Surprise Snow Slows Spring

THIS IS APRIL? This was the scene that greeted early morning risers Thursday morning. Though snow fell during most of the day, it melted shortly after falling.

by Wes Burnett

An upper level low pressure system in southwest Arizona, pumping moist Pacific and Gulf of Mexico moisture, combined with a Canadian high pressure center, pouring cold air down the east side of the Rocky Mountains last week to result in a late winter (or early spring) snow on the Texas South Plains.

Post residents woke up Thursday morning to a snow-covered ground and big flakes falling out of the sky.

The snow fall continued on and off, mostly on, throughout the day, but with temperatures hovering at 33-34 degrees, no significant accumulations were recorded.

Traffic was fairly normal, highways and streets were wet and muddy as was to be expected.

The storm center moved out of the area Friday morning, leaving a few dabs of snow in places as a reminder that weather around here can sure be unpredictably different.

By the way, this snow wasn't the only April winter blast in recent history, snow fell but melted on April 12, 1980.

I'm reminded of a saying I heard in Klamath Falls, Ore. one day in 1970 after a June snow... "we had a great summer last year, it came on a Sunday..."

School Trustee Run-off Election

A run-off election for Place 3 on the Post School Board of Trustees between Ronald Thuett and John Boren will be held Saturday, April 30.

It was first thought that a run-off election could be avoided, but following consultation with legal authorities, it was determined that the run-off should be held because of nine write-in votes in the April 2 election.

The run-off will be held in the Post High School Library and write-in votes will not be allowed in the special election voting.

Absentee voting will begin Monday, April 11 and continue through Tuesday, April 26 in the office of Kay Hays at the Post High School.

The school board meeting scheduled for April has been combined with the regular May meeting and will be held Monday, May 2 when trustees will be sworn in.

By Wes Burnett

Four more businesses have joined the Post Chamber of Commerce, bringing the total of new members to 22 during the membership drive campaign.

The latest to join are Quicklay Pipeline, Caprock Golf Course, Post Pipe and Supply and Glenda's Gallery.

Membership drive chairman Don Glidewell emphasizes that the seeking of new members does not end with the official campaign, but will be a continuing task for the board of directors.

"We'll be contacting those businesses who haven't joined," Glidewell comments, "because we just know that every business will want to be a part of our efforts to help make Post a better place to live and work."

The Post Chamber of Commerce now has a total of 110 business and 32 individual members.

Chamber of Commerce president Jack King expects to begin appointing members to various committees in the next few weeks.

"We have a long list of important projects that we need to get started on," King points out, "and the sooner we get going the better."

The board of directors will meet Tuesday evening to begin work on the projects for this year.

City Council Awards Seal Coating

Ronnie Zahn Pavers, Inc., of Lubbock received the bid contract for seal coating with a bid of 51 cents a square yard or $32,509.95, during bid opening at the City Council meeting Monday night.

The engineering firm of Parkhill, Smith and Cooper opened the bids and recommended the firm to the City of Post for the street seal coating project.

Bids were also opened for a new street department vehicle which will be used by city superintendent, Mike Sanchez with Arroyo Country Motors of Post receiving the bid over Smith-Ford of Slaton. Arroyo bid $7,957.95 for the pickup.

City owned windmill towers were awarded to Donald Windham with a bid of $51.59 each.

Public bids were also opened on surplus fire department vehicles and equipment and two vehicles, a 1954 Dodge Pickup and a 1951 GMC water truck were awarded to Eldon Kirkpatrick of Snyder for $255 each.

Bud Asbjornsen and Jerry Slaughter, with General Telephone Company met with the council to discuss a rate increase which GTE is asking from the PUC.

General Telephone is requesting a $85.5 million rate increase and if granted, a residential phone on a private line which is now $7.45 per month would increase to $11.20 and a business phone, single line which is now $19.75 would increase to $29.70 and the EAS service charge would remain the same.

They also told the council that they could expect them to be back next year asking for another rate increase and would continue to ask for increases until adjustments in deregulation are complete.

In other council action, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Bassinger met with the council to obtain permission to put a building 30' x 40' to be used as a business and welding shop in a residential area located at 316 West 4th Street.

A public hearing is required on such a matter and council members were told that 23 letters had been sent out to adjoining neighbors and only one written negative reply had been received.

Two of the Bassingers' neighbors did appear before the council to ask questions concerning their property valuation and noise factors.

The city asked city attorney Harvey Morton to study the situation and to draw up specific recommendations and guidelines and they would try to give the Bassingers an answer as soon as possible.

Several property leases owned by the city were also discussed and it was requested of Morton to draw up an all-purpose standardized lease for leasees to sign.

City manager, Becky King, reported on the status of condemned houses in Post and a motion was made by councilmen to move towards demolition of the condemned houses.

The junk vehicle ordinance was also discussed and it was decided that the ordinance needed review and revisions and authorized Morton to start on this project.

Election ballots were canvassed of the Saturday, April 2 election and swearing in ceremonies for Council members Bill Pool and Maxine Earl and Mayor McCrary for Friday noon.

Council also discussed the decision of March 7 to offer business district property owners alley paving at owner cost upon the findings and recommendations of Parkhill,

Smith and Cooper Engineers and it was mutually agreed not to instigate such a project at this time due to utility lines contained within the allies being of insufficient depth for inverted drainage and width of the alleys insufficient for crown buildup allowing side drainage, utility line conditions also are not conducive to permanent material coverage and the high cost of concrete.

Long range plans were discussed for normal replacement of lines at a deeper level and paving offered as line permitted. It was agreed that main alleys within the primary fire zone would be based, treated and maintained by the City as a high priority.

The council also asked Mrs. King to obtain information from the TV cable company as to when the purchase date was effective because of so many complaints received due to poor cable quality and the new owners had promised to better the service within 45 days after acquiring the company.

Before adjourning, the council voted to approve the monthly invoices and pay the bills.

Look at teeth to judge horse's age

By R.G. ELMORE
D.V.M.
Copley News Service

Q. I have heard that it is possible to determine the age of a horse by looking in its mouth. How is this done and how accurate is the procedure.

A. It is usually possible for a knowledgeable, experienced person to estimate the age of a horse by evaluating its teeth. However, it is not possible for anyone to tell exactly how old a horse is by simply examining its teeth. The teeth only give an estimation of the horse's actual age.

There are very few methods by which the exact age of a horse can readily be determined. Some breeds, for example Thoroughbreds and Standardbreds, usually carry a tattoo on the inside of the lower lip that indicates the year the horse was born. Pedigrees or registration papers for any breed of horse will state the horse's birthday.

One must be careful to ascertain that the registration papers are for the horse in question. Identifying characteristics or a picture of the horse should be attached to the registration papers.

Ages of horses are often forgotten, especially if the horses have changed ownership. Unfortunately, forgetfulness may be intentional at times.

In order to become adept at aging horses accurately, one should begin by examining the teeth of several horses of known ages. The lower center front teeth, called incisors, are used for determining the approximate age of horses. The horse has six of these incisor teeth. As in humans, the incisors erupt at fairly regular times as temporary teeth and are replaced later by permanent teeth. Age estimates are based on time of eruption of both the temporary and permanent teeth and the shape, length and degree of wear.

Foals are usually born with two incisors in the lower gums. They are called nippers. If the nippers are not erupted at birth, they usually do so very soon following birth.

Two more incisors erupt on either side of the nipper at approximately 4 to 6 weeks of age. These are called intermediates.

The third pair of incisors erupt at approximately 9 months of age. They are called corners.

As the teeth grow from the gums they begin to show wear on their surfaces. This wear can usually be seen on the nippers at about 1 year of age; the intermediates at 1½ years of age, and the corners at 2 years of age. At approximately 2½ years of age, the temporary nippers are replaced by the permanent first incisors. The temporary intermediates are replaced at 3½ to 4 years and the corners at 4½ to 5 years with permanent incisor teeth.

A horse is said to have a full mouth at 5 years of age. This means that all of the permanent incisors have erupted. Temporary teeth are smaller than permanent teeth, are usually discolored, and have furrows on their front surfaces. It is important to differentiate whether teeth are temporary or permanent whenever evaluating them.

The permanent nippers start to wear at age 6; the permanent intermediates at age 7, and the permanent corners at age 8. The surface of the teeth changes in appearance as the teeth wear. With wear, the pulp in the center of the tooth appears and is referred to as the star. The star appears in the nippers at age 8, intermediates at age 9, and the corners at age 10.

The cup on the surface of the incisors disappears with age. It disappears from the nippers at age 11, intermediates at 12, and from the corners at 13.

It is difficult to determine the age of a horse with any degree of accuracy after age 13. Estimations can be made using "Galvayne's Groove." Galvayne's Groove is a deep groove found on the upper corner tooth. The groove appears at the gum line at approximately 10 years of age, advances halfway down the tooth at 15, and reaches the wearing surface at age 20. Other criteria used to estimate the older horse's age include the shape of the teeth and the angle at which the teeth meet.

Aging horses by evaluation of their teeth is an inexact science. Helpful estimations can be given by knowledgeable, experienced people.

There was a man who lived in a town and sold hot dogs. He was hard of hearing, so he couldn't listen to the radio. He lived out of the coverage of cable t.v., so he didn't watch television. But he did sell good hot dogs. And he consistently ran an ad in his town newspaper, telling people about his hot dogs. People bought his hot dogs. He increased his meat and roll orders. He bought a bigger stove to take care of his increased business. He finally got his son home from the big city to help him out. Then something happened. Son said to father, "Dad, haven't you been hearing all the news on t.v.? There's a big depression coming on...times are really tough and getting worse...we've got to cut our expenses if we're going to make it." Dad listened to his son's advice. "Well, he has been to college, and he has been to the big city, maybe he knows more than me." So, the father cancelled his newspaper advertising. He cut down on his meat and roll orders. He closed earlier. People stopped coming to buy his delicious hot dogs. Times got really tough. "You must be right, son. We certainly are in the middle of a great depression. There just isn't any business anymore." Need we point out the moral of this story?
