hate to see him leave. But good luck Mark and come back to see us.

Scott Walker and Jeff Corrigan is also leaving this weekend following a three weeks stay here. Scott will be attending Princeton this fall and Jeff is going to attend Notre Dame. Don't forget where your old stomping ground is Scott.

The rodeo is the topic of conversation, so see you there this weekend.

Bartlett to head CB club

Bobby Bartlett was elected president of the Caprock CB Club at its regular meeting held at the city park recently. Other officers elected were Jake Baldree, vice-president, and Carolyn Halford as secretary-treasurer.

The group enjoyed a pot luck supper. Final plans for the upcoming jamboree to be held August 16 and 17 were discussed. The jamboree will be to benefit Muscular Dystrophy.

Winners of the Jamboree ticket sale were announced, with Bobby Bartlett winning first place, and James Halford winning second place.

The new Board members for the year 1981 will be James Halford, who will serve as spokesman for the board and Daisy Redman.

The members present at this meeting were Bobby and Marie Bartlett, and son, Anna Marie Bartlett, Jake and Mary Baldree and sons, James and Dora Halford, Leslie Seals, Connie Vance, A. D. and Carolyn Halford, Barbara Torres and daughter and Daisy Redman.

Edd McLaughlin, a catered luncheon at noon at $2.50 per plate with the rest of the price of the meal subsidized by sponsors, and group singing at 1 p.m. led by Jim Fullingim followed by the recognition of Mr. and Mrs. W. Leonard Schoolcraft as the pioneer family, presentation of awards for longest distance traveled and oldest woman and man in attendance, with an old fiddlers contest (50 years and up) to conclude the day.

The Garza County Museum with a picture of the remodeled Post Sanitarium building is featured in the reunion's printed program.

When considering places for your savings, remember five percent compounded annually yields more than four and a half percent compounded daily.

VISIT RELATIVES State Rep. Bob Harper and Mrs. Harper of Fredrick, Okla., visited with her aunt, Mrs. Thelma Thomas and also with Mr. and Mrs. Keith Kemp of Post last week.

Taken an interesting trip. Everyone wants to read about it. Tell us about it at 495-2816.

Tech to experiment in solar energy for farm use

LUBBOCK — The time has yet to arrive in Texas for economical use of solar-produced electricity to run irrigation pumps, say Texas Tech University energy experts.

But Texas Tech's Mechanical Engineering Department has ventured into a two-year $182,000 research project to help overcome some hurdles in using solar energy for farm tasks year-round, said Dr. James H. Strickland, project leader.

Of the total cost, about $90,000 went for two 20-foot, solar-collecting parabolic dishes, a solar-steam conversion system and steam-driven electricity generator, he added. The remainder goes for salaries, supplies and other costs for developing on farm uses for solar-produced steam in addition to its use to generate electricity for irrigation pumps, Strickland said. The funds were a line item grant from the state of Texas.

One major use for the heat might be for pasteurizing milk on the dairy site at Texas Tech's laboratory farm in north Lubbock County. Crops on the farm will be irrigated partially via the power from the solar system, the mechanical engineer said.

Another use could be for the steam needs of the Texas Tech feedmill there. Yet a fourth use would likely be heating water normal needs on the Tech farm.

Solar power has possibilities for many farm chores if the experts can work out three major problem areas, Strickland and two other Tech researchers said.

One, solar energy must be adapted to year-round uses much like the ones Strickland and his associates seek.

Two, cheaper but sophisticated solar power production systems must be mass produceable.

Three, solar-produced electricity must be easily sold on a fair basis to utility companies when farmers are not using the power.

Results of their own and others' studies have convinced Drs. Steven R. Beck, L.D. Clements and Strickland that solar energy systems are still too expensive on-farm use in Texas. Beck and Clements are chemical engineers at Tech.

Even at the projected $13,000 cost-only estimate for one mass produced solar dish and steam power system, said Strickland, the price to farmers would still be cost-prohibitive. The $13,000 estimate does not include profit margins and could be reality at some distant future date.

As part of the $182,000 effort, Strickland will build scale models of the scoop dishes, as they are sometimes called, and test them for wind effects on structure. The goal is to see how cheaply a solar dish, that can withstand environmental hazards, can be made. Wind velocity of 35 miles per hour causes the dishes to shake and de-focus from the sun's rays, Strickland said.

Dr. Ronald J. Pederson, also a Texas Tech mechanical engineer, will deal with the problems of collecting the heat of the solar receivers on the dishes.

Dr. Milton L. Smith, a Texas Tech industrial engineer will continue a project already started to see how to minimize hail damage to the dishes. Nets have been effective in past trials. Smith also will analyze the economics of using solar systems on the farm.

Strickland said the solar-produced electricity will act as a back-up energy source for one water well pump and will supply only about 25 percent of that pump's power needs.

Emphasizing the need to find alternative solar power uses is the fact that most Texas farmers, especially in this area, irrigate their crops for varying lengths of time during only about 90 days out of the year.

Therein lies the problem, said Clements. Four-to six month growing seasons over most of Texas, even shorter irrigation seasons and prohibitive investments mean that only a fraction of the energy potential would be used on the farm, he said. With present technology the expensive system would lie idle for most of the year, Clements said.

Scientists and farmers will continue to bow to the more efficient solar energy conversion rates of plants and leave the less efficient man-made solar collectors and power systems for other energy needs and continued research, Clements said.

Nature converts the sun's rays to biomass in the form of grain, grain residues or cotton residues, and man will transform this biomass and livestock manure into synthetic gas, fuel alcohols and methane to run easily converted pumps for most Texas fields, the two chemical engineers predicted.

All three engineers said that solar energy could be used for at least part of the input needs of alcohol fermentation and distillation. Strickland's project may look at this use for the Texas Tech solar-produced steam.

In 12-month growing seasons found in limited areas of California and Arizona, there is a chance for conventional solar-powered irrigation, Clements said.

Some areas of the Rio Grande Valley have almost year-round seasons and also could some day use solar-powered systems, he said.

For now, the prospects for selling electricity produced by solar systems to utility companies are limited, Clements said. The main problem is meeting the technical standards of the utility companies, he said.

Strickland's group has contracted with South Plains Electric Coop to get credit returning electricity to the cooperative's power system, or grid. The return, however, is not on a 1-1 basis. For the returned electricity, the research group will get credit for about one-half the price charged by the cooperative.

The solar-steam electrical system bought by Texas Tech includes the device for matching the frequency of the electric current produced with that of the utility company's electric current.

But if a solar or wind electrical system does not have this "fairly expensive" device, the owner cannot sell or return electricity to the utility's system, Clements said.

A safety disconnect device also must be included to protect the utility grid if the solar system fails to meet frequency levels, Strickland said.

3 wildcats to be drilled

Garza had six more drilling locations announced this week — three of them wildcats.

The wildcats included Andover Oil Co.'s No. 1-19 J. B. Slaughter, nine miles west of Justiceburg which will be drilled to 8,000 feet; Powell & Stone's No. 1 B.L. July one of best reading months

Both youngsters and adults do more of their reading during the hot summer months than any other time of the year. Or you could say, at least more of them read during the summer.

Librarian Pee Wee Pierce reported that 1,008 library books were checked out in July, 608 of them by adults and 400 of them by juveniles.

Only during the summer months are a thousand or more books checked out of the local library.

The selection ranged from 204 non-fiction for adults and 85 non-fiction for juveniles to 230 adult fiction, 128 mysteries, 40 westerns, and six science fictions to 152 juvenile fictions and 163 easy books.

This brought total library circulations for the first seven months of 1980 to 5,877 books.

Twenty-eight new books were added to library shelves for the month to bring 1980 acquisitions to date to 270.

Twelve books were lost during the month, two lost books recovered, and 17 discarded for a net loss of 17, bringing the net loss for the year to 100.

The library now has 13,664 books.

Sixteen reference questions were answered during the month, two books borrowed on interlibrary loan during July, sixteen films were shown in the library to 353 and several films checked out were shown to an additional 77 persons.

Miscellaneous revenue for July from book fines, book sales and donations was $20.65 to bring miscellaneous revenue for the year to date to $151.51.

Tahoka farmer's plight is cited

Ed Bartley, Tahoka farmer, was quoted extensively last Friday by the Wall Street Journal in a story about West Texas cotton under the headline, "Cotton farmers in Texas give up hope that a plentiful rain would help crop."

"In early June, Ed Bartley was looking forward to a bumper crop of healthy green cotton on plants laden with fluffy white bolls," the lead on the cotton story read in the Journal. "Now the West Texas farmer looks out over his dry fields of stunted, graying cotton and faces the prospect of losing much of his crop and possibly his livelihood."

"Mr. Bartley has farmed his land in Tahoka for 35 years. He says, 'Out of the last five years, I've lost money three. Forty thousand last year and $70,000 another. If you keep dipping water out of a bucket, pretty soon you empty it!'"

The story goes on to point out how the Texas drought is now spreading to California's San Joaquin valley. Together these states account for about 61 percent of U.S. cotton production.

The Journal's story pointed out that cotton prices on the New York Cotton Exchange have jumped 16 percent to 86.90 cents a pound from 74.66 cents on June 27 when traders began to fear the effects on the drought on the cotton crop.

COLORADO GUESTS
Mr. and Mrs. Chant Lee and family of Durango, Colo., and former Post residents, visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Cockrum last Friday.

VISIT CONGRESSMAN — Two Post youths are among this group of young people who attended the 1980 National 4-H Citizenship Short Course and Heritage Tour in the nation's capital. The group is shown above visiting with Congressman Charles W. Stenholm. Can you find Benny Jackson and Lance Dunn, both of Post, in the picture?

man who has been charged with five local burglaries, theft from auto vehicles and auto theft. The investigation also resulted in the arrest of five other adults and juveniles. A considerable amount of stolen loot was recovered. Floydada recently initiated a program similar to Lubbock's Crime Line.

DOWNTOWN OAKS BALLINGER — The Chamber of Commerce has raised $2,525 in donations to plant an estimated 25 oak trees in the downtown area. The bid by a nursery at $100 a tree includes cutting a hole in the sidewalk, planting both the tree and ground cover around the tree.

SLATON TAX HIKE
SLATON — The Slaton school board has voted a 15 percent tax increase to balance its budget with the tax rate climbing from $1.37 to between $1.61 to $1.67. A public hearing on the rate increase is scheduled for tomorrow.

GAIN TOO SMALL DENVER CITY — Census Count Stuns Officials read the headline in last week's Denver City Press over a story which said preliminary 1980 census figures showed Denver City had gained only 232 people since 1970 to 4,365. The Chamber of Commerce directors have voted to sponsor a recount of households here.

HE MOVES AGAIN DENVER CITY — Ed Zintgraf, former administrator of the Garza Memorial Hospital in Post, has resigned as hospital administrator here effective Aug. 1.

GAINS AND LOSSES TAHOKA — Tahoka, Wilson, New Home and O'Donnell all registered small population gains here according to preliminary 1980 census figures. Tahoka is up 74 to 3,030, Wilson up 111 to 541, New Home up 12 to 263, and O'Donnell up seven to 1,024. Lynn County, however, registered a 10.5 percent population decline.

SNYDER JUMPS SNYDER — This city registered a 10.1 percent increase in population from 1970 according to the preliminary census total of 12,301. But city and Chamber officials still aren't satisfied and are checking computer printouts from the water department showing only 200 vacancies against the 444 vacant dwelling units reported by the census.

UTILITY BILLS DOUBLE TULIA — City officials beat householders to the punch here by reporting that their water and electrical bills for July then in the mail were almost double due to the heat wave. They reported the city had purchased a $100,000 worth of gas from Pioneer to generate the month's supply of electricity.

Jess Knight falls to eighth

Jess Knight, the Justiceburg bronc rider, fell from fifth to eighth place in the Pro Rodeo Cowboys standings in saddle bronc riding this past week, winning only $172 to bring his prize winning total for the season to $14,528.

13.68 PCT LOSS CROSBYTON — City officials here are shaking their heads in disbelief with the preliminary census report which shows the town has lost 308 persons, or 13.68 of its population in the decade of the 70's. The preliminary report listed Crosbyton as having 1,943 citizens.

Granted, we could have counted some of the "tumbledowns" which they didn't even consider sub-standard housing but we are pretty positive that more than half of the 126 unit difference was represented by homes which looked mighty lived in to us.

The census average was 2.8 persons per housing unit, so you could see the difference right there could account for up to 300 or more persons. If you cut our 126 difference down to 75, and use the 2.8 average you come up with 210 more people.

We turned our figures, by the block, into Maxine Marks, the council woman who is co-chairman of our census committee and she told us she would file a protest.

Another item open to question in the preliminary figures is the 100 housing units they reported vacant. You say there isn't any, but there are really a good number because nobody would think of living in most of them. But still a lot of homes they listed as vacant may not be. Mrs. Marks has the list of vacancies by addresses to check out. It is the vacancies which is drawing most of the complaints from neighboring towns.

We spent an hour and a half Friday afternoon talking to Billie Smith of Snyder who is the crew leader in charge of the Post census taking. She was very obliging and offered to recheck anything we wanted rechecked. She explained she still hasn't turned in her census ledgers and many changes have been made in them since the Lubbock office totaled up that preliminary count.

Mrs. Marks brought Ms. Smith by the office and we called in Chamber president Danny Shaw.

Danny, you know, is an active member of the EMTs. Consequently he has made ambulance calls in the past year to a whole lot of sort of hidden away living quarters all over town to pick up patients.

So Danny gave Ms. Smith the test to see if she had a half dozen backyard-hidden housing units on her registers. She had every single one. She even had a tent down as one of the living units — and Danny knew about that one too.

Some used to say piercing a lime causes love pangs in one's beloved.

Matsler rites held Tuesday

Funeral services for Juanetta (Curley) Matsler, 68, of Post were held at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the First Baptist Church with the Rev. Bill Caudle, layman, officiating.

Burial was in Terrace Cemetery under direction of Hudman Funeral Home of Post.

Mrs. Matsler died about 5 a.m. Sunday in Methodist Hospital in Lubbock after an illness.

She was married to Bailey Matsler on Dec. 20, 1930 in Spur and had lived in the Post area since that year. Mrs. Matsler was a lifetime member of the Baptist Church and a member of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Survivors include her husband; a son, John of Plainview, a daughter, Carolyn Seagraves of Fort Worth; three brothers, John Weaver of Concord, Calif., Oscar Weaver of Marble Falls and Harland Weaver of Irving; three sisters, Lola Mae Parks of Dell City, Margarette McClanahan of Truth of Consequences, N.M., and Jewel York of Deport; six grandchildren; and a great-grandchild.

Pallbearers were John Bilberry, James Bilberry, Michael Sears, Paul Sears, Paul Matsler, Carl Matsler, Martin Matsler, Walton McQuien and Weldon Weaver.

$32,000 heat grant received

LEVELLAND — The South Plains Community Action Association has been authorized to spend $32,000 for the new "heat related crisis program."

Only in life threatening situations can any money be used to pay utility bills however government regulations state. Garza county is among the counties eligible to receive a portion of the grant.

City budget—

(Continued From Page One) The city is to send notices to those mobile home owners not notified two weeks ago and asked to file charges against those already warned.

Mayor McCrary was asked to appoint a member of the council to serve on the board of the new Garza tax assessing district. Dr. William Wilson had been the cities' representative on the board.

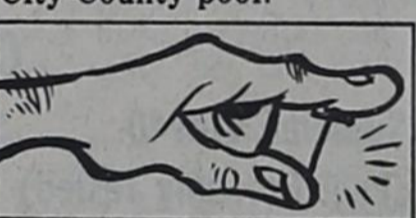

In another action the city approved paying half the proposed cost of a new beeper system for the volunteer fire department.

The council accepted the bid of Don Ammons for the sale of 218 new street signs to the city for $8,371, or slightly more if the city decided to have block numbers on the signs, subject to written confirmation by the manufacturer that Ammons was their authorized dealer here. This was figured at $38.40 per sign plus a slight addition for block numbering but well below the $44 the city had voted to spend for the signs at a recent meeting.

Birthday party for Tandi Rogers

Tandi Rogers was honored with a party on her ninth birthday Saturday. The Sunbonnet Sue theme was used with cake and punch served to Megan Bush, Melinda Curry, Traci Bush, Gentry Owen, Paula Robertson, Monica Odom, Robin Dean and Sara Hodges.

Following refreshments the group swam at the City-County pool.

There is as much iron in the average man's body as in a three-inch nail.

Paired scared—

(Continued From Page One) addition Saturday night. Officers took a pistol from him after he had discharged it at least twice. He paid fine and court costs of $211 in county court after pleading guilty to discharging a firearm within the city limits. He was also given a two-year probation.

W. C. Sapp was booked Saturday for violating a city ordinance by operating pool tables and a juke box without a license. He paid fine and court costs totaling $203.50 in city court. Sheriff Pippin had warned him a few days earlier to get a license when he opened a place in the the Lincoln addition.

Wesley Shanks of Post walked into the sheriff's office Monday and gave himself up to face a charge of car theft.

Shanks allegedly stole a pickup from a Slaton man in Garza County back in April, but he apparently took off when the Slaton man filed a warrant for his arrest. The pickup was recovered a few days later after being abandoned in Socorro, N.M.

Shanks called Sheriff Pippin long distance from

New Jersey several days before he gave himself up, telling the sheriff he was "tired of running and ashamed of what he did" and that he would give himself up if the sheriff would send him a bus ticket to return to Post. Pippin refused to send the ticket. Shanks was released on a $5,000 surety bond.

Michael Dwayne Davis and Ruby Gonzales, both of Post, were arrested on a local street here Tuesday by deputies and charged with possession of marijuana under two ounces. They were still in jail Wednesday unable to make $750 bonds.

Burglars broke into Foster's Discount Auto Parts at 615 North Broadway last Thursday night and stole three in-dash radio units and three pairs of speakers with $850.
